STRIKE FRONT IS UNBROKEN DURING WEEK

Milne Chair, Advised by "Drown 'Em" Pope Shepherd, Refuse Peace.

"SCAB" ELECTRIC SHOPS "PUTTERING AROUND"

Non-union Taxicab Patrons Receive Thrills—No More Dynamite Found in DeLuxe Office This Week.

Three strike fronts remained unchanged in Chattanooga this week. Milne Chair company officials, grief-stricken and enraged because of the refusal of their employes some six weeks ago to submit to a wage cut, told a government conciliator that there was nothing further to discuss until their employes stopped "breaking the law." Although this company has secured an injunction against their strikers, and no violation has been brought to the court, Attorney T. Pope Shepherd vaguely reiterates that "laws have been broken." Numerous individuals recall that it was Mr. Shepherd, acting as chairman of the local NRA board, suggested that a mob should swoop down on the Condra Grocery company and destroy it when said grocer did not follow Mr. Shepherd's demands, which were not upheld by the federal government. It was the same Mr. Shepherd who later made a statement to the press that labor agitators should be thrown into the middle of the ocean.

The four electrical contractors who refused to go along with the other contractors in signing the agreement with Electrical Workers' union, Local 175, remain "Unfair to Organized Labor." These four are Terrell Electric company, Teas Electric company, Curtis Electric company and Sweet Electric company. Pickets are sticking with these concerns, and from the support given to the union contractors, who are daily taking jobs from the "unfair four," it is thought by many that "puttering around" will soon grow monotonous.

The taxi war, under the generalship of Mr. Frank Steils, manager of the DeLuxe company, and the financier of the Economy, according to his statement, grows more exciting. Evidently all of the dynamite in the city was not stored in the cache found in Mr. Steil's office two weeks ago, because an Economy cab this week reported that it had been dynamited when answering a call. The first dynamiting was behind Mr. Steil's office, where a stock was discovered by police the next day, according to press reports. The Economy cabs are using Mr. Steil's garage as headquarters.

Officials of the taxi union Thursday expressed the hope that the DeLuxe management would even at this late hour live up to its signed agreement, which was for the purpose of giving the taxi drivers a chance to make a living for their families.

Central Body Meets Next Monday Evening

Next Monday evening, Oct. 28, at 7:30, Central Body will hold a regular session of delegates. Every local union is urged to notify its representatives to attend.

Reports on the strike situation in Chattanooga will be given, in addition to discussion of deliberations of the recent American Federation of Labor convention in Atlantic City.

Labor World's Own Community Chest Pest No. 1

Apologies to Chattanooga News

MR. IKARE FOREM

Every Community Chest worker has met Mr. Forem and can quote by heart exactly what he will say when approached for a contribution. Since 1919, when he moved here from the East, his annual statement has been:

"While I am forced to admit that the Community Chest agencies really do a good work and should be supported by the mass of people, I, personally, find a greater joy in providing employment for my hundreds of employes, whom I look on as 'my flock,' and care for their every need. I advance them money from pay day to pay day, see that they are cared for in the charity wards when sickness overtakes them at their machines, and bury them when they die. As I frequently jocosely remark: 'I work 'em and then bury 'em.' Were I to withdraw this personal attention from 'my sheep' they would not be physically strong enough to work for a living. I must decline to divide my efforts in benefiting humanity."

Here is the low-down on Mr. Ikare Forem: Every week or so he posts a notice in his plant telling his loyal sheeps that he is thinking of them, and unless they do not try to "step on it" in their production he will be forced to close his plant and thereby be anguished at the loss of his civic duty of providing work for them.

Thank goodness, all manufacturers in Chattanooga are not like Mr. Forem. There are many who not only pay decent wages to their employes, but who also chip in to the Chest to care for Mr. Forem's sheeps when they become desperate.

STRONG APPEALS FOR SUPPORT OF CHEST DRIVE

Organized Labor Asked to Aid "Be a Good Neighbor" Campaign.

MANAGER PORZELIUS EXPECTS UNION HELP

Twenty-three Agencies Combine in Annual Drive for Funds for Ensuing Year.

The annual campaign to fill the money box for the Community Chest is on in full blast under the general chairmanship of "Al" Porzelius. This organization co-ordinates all twenty-three charitable and semi-charitable agencies of the community into one effort, eliminating a multiplicity of "drives" which would be recurring every month of the year were each agency forced to relie on its individual efforts to secure funds.

Although Labor realizes that there will always be a certain number of people who are never able to care for themselves, it is particularly aware that because of a brutal philosophy on the part of many employers of this section, the Community Chest will be forced to care for thousands of people this winter. Many plants base their wage scales with the idea in mind that the Chest will complement their employes' meagre earnings with additional sustenance. Until such time comes that these unfortunates are enabled to secure an organization to raise wages, they must be cared for in some manner, and for this reason labor wants the Chest to be successful and to be able to avoid to a slight degree some of the suffering which results from starvation wages.

"Bob" Cooke Asks for Co-operation.

Known to every citizen not only as a staunch union advocate and member, but as a warm-hearted humanitarian, interested in the welfare of his fellow-beings, Commissioner "Bob" says: "For many years I have watched the Community Chest do a highly necessary and helpful job in providing for social service and welfare needs of Chattanooga through its twenty-three co-operating agencies. Few other appeals to the public will touch the heart-strings of the masses as the Community Chest's plea, 'Be a Good Neighbor,' and I sincerely hope that this year's campaign, which will start next Monday, Oct. 28, will have the support of every Chattanoogan, and that the budget goal will be crossed by a substantial majority."

UNION BAKERS INSTALL PLANT IN A BIG WAY

Former Merita Employes and Other Unionists Invest Thousands.

COMPLETE LINE OF BREADS AND CAKES

Union Baking Company to Supply Grocers With Union Labeled Products of High Quality.

After several months of preparation, some $40,000 has been raised throughout the labor movement by former employes of the American Bakeries company with which to open a first-class bakery in Chattanooga. Curtis Sims, president of the new corporation, announces that the very latest and modern ovens and machinery is now being installed in the old Rossville arena on Rossville boulevard, and it is expected that their products will be on the market Nov. 4.

Associated with Mr. Sims will be Miss Annie Cameron, acting as secretary-treasurer, who has withdrawn from the Cameron & Barr Baking company. The combination of Miss Cameron, who has been in the executive branch of the baking industry for years, with the practical knowledge of the craft supplied by union bakers who have been following their trade from five to fifteen years, assures the new venture of most favorable prospects.

Part of the new equipment will include seven Dodge trucks, which will enable a complete and efficient service coverage of this territory.

All of the products of the Union Baking company will bear the union label. The labor movement will greet this announcement with loud acclaim, and since at the present time there is no other baking concern entitled to use the label, it is predicted that "Mother's" bread and cakes will at least be in every union household.

"Mother's" bread and cakes, the name given to the new product, will be better than any other breads now on the market, directors of the company announce. Drawing on long years of experience locally, and the scientific advice available from the Bakery and Confectionery Workers' International union, these products will be made from a most healthful and tasty formula.

Congratulations and best wishes are extended to this newest union labor project by The Labor World, and the co-operation of the entire labor movement is extended to it.

AFL Offers Aid To Tenant Farmers

Convention Demands Federal Probe of Working and Living Conditions in South.

Atlantic City, N. J.—A federal investigation of the working and living conditions of southern tenant farmers will be sought by the A. F. of L., the federation's annual convention decided.

In addition, all organizations affiliated with the A. F. of L. are urged to give "assistance and encouragement whenever and where possible" to these farm workers who are trying "to establish decent labor standards."

Charging that contractors on the Fort Peck, Mont., dam project "have chiseled from $50,000 to $60,000 a week from workers' wages," the convention demanded a congressional investigation.

Products of Plough, Inc., Removed from Organized Labor's "We Don't Patronize List."

AMICABLE AGREEMENT IS SIGNED

Labor Officials Call on Unionists to Patronize Cosmetic and Drug Manufacturer.

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 24.—An amicable settlement of the strike of girl workers at the Memphis plant of Plough, Inc., has been reached.

An agreement ending the 10-day strike has been signed by representatives of the company and the Cosmetic Workers' Union No. 20047, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

Operations in the plant have been resumed.

Settlement of the strike automatically removes Plough products from organized labor's "We Don't Patronize List." Trade unionists everywhere are advised that Plough products are now manufactured in a plant where union labor is employed.

A statement issued by R. S. McCann, president of the Memphis Trades and Labor council and the Tennessee Federation of Labor, and Miss Helen Murray, president of the Cosmetic union, follows:

"Members of the Cosmetic Workers' Union No. 20047 will return to their jobs at Plough, Inc., under working conditions equal to those of any other high class manufacturing plant in the country. In negotiations, all objectionable features which led to the walkout have been eliminated. The agreement concedes to the union the right of collective bargaining, and grants a satisfactory increase in wages and a material shortening of hours.

"In recognition of fair union working conditions provided for in the contract the boycott against Plough products has been withdrawn.

"The union takes this opportunity to express its appreciation of the spirit of fairness evidenced by representatives of Plough, Inc., during the negotiations, and to pledge its entire membership to the promotion of the company's future success and prosperity, to the common good of all."

The statement of Plough, Inc., follows:

"Through conciliation we have reached an agreement with the girls employed in the production end of our business. The agreement is satisfactory to both sides. The girls have returned to work and the business of Plough, Inc., resumes as usual.

"The agreement brings to an end in a spirit of harmony a situation which we deplored from the outset. As in all such controversies, when two sides are contending for principles which they think are fair and just, much bitterness is engendered and many statements and rumors, incorrect and unverified, are given circulation, and through repetition, not based on knowledge, gain an authority to which they are not entitled. The present has been no exception.

"The reaching of an agreement with the workers involved puts a definite end to any bitterness or ill feeling. They return to work as Plough employes, entitled to the same courtesy and consideration given to every Plough employe. However, it is not

Many Locals Name Representatives To Political Meeting

To Convene Sunday, Nov. 3, to Discuss Political Activities for Future.

Seven Railroad Crafts Announce Intention to Take Part in Deliberations—Sponsored by Central Body.

Some twenty local unions have thus far notified Chattanooga Trades and Labor council that it will be represented at a meeting sponsored by that body to gather the opinions of the various organized crafts as to what method of procedure labor should take in forthcoming city and county elections.

A resolution has been sponsored by Central Body which calls on every local to send two accredited delegates to the labor hall on Sunday, Nov. 3, at 2 o'clock. Many unionists have emphatically expressed their views that labor should enter some sort of independent political group of liberals, regardless of democratic or republican leanings, and effect more lasting and beneficial legislation and executive results for working people. On the other hand, there are many in the trades union ranks who hold that the two major parties should remain in the field as in the past, and no separate leadership or affiliation should be attempted.

The meeting is called to collate these views and ascertain just what proportion of organized labor regard with favor either of the two views.

When your troubles weigh you down, invest in a new set of thinking scales.

Don't allow any merchant to hand you a "package." See that the goods are marked with a union label.

Machinists Mop Up Motor Car Plants

San Francisco Lodge Signs Advantageous Pact With 225 Concerns.

Smashing victories were recorded this week by the International Association of Machinists in its drive to organize automobile repair shops and garages on the Pacific slope.

Lodge No. 1304 of San Francisco reported to Washington headquarters that it had won an agreement with 225 maintenance and repair shops. The pact stipulates that all employes must be members of the union and provides for a 40-hour week, a minimuh rate of 90 cents an hour for mechanics and time and one-half for overtime.

Until this contract was negotiated the repair shops in San Francisco and other coast towns had been paying "all the way from nothing up," the report declared.

Dealers Face Fight.

When San Francisco automobile dealers refused to accept the terms for their garages and repair shops the Machinists called out 500 men. Seven dealers immediately surrendered and signed up and a stiff fight is being given the others.

Frisco Machinists also obtained an agreement with the Asphalt Plant association which calls for a minimum wage of $8 for a 7-hour day, a five-day week and double time for all work outside the specified hours.

In Portland, Ore., the Consolidated Freight Line, a large trucking concern operating fleets throughout the northwest, made a contract with Machinists' Lodge No. 1055, establishing a minimum rate of 90 cents an hour.

Try This, Mr. Mayor

By T. R. CUTHBERT

Since Mayor Bass has gone into the rubber stamp business to relieve, protect, evade, eliminate (or what have you) possible embarrassment by the city from insistence of certain groups for fulfillment of legal debts, we have had our eyes opened to a wonderful avenue of escape from [illegible] sources of embarrassment [illegible] from the teachers.

We suggest that the next time a note to a bank becomes due, say, for $100,000, let the mayor write a check for $50,000 and affix his trusty stamp on the back of it, which reads as follows: "PAID IN FULL."

Just try it once, Mr. Mayor. Of course, the bank, not having to relie on the cashing of that rubber stamp-indorsed check for next week's groceries, might not cash it, but immediately take you to court until the well known hades freezes over.

We agree with you, again, that even the teacher does not have to cash that check right away if she does not care to. Since she has already gone three months without pay, deprivation should have hardened her to such an extent that two or three months more should not be of material difference.

What Next!

Compressed air replaces dynamite in a new method of coal mining through which dangerous fumes are eliminated and the coal is not recovered in larger and more valuable chunks than heretofore, says Popular Science Monthly. A long deep cartridge is thrust into a drill hole in the face of the deposit and is charged with air to a pressure of 15,000 pounds to the square inch. With the miner at a safe distance a valve suddenly releases the charge. Expanding, the air forces out the coal in large fragments, without [illegible] it. The [illegible] and even [illegible]

Lady Took Cardui When Weak, Nervous

"I can't say enough for Cardui if I talked all day," enthusiastically writes Mrs. L. H. Caldwell, of Statesville, N. C. "I have used Cardui at intervals for twenty-five years," she adds. "My trouble in the beginning was weakness and nervousness. I read of Cardui in a newspaper and decided right then to try it. It seemed before I had taken half a bottle of Cardui I was stronger and was soon up and around."

Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

Wages Under the NRA

Increased wages for workers who were employed when the national recovery act became effective in 1933 were not achieved under the two years administration of that law, according to the report of the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor to the 1935 convention of the federation in Atlantic City.

Although the index of manufacturing payrolls compiled by the United States bureau of labor statistics indicates that payroll wages were increased 84 per cent from the low of 1933 to May, 1935, the council points out that at least 25 per cent of this increase occurred before the NRA entered the field.

Moreover, those who own the essential commodities and services which the workers must buy increased the cost of living so that the real gain of the higher wages expressed in purchasing power was not more than 60 per cent for the entire NRA regime.

But even this gain in the buying power of manufacturing payrolls was nullified for most of the employes concerned. On this subject the Executive Council said:

> "From the standpoint of the individual, however, while we had a 31 per cent increase in the hourly rate, the weekly money wage is up only about 18 per cent, due to shortened hours. It is easily seen that the increased cost of living of 15.5 per cent has largely nullified this gain. For a lift in purchasing power to be more than a mere deterrent to further deflation, the weekly wage of the individual must be raised substantially above a mere subsistence level."

Continuing its analysis of the near zero bentfits to workers in the form of wages under the NRA, the Executive Council declared:

> "It has been shown above that the condition of the wage-earner who was at work when the NRA became effective, was improved little, if any, under this control. On the average, weekly earnings were hardly increased sufficiently to offset increases in the cost of living. Actually, decreases in weekly earnings were brought about in countless cases. Furthermore, through the manipulation of wage incentives and other forms of the stretch-out, there has been a widespread increase in the work load placed upon individual workers, with no proportionate increase in compensation."

In contrast to these depressing figures regarding wages, the council said that "certain economic and social benefits" resulted from the NRA. "Minimum standards were adopted as a base upon which to build a better economic structure. Child labor was virtually eliminated. Unfair trade practices which had been eating into the very core of our industry and trade were brought under some degree of control. The way was cleared for progress."

The Passing Show

Note and Comment on Things Doing in the March of Events

Believe it or not, there is a real movement on in the United States to extend and enlarge the volume of credit in use by workers. There may be no connecting link binding the whole thing together, no co-ordination to it, but from a dozen points comes the inspiration to workers to go into debt, to use their credit, to draw against the future.

Well, why not? It seems like a good idea to a lot of people anyway. The government itself is doing a lot of it, with its loans to farmers "for productive purposes"—and what purposes are not?—at a straight 5 per cent a year. And that rate "is something," if you ask this column. Not six, but five. Try it on your banker.

But the banker isn't sleeping, either. National City bank in New York has made a deal with a group of big corporations like General Electric and Consolidated Gas, by which it will loan money to any employe who has held his job more than six months. The money is loaned without co-signers and without security, at 9.7 per cent a year. The company repays the money and takes it out of the pay envelope. What that will mean to union organizing remains to be seen, but the interest rate beats the credit union rate. This is just one of the many ways that are boosting the use of wage-earner credit. Banks all over are opening small loan departments. This business is going to have a result. What result? Who knows? Where among us are the prophets?

And there's another idea afloat. Bank of America, run by big financier Gianinni all over California, is out with its "automobile letter of credit." Big billboard and radio blasts, with newspaper ads, call to the native and adopted sons and daughters to come and get 'em. The idea is that you don't go to an auto dealer and sign his financing agreement. You find out how much money you'll need and get an automobile letter of credit for that much from the Bank of America. If you use the letter it becomes cash to the dealer. You repay the bank in instalments at a lower interest rate than the usual finance company rate. Many will probably be induced to buy cars through this device. Mass credit again is being shot upward.

All over the country department stores and other kinds of stores are working out new kinds of charge accounts. One plan gives the creditor three months before he starts to pay—a chance to "get squared around." It is being made easier for the buyer to buy—pay later, on what are called "easy" payments. The housing administration is doing plenty, though less than it could and should.

All in all, the idea is to enlarge the use of credit by the great masses. It will stimulate markets, make things move. These things probably will work out for the employed—but they aren't worth a lead nickel to the ten million unemployed. For those there isn't any greatly improved outlook. Well, there are the facts. Play them according to your own ideas and see what kind of a tune they make under your roof tree.

In each of the twelve Federal Home Loan bank districts the August increase this year over August, 1934, was more than 155 per cent in dollar volume of home building permits granted, except in District No. 1 (New England), where the gain was 59 per cent.

L. I. D. BRINGS NORMAN THOMAS GEO. L. GOOGE

"Rise of Southern Labor" Should Attract Many Trades-Unionists.

Chattanooga labor is looking forward to the opportunity of listening to the famous Norman Thomas, nationally known for his enunciations directed toward the advancement of the working people. On the same program Saturday evening at the courthouse with Norman Thomas will be George L. Googe, southern director for the American Federation of Labor. Speaking for the first time in Chattanooga will be Coy Fulton, active in labor ranks of Florence, Ala., and George Streator, organizer for the Amalgamated Clothing Workers' union.

This is another of the annual programs given in Chattanooga by the League of Industrial Democracy, cooperating with the Chattanooga Forum, a liberal element in the city. The lectures will start Saturday, Oct. 26, at 10 o'clock, at the Park hotel. They will continue until Sunday afternoon, moving into the Hamilton county courthouse.

Stanton E. Smith, president of the local teachers' union, is slated to lecture on "Social Cost of Economy in Education," who will be part of the program for Saturday morning at the hotel.

Full outline of the series will be as follows:

Registration at 9 a.m., Saturday, at Park hotel.

Discussing "Social Costs of Economy in Education," beginning at 10 a.m. The lead will be taken by John Dillingham, director of Lincoln academy, King's Mountain, N. C. Following him will be Stanton E. Smith, of Chattanooga, and Mary C. Barker, an active union school teacher in Atlanta.

The second session will open at 2:30 p.m. in the courthouse, and will have as a subject "The Shadow of the Plantation." Lecturers will be Prof. Charles S. Johnson, Fisk university; Howard Kester, Religion and Labor Foundation, and H. L. Mitchell, executive secretary, Southern Tenant Farmers' union.

The evening session at the courthouse will open at 8 p.m., and the subject, "The Rise of Southern Labor," will be led by George L. Googe, followed by Coy Fulton, labor leader of Florence, Ala. George Streator, organizer for the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, will precede Norman Thomas.

The Sunday morning session will open at 10 a.m. at the courthouse. Leon Jourolomon, an attorney of Knoxville; George Fort Milton, editor of Chattanooga News, and a representative of the negro press will discuss "The Press and Social Conflict."

Norman Thomas will give a summary of "A Program of the South" Sunday afternoon at 2:30.

MORE ABOUT CHEST DRIVE

most sympathetic and liberal hearted citizens," declares A. F. Porzelius, general campaign chairman of the Community Chest, in an interview Tuesday, "and I welcome an opportunity of appealing directly for their co-operation and support in the coming Chest campaign. In the past, they have contributed liberally to Chest causes and I am sure that thousands of our pledge cards this year will bear their names.

"One thing that I would like to stress to Labor World readers is the fact that scores of names of substantial, worthwhile citizens do not appear on our 'prospect' lists, therefore they are not visited by Chest solicitors. If any one is not personally called upon, Chest officials will appreciate their making a voluntary contribution which will be received at the Chest headquarters any time during campaign week. These voluntary contributions will be appreciated beyond measure and will serve to not only increase this year's total but strengthen our list for future years.

"This year, every agency of the Community Chest faces more demands than ever before. Countless forms of social service and welfare work must be attended to by these local organizations as federal relief does not provide to underprivileged children, the sick and undernourished, the aged and infirm or a host of other unfortunate folks who will suffer without Chest aid. There has never been a time when the responsibility has been so great.

"The plea 'Be a good neighbor,' is being made to all Chattanooga and I am sure that the desire to be a good neighbor exists in every home in which The Labor World is read, and that our team workers will not only receive splendid financial support but will be cordially greeted as they solicit funds to meet Chattanooga's welfare needs during the coming months."

Getting out of the depression has a bad effect on everybody's constitution.

2,035,794 WORKERS WIN SHORTER HOURS BY UNION CONTRACTS

203,989 Have Work Week of Less Than Forty Hours; 13,806 Have Secured 30-Hour Week.

Atlantic City, N. J.—While mobilizing the influence of organized labor with other progressive public opinion to insure the enactment of the Black-Connery 30-hour week law to provide work for the millions of unemployed, the national and international unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor have carried on so persistently the struggle to secure shorter hours by trade unions collective bargaining that 2,935,794 members of these unions are enoying a 40-hour week, or less, according to the report of the A. F. of L. Executive Council to the federation's 1935 convention in session here.

Of this number, the council pointed out, 203,989 have work hours of less than 40 per week (chiefly 35 and 36 hours) and 13,806 have already won the 30-hour week by agreement. In addition, several thousand members are working on PWA projects, where the 30-hour week is in effect due to provisions in the original act won through the efforts of organized labor.

Steady Drive for Shorter Hours.

"Our reports also show," the council added, "that the steady drive of the international unions to reduce hours by agreement has shortened the work week for 770,031 members during the last year and a half (January, 1934, to June, 1935). These gains have been accomplished since codes were established. They represent gains over and above the shortening of hours effected by codes.

Kerr Immigration Bill Opposed by A. F. of L.

Executive Council Believes It Is Blow at Immigration Restriction Policy.

Atlantic City, N. J.—Expressing its belief that although the Kerr immigration bill has been described as a "deportation" measure it is in reality a bill to weaken the deportation provisions of the present immigration law, the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor in their report to the annual convention here said that the representatives of the A. F. of L. had opposed the enactment of the bill during the recent session of congress.

In explaining their opposition to the bill, the council declared:

"The policy of the American Federation of Labor regarding immigration legislation has been vigorously upheld. We have jealously guarded the immigration statutes which were passed at previous sessions of congress. All attempts to weaken or modify these immigration statutes have been opposed and resisted by the officers and representatives of the American Federation of Labor.

"Measures dealing with immigration restriction were introduced at the recent session of congress.

Had Objectionable Features.

"One of these measures of special importance was H. R. 8163, introduced by Congressman Kerr, at the request of the commissioner of immigration.

"There were sections and features of this immigration bill which were objectionable to the American Federation of Labor. For this reason objections to consideration of the bill were interposed by representatives of the American Federation of Labor.

"Conferences were held between a committee representing the Executive Council, the commissioner of immigration and his representative in an endeavor to redraft the objectionable sections of this bill. No agreement was reached; consequently, the American Federation of Labor has remained firm in its opposition to the enactment of this bill.

Weakens Immigration Restriction.

"The Kerr bill has been characterized as a 'deportation' bill. It is the opinion of the Executive Council that it is designed to liberalize the deportation sections of existing immigration statutes. The measure was given support by those we have always known to be opposed to restrictive immigration statutes.

"A companion measure to the Kerr bill was introduced in the senate by Senator Coolidge. The measure has simply remained on the senate calendar without any action whatsoever. Strong opposition to the measure was manifested by a very large number of members of the United States senate.

"In conformity with the traditional policy of the American Federation of Labor, it is the purpose of the Executive Council to do all that lies within its power to strengthen and perfect restricted immigration legislation rather than to modify or weaken existing statutes."

Textile Workers' Sound Truck Jailed in North Carolina Strike

Mooresville, N. C.—Police and mill authorities here have succeeded in putting nineteen textile workers and the United Textile Workers' sound truck in jail on various charges, including also the operator of the sound truck, Oliver W. Gaylord, who is a member of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

The Mooresville cotton mill employs about 1,200 workers, who are on strike; but the company is trying to keep up a show of operations with about 200 employes. Union pickets have been arrested on various technicalities, necessitating the raising of bail money, which has been done. The sound truck operator was arrested first for disturbing the peace and for operating without North Carolina license tags. He had District of Columbia license tags. When bail was furnished, he was arrested again for driving a sound truck without having paid the state or county amusement tax! But he was bailed out on that at 1:30 a.m. and the police did not pay any amusement tax on that comedy, either. In each case the sound truck was also "arrested."

The electrical workers' headquarters in Washington said that their organization will take up the matter of the arrest of Gaylord, which should help to annoy the mill management, as well as helping out the textile workers.

The textile strike arose from discrimination against union members by the mill management, and subsequent refusal to deal with the union committee. After the strike started, it developed that the mill management controlled the sheriff, chief of police and the mayor; but that the city council is friendly to the workers. This situation may result in some disciplining of the city officers before the matter is finished.

Chain picketing at the gates by the members of the United Textile Workers of America resulted in the arrest of about twenty of the pickets, along with the sound truck operator. All are out on bail, and the "law" has been doing everything possible to make it hard for the strikers.

Eager Playright—I wish I could think up a big, strong situation that would fill the audience with tears.

Printing Trades Unions Form Ohio State Council

Columbus, O.—A large delegation of members of the five international printing trades unions met here and formed the Ohio State Allied Printing Trades council, representing approximately 25,000 organized members of the printing crafts.

D. Oakley Davies, of Columbus, past president of the Columbus Typographical Union No. 5, and president of the Columbus Allied Printing Trades council, was elected president, and Don Courtney, secretary of the local allied council and legislative agent of the printing crafts, was named secretary-treasurer. The new organization was sponsored by the Columbus Allied Printing Trades council.

The executive board, representative of the five international unions, were: Curtis L. Hill, Dayton, Photo-Engravers; Charles L. Hamelinne, Akron, Stereotypers and Electrotypers' union and secretary of the Akron Allied Printing Trades council; George W. Larimore, Dayton, Printing Pressmen and Assistants' union; Miss Ann Woodland, Columbus, International Brotherhood of Bookbinders, and Roy L. Miller, Dayton, International Typographical union.

The purpose of the organization is to improve and strengthen unions in all branches of the trades, to form unions in towns where none exist, to demand the allied label on all state printing, to protect the printing trade in the state legislature and to embark upon a campaign of education.

Resolutions condemning the Sherrill report as it pertains to state printing; denouncement of the veto of Gov. Martin L. Davey in abolishing the state bindery and advocating the office of public printer were introduced and passed unanimously.

Facts and figures were produced to show that printing done in the penitentiary would cost more through the purchase of machinery, depreciation, spoilage, breakage and incompetence than the state now pays for printing. The state bindery veto was assailed because of the number of people it would throw out of work, many of them deaf mutes who would become wards of the state, and because the work can be done more economically in a centrally located plant.

The unions are not the only ones which have jurisdictional disputes—Witness Ickes and Hopkins!

Man—Have your ancestors ever been traced?

Friend—Yes, but they were so smart they couldn't catch them.

Money may not bring happiness, but it makes those lucky enough to have it mighty comfortable.

Deacon—Brother Jones, can't you donate something to de fund for building in the cullud cemetery?

Brother Jones—I dunno as I can. I don't see no use in a fence around de cemetery. You see, dem what's in there can't get out, and dem what's out don't wanta get in.

way to end the effect of incorrect statements.

"Our company has never been guilty paying girls $4 and $5 for a week's work. The crux of the controversy with the women workers in our production department has been primarily that objection was made by them to the system under which they work. We deeply resent the unfair charge, made in the heat of controversy, that our company has been guilty of paying 'starvation' wages.

"The best evidence of the falsity of this is the fact that throughout all negotiations leading to a settlement of the controversy but little time or stress was put upon the rate of pay and a satisfactory agreement on this question was quickly reached.

"The agreement finally reached after long and patient conference is entirely satisfactory to both sides, and all girls come back to work under a scale of wages, hours and working conditions satisfactory to them and us.

"Under the terms of their agreement, we recognize their union. We have no fight with organized labor and we have entered into this agreement with a particular union with a sincere desire to co-operate and the hope that our dealings with an organized group will prove beneficial to employes and the business alike.

"We are glad the disturbing conditions created by the controversy are at an end and that the company once again, with a spirit of harmony and co-operation prevailing among all of its employes, can resume the march of progress which gives promise of making 1935 the best year in the company's history."

Get Rid of Poisons
Produced by Constipation

A cleansing laxative—purely vegetable Black-Draught—is the first thought of thousands of men and women who have found that by restoring the downward movement of the bowels many disagreeable symptoms of constipation promptly can be relieved. . . Mr. J. P. Mahaffey, of Clinton, S. C., writes: "I have found that Black-Draught is very effective in the cleansing of the system. When affected by the dull headache, the drowsiness and lassitude caused by constipation, I take Black-Draught."

BLACK-DRAUGHT — A Natural, Purely Vegetable Laxative

To Reinstate Rayon Strikers.

Atlantic City, N. J.—Assistant Labor Secretary Edward F. McGrady said here that the Industrial Rayon Corporation of Cleveland had agreed to reinstate all except four of the fifty-nine strikers listed as unacceptable by the management. McGrady said that the agreement was reached a week previous.

joy at the headquarters of the League of Nations in Geneva. It turned down a proposal to start a "youth movement" in the federation, saying that youth movements showed too strong a tendency to become either fascist or communist. While retaining its traditional attitude on communism, the convention dropped the proposal to give the Executive Council power to expel any union of communistic tendencies.

As the result of an earlier clash with the belligerent Lewis, Matthew Woll resigned from the vice-presidency of the National Civic Federation.

Code Legislation Urged.

The convention denounced as "unethical" the tactics and methods of the American Liberty league and declared that the opinion of the league's lawyers on the Wagner-Connery labor relations act invited violation of the act by employers and was "an attempt to prejudice the action of the supreme court."

A resolution favoring legislation to enforce industrial codes covering maximum hours and minimum wages was approved. The resolution recommended the setting up of boards with power to enforce codes similar to those under the NRA. It instructed the Executive Council to institute a campaign for introduction and passage of legislation to that end.

Other resolutions adopted provided:

That the federation aid organization of tenant farmers in every way possible.

Against Racketeers.

For a campaign of eradication of labor racketeers from the labor movement.

For instructions to the Executive Council to investigate charges that the Illinois Power and Light company was conspiring to defeat collective bargaining with employes and asking the council to protect the employes under the Wagner act.

For efforts to restrict the importation of news print paper which has been "manufactured by underpaid labor."

The convention urged American sports organizations to boycott the Olympic games in Germany next year.

Denouncing the nazi regime, which it declared had "exceeded all cruelties known to history," the convention decided also to conduct "with new intensity" organized labor's two-year-old boycott on German goods and services.

Alabama to Feed Striking Miners

Montgomery, Ala.—An agreement under which the state of Alabama and five counties will match funds to feed 10,000 striking soft coal miners has been perfected by Gov. Bibb Graves.

Strikers in Jefferson, Tuscaloosa, Shelby, Bibb and Walker counties will be aided with public funds.

Arbitration Ends Big Tannery Strike

Atlantic City, N. J.—The strike of 1,000 workers at the Wood River, Ill., tannery plant of the International Shoe company has been settled, William E. Bryan, president of the United Leather Workers' International union, announced here, where he was attending the American Federation of Labor convention.

The strike began four months ago because of the company's discrimination against union members. On Oct. 14 Gov. Horner intervened and the following day the company abandoned its position of refusal to discuss the union grievances, agreeing to enter at once into arbitration proceedings. Col. Robert W. Davis, of Carbondale, of the Illinois National Guard, was accepted as mediator by both sides.

The Woods River plant is the International Shoe company's largest tannery.

Virginia Miners Get Pay Increase

Norfolk, Va.—Coal miners of southwestern Virginia will get an extra 20 cents a ton over the rates of last year for all the coal they mine. It is estimated that their next year's wages will be about $1,800,000 above those prevailing before the strike which brought about the new wage scale.

Mine owners and coal dealers are already marking up prices, not 20 cents a ton, but from 25 to 50 cents.

Be a Good Neighbor, Chattanooga

The Fall of 1935 is no time for dilly-dallying around in supporting Chattanooga's Community Chest . . . human welfare needs are greater than ever before . . . each of the 23 Chest agencies faces heavier burdens this year . . . every citizen must do his or her part in meeting these responsibilities . . . "Be a good neighbor" is more than a slogan—it is an urgent plea!

Next Monday, October 28, the 14th annual Community Chest campaign begins with the goal of completely financing the Chest's carefully prepared budget for 1936—the work of 23 social service and welfare organizations depends upon the outcome of this campaign.

Chattanooga simply cannot fail to make this campaign a success. The health and happiness of thousands of underprivileged children, the well-being of hundreds of unfortunate families, the needs of the aged and infirm; these and countless other demands MUST be met!

Through its 23 cooperating agencies, the Community Chest does a humanitarian work of vital value to the entire community. It extends a helping hand in hundreds, even thousands, of cases where Government relief or other aid do not reach. To a large host of unfortunate folks, the Community Chest agencies offer the only ray of hope!

If you have not previously subscribed to the Community Chest, for humanity's sake start NOW!

If you have been giving regularly, think of the vastly increased needs and raise your quota. Give MORE this year for there are MORE needs!

Be ready when the Community Chest teams call. Greet them with a smile. Let your contribution prove your desire to "Be a good neighbor."

These 23 Agencies are depending on you!

American Red Cross—Home relief for veterans with service connected disability.

Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts—Christian training and character-moulding work among boys and girls throughout the community.

Children's Refuge—Home for children whose parents are temporarily unable to care for them.

Colored Orphans' Home—A home for colored children who are cared for until adopted.

Florence Crittenton Home—Hospital and training home for unmarried mothers.

Free Milk Association — Provides milk and medical attention for undernourished and sick children.

Frances Willard Home and Kosmos Cottage — Provide home care and service for girls.

Humane Educational Society—Provides day-time care for children whose mothers must work. During the unemployment emergency these agencies have been providing for many children who would otherwise be undernourished and sick.

North Chattanooga Community Center—Performs many different types of social service work for men, women and children. A settlement house in every sense of the word.

Old Ladies Home—A home for old ladies who have no other place to turn for shelter and care.

Salvation Army—Provides food and shelter for transients—men, women, children and families.

Social Service Bureau — Extends family relief in the form of food, fuel and clothing plus friendly counsel and advice to families whose breadwinner is either dead, sick or otherwise unemployable. The Federal relief bureau helps only those families in which the breadwinner is able to work.

Tennessee Children's Home Society—Extends temporary care and eventual adoption for abandoned and neglected children who are in need of homes and parents.

Travelers Aid Society — Extends care and assistance for transients who are temporarily distressed. This work is extremely broad in scope.

Tuberculosis Sanitorium Association (Pine Breeze)—Complete facilities for the treatment of persons afflicted with tuberculosis. Also carries forward a preventive program which rebounds to the benefit of every person in the community.

Vine Street Orphans Home—A home for orphaned children who are eventually placed for adoption.

Y.M.C.A., Y.M.H.A., Y.W.C.A.—The Community Chest appropriation to these agencies is used for—(1) work among underprivileged boys and girls—(2) leisure time and recreational activities for adults who cannot pay the minimum fees.

The Community Chest office, or any of the Agencies, will be glad to make further explanations.

Hosiery Mill Seeks to Prevent Holding of Employes' Election

Fort Wayne, Ind.—In outright violation of a signed agreement with its employes, the Wayne Knitting mills is fighting to prevent the national labor relations board from holding an election in the plant here.

After stalling for weeks, and after inventing a puppet union which intervened to further delay matters the firm finally refused to furnish its pay roll to the labor relations board in order to force the matter into the courts, thus delaying the election indefinitely.

The striking employes at the Wayne mills returned to work on July 26 when the firm signed an agreement that it would co-operate with the labor board in holding an election for representatives after the board had laid down rules and regulations for the conduct of such an election.

When the national labor board did frame its rules Regional Director R. Cowdrill was sent to Fort Wayne to arrange to take the polls at the convenience of the union and the employer. An agreement was reached that the election would be held on Sept. 29. The rules for the conduct of the election were agreed to by the firm as outlined by Director Cowdrill. A few days later Cowdrill was called at his office in Indianapolis and was informed that an "Association of Employes for Representation of Employes Only" had been formed in the plant and would demand a place on the ballot. The firm had previously told Cowdrill that there no longer was a company union in the mill.

One point at issue had been the right of non-productive employes to vote in the election. The union representatives insisted that only those workers eligible for membership in the American Federation of Hosiery Workers were entitled to a vote on a ballot which involved the American Federation of Hosiery Workers.

An agreement was reached even on this point and the company union representative signed a memorandum detailing the understandings. It was then that the company was forced into a corner and was obliged to show its opposition openly. Brasenly going back on its agreement, the firm defied the labor board by refusing to make its payroll available for the election. Without the payroll to check against it is virtually impossible to conduct fair voting in a large manufacturing plant. The matter is now back with the labor board and it will probably be necessary to hold formal hearings on the question.

CHATTA. LABEL LEAGUE HOLDS MEETING FRIDAY

Chattanooga Label league will meet in regular session Friday night at 7:30 at the Central Labor hall.

Miss Ina Green, president of the organization, stresses the fact that not only are the appointed delegates from each local urged to attend, but that all members of organizations and their families are invited to take part in all the meetings.

Johnson City Notes

Johnson City.—O. S. Tislow, of Tulsa, Okla., general organizer of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers, who spent last week in this city working with local painters, left last Saturday for Knoxville, Tenn., where he will spend some time in the interest of his organization.

According to announcement made by H. Engleman, president of the local organization of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers, plans are moving along nicely in the organization campaign of this local. Meetings are being held this week and are largely attended by local men of this territory.

Stanton E. Smith, of Chattanooga, spent last Saturday in Johnson City and Elizabethton in the interest of his organization, the American Federation of Teachers. While in Elizabethton, Mr. Smith addressed the Carter County Teachers' association, relating what the American Federation of Teachers was, how it was organized and the broad program that it stood for.

Before returning to Chattanooga Mr. Smith stopped in Johnson City for a few hours for a conference with labor officials of the Johnson City Central Labor union. He is very enthusiastic in regard to the local of the American Federation of Teachers in Carter county and predicts a large membership before the Christmas holidays.

Johnson City Central Labor union, through W. G. Hart, vice-president and acting secretary, has mailed to Judge John M. Mongold, of the county court, indorsing the county official's refusal of paying county magistrates and deputy sheriffs claims amounting to over $3,000.

"Our membership agrees with you that something should be done about the 'fee grabbing system,'" the letter said in part. "Organized labor and all citizens of the county are interested in preventing increased tax burdens and are heartily in sympathy with your move and we feel that the people of Washington county will back you to the limit. Johnson City Central Labor union and its officers and members feel that you were justified in your action and we extend to you our appreciation of your efforts, and assure you of our heartiest co-operation."

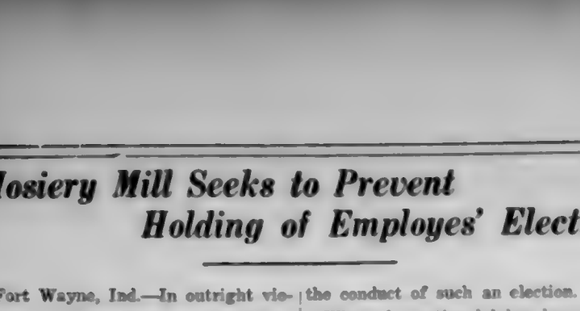
In the campaign of organized labor in Kingsport, according to E. C. Cluney, representative of the United Textile Workers of America, much progress has been made in the past few weeks and prospects are even brighter for the future.

At the open mass meeting of that city last Sunday more than four hundred attended and the meeting was addressed by J. R. Slayton, an independent coal operators of southwest Virginia, who has always worked union miners in all of his mines. Organizer Cluney also addressed the meeting.

Machinist Local Makes Large Gain In Membership Roll

Machinists' Local No. 56 reports that at its last regular meeting fifteen new members were obligated. For the past two months from two to ten members have been added to its roll, and it appears that this local is well on its way toward complete organization in this craft for the entire city.

A startling announcement is promised in the near future that will thrill the labor movement, it is stated by officials of the local. Watch for it.



If you could buy electricity at the power house and carry it home, the price could be cut, probably 80%. The reason: it costs about 4 times as much to deliver electricity to your home as it does to make it.

LABOR'S IDEAS TO BE POLLED THIS SUNDAY

Meeting Sponsored by Central Body Calls for Delegates from Each Union.

POLITICAL POLICIES WILL BE DISCUSSED

Delegates to Determine Whether Independent Political Activity Should Be Tried.

On Sunday, Nov. 3, at the labor hall, two delegates from every local union are to meet to bring with them the sentiment of their membership as to whether labor shall continue to follow the two major parties or should align with liberal independent elements to be effected.

Sentiment for the latter action has been gathering some strength for many months, although it is not known to what extent such ideas have grown. Many feel that labor has been maltreated about by both parties to such degree that labor's political power has been kept fairly evenly divided and in this way has been nullifying its own efforts.

On the other hand, proponents for continuing the old system of political action claim that by aligning with other political powers in existence much more can be accomplished.

The meeting will be called at 2:00 o'clock.

New Free Spirit In Plant Groups Worries Industry

Employer - Fostered Organizations Show Signs of Getting Out of Hand and May Prove Boomerang to Bosses.

Washington.—Masters of the three greatest mass production industries, steel, rubber and automobiles, are badly worried by the fact that their company unions are showing a disposition to turn into real unions, no longer submissive to the dictates of management.

The movement seems to have gone furthest in steel. Representatives of these company unions in the plants of the American Sheet and Tin Plate company, the tin plate division of the steel trust, have held a convention, formed an organization which at least is intended to represent 23,000 workers in tin plate plants, and decided to ask the company for increased wages and other concessions.

The news of this movement spread, doubtless by design. The Jones & Laughlin mills at Aliquippa, Pa., employ some 10,000 workers who have been herded into company unions. Their representatives got together and decided to ask for better wages.

Others Go Farther.

Workers in the Republic Steel company and the Weirton Steel company have gone farther, and, through company unions, made actual demands for increased wages. (Note well, none of these demands have been granted.) The Goodyear company union in Akron, O., has rejected the suggestion of the management to restore the eight-hour day in a plant where the six-hour day prevails now.

The idea of consolidating company unions and taking an independent stand seems to have started with the employes at the Farrell, Pa., plant of the American Sheet and Tin Plate company last spring. They held a meeting, and raised some money, about $3,000—probably they did not dare make an open break and establish dues. The notion spread to the other plants, and a fund of $2,000 was raised.

Convention Asks More Pay.

Late in September, a convention of forty-three delegates was held at Newcastle, Pa., and the delegates adopted a motion refusing to invite a representative of the management. Then they voted to ask for a 15 per cent increase in wages for most of

Central Body Flays Indiana's Fascist Rule by Gov. M'Nutt

Former Legion Commander Expressed Sympathy for Dillinger, But Uses Bayonets Against Workers.

RESOLUTION POINTS OUT UN-AMERICAN POLICIES

Resolution Sent to East Tennessee Educational Association Which Will Meet in Knoxville This Week-End.

Taking notice that Tennessee is about to be visited by Gov. McNutt, of Indiana, who will address the East Tennessee Educational association, termed by some to be the company union in the teaching profession, Chattanooga Trades and Labor council at its meeting Monday evening reviewed one phase of McNutt's un-American policies as ruler of Indiana.

The governor knows how to deal with working people who dare to strike for their rights. Martial law has been declared for months at a time, and provisions are so strict that permission must be given to hold any kind of public meeting. Even after "serious eventualities" have faded away, reports from Indiana state that martial law has been kept in effect.

Feeling that the public should know just what Gov. McNutt represents when he visits this state, Central Body issued a resolution, given below, which condemns the rule by bayonet practiced by the Hoosier fascisti.

Whereas, announcement has been made that Gov. McNutt, of the state of Indiana, is to address the annual meeting of the East Tennessee Education association; and,

Whereas, this same Gov. McNutt has declared and maintained martial law in certain parts of Indiana for long periods of time and without justification, which has resulted in denial of the rights of free citizens of the United States to peaceably assemble; and,

Whereas, this action is aimed directly at organized labor to prevent its exercising its right to strike and picket; and,

Whereas, this action of Gov. McNutt is un-American and a definite evidence of the growth of fascism which will, in time, destroy labor and the liberties of all if allowed to go unchecked; therefore, be it

Resolved, by the Chattanooga Trades and Labor council, in regular meeting Oct. 28, 1935, That we deplore the appearance in the state of Tennessee of this enemy of free America and free labor, and that we particularly deplore the fact that he is to address the teachers of the public schools, the function of which is to advance the cause of democracy, freedom and justice; and be it further

Resolved, That copies of this resolution be sent to the officers of the East Tennessee Education association, and to the local press.

A news story in Wednesday's Times, giving an interview from Prof. Palmer, of the University of Chattanooga, indicated to those knowing the intention of the resolution that Prof. Palmer misinterpreted the purpose of the action by Central Body, according to an active union official. To further confuse the situation, the headlines to the story were so distorted that the impression was given that a local teachers' union had condemned the dictator-governor, rather than Central Body. A statement to The Labor World clarifies the garbled daily paper's headlines.

The statement says:

"We nominate for the year's most inaccurate headline the one on page 8 of the Chattanooga Times of Oct. 30, 1935, entitled 'Palmer Scolds City Teachers for Action on McNutt.'

"It should be observed that the resolution on Gov. McNutt was by the Chattanooga Trades and Labor council and not by the city teachers.

"It should be furher pointed out that the resolution did not ask that the invitation of the

COMPANY WARRED ON UNIONISM, GREYHOUND WORKERS TELL BOARD

Witnesses at Pittsburgh Hearing Charge Bus Line Sought by Illegal Means to Prevent Organization of Independent Union—Basis for Appeal to Supreme Court Laid.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—Patterns of future procedure are being carefully cut by the national labor relations board (NLRB) in its first hearing at Pittsburgh. The full board, consisting of Messrs. J. Warren Madden, chairman, Edwin S. Smith and John M. Carmody, is holding the sessions, in the case of the complaint issued by the board against the Pennsylvania Greyhound Lines, Inc., and the Greyhound Management company. The complaint is based upon charges filed with NLRB by Local 1063 of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes.

The union was represented by its attorney, Charlton Ogburn, of Washington, D. C., while Ivan Bowen, of Minnesota, as general counsel for the Greyhound Management company, appeared for the employing company. The case was presented for the NLRB by its attorney, Robert E. Watts.

The expected plea, denying the jurisdiction of the board, was filed for the company, as also an allegation of the unconstitutionality of the Wagner act. Both of these were set aside by the board; and the company then entered a general denial of the charges in the complaint. It is expected the case will be the basis of an appeal to the supreme court.

Board's Jurisdiction Established.

To establish the jurisdiction of the board in this case, the attorney for the board filed numerous exhibits, showing the interstate character of the business activities of the employing company generally, as well as in connection with the specific acts alleged in the complaint.

Witnesses presented to establish the facts in the complaint were nine employes who had been discharged, together with others who established certain of the facts, C. D. Lehman, discharged electrician, being the first to testify. The other discharged men are: Steve Mitchell, Emil Law, Lester Moberly, Albert McKelvie, Albert Burns, John Rihr, Edwin D. Matthews and Robert Maxwell.

Five points appear in the charges made, namely: Dominating or interfering with the formation of a labor organization and contributing financial support thereto; interfering in elections of representatives of the union; furnishing printed ballots and stationary incident to said elections; selecting tellers for the elections and paying the tellers; and paying expenses and transportation for officers of said company union. These alleged illegal actions took place in and around Pittsburgh, Pa., and on the lines to points in Pennsylvania and other states. As a result of these activities, and of their efforts to deny the rights of self-organization among their employes, "there is among their employes a spirit of unrest which tends to create conditions leading to industrial strife, which would necessarily burden, obstruct or affect transportation among the states."

Significant among the allegations and the proof presented on behalf of the complaint is the complicated interlacing of corporation connections by means of which 5,000 miles of a transportation system is controlled. The Pennsylvania Greyhound Lines, Inc., owns Pennsylvania Greyhound Lines of New York, Inc.; Pennsylvania Greyhound Lines of Indiana, Pennsylvania Greyhound Lines of Illinois, Inc.; Pennsylvania Greyhound Lines of Virginia, Inc.; the Pennsylvania Greyhound Transit company and the Montgomery Bus company, Inc., connecting eight principal cities in several different states, reaching from St. Louis, Mo., to New York City. This owning company is in turn owned by the Greyhound corporation and by the American Contract and Trust company. The latter is in turn wholly owned by the Pennsylvania railroad. The Greyhound Man-

How "Dummies" are Born

Pittsburgh, Pa.—How the Pennsylvania Greyhound Bus Lines organized a "company union" for its employes is shown by a letter from W. A. Duvall, general manager of maintenance, to all terminal point superintendents.

Your correspondent has a photostatic copy of this letter. It was written by Mr. Duvall at his Cleveland office on July 26, 1933—just twenty days after congress passed the recovery act, with Section 7-A, guaranteeing all workers the right to organize in unions of their own choosing. The letter follows:

"The management has decided to set up a plan of employe representatives. At a meeting of the regional managers of Pennsylvania Greyhound Lines in Cleveland yesterday the matter was explained fully and upon their return it will be discussed at length with you.

"Before this plan can be set up the management must be requested by the employes of the various divisions to do so. Am attaching a sample of the petition which will be used for obtaining a list of the employes interested.

"It is to our interest to pick out employes to serve on the committee who will work for the interest of the company and will not be radicals. This plan of representation should work out very well providing the proper men are selected, and considerable thought should be given to the men placed on this responsible committee.

"This matter should be discussed fully with the regional managers before anything is done, as they have been given full instructions on how it should be handled."

Anti-Union Bosses Balk at NRA That Safeguards Labor

Hard-Boiled Industries Have Refused to Even Talk About Substitute Legislation

If legislation to preserve the desirable features of the national industrial recovery act is adopted by congress, as organized labor has strongly urged, action will be taken over the dead bodies of hard-boiled, reactionary employers.

This became clear this week when the notoriously anti-union National Association of Manufacturers and spokesmen for the automobile and textile industries came out flat-footed against the revival of the recovery agency wiped out by a supreme court decision.

Spokesmen for these groups turned down invitations to attend a conference of industrial and labor leaders which is being arranged for early in November by George L. Berry, industrial co-ordinator.

Berry Denies Drive.

About the same time Berry gave out a statement declaring he had "an open mind" on the subject of industrial control and denied that he was promoting a drive to revive the NRA.

Berry contended, however, that the bulk of replies indicated that a majority of employes—mostly smaller ones—favored the conference. He predicted that out of it would emerge a demand for continuation of the NRA in some form.

The conference, Berry explained, is to learn the views of industry, to guide congress in framing legislation.

Employers antagonistic to organized labor know that no proposal that omits safeguards for the consumer and worker has a Chinaman's chance of getting through the present congress, and this is the fly in the ointment.

Bosses Demand Free Hand.

What they demand is that the anti-trust laws be tossed on the scrap pile, that industry may have a free hand to work its will without hindrance from the government.

If there is any doubt on that point, it was removed this week by George A. Sloan, former president of the Cotton Textile institute.

In a speech at Chicago, Sloan came out for "self-regulation" by industry and said that cotton manufacturers would fight any attempt to impose regulations.

The textile magnate made the astounding suggestion that big business

Machinists Sign Another Big Batch Of New Contracts

Union Pacific, Tennessee and Chicago and Illinois Midland Sign Pacts.

Carrying on their sensational march throughout the country towards unionization of machine shops, Machinists' union report another large batch of new contracts effected this last month.

The roll of achievement has grown as follows:

Norton, Va.—Representative W. C. Iseley negotiated an agreement with twenty-five auto dealers and garage owners at Norton, Va., and nearby vicinity.

Detroit, Mich.—Business Agent J. W. McConnell reports having negotiated an increase of $10 a week, which established a $50 weekly minimum for our members employed by the Eckhardt & Becker brewery.

Los Angeles, Cal.—Business Agent H. B. McMurry succeeded in having the city council restore the previous wage reduction. This restoration of former wage benefits our members to the amount of $22 per month.

Pittsburgh, Pa. — Representative John V. Pessamato negotiated a renewal and improved agreement with the Edward E. Rieck company.

Deferiet, Norfolk, Raymondsville, Norwood and Waddington, N. Y.—Agreement between paper making trades, including our association and the St. Regis Paper company with plants in the aforementioned cities, was renewed. Acting General Vice-President George J. Bowen represented our association during negotiations.

Troy, N. Y.—Lodge No. 365 reports agreements signed with the John Manning Paper company and the Behr Manning company.

Louisville, Ky. — Memorandum of agreement was negotiated with the Standard Sanitary Manufacturing company. Grand Lodge Representative H. T. Hamilton assisted conference committee of Lodge No. 1344 during negotiations.

Evansville, Ind. — Memorandum of agreement entered into with the Evansville Tool works. Grand Lodge Representative H. T. Hamilton participated during the negotiations.

Washington, D. C.—Business Agent O. N. Garrison reports an agreement signed with Ford and Cooksey, establishing a 90-cent hourly rate for journeymen auto mechanics and $1 per hour for journeymen auto mechanics with the supervisory duties.

Real Union Wins First Election Under Wagner Labor Disputes Act

Overwhelming Majority of Workers in San Francisco Furniture Plant Declare for A. F. of L. Organization, Ending Six Weeks' Strike — Company Agrees to Arbitrate.

Real unionism won a smashing victory in the first election for employe representation in an industrial plant to be held under the direction of the national labor relations board and also the first one under the Wagner national labor dispute act.

The result was announced by the national labor relations board, which reported that in secret balloting among the production workers in the plant of the Simmons company, furniture makers, of San Francisco, 408 workers selected the Furniture Workers Local Union 1541, an American Federation of Labor affiliate, as their representative in collective bargaining with the company. The Co-operative union, an employe plant organization, received 98 votes. One vote was voided and one challenged.

The telegram to the board announcing the result of the vote said the company had signified its willingness to negotiate with the successful union as the sole bargaining agency of its employes.

The election terminated a six weeks' strike by the workers, whose walkout on Sept. 9 completely shut down the plant until Oct. 25. The strike had been called to win recognition for the Furniture Workers' union. Under the former national labor relations board, which expired with NRA, an order for an election in the Simmons plant for June 3 had not been carried out because of company refusal.

As a further result of the election, the company has agreed to arbitrate all disputed items within thirty days.

R. Gordon Wagenet, regional director at San Francisco for the national labor relations board, and Philip G. Phillips, regional attorney there, conducted negotiations for the board with the Simmons company.

The national board likewise announced the settlement of a dispute in the Seattle plant of the Boeing Airplane company. Workers who are members of the Aeronautical Mechanics Lodge No. 751 had protested to Charles W. Hope, labor board regional director at Seattle, against the promotion of an employe organization known as the Works council. The company has agreed to meet the wishes of the mechanics lodge, and the protest has been withdrawn. The Boeing company manufactures airplanes for the United Air Lines.

Building Trades Set Up Council Wednesday Night

Temporary Officers Selected and Next Meeting Announced.

A temporary set-up of all building trades crafts was announced yesterday morning. A meeting was held at the labor hall Wednesday evening, at which all crafts in the building industry were represented. Joe Dobbs, of the plumbers' union, was named temporary president. Harry Davies, of the bricklayers, is vice-president, with F. H. May, of the carpenters, as financial secretary. E. E. Crosby, of the electricians, is recording secretary.

Purpose of the building trades council will be to co-ordinate all activities of the crafts.

Next meeting is set for Nov. 6 at 7:30 p.m. All union members of the building trades crafts in this city and jurisdiction are invited to be present.

Allen Calls Truce In Big Dock Strike

Lake Charles Port Is Closed After Armed Guards Clash With Pickets.

New Orleans.—Gov. O. K. Allen moved decisively to curb the trouble-breeding "scab"-herding activities of employers against whom the International Longshoremen's association is waging a battle for recognition.

After a clash between pickets and armed guards, in which two men were killed and many wounded, the governor ordered the port closed for three days. Attempts are being made to reach an agreement and pickets and guards are withdrawn while negotiations are in progress.

Conferences are under way between Joseph Ryan, president of the I. L. A.; representative of the national labor relations board, and port authorities.

The outbreak, which flared violently at Lake Charles, is attributed directly to hundreds of strikebreakers recruited throughout the southwest and put to work on the docks under protection of scores of thugs who have been employed as guards.

Shooting became general when a truck bearing provisions for the strikebreakers attempted to pass through picket lines.

Several days ago Lake Charles maritime interests launched a "company union" and Longshoremen's officials have protested to the NLRB that this is a violation of the Wagner-Connery act.

John Peel Visits Local Textile Units

John Peel, third vice-president of the United Textile Workers of America, was scheduled to arrive in Chattanooga Thursday afternoon for a brief visit. He is expected to address Textile Local 1785 and members of other textile locals at the hall of Local 1785 on Dodds avenue.

The meeting will be set for 7 o'clock, and all textile workers are to have the opportunity to hear their international officer.

The union label, shop card and button are the best accelerators of higher wages, shorter hours and better conditions.

Buying under the union label makes the union card more powerful.

"Dummy" Discarded On Jersey Central

Boilermakers and Sheet Metal Workers Complete Mopping Up Process.

Another "company union" went into the discard this week when boilermakers and sheet metal workers of the Central Railroad of New Jersey voted overwhelmingly for representation by bona fide A. F. of L. unions.

Other shop craftworkers on this road last December selected the Railway Employes' department as their bargaining agency. The vote this week completed the job of wiping out the so-called Independent Association of Mechanical department employes.

Label League Executive Committee to Meet

The executive board of the Chattanooga Label league will meet Sunday afternoon at the labor hall. The meeting is scheduled at 2:30 and all officers and board members are urged to attend.

Private concerns spend millions of dollars to advertise their labels and trade-marks. If organized labor should spend all its union-earned money for union-labeled goods, it would get better results.

UNION LABEL TRADES COUNCIL CHATTANOOGA

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 1, 1935

AN ODE TO COMPANY UNIONISM

I

Come into our Company Union,
Said the Spider to the Fly.
It's the finest little Union
That you ever did spy.
The cost to join is nothing:
The things you get, the same.
It's like a regular Union
Until you know the game.

II

There are no paid executives:
Therefore, you pay no dues.
For officers, you may elect
Just anyone you choose.
You meet in our nice office,
The Company pays the freight;
The only thing we ask is that
You seek no better rate.

III

The members must be loyal
To the purpose of the game.
We seek to better dividends.
But keep your rate the same.
You must shun the outside Unions,
And avoid the use of heads:
For those who do some thinking
Are called Radicals or Reds.

IV

We hold our little meetings
And decide your future fate;
But if you seek more wages,
You are destined for the gate.
With our superior wisdom,
We know what's best for you;
So worry not about your lot,
We'll tell you what to do.

V

When speaking of the Company,
You must say "we" and "us."
This makes you feel important,
Although not worth a cuss.
We call you our "co-workers;"
You're as happy as can be,
If you stay away from Unions
And just refuse to see.

Workers Urged to Take Part in School System

A. F. of L. Executive Council Says Labor Should Be Represented on Education Boards.

Broad participation by representatives of organized labor in the administration of America's public schools in order that they may meet the needs of the present was emphasized as important by the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor in its report to the 55th convention of the federation in Atlantic City, N. J.

"The public school system," the council says, "is the most educational medium for the majority of our citizens and is, therefore, the heart of our general educational program. As labor is proud of its historic record as a builder of the public school system, it must assume continuing responsibility for the maintenance of the system, and continuous improvement of its services to different groups, so that all may have equal opportunities for development without the disadvantage of educational handicaps.

Adequate Financial Support Lacking.

"Since 1929 our public schools have been restricted and handicapped by the decline in public income. Labor has steadfastly maintained that appropriations for education should have priority over other purposes. We feel that with returning business activity appropriations for education should be increased among the first. Such increases are necessary in order to provide adequate educational opportunities and to restore what the depression has driven from curricula.

"In our report last year we included policies on the major educational problems and issues. Little can be added to this record except to put it into effect. We, therefore, recommend and urge every central labor union to follow the program outlined below and so be ready in order that labor may participate in meeting educational problems when they arise:

"1. Appoint a committee on education composed of trade unionists interested and active in this field.

"2. Secure labor representation on the local boards of education.

"3. Secure labor representation on the board of directors of the public library.

"If those representing labor on these two educational services are members of the local committee on education, or co-operate with the committee, reports on problems and work and current information could be cleared through the American Federation of Labor office."

Housing, Here and in Britain

The housing program—as distinguished from the rehabilitation program—has been about the least successful of new deal reforms. Some splendid things have been accomplished; the loan shark's grip on home building has been loosened if not stricken off. The PWA has brought down costs to a rental of $4.50 per room per month; and of course there is the renovation and repair work.

But, broadly speaking, there has been no slum clearance which comes within a thousand miles of satisfying our needs. Housing offers greater opportunities than any other public work. At least a quarter of our whole population live in dwellings unfit for human habitation; and constructing fitting dwellings on a rapid scale would put millions of idle men to work.

The feeling is growing fast that the real obstacle to comprehensive housing is the landlord; and the experience of England is strong confirmation of that feeling.

England has a way of her own in dealing with slums. Under English law, the local authorities, after hearings, can declare any district a slum. The moment that is done, all improvements in that slum lose all value, except for salvage. The government wrecks the buildings and sells what it can. If the salvage more than pays the cost of wrecking, the landlord gets a check for the surplus. If it doesn't pay the wreckage cost, he is called on to send the government a check to cover the deficit.

Then, the land is valued according to its worth for low cost housing. No speculative booming is allowed. No land that the government has been forced to rate as a slum can be valued as a business center or a wealthw suburb.

The result is that England has made greater progress in housing than any other country, except, perhaps some of the smaller states of Europe, which never wandered so far from the track of common sense as the greater powers. England has built herself out of the worst of the depression—that is the report of practically every observer. Why cannot Uncle Sam prepare to do the same?

Good as Far as It Goes

The new NRA—which is but a skeleton of the old, has called public hearings on the labor provisions of voluntary agreements, intended to apply to wholesale tobacco, specialty paper products and candle industries. The minimum wage is fixed at $14 per week in small cities and up to $16 a week—in the north. In the south, minimum wages are a dollar lower.

Very good, as far as it goes; but the distance traveled is not great. The minimum wages are too low; though doubtless higher than are being paid in those industries now. The differential between north and south has never been explained to the satisfaction of labor; and the hours—40 per week—are so long that they offer little hope of re-employment.

It is good that these hearings are being held. But there will never be satisfactory labor conditions in this country until congress is given power to regulate commerce, without regard to state lines, and without being required to overcome the objections of reactionary courts.

Hearst Flees to Dodge Taxes

William Randolph Heart, self-proclaimed super-patriot, is running away from California, his native state, in order to dodge the state income tax. The foundations of the Hearst fortune were laid in California, but now, when the people of the state are endeavoring to fight their way out of the depression, Hearst flies to New York to avoid his share of the burden. And he urges the high-priced movie stars to follow his example.

There is nothing surprising about this performance. Hearst has always been a "slacker" when confronted by a public duty. He recognizes no flag except the dollar bill.

Take It or Leave It!

Items of More or Less Interest Picked Up From Various Sources

CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

If less than 200 barons had owned the bulk of the productive land of France in the year 1789, no one would have the slightest difficulty in explaining the French revolution. Even a corporation lawyer could understand it, though he wouldn't admit it after getting on the federal bench. But anyone would take it for granted that such a disparity of wealth and income—for wealth and income were tied tight to the land in those days—would be secure to cause unrest and upheaval in as energetic a people as the French.

But—Berle and Means, two of the wisest and most cautious economists of the present day, reported that less than 200 corporations owned and controlled the bulk of the productive wealth of the United States of America in 1927. The proportion unquestionably has become higher since. And still we have no revolution!

One explanation often given of this amazing state of affairs is that the corporations have behaved so well and managed the affairs of the nation so much better than we could manage them ourselves that we all just naturally want the corporations to keep right on running things.

That explanation went out of date on Oct. 26, 1929, when the stock market crashed and tens of billions of property values were swept away in a day. And it has been getting "out of dater," as Artemus Ward would have said, every day and hour since. The corporations paid dividends out of their surpluses while millions of workers went to the breadlines. They saw 15,000,000 workers out of jobs without making even a decent gesture of finding employment.

They have forced the American people to realize that, if you credit these great corporations with good intentions, then, in all matters of public welfare, an overwhelming majority of the magnates of these corporations are doddering fools.

But there is nothing to show good intentions among the bulk of the corporation barons of America. The New Haven railroad is one of those barons; and it is going into bankruptcy after nearly thirty years of almost unrelieved rascality. The Milwaukee road barons played a poker game with a great property that made the New Haven like a hand of penny ante. The utility barons have boasted that they fool the public and collect the expenses of that fooling from consumers.

The tobacco barons and textile barons compete with each other in gouging wages to the lowest conceivable; the packing barons have levied toll on the agricultural northwest for forty years; and the charge is not refuted that until the law stepped in, the milling barons of Minneapolis gypped the farmers of Minnesota alone out of 500,000 bushels of wheat a year.

And still, no revolution. No sign of anything approaching revolution. The movement of the American people is a slow, stubborn, often misdirected march toward reform; and the marchers are even careful not to step on the grass of the corporation barons on the way.

But the people are marching, and toward reform. It might save considerable excitement at some later date if the corporation barons could be led to realize that fact.

What Next!

Development of a permanent magnetic steel, called "alnico," made of an alloy composed of aluminum, nickel, cobalt and iron, was recently announced at Schenectady, N. Y. The new alloy can lift sixty times its own weight. It is predicted that as a result of its invention, permanent magnets will probably displace electro magnets in loud speakers and various control and electric devices with a saving in cost and greater simplicity of construction.

The Union Label Become Popular

Buying union-made goods is primarily a matter of education. The best place to start an educational campaign is in your own home. Organize the entire family to buy only products and services which display the union label, shop card and button. Every member of the home union should familiarize himself with the union labels, shop cards and buttons. When a labor unionist makes up his family budget for the month, he should check off all the articles and services which can be bought from business establishments which are fair to union workers. Then, spend your union-earned money for those union-made products and services. You will thus raise the living standards of American labor and advance the worthy cause of labor unions.

The hope that organized workers would patronize only those industries which recognized union labor encouraged many unions to adopt union labels. The third period in the history of the union label began about 1890, and is characterized by the use of the label as a general device of trade unionism. Hitherto the use of the label had been confined to a small number of unions, probably all of which had some appeal to popular sympathy. The wide use of the label after 1890 was due to a change in view with regard to the possibility of rousing a pouplar demand for the label.

In 1891, the Barbers and the Retail Clerks adopted the union shop card. Both these trade unions are active in the union label movement and have been most successful in creating a demand for the services of union workers. In 1892, the Brewery Workmen established their union label. Since the repeal of the prohibition act, this label has gained great strength and it is displayed quite generally throughout the industry. In 1893, the Broom and Whisk makers added a label to the union label galley. In 1895, the Horseshoers, Laundry Workers and the Tobacco Workers quickly added their respective symbols to the label roll.

I am mentioning the various trades and the dates of the birth of their labels in order to give some idea of the extent and significance of the union label movement. In 1896, the Hotel and Restaurant Workers came into the union label fold. Recently this organization added the union bar shop card. The Musicians followed in 1897. In the same year the Machinists, as well as the Metal Polishers, joined. The Meat Cutters and Butchers and Stove Mounters came under the union label banner in 1898. In 1900, the Ladies' Garment Workers adotped a union label.

Each year added to union label trades. The new century, in 1902, welcomed the Steam Engineers, the Painters, the Pressmen, the Cloth Hat and Cap Makers, Theatrical Stage Employes, Glove Workers and Paper Makers. In 1903, the Textile Workers, and in 1904, the Glass Bottle Blowers were added. The Photo-Engravers chose a label in 1908.

By 1909, the Meat Cutters, the Plate Printers and Die Stampers, and by 1910, the Electrical Workers and the United Wall Paper Crafts had adopted labels and became affiliated with the Union Label Trades Department. The Teamsters and Chauffeurs adopted a button in 1918.

Several national and international unions which have never adopted labels are now considering them. Other trade unions which have dropped the use of the label are making definite plans to re-establish them. This is particularly true of those trades which had depended upon the NRA with its Blue Eagle label, recently declared unconstitutional by the United States supreme court. These unions have found that while the Blue Eagle was declared illegal, the courts have no jurisdiction over the union label.

The Blue Eagle, however, was never a substitute for the union label. The hours, wages and labor conditions under the NRA codes were not as desirable as those set under contracts of industries with labor unions. In fact, there was not a promise made under the Blue Eagle that cannot be obtained through labor union agreements and the use of the union label. The Blue Eagle tended to make the buying public label-conscious, and unionized workers should be quick to realize the advantage of the educational campaign carried on by the NRA and turn the attention of the public to the union label. Now, therefore, is the logical time for all organized workers and their friends to encourage all consumers to look for the union label, shop card and button.

should be permitted to determine what is best for employes and the public.

"Some day," he said, "the law will develop so that when an enlightened majority of an industry recommends a prescribed method of operation or course of conduct as in the best interest of industry, its employes and the public, the government will prevent any departure from such course as an unfair trade practice."

Uncle Sam to Be "Cop."

In other words, what industry wants, according to Sloan, is power to frame its own rules and the right to call on Uncle Sam to act as policeman in enforcing them.

Similar views were voiced by James A. Emery, general counsel for the National Association of Manufacturers and one of labor's bitterest foes. Emery said that "business leaders oppose any effort to revive the NRA," and would insist upon voluntary agreements through trade organizations working through the federal trade commission.

The United States Chamber of Commerce has long been flirting with the idea. Before the NRA was adopted the chamber prepared a bill giving business a free hand to follow its own inclinations and sought to have it introduced in congress.

When amendments were suggested protecting labor and consumers, the organization lost interest in the proposal.

Three More Roads In Waymen's Fold

Detroit, Mich.—The Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employes has recently signed agreements covering working conditions on three more railroads, according to an announcement made at Brotherhood headquarters in this city.

The roads affected are the Union Pacific, Tennessee railroad and Chicago & Illinois railroad.

The Union Pacific agreement is effective as of Nov. 1. The other two date from Oct. 1.

"These agreements indicate the steady progress being made by this brotherhood," said President F. H. Fljozdal. "Since 1922 we have been fighting an uphill battle, but we have refused to become discouraged, and now the going is becoming much easier, thanks to the new railway labor act and the splendid loyalty of our members."

Not all labor unionists wear party labels, but all true labor unionists wear union labels.

LABOR PLANNING TO MOBILIZE BIG ARMY OF WOMEN FOR UNION LABEL

Conference of Women's Auxiliaries Authorized, Aimed at Forming National Organization of 2,000,000 Members Devoted to Support of All Union Products and Services.

Atlantic City, N. J.—Plans were put in motion at the American Federation convention here for the mobilization of an army of two million women, estimated to guide the expenditure of $100,000,000 a week of union labor wage money.

President Matthew Woll and Secretary-Treasurer I. M. Ornburn, of the Union Label Trades department, A. F. of L., acting upon authority of a resolution adopted by the convention of the department, conferred on plans for calling a conference of the various trade union women's auxiliaries, estimated to have a total membership of two million, but never brought into any federated relationship or co-operative action. It is a federated relationship that is now contemplated.

In its relation to the commerce of the nation, this movement to muster into one great army unionized purchasing power of the country may surpass anything done in the convention of the American Federation of Labor itself.

One Big Body Planned.

"Up to this time," said Secretary-Treasurer Ornburn, who is being called labor's super-salesman by delegates, "the various women's auxiliaries, such as the Typographical auxiliary and the Machinists' auxiliary, have worked individually and separately, without any relation to each other. Generally, where they have been active, they have limited their efforts to promoting the welfare of the crafts of their husbands, the craft to which their auxiliary was attached. It is my hope that these auxiliaries can be welded into one national federation of auxiliaries and their energies and purchasing power devoted to the support of all union-made products and all union services. I am confident this can be done and our convention authorized us to make the effort. We shall call a representative conference at a reasonably early date."

Ready Response Found.

Secretary-Treasurer Ornburn does not intend to stop there. He said that he has already begun to take his union label purchasing campaign into the churches and among school teachers and that he intends to call upon those fraternal orders which are made up mostly of wage-earners, calling upon them to confine their purchases to the products of union labor, on the ground that "they are the product of fair wages, a fact of which every union manufacturer ought to be proud."

Mr. Ornburn reported much to encourage him in hoping for real help in building up demand for union-made goods and union services in those quarters. "I find a ready response, once the facts are known," he said.

"Our work with the National Farmers' union, in which we have reciprocal purchasing agreements in more than 100 countries, is but a beginning. It is only a sample of what I believe we can do. And every step we take means a building up of American purchasing power, because every step we take robs the cheater and the chiseler of just that much business at cut-throat rates.

To Develop Pride in Label.

"We are turning business and dollars to the payers of decent wages, which means that we are turning it into high purchasing power channels and that we are helping vitally and fundamentally toward national recovery and toward the maintenance of recovery when we get it."

Another phase of the union label campaign, according to Mr. Ornburn, is a more thorough development of pride in the label among union members themselves. A label-demanding campaign will be pushed all along the line, he said, with check-ups on stores and with friendly talks to retailers in an effort to win their co-operation in stocking union-made goods. While the $100,000,000-a-week figure for purchases controlled by union women has been set as the best possible estimate of their power, the real goal aimed at, including union members, churches, school teachers, fraternal orders and progressive women's clubs, as well as farm organizations, is much higher and may run to well over three times that volume.

Time Ripe for Action.

"It is my firm conviction that we shall soon find that the demand for union label goods and services, as symbolized by the union label, button and shop card, will go echoing back through retailers to manufacturers and that union organizers will find a road smoothed for them in advance by the commercial requirements of manufacturers whose main object is to make goods and profits and not to cling to worn-out notions when they stand in the way of commercial welfare. We could not do this if it were not for the growing consciousness of the whole movement that the time is ripe and that we have a right and a duty to use our purchasing power collectively.

"This campaign may, for the moment, lack the drama of battles and heavy gunfire, but I submit that when we really get into action with a power that we can easily rate as $100,000,000 a week, we shall be firing with a gun that will be heard, not for destruction, but for betterment and progress, throughout the whole national commercial field."

Laws are much like cobwebs which catch many small flies, but let the wasps and hornets break through.

Mayor Authorized to Close Plants When Bosses Refuse to Bargain

Milwaukee, Oct. 24.—Milwaukee's city council, by a vote of 16 to 10, made history last week when it adopted an ordinance giving the mayor power to close a plant when the employer refuses to bargain with the representatives of striking workers.

The new law is the outgrowth of the bitterly-fought Lindemann-Hoverson Manufacturing company strike. Workers at the plant, which makes Alcazar stoves, have been on strike for more than eight weeks. Of 900 regular employes, 850 went out when one department locked out eighteen employes. Only a few of the strikers were organized, but many have since joined the Machinists and Foundry Workers.

Organized labor has actively supported the contest, and mass picket lines reaching 7,000 have been thrown around the plant.

Police attacks on the demonstrators led to the calling of a special council meeting which was addressed by Mayor Daniel W. Hoan and several labor leaders. A resolution was adopted directing the chief of police to immediately close the plant.

This order was ignored, the chief of police, who is not under the control of the mayor, holding it was regular. The closing ordinance became law a week later.

It was opposed by the Association of Commerce, the Citizens' Law and Order league and "red"-baiting organizations, who predicted every factory in the city would leave the city if it were passed.

Under the terms of the ordinance, fines of $50 to $100, or a jail term of ninety days, may be imposed for each day a plant stays open after a closing order is issued. The mayor is permitted to act after he has conferred with a committee of nine on the advisability of taking action.

September Home Building Shows Big Gain Over 1934

Washington. — Residential building in September increased 134 per cent over September, 1934, reaching a total of $42,000,000, the Federal Home Loan bank board reports. Building, however, was far behind similar building in pre-depression years.

In the first nine months of 1935, $388,908,000 was spent on new houses, an increase of 80 per cent over the same period of 1934. The figures are based upon a report by the F. W. Dodge corporations covering contracts awarded in thirty-seven eastern states.

If you rent a house, you do the landlord a favor; but the fellow who charges the rent for money thinks he is doing you a big favor.

WAGNER ACT VIOLATION CHARGED TO SHIP LINE

Washington.—A complaint of the national labor relations board against the United Fruit company has been issued in New York City by the regional director for the second district. The company is charged with violation of the Wagner act by discharging three banana handlers who joined the International Longshoremen's' association.

The complaint charged the company with unfair labor practices within the meaning of Section B of the labor relations act.

The complaint was the second issued by the board since its creation. The first charged the Pennsylvania Greyhound bus line with the dismissal of employes in violation of the act.

Union workers spend approximately 140 million dollars a week. Just think of what would happen if every one demanded union-made goods and union services!

Judges may enjoin unions, but they can't get out an injunction against the use of union labels, shop cards and buttons.

HOSIERY WORKERS ORGANIZE DESPITE VIOLENCE THREATS

Corinth, Miss.—Hosiery workers in the Corinth Hosiery mills have organized despite threats that union organizers would be injured unless they immediately left Corinth.

Word was received in the federation's district office at Chattanooga that the workers wished to become members of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers.

Organizers Frank "Hap" Ward and William Frazier were sent to Corinth. When they arrived, Mayor Chandler told them that the town was opposed to organization and would not tolerate unionization of the hosiery mill. This didn't stop the organizers, who are vigorously pushing unionization among the hosiery workers.

The U. S. supreme court may declare the Blue Eagle unconstitutional, but it has no jurisdiction over the union label, shop card or button.

WINDOW CLEANERS STRIKE

New York City.—Window cleaners in Manhattan are on strike for a minimum wage of $43 a week, and the more general use of safety appliances. The strike was called by Window Cleaners' union, Local 2; and may spread to 2,000 cleaners employed in Manhattan borough. About 1,600 of these are working for contractors, who have refused the demand. The present minimum wage for this work is $36 a week.

The Passing Show

Note and Comment on Things Doing in the March of Events

Jamestown, N. Y., with a population of about 45,000, finds itself in the best financial condition in many years. It has had big relief burdens, like other places; yet it has cut down its debts, lowered its taxes, and greatly increased its cash reserve. The explanation is that Jamestown owns its own power plant; and the profits of that plant are used to cut down burdens and build up the city, instead of being handed over to utility magnates on Wall street.

This is a vast improvement over the common lot of cities; but it is far short of what might be done. Profits of a publicly owned power plant are sales taxes at bottom, and like other sales taxes, come largely from those least able to pay. It is better to give the public the benefit of power profits than to pay them to creatures like Hopson—but why collect profits? Why not follow the wise example of Ontario, and lower rates till they bring in only a safe margin above expenses?

Munitions makers are again jubilant. The Italo-Ethiopian war may be devastating and demoralizing to both combatants, but it is just what the munitions firms have been asking for.

They alone, seem to have an international impartiality which members of no other profession achieve. The most recent example of this trait is exhibited by Italian munitions manufacturers. They are reported to have sold Emperor Haile Selassee, of Ethiopia, the only tanks which he possesses—six in all—that are of the latest design and all bear the stamp "Made in Italy."

The world war was rife with similar examples of munitions makers selling arms and ammunitions to the enemy. The case which comes first to mind concerns a gun whose history was disclosed by Senator Nye during the United States senate munitions investigation. The gun was made in England by Armstrong, a large British firm, sold to Turkey, Britain's enemy, and captured by John Bull's soldiers from the Turks at Gaza, Palestine. The gun, now in Bedford, England, stands as a lasting memorial to the greed of munitions makers.

Germany's economic life of today is characterized by a steady rise of the cost of living while wages at the same time are forcibly driven down by the Nazis. All attempts of the masters of the third reich to deny these facts are dispelled by official figures presented by the reich statistical bureau and other governmental departments. The decline of the purchasing power of the masses is strikingly demonstrated by a table presented by the statistical bureau which proves that the rise in food prices between 1933 and 19354 amounts to 3 to 4 marks per week for an average family. A similar increase is reported for so-called luxuries, as coffee, tea, beer, etc., and also for clothing and rent.

Considering that 40 per cent of the German workers earn less than 18 marks ($7.253 and 25 per cent 18 to 30 marks per week, it is easily understood that the workers are not able to shoulder these new heavy expenditures. Deductions and "voluntary" donations to the Nazi cause amount to approximately 15 to 20 per cent of their meager wages. In total the purchasing power of the German workers has decreased 12 to 20 per cent, with the result that mass consumption is steadily falling off.

AFL Council Backs 30-Hour Week Bill

Atlantic City Convention Is Told Enactment of Black-Connery Measure Is Necessary to Provide Work for Jobless Millions.

Atlantic City, N. J.—Continued efforts of organized labor to persuade congress to pass the Black-Connery 30-hour week bill as imperative in order to provide work and wages for our unemployed millions were announced in the report of the executive council of the American Federation of Labor to the fifty-fifth annual convention of the federation in session here.

The purpose of the Black-Connery bill is to prevent the shipment in interstate commerce of certain articles and commodities in connection with the manufacture of which persons are employed more than five days a week or six hours a day and prescribing certain conditions with respect to purchases and loans by the United States.

Wage Reductions Prohibited.

When passed by congress the bill will make the 30-hour week mandatory for industries actively engaged in interstate commerce, industries operating under codes approved by a governmental agency, industries borrowing money from governmental agencies, and industries and their subcontractors making contracts for services to be performed with the United States government.

In addition to providing the 30-hour week, the Black-Connery bill would prohibit any reduction in the hourly, daily, weekly or monthly wages of employes affected by it, pending a reasonable opportunity for discussion and agreement between employers and the duly selected representatives of a majority of their employes.

"The Black-Connery bill," the executive council said, "was reported favorably both in the senate and house, but was not presented for a final vote.

"The fact that there are still 11,000,000 persons unemployed in the United States shows clearly that it is necessary that the working day and working week must be reduced in order to create work opportunities for these idle workers.

"Pursuant to instruction of previous conventions, the executive council will continue its efforts to secure enactment of the 30-hour week bill into law."

LABOR QUERIES

Q.—Who said: "Without the labor union all labor would still be the victim of the long day, the insufficient wage and kindred injustices?"

A.—This is from a statement by the commission on social justice of the Central Conference of American Rabbis.

A.—The convention rejected a resolution committing the A. F. of L. to encouragement of general industrial strikes.

Q.—I see the next A. F. of L. convention will be held in Tampa, Fla. Has the federation ever met in national convention in Florida before?

A.—No.

the employes, and a 25 per cent raise for hot shearmen, who, the convention explained, "burn up in summer time and freeze in winter.

They also decided to ask for changes in the pension system, with a minimum pension of $60 a month and a maximum of $100. An executive committee of three has been appointed to make these demands on the company.

Auto Workers to Meet.

A convention will be held in Detroit in November with the object of bringing into a single organization the three groups of auto workers not affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

Thoughtful observers believe that there is a chance to bring most of these company union workers into the labor movement headed by the A. F. of L. These observers point out that if the company unions mean business, they must aim at precisely the same goals that the A. F. of L. has been aiming at for nearly two generations—better wages, better hours. They must seek those goals in the same way that existing unions have followed, by united action of the workers.

The way is open for an organized and organizing army of labor that has lead in the feet from the first? Obviously, a considerable proportion of the mass production employees believe that this is precisely what the revolting company unions are set to do.

Real Union Best Bet.

Commenting on the present situation, Louis Leonard, secretary of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, reports the International Labor News Service from union headquarters in Pittsburgh:

"Company unions have failed to secure their demands. The companies are pursuing their usual tactics. This should convince steel workers that they must join the Amalgamated association."

New Vote Ordered of Shopcraft Workers

Ballot on N. C. & St. L. Protested by A. F. of L. as Improperly Conducted.

Chicago.—The national mediation board has ordered a new vote of all the shop craft employes of the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis railroad.

The vote recently taken was protested by the Railway Employes' department, A. F. of L., which contended that the ballot of the Carmen and Sheet Metal Workers was improperly conducted.

PERKINS RAPS EMPLOYERS.

Lansing, Mich.—Employers who refuse to meet labor half way in striving for adequate standards and working conditions were raked over the coals by Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins in a speech here last week.

Capitalism as it exists today, she said, is not far different from serfdom, and she added:

"Man is not master of himself—he is not independent. He has no voice in settling his daily wage and he cannot decide whether it shall continue beyond today."

Federal Courts Usurping Authority, Governor Says

St. Paul, Minn.—Gov. Floyd B. Olson has declared the judiciary branch of government is usurping its authority and challenged "any lawyer in the country" to public debate on the question.

Suggesting a formal statement of the question, Olson offered:

"Resolved, that throughout American history the only danger to our constitution came and still comes from the judiciary branch of government which has constantly usurped its authority.

"I am ready to take the affirmative and debate any reputable lawyer in the country on that question," Olson said.

"Nowhere in the constitution," he added, "is the supreme court given authority to declare a law invalid. That power has been read into the constitution by the court itself."

East Tennessee Education association to Gov. McNutt be withdrawn. It did not deny in way his right to be heard or his right to appear. It did not suggest in any way that he be denied any of these rights.

"It did 'deplore' his appearance and the fact that he was singled out for honor by the teachers when he is an outstanding example of a governor who seeks to govern by force. In so doing the resolution sought to bring the attention of the public, in general, to Gov. McNutt's record in Indiana, where he has unjustly imposed martial law in several localities for the purpose of breaking labor strikes and at the same time has actually denied to American citizens what we would not deny to him, even though we had the power, namely, freedom of speech and peaceful assembly.

"We do not think that his record should be obscured by the fact that he is at a distance from the scene of his acts. We know that many are not aware of his record and will be charmed by his silver tongue into forgetting that his use of martial law without sufficient justification constitutes a real threat to traditional American liberties; that if this practice spreads to other states we may soon be faced wiht that horror of fascism which has gripped many European countries.

"Our opposition is not to hinder Gov. McNutt's right of free speech. May we repeat that. We would not deny to him the rights he has actually denied to others, but we do believe, and emphatically so, that the danger to American liberties which the abovementioned use of martial law represents, is too serious to pass by unnoticed."

Newspaper Guild Rejects A. F. of L. Affiliation

New York City.—By a small margin, the American Newspaper Guild has rejected the proposal to apply for affiliation with the American Federation of Labor, a report made public at national headquarters here shows. A tabulation on the recent nation-wide referendum shows that the vote for affiliation was 1,841 with 973 opposed, about 35 less than the necessary two-thirds majority.

Heywood Broun, president of the guild, said that the guild could not make application for A. F. of L. membership until the question has been brought up at another national convention, but that "a large majority of the build has given a clear mandate for the conception of the guild as a trade union organization and part of the labor movement.

COMPANY UNION MAY SEEK A. F. OF L. AID

Gary, Ind.—Employes of the American Sheet and Tin Plate company here, members of a company union, losers in a drive for 15 per cent higher wages and paid vacations, threatened to seek American Federation of Labor help.

Spokesmen said, however, that company officials would be given one more chance to meet their demands.

Employer Urges Shorter Week and Increased Wages

California Manufacturer Calls on Commerce Body to Advocate Enlightened Program.

George A. Hormel, wealthy meat packer, of Los Angeles, Cal., announces that he has appealed to the United States Chamber of Commerce and similar organizations to co-operate with the federal government in putting over the following program:

1. A uniform 36-hour week, with time and a half for overtime. No exemptions except in farming and domestic service.

2. A uniform minimum basic wage of $4 per day. This to determine the hourly rate for common labor.

3. A suitable old age pension.

"The NRA went a step in the right direction, but not far enough," says Mr. Hormel. "Its minimum wage was too low. It should have been at least 50 per cent higher.

"Business can and must shorten hours and increase wages. It is the buying that makes the wheels of industry spin. Had we adopted a six-hour day and a 36-hour week in 1930, and maintained the pay, we would have had continued prosperity."

Short-Sighted Business.

Hormel declares that he is not impressed by the claim that wage increases will unduly increase commodity prices.

"The NRA minimum wage in our industry was $16 a week," said Mr. Hormel. "If we had added a half a cent per pound to the cost of our product we could have increased that weekly minimum to $24. No one would suffer from such an advance in price, but the increase in buying power would be sufficient to start us on the road to prosperity.

"I know that business has always been reluctant to shorten hours and increase wages. However, if I wanted to put 50 per cent of all industry out of business in six months, I would ask congress to enact a law making an $8-a-week wage mandatory.

"The resulting decrease in purchasing power would ruin business."

MARION "THROWS" PARTY.

While William Randolph Hearst was sorrowfully proclaiming that he must quit California because the state's income tax was beggaring him, his favorite movie actress, Marion Davies, was "throwing a party" in Hollywood to celebrate the filming of Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream." According to the various newspaper correspondents, the party cost $70,000.

TO DISCUSS THIRD PARTY.

St. Paul.—Gov. Floyd B. Olson, farmer-labor, says he has accepted an invitation to address a convention of the American Commonwealth Federation in New York, Nov. 15. The meeting, according to Albert Bingham, editor, will be a gathering of liberals to discuss the needs of a third party. Liberal leaders of the entire country will attend, Bingham advised

Witnesses Give Testimony.

Evidence given by discharged employes tended to show that in July, 1935, the complaining witnesses joined Local 1063 of their union at Pittsburgh; that they were spied upon in attendance at union meetings by officers and executives of the employing company; that they were practically warned against joining the "outside union"; that they were threatened with dismissal if they persisted, but that they stated to company executives that since the enactment of the Wagner act they would take their chances; that they were told the company had plenty of money and would use all its resources to break their union; that they were selected for faultfinding as to their work in ways not according to previous practice, and were blamed for "road failures" of company busses for which they were not responsible; that they were finally discharged on account of their union membership and activities.

The testimony of the company witnesses tended to show that they had neglected their work on account of union activities; that they were not discharged but were "on furlough." However, the testimony of an insurance company representative established the fact that their names have been stricken from the list of those carried by the company as employes.

Attorney for the employers asked why they did not present their complaints through the company union representative, and brought the reply that this man had been shipped to Columbus, away from Pittsburgh, for weeks following the events stated in the complaint, and could not be reached without making a trip to Columbus, O.

Just How Big Is The Telephone Company

THE Southern Bell Company is only as big as the people of Tennessee and the South have required it to be.

The more than two and a half million people of this great State would not be satisfied with or be properly served by a company of less size, incapable of furnishing the high type of dependable, nation-wide service now required.

The telephone service needs of the people of Tennessee are large and it necessarily requires a large institution to do this big job. More than thirty-seven million local and long distance calls are made monthly in Tennessee, and the responsibility for the continuous, efficient operation of a service of such magnitude and importance is large.

To operate, maintain and continue to expand this intricate system of communication requires a small army of more than twenty-seven hundred telephone workers, whose annual payroll is large—about two million, eight hundred thousand dollars.

Because of its size the telephone industry is also one of the largest contributors to the support of the State and its subdivisions by the payment of taxes. Its tax bill in Tennessee for 1934 amounted to six hundred and twelve thousand dollars, not including federal taxes.

The telephone company of necessity is a large user of raw materials, such as timber, iron, cotton and other products, and spends large sums of money in Tennessee for the products of the State.

Tennessee is a big, important State, requiring a telephone company large enough to insure continuous, adequate and dependable telephone service—a service not limited by State lines, but world-wide in its scope. A telephone company, smaller in size and resources could not render such a service and would not be capable of serving the people of Tennessee satisfactorily.

City and County Faces Problem of Feeding Needy If Bonds Fail

PROTECT HUMAN RIGHTS BEFORE PROPERTY RIGHTS

Federal Grant of 45 Per Cent. and Low Interest Rate for Necessary Improvements Good Economy, and Would Forestall Future Borrowing from Private Sources at High Rates of Interest and Every Dollar Borrowed Must Be Repaid.

Members of organized labor are viewing with grave apprehension the specter of the forthcoming winter, with relief cut off and no work in sight for unemployed. According to general opinion, the proposed bond issues to be voted on next Tuesday must be endorsed for two reasons: First, unemployed skilled workmen must have work in order to earn a few groceries, clothes and fuel for this winter. Second, this public works money will not only feed unemployed men, but will be used to make absolutely necessary repairs to school builrings.

...ed by the Chattanooga Taxpayers' ...ion, proponents of "property ...ers" predict that such issuance of ...s will cause many home owners ...se their homes because of in...ased taxes to pay for the bonds. ...r officials point out that many ...ild craftsmen who have managed ...ay their taxes will certainly lose ...ir homes if they do not secure em...ment. The most appalling aspect of ...failure to pass these bonds is the ...owledge that on Nov. 15 all re... of money will be exhausted, and ...e federal government is looking ...r municipalities to take advan...ge of this generous offer in or...r to feed hungry citizens.

Vote for the Bonds And Eat This Winter

(By T. R. Cuthbert)

If the building trades crafts of Chattanooga want to have groceries this winter for their families, they had better roll up their sleeves now and get out the votes to pass the issuance of bonds to build needed public improvements. If these improvements are authorized, skilled craftsmen will not only be provided with work but such work will provide a union wage scale. Uncle Sam demands that this be done, and in order to demand it, he agrees to reimburse the county for approximately half of the cost of the projects.

These bonds will not rise up of their own accord and pass themselves. Neither will the federal government step in and vote for them. The only people that can and will pass them are those who have a fear of going hungry this winter, and those who value human rights above property rights.

The wealthy element of Chattanooga (the noisy section of them, anyhow) is moving heaven and earth to kill these bonds. They view with alarm a possible injury to their divine right to possess innumerable pieces of property, much of which were secured through mortgage foreclosures. It is admitted that should this bond issue cause an increase in the tax rate (which it will not) the person holding many pieces of property will have a large tax bill. It should also be recognized that if a holder of one piece of property, a home, is enabled to secure employment, he will be able to pay his taxes and do it gladly.

It is hard to loosen a child's clutch on a piece of candy. If necessary, it is better to take some candy away from certain children so that other hands may grasp a piece of bread.

Let it be plainly understood, however, that the unloosening process will not be voluntary. If working people do not go to the polls Tuesday and vote, they deserve to starve this winter.

Government Wins Guffey Act Injunction Case

Washington, D. C.—Justice Jesse C. Adkins of the District of Columbia Supreme Court refused to issue an injunction asked by James W. Carter, president of the Carter Coal Company, restraining the Government from collecting from the company the 15 per cent tax on gross sales which the Guffey Coal Stabilization Act levies on coal producers with the provision that 90 per cent of the tax will be returned to producers who comply with the terms of the Guffey law.

The tax went into effect on November 1, but the first payment will not be due until January 2.

In refusing to grant the injunction Justice Adkins said he was not prepared at this time to enjoin the Government from enforcing the tax provisions of the law because he was unable to see any injury that would result to the company before the tax is collected.

Machinists Chalk Up First Victory Under Wagner Law

Furniture Workers Also Score Gains; Eight Bosses Cited; 100 Cases Pending.

The Machinists' Union has the distinction of being the first labor organization to gain a victory under the Wagner-Connery Labor Relations Act.

Last week the National Labor Relations Board announced that its case against the Boering Airplane Manufacturing Company was being dropped following the firm's agreement to discard "company unionism" and negotiate with Aeronautical Mechanics' Lodge No. 751 of Seattle, a local union of the International Association of Machinists.

The Machinists' victory was closely followed by similar gains being made by the Furniture Workers' Union, another A. F. of L. organization, in winning recognition from the Simmons Furniture Manufacturing Company at San Francisco. The NLRB held an election at this plant and the "company union" received only 98 votes to the A. F. of L. organization's 408.

Accepts Ballot

It had been expected that the firm would contest the majority rule provision of the Wagner law, but, instead, the company, following the NLRB's poll, announced it would negotiate with the successful A. F. of L. union "as the sole bargaining agency of its employes."

This election and the firm's acceptance of the result terminated a six weeks' strike which had completely shut down the plant.

Action against more than 100 employers, charged with violating the Wagner law, will probably be commenced by the NLRB within the next few weeks. One of the cases will involve the steel industry, the nation's biggest stronghold of "company unionism."

Eight Concerns Cited

Eight cases have been formally started by the NLRB. On November 6, it will begin hearings at Detroit on a complaint against the Fruehauf Trailer Company. The firm, one of the largest in the trailer industry, is charged with having fired six members of the Automobile Workers' Union.

A preliminary hearing was started Thursday in Philadelphia on charges that the Delaware-New Jersey Ferry Company has refused to bargain collectively with representatives of the Master Engineers' Beneficial Association.

Other cases which are formally under way and on which hearings have been held or dates set for them involve the ocean shipping, bus transportation, textile and men's clothing industries.

BROWN, M'CANN HEAD LIST OF NOTABLES

Twenty-fifth Anniversary of Local 259 to Be Marked by Elaborate Dinner Nov. 9.

Honor Guest

R. S. McCANN
President, Tennessee Federation of Labor.

One of the largest gatherings of theatrical craft-union members in the history of Chattanooga is indicated by acceptance of invitations sent out by officials of Local 259, Moving Picture Projectionists, to the annual banquet of that organization, celebrating its twenty-fifth anniversary, to be staged at Hotel Patten Saturday night.

Leading the list of movie union notables is George Brown, president of the International Alliance, who will come from Washington. R. S. McCann, Memphis, president of the Tennessee Federation of Labor, has also accepted an invitation to be present. This will be the first official visit of both these gentlemen to Chattanooga, and President McCann will remain over for the regular meeting of Central Body Monday night.

Other guests from the movie organizations will be W. P. Raoul, southern representative of the Alliance, who will come from Birmingham, his headquarters; R. E. Morris, secretary of District No. 7, who will come from Mobile, Ala.; R. H. Johnson, former official of Local 259 and active in the Chattanooga Central Body, who will trek from West Palm Beach, Fla., for a visit with his old cronies; executive boards of local movie unions in Knoxville, Nashville, Birmingham, Atlanta, Johnson City, Rome, Ga., Florence, Ala., and Little Rock, Ark.

Annual banquet of Local 259, which has for the past quarter-century been held on the "birthday" of the organization, Oct. 17, was postponed this year until Nov. 9, in order that President Brown and others, who were attending the A. F. of L. convention on the former date, might be present. The occasion is always looked forward to as an outstanding event in labor circles, and the committee in charge anticipates one of the most pleasurable gatherings yet staged.

J. Burson Lowry, president of Local 259, will preside as toastmaster, and a live program is promised by the committee on arrangements, composed of the following "veterans" in the entertainment line: Mr. Lowry, chairman; W. W. Williams, L. L. McCurdy, Felix Hamil and W. C. Belcher. The festivities will begin at 11:30.

Knoxville C. of C. Group Ask Why Chattanooga Failed to Resent Attack

Charter Member Carpenters' Local Taken by Death

Heart Trouble Ends Career of Popular and Trusted Trades Unionist.

Frank Pursley, one of the charter signers of Chattanooga's Local 74, passed away on October 27 at his home from a heart stroke. Brother Pursley had a continuous membership of over 30 years, during which time he had been given every position of honor that his local could bestow on him.

Passing of such old-timers as Brother Pursley takes away one of the old school of trades unionists who had to battle the forces of reaction on their onw. During his time he had to face the uncurbed elements used by the bosses to break down organizations of working men, but by indomitable courage, it took men like Frank Pursley to come through, according to many grey-headed warriors of Chattanooga labor.

To recognize the loss of their brother, Carpenters' Local 74 has drawn up a resolution to be entered into their archives as a standing memorial to his name. The resolution says:

"Whereas, Divine Providence has in His unfailing wisdom, seen fit to take from this world our friend and brother, Frank Pursley, on October 27, 1935; and

"Whereas, Brother Pursley had endeared himself to Carpenters and Joiners Local Union No. 74, being a charter member of this local and having a continuous active membership of over thirty years, during that time having held with honor and distinction every office in the power of the local to bestow upon him; and

"Whereas, Brother Pursley not only proved himself a staunch union man, but a good citizen and Christian gentleman; therefore be it

"Resolved, by Carpenters and Joiners Local Union No. 74, in regular session, that we bow our heads in grief over the loss of this good brother; and be it further

"Resolved, that deep sympathy and condolence be extended to the family of Brother Pursley and that a copy of this resolution be spread on the minutes of the local and a copy be published in The Labor World.

"Lon Ault,
"L. H. Haynes, Committee."

ARMAMENT FIRMS BLAMED

London.—Armament firms were responsible for failure of the disarmament conference at Geneva, P. J. Noel Baker, private secretary to the late Arthur Henderson while the latter was president of the conference, charged while testifying before the British Armament Commission. Baker blamed the British air delegates for the conference failing to agree on abolition of aerial bombing and international control of civil aviation.

MAYOR JOHN T. O'CONNOR MAKES BRILLIANT TVA DEFENSE

Knox Group Walks Out of Convention Here When Resolutions Attack Program to Help Southland — Withdrawal from Parent Body Announced by Executive Vice-President Clarence F. Holland — Local Delegation Silent as Reactionaries Ride Rough-Shod Over Fundamentals of Recovery Program.

Led by fighting John T. O'Connor, union man and mayor of Knoxville, the entire Knoxville delegation to the Southeastern Division of the United States Chamber of Commerce convention, held here the past week, walked out when an amendment to exclude the TVA from a blanket condemnation of government entrance into the utility field was defeated. At the same time Clarence F. Holland, executive vice-president of the Knoxville Chamber of Commerce gave notice that they would resign from the parent chamber organization. Chattanooga delegates to the convention were silent and remained with the anti-everything reactionaries.

City's Anchor Drags Again

(By T. R. Cuthbert)

Once more does Chattanooga's ship of progress feel the drag of an anchor thrown overboard by reactionary elements who unfortunately seem to control actions of the chamber of commerce. In the past whenever a new industry contemplated coming to Chattanooga, and whenever such industry had a record for paying living wages, it has been the chamber of commerce that made every effort to keep such a "demoralizing" force from coming in.

When the federal government made overtures to Chattanooga to co-operate with it in putting unemployed to work, it has been the chamber group that published booklets and held indignation meetings to keep people starving rather than jeopardize their own "property rights."

All in all, the entire Roosevelt program for helping the forgotten man has met with unrelenting opposition from the "big business" interests in the chamber of commerce.

Now comes the whole litter of chamber of commerce crew, who invade Chattanooga with deliberation and forethought just before a proposed bond election which will be half paid by the federal government and which, if passed, will forestall forced payments in years to come of high interest rates by taxpayers. They come also at a time when an embattled public is striving to secure for itself advantages of a TVA program offered by the federal administration in order to break the grip held by utility interests.

Led by its progressive mayor, Knoxville has already secured for itself many advantages that Chattanooga has allowed to slip away. Although ashamed that local talent did not rise up in righteous wrath when the chamber of commerce convention threw its most recent anchor overboard, we glow with pride that we can at least claim John T. O'Connor as a Tennessean. We would rather be able to say that he is also a Chattanoogan.

Thanks Barbers' Local For Floral Wreath

"I wish to thank the barbers of Local 415 for the beautiful wreath and the kindness and courtesy shown me in my sad bereavement.

"MRS. BERT L. HANDY."

Mayor O'Connor has been one of the two Tennessee mayors who have strongly championed development of the southeastern states through the TVA program.

It is the opinion of many that the southeastern division of the United States Chamber of Commerce staged their convention in Chattanooga at this particular time to serve as an opening gun in a campaign just before election in order to defeat the present Roosevelt administration. In defense of the TVA Mayor O'Connor said:

"We feel fortunate in living in a commonwealth which has such resources for development. The federal government spent millions on the Mississippi river for levees to control floods, all wasted. Now we see a scientific answer to the problem. The way to control floods is at the headwaters."

TVA Preserves Resources.

The nation for 150 years has watched "gold" flowing down the rivers of the section representing the lack of utilization of the stream. "Here comes a worthwhile undertaking to preserve our resources." The said that the TVA is making a real contribution in control of floods, adding that Chattanooga did not have to tell him of flood loss and pointed to the great loss to Chattanooga each year.

"We know of the loss of life and the destruction of property," he declared. "This is a great and mighty development in the public interest. The public interest should come first. I challenge any man to point to anything in the TVA program that is not in the public interest."

Knoxville, he said, is lifting its voice, not because TVA headquarters are there and not for public ownership, but in the public interest. He declared that he himself would have opposed the government spending $40,000,000 on the Clinch river for power alone, but cited the benefits in flood control.

The mayor appealed that special interests be forgotten and that all support this program, which meant so much for flood control and development of natural resources. He charged that selfish men in congress had blocked the people from getting the benefits from Muscle Shoals for a period of twelve years.

The Union Label and the Blue Eagle

The greatest effect of the supreme court's adverse decision on the national recovery act will be felt by the unorganized workers who, under the NRA codes, enjoyed better pay on account of the minimum wage scales and a limitation of hours. The answer for the non-union worker is to join a union. The leaders of the American labor movement fully realize this loss to the unorganized workers. If the wages and hours of the lowest paid workers can be maintained at a high standard, they will form a basis for higher and higher standards for skilled workers.

The NRA was an emergency act American labor knew that eventually it would be abolished. The union worker knew that he would have finally to depend upon his own union. The American Federation of Labor, realizing that workers must depend upon their economic power, has engaged in the greatest membership drive since the World war. It has made the largest gain since that period. It has not depended on temporary measures gained through political action alone. The American worker realizes more than ever that while he must retain a well-developed left arm of political power, he should also always keep a strongly developed "right" of economic power.

The workers have it within their constitutional power to help one another by joining a union. They know better than ever before that "in union there is strength." Labor has no weapons in its possession which are more powerful than its freedom to join a union and its freedom to buy where it pleases. If used, they are even more effective than political action. The only problem is to make the workers enthusiastic in using these weapons in the highest degree.

Billions of dollars' worth of goods are bought annually by organized labor. If this buying were directed to those establishments which manufacture or trade under union conditions, the force so gathered would soon soften the hearts of the most calloused anti-union employers. All employers look kindly upon their market; and there isn't a single coherent group in the United States that offers as extensive a market as does organized labor. If union workers would patronize only union shops, buy only goods which bear the union label, a tremendous force in favor of trade unionism would soon spring up.

In connection with union label buying, the ladies of the family are a very important factor. Recently a large advertising concern stated that 85 per cent of all the purcahses for an average home are made by the lady of the house. This is surely true with the worker's wife. It is time for all members of organized labor to enroll the women in the cause of union-made goods and union services. Not only the wives, but all the friends of trade unionists should be educated and encouraged to buy the products of union firms. Teach them to demand the union label, shop card and button.

We must urge all labor unionists and their friends to look for the union label, shop card and button. The payrolls of all workers will increase in just the degree that they buy union-made goods. The union label is the greatest assurance of quality. It is the best insurance for labor unions. Every dollar spent for union-made goods and union services means higher wages, shorter hours and better working conditions. Only through collective bargaining can labor obtain definite results in the industrial field. Only through "collective buying" can labor make its purchasing power effectively felt in the market place.

What Next!

An air-conditioned automobile and plans for air-conditioning buses to compete with cooled railroad cars were announced at a recent meeting of the National Association of Motor Bus Operators in New Orleans. A five-passenger car equipped with air-conditioning apparatus was given a thorough test last summer, the meeting was told. Its air was cooled in the hottest highways and dust was absent, its promoters said. The air-conditioning unit was described as adaptable to buses.

Importance of Observing Labor Agreements

In reaffirming its position declaring it to be the imperative duty of trade union members to comply implicitly with the terms of labor agreements, the 1935 convention of the American Federation of Labor took a position, the correctness and justice of which cannot be successfully disputed.

Collective bargaining is a fundamental principle of the trade union movement. An agreement negotiated by representatives of the workers and the employers fixing for a definite period wage rates, hours of labor and work conditions is a contract whose terms it is the paramount obligation of both groups to carry out.

In some instances trade unionists who are parties to a labor contract overlook its clear meaning and their duty in connection with it. When they see an injustice imposed by employers on employees in other trades or in a branch of their own trade, these trades unionists occasionally manifest a tendency to support the victimized workers with a sympathetic strike despite the fact that the employers involved have not violated any provisions of their contract with the union members who desire to assist their fellow workers. The desire is commendable, but it should be motivated without doing violence to the solemn agreement regarding their own wages, hours and work conditions which the representatives of these union workers have negotiated and which the workers themselves have accepted.

The extreme importance of trade unionists faithfully observing labor contracts was emphasized by the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor in its report to the recent convention of the Federation. The Council said:

"The American Federation of Labor is committed to the principle of collective bargaining and the observance of wage agreements. When contracts are finally negotiated between the representatives of employeers and of employees, it becomes the duty, in fact, the obligation, of all parties to signed agreements, to comply with said agreements, to carry them out and to maintain them inviolate. The Executive Council is, therefore, but emphasizing and repeating the traditional policy of the American Federation of Labor when it urges its members everywhere to religiously observe all wage agreements negotiated, accepted and signed. These represent solemn covenants that cannot be disregarded and violated without sacrificing reputation, standing and honor."

In order to mobilize an integrated movement to bring about one hundred per cent compliance with labor agreements the Council called "upon the officers and representatives of all national and international unions to require their members to adhere to and observe all contracts negotiated through collective bargaining and all agreements signed and sealed by their chosen representatives," and urged "all city central bodies and state federations of labor to cooperate fully in the enforcement of wage agreements."

The Council also declared it was its opinion "that the membership of unions who disregard agreements and who violate them without cause or justification should be disciplined in a proper and practical way and should be required to obey and observe all agreements entered into," and said it regarded "this matter as of great importance and sincerely recommends that all affiliated organizations give it special consideration and attention."

The A. F. of L. convention unanimously adopted the recommendations of the Executive Council, and thus implemented a movement for the more complete observance of the terms of labor agreements negotiatd by collective bargaining.

Two Present-Day "Success Stories"

Two recent instances show that America still offers great opportunities for advancement to ambitious men who want money, and lots of it, without being at all particular about other things.

One of these is the case of Arthur Flegenheimer, better known as Dutch Schultz, gang boss of racketeers in the New York district, who died of lead poisoning a short time ago. The other is H. C. Hopson, still living gang boss of the A. G. & E., whose operations ranged over a wider field than Dutch Schultz ever even imagined.

Both were bright and keen—especially keen—young men. Both were born bookkeepers, who knew how to make records conceal facts; though in this matter, Dutch Schultz was self-taught while Hopson had a marvellous course of training. Both seem to have been born with an insatiable appetite for coin, cash, kale, dough, long green, mazuma, spondulics, denario, or other synonyms of the underworld for money.

Both had angle-iron, sunk-hinge, time-lock, blow-torch proof consciences. If either of them had about him any such thing as a scruple, it must have been concealed with watchful care; for the newspaper men who paid such vast attention to them never came across anything of the sort. It would have been news, startling and surprising news, and the press boys would have plastered it on every front page—if they had found it.

Both went after the money; but in different ways. Schultz pursued his researches with a bungstarter and a gat; a bunch of quick shooting "torpedoes" at his back, and a corps of bondsmen to ransom his lieutenants from jail. Hopson went after his coin with high pressure salesmen, peddling to the public at $60 a share stocks which duly dropped to 25 cents a share; and siphoned the profits through holding companies to his own pockets. When Schultz disapproved a law, he ignored it, except to speak of "razzberries." When Hopson disapproved a law, he called it "unconstitutional," and charged the consumers of his electricity for the cost of saying it by telegraph. Both collected millions; though Hopson kept more of his than did Schultz.

It is clear that here are two shining examples of the "success stories" which boys used to be urged to read. On the whole, though, aspiring parents in our day would do well to turn their ambitious offspring toward the ways of Hopson rather than urge them to follow the footsteps of Schultz. Schultz had a more varied and exciting life; but it was also much shorter. Looking to the long pull, parents should tell their sons that holding companies last longer than bootlegging—and bring larger dividends.

No Excuse for Poverty

Poverty is an economic disease for which there is no excuse in modern society. Its causes, inadequate employment and low wages, can be overcome if our economic machine is kept in balance. Gradually increasing production, balanced by a corresponding rise in workers' buying power, can put the unemployed to work and create the wealth to raise wages. But once the balance between producing and consuming power is upset, we cannot expect sustained progress.—Monthly Survey of Business, American Federation of Labor.

CANDY WORKERS WIN STRIKE.

New York City.—A six-weeks' strike of 1,400 employes of the big Loft confectionary plant at Ninth avenue and Fortieth street has won the workers an agreement fixing wage increases ranging from $2 to $4, cutting hours from 54 to 48 a week and granting union recognition.

Announcement of the victorious ending of the strike was made by Herman Gunn, secretary-treasurer of Local 50, Bakery and Confectionary Workers' International union, who further announced the union was raising a strike fund of $100,000, through assessment of members, to finance strikes against Cushman Sons, Inc., operating 400 bakery stores in New York City, and the Silver Cup Bread company, Long Island City. Gunn said he looked soon for a settlement of the strike of 1,400 workers in the Cushman stores who walked out October 23.

CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

When you buy a suit of clothes what do you do? You look for the union label, of course.

When you buy a hat or a pair of shoes what do you do? You look for the union label, of course.

When you send a telegram what do you do? You go to the Postal Telegraph Company, of course.

You know it gives the union a free and fair chance and it doesn't have any company union and never has had one and won't tolerate one.

When you hire a building trades mechanic, what do you do? You make sure that he's a union man and you maybe ask to see his card.

You go down the line for union goods and for union services, don't you?

And if you don't know where to get them you write to the Union Label Trades Department, A. F. of L. Building, Washington—and what happens then?

What happens then is that Secretary-Treasurer "Dick" Ornburn writes you right away quick and tells you what's what and where you can get it.

This business of buying union-made goods and asking for union services is giving the union haters the jitters and if we just keep it up the union haters will be more jittery than they are now. And that will be very good for unions.

When you buy a cigar or a cigarette, do you buy a non-union cigar or cigarette? Do you patronize the big four cigarette companies that spend millions for magazine and radio ballyhoo, in which they tell you that if you smoke their non-union stuff you'll be full of vim and vigger and rosy cheeked and pop-eyed and everything?

Not on your life you don't.

You go and get yourself a union-made cigar, or a pack of union-made cigarettes that come out of fine factories that use the purest of tobacco and where union men and women have their honest "say" with the bosses because they are union men and because the bosses want them to have their "say" like real men and women.

And if you're just finding out about this, you hustle around and find out about what the brands are and then you get to telling everybody about them, because they are good, as well.

There isn't a union-hating outfit in the country that can't be made to yell and squawk and squeal if union men refuse to buy their stuff and if they SAY SO right out loud.

Nobody can put anybody in jail for buying union-made products!

But YOU can put the union haters in hot water by doing it.

This seems to be in the nature of a homily about the union label, with a good deal about cigarettes. Well, Winston-Salem pours out its millions in profits to the union haters, while workers live in miserable two-room shacks that have never seen paint and that seldom see even enough food. And that alone ought to make any union man mad enough to see his duty and do it.

After all, the label is the visible mark of unionism and decency.

It is put on goods so that they can be identified. It is a mark of economic morality and of excellence.

Its absence is a mark of something else.

Reward labor's friends and punish labor's enemies.

Johnson City Notes

JOHNSON CITY—Johnson City Typographical Union No. 763 met Sunday in regular session, much business of importance was dispatched in record time. A committee of investigation was also appointed, composed of Clyde Carscadden, Chairman; D. E. Tilson and "Betty" Lewis. This committee is to investigate the reported action of one of the members of Johnson City Typographical Union who is alleged to have gone to Springfield, Mass., and worked on the unfair newspapers in that city.

Reports were made by all committees and the delegates to Central Labor Union made reports on the progress that is being made in the organization of new crafts in the city.

JOHNSON CITY—President R. S. McCann, of the Tennessee Federation of Labor, is expected to visit Johnson City next week according to reports reaching this city from his office in Memphis, Tenn., says W. G. Hart, vice-president and publicity director of Johnson City Central Labor Union.

The date for Mr. McCann's arrival has not been definitely set, but he is expected to come to this city shortly after his visit with the Knoxville Central Labor Union on November 11-12, and plans are in the making for an open meeting of the Central Labor Union while he is in the city.

Labor leaders in Upper East Tennessee are enthusiastic over the coming visit of President McCann and everything will be done to make his visit a pleasant one.

JOHNSON CITY — The Johnson City Central Labor Union has this week protested to Colonel Harry Berry, WPA administrator at Nashville, the recent appointment of Jerry Thomas as WPA, Labor Relations Administrator for East Tennessee.

In a letter to Colonel Berry, President D. C. Long calls attention to the labor record of Mr. Thomas during the time he was administrator of CWA and TERA affairs in Carter county, absolutely refusing to make the proper set-ups in according with government specifications. President Long also called attention to the fact that Mr. Thomas, during his term, discriminated against union men, affiliated with the organizations connected with Johnson City Central Labor Union, he went out of the county to get men to do work when none were available but union workmen.

"You will also recall," says the latter from the head of the CLU, "that recently this organization protested to you the confirmation of Mr. Thomas' and we are unable to understand your recent action."

Other organizations affiliated with this body have protested the action of Colonel Berry and letters have already gone forward from the Carpenters, Painters, Plasters and Printers.

ELIZABETHTON—The regular meeting night of Elizabethton's United Textile Workers Local No. 2207 has been changed from Friday to Tuesday night, M. M. Jones, president, has announced.

At last Friday night's meeting it was also decided, Mr. Jones said, to transfer future meetings from the hall on East Elk Avenue to the organizations' offices at 500 Elk Avenue. This move, he explained, is being made to secure a more centrally located meeting place, but the new meeting place is expected to serve only until more suitable quarters can be found.

Friday's meeting was attended by D. C. Long and W. G. Hart, president and vice-president of the Johnson City Central Labor Union. Regular delegates from the textile local were elected to membership in the Johnson City organization and will attend its next meeting on November 8.

JOHNSON CITY — Messrs. D. C. Long and W. G. Hart, president and vice-president of Johnson City Central Labor Union, visited the Potteries organization No. 103 at Erwin last Wednesday night. This organization is making wonderful progress in this section and at the meeting attended by the two officers of the CLU No. 103 increased its membership by 14 the night of their visit. Fourteen young women of the plant were taken into the organization.

JOHNSON CITY — The regular meeting of Allied Label Council was held last Saturday at the Labor Temple, with delegates from both crafts present. Mr. D. E. Tilson was elected secretary to fill the recent vacancy when Mr. R. E. Hull drew his traveler from the Typographical and d eparted for the warmer climate of Florida.

JOHNSON CITY — The regular meeting of Johnson City Central Labor Union will be held Friday night of this week. A large delegation is expected from the Textile Workers' local at Elizabethton and an equal number or more from the Pottery Workers at Erwin. Much business of importance is expected to come before the body, and especially ther ecent protest of the organization to Colonel Harry Berry in regard to the appointment of Mr. Jerry Thomas as WPA Labor Relations Administrator for this territory.

G. L. Kelly, Knoxville Unionist, Makes Visit

G. L. Kelly, vice-president of Knoxville Central Labor Union, spent several days in Chattanooga this week. He attended the sessions of the Chamber of Commerce anti-everything convention, but was one of the Knoxville group that repudiated the actions of the national chamber organization in condemning TVA.

Brother Kelly is a member of the theater crafts unions and is well known all over the state of Tennessee through his activities in the State Federation of Labor.

Huntsville Strikers Appreciate Support From Chattanoogans

Paul L. Styles, president of Huntsville Trades and Labor Council, writes to Chattanooga Central Body expressing thanks for the substantial financial assistance and moral support for the striking Dallas mills' employees of Huntsville, Ala.

Brother Styles says:

"Please allow me to express the thanks of the Huntsville Trades and Labor Council to you and your affiliated local unions for your support of the Dallas local union in their strike.

"We sincerely appreciate not only the monetary contributions, but also the words of encouragemen that we have received.

"As you no doubt know a little contribution or a few letters of encouragement mean a lot to people who are on strike.

"Will you please call this letter to the attention of the different locals? Many of them have and many more would if they understood the desperate need of these people.

Lady's Painful Trouble Helped By Cardui

Why do so many women take Cardui for the relief of functional pains at monthly times? The answer is that they want results such as Mrs. Herbert W. Hunt, of Hallsville, Texas, describes. She writes: "My health wasn't good. I suffered from cramping. My pain would be so intense it would nauseate me. I would just drag around, so sluggish and 'doless.' My mother decided to give me Cardui. I began to mend. That tired, sluggish feeling was gone and the pains disappeared. I can't praise Cardui too highly because I know it helped me." . . . If Cardui does not help YOU, consult a physician.

When you receive your dairy products from your groceryman, find out if it is supplied by a union dairy. Inquire of your restaurant or cafe where their milk and butter comes from.

If your dairy products are delivered to your home, ask the driver to show you his paid-up union card.

If every one would do this, employment possibilities for dairy workers in Chattanooga would be doubled.

YOU NEED A FRIGIDAIRE

FOR protecting your family's health through safeguarding the family's food supply, you need a Frigidaire in your home every day in the year. United States government records show only 19 days in the year when the temperature is constantly below 50 degrees—the safety limit for proper food preservation. In all four seasons, day after day, a Frigidaire saves money, too. Savings in the reduced cost of adequate refrigeration; savings in buying more food at a time at bargain prices; savings in leftovers . . . all add up to an appreciable big saving each month. Furthermore, the price of a Frigidaire may be spread over many months with small carrying charges. See the model you need in our showroom today. . . . .

HOURS OF UNORGANIZED CLERKS INCREASED 25 PER CENT; SAME WAGES

After the supreme court of the United States declared the national recovery act unconstitutional, the decree abolishing at the same time the fair practice code for the retail trade, merchants who were released from the labor provisions of the code resorted to widespread increases in the working hours of unorganized store employes without a corresponding increase in wages, according to a report made by the Retail Clerks' International Protective association to the 1935 convention of the American Federation of Labor.

In many instances, the association said, the increase in hours was as high as 25 per cent, and because there was no advance in pay it was in effect a direct cut in wages in proportion to the number of additional hours imposed. The association also pointed out that this policy of retail merchants tends to increase unemployment by reducing the number of employes required under the shorter working hours schedule.

Confronted with these facts the convention in addition to protesting against any movement to establish the longer work week or reduce wages, urged upon organizers and central bodies the importance of concentrating their efforts "to organize all retail store employes so that their working conditions may be fairly determined and suitably regulated by collective bargaining methods."

In addition the convention urged the members of organized labor everywhere to support the organizing campaign by pledging themselves to patronize union stores displaying the Retail Clerks' union store card and by consistently demanding the services of union clerks who wear the union's working button.

The convention requested the A. F. of L. Executive Council to communicate with all local bodies emphasizing the importance of supporting energetically both the organizing campaign and the union store and button plan.

Federal Regulation of Competitive System Stressed by A. F. of L. Council

Atlantic City, N. J.—Although the decision of the United States supreme court in the Schechter case held that the enactment of the national industrial recovery act exceeded the "constitutional prerogatives and duties of congress," the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor in its report to the annual convention of the federation here stressed its belief that there must be some form of federal regulation of the competitive system. In consideration of the importance of the question the council suggested that every avenue to achieve this object under the constitution be explored before a final conclusion as to procedure is determined.

After discussing the strength and weaknesses of the national recovery act and its administration the council said:

"That some control must be exercised over our former system of laissez-faire cannot be denied. The experiment which has been concluded has helped to point the way to the goal which we must seek. How is congress to acquire that control over the industry and trade of our country which will make possible the necessary reforms?

"Granting that much might be done under the commerce clause of the constitution, how can we handle the problems arising in those establishments which are purely intra-state?

"The complexities within our national economy are increasing daily. Whatever planning is done must be applied universally. The problem of how such application is to be made is still before us.

"Until exhaustive studies have been made with respect to attaining this great objective under our present constitution, we cannot recommend just what steps should be taken in connection with this particular problem.

"Our final decision on this issue will determine the course that is to be followed in assuring the wage-earners of this country the right to work."

Do Your Best.

"Jes' do your best, and praise or blame
That follers this counts jes' the same;
You may have noted great success
Is mixed with troubles, more or less,
And it's the man who does his best
That gets more kicks than all the rest."

Interesting Booklet Shows Hamilton Bk. Helped Build Up City

President T. R. Preston Writes of Sound Policies Instituted 30 Years Ago.

"The Story of the Hamilton National Bank," published this week by T. R. Preston, president of the Hamilton National bank, has been placed in the hands of many Chattanooga citizens, and is receiving interested perusal of the brief accounting of the policies and growth of this bank since its start thirty years ago.

The author states that when he became cashier of the bank their original 700 accounts have grown to over 35,000, and the deposits have jumped from $18,000 to $32,000,000. Present payroll list of the bank numbers 128. For more than twenty years, without exception, officers of the bank have been selected from lesser employes who showed promise of ability.

In elucidating its policies in the business world, Mr. Preston writes: "We have always tried to remember that banks are operated in the public interest. . . . The tendency now is for fewer and larger banks throughout the country, and this we believe is in the interest of the public."

Defending branch banking, he sets forth that "One of the favorite arguments against branch banking is that it draws funds from small communities and concentrates them in the cities. This is seldom the case. As an illustration of how the public would benefit: in a small town in this state in 1932, nearly $300,000,000 was needed to move the crops. It was utterly impossible for the one unit bank in that community to provide even one-tenth of the funds necessary. Our group of banks alone during that period furnished approximately $290,000 for the purpose of facilitating the crop movement, every dollar of which was repaid and the community immensely benefited. Innumerable instances such as this could be cited."

DUAL ANTHRACITE COAL UNION IS DISBAND

Scranton, Pa.—United action for improved labor conditions among the anthracite coal miners was promised by the dissolution of the United Anthracite Miners of Pennsylvania, a dual organization set up in 1933 to oppose the United Mine Workers of America. The end of the dual group paves the way for its members to rejoin the United Mine Workers.

The negotiations for the dissolution of the dual organization and the reincorporation of its members in the United Mine Workers were carried on by James A. Gorman, umpire of the Anthracite Conciliation Board. The decision to disband the United Anthracite Miners of Pennsylvania left the United Mine Workers of America the sole representative of the anthracite miners.

Officials of the dual organization said the decision to dissolve was due to a dwindling membership and lack of finances.

Aside from being a fine piece of printing, the treatise is valued by people who like to watch their city grow along with the prosperity and success of sound business institutions such as the Hamilton National bank and its affiliates.

EDERAL CIRCUIT JUDGES UPHOLD VALIDITY OF ANTI-INJUNCTION ACT

urt at Chicago Reverses Decision of District Judge and Assesses Damages of $350,000 Against Outlaw Miners' Union on Behalf of Illinois Operator.

By JOSEPH A. WISE

hicago.—A lengthy and compre- ve opinion, written by Judge A. Evans and concurred in by ge Sparks and Alschuler, of the ited States circuit court of appeals Chicago, reversing the decision of eral District Judge Fred L. Wham, he eastern district of Illinois, in ne of the United Electric Coal mpanies against the Progressive ers of America, is hailed here as tremendous victory for legiitmate anized labor.

"It is a whale of a victory," says ter A. Olander, secretary of the nois State Federation of Labor.

Judges Evans, Sparks and Alschuler ld that the Norris-LaGuardia act ited the power of federal courts issue injunctions in labor disputes unconstitutional and assess $350,000 mages against the Progressive Min- rs in behalf of the coal company. ther proceedings may increase the ount of the damages.

U. M. W. Attorneys File Brief.

Thurlow Lewis, chief counsel of District 12 (Illinois) of the United ine Workers of America, and G. L. ll, of Fort Smith, Ark., represent- g President John L. Lewis and the ternational executive board of the . M. W. of A., filed a brief as iends of the court. The three judges f the higher court concurred in the guments presented by counsel for e United Mine Workers.

The United Electric Coal com- nies, a Delaware corporation, which erates several coal mines in Illinois, ught an injunction and $350,000 mages against the Progressive ers of America as a result of a ke which the Progressives had made ainst the United men at the com- ny's strip mine at Freeburg, Ill.

Outlaw Union Sought Control.

The company operated the mine der a contract with the United. The Progressives made a fight to ob- in control of the mine and did so ntrol for a time and demanded that e company make a contract with e Progressive organization. This e company refused to do. Follow- g March 31, 1933, the mine was erated but one day up to the time f the filing of the suit. The com- ny claimed it wished to operate, t could not because of the acts of olence and general obstructive tac- s of the Progressives.

Attorneys for the coal company allenged the constitutionality of e Norris-LaGuardia act. Counsel r the United Mine Workers ar- ed that there was no labor dispute thin the meaning of the act; that e coal company had a contract with e United and that there was no spute with respect to the contrac- al relations between employer and ployes; that the whole matter re- ved around a controversy between o rival unions.

Counsel for the United Mine Work- s argued that the congress had a nstitutional right ot pass laws lim- g the powers of federal judges; d the congress created federal urts and could go even so far as to olish them, if it saw fit.

Act Is Upheld.

Judge Evans says in his opinion:

"Inasmuch as congress may take ay, as well as confer upon, inferior deral courts jurisdiction of cases hich involve controversies between tizens of different states, we find no pport for a conclusion which would alidity of this legislation. The gislation in question (Norris-La- uardia act) took from district urts jurisdiction of causes involving er injunction suits between citizens different states, in certain limited stances, and was within the power congress conferred by Article 3, ctions 1 and 2, of the United States nstitution."

The court further said:

"Where the difference is between unions, each striving to contract th the employer, and there is no ntroversy as to terms of employ- ent with said employer, we are un- le to see where any labor dispute ses to which the employer is a rty."

RESUME TALK OF POLITICS THIS SUNDAY

Adjourned Session of Nov. 3 to Meet Nov. 17 to Complete Discussions.

39 LOCALS ATTENDED THE FIRST SESSION

Most of Railroad Brotherhoods to Help Decide Labor's Political Activity in the Future.

At 2 p. m., Sunday, November 17, in the labor hall on West Seventh street, delegates from each local union in Hamilton county will re-assemble to deliberate concerning the course of action organized labor should pursue in forthcoming political campaigns.

At the initial meeting held November 3, sponsored by the Chattanooga Trades and Labor Council, representatives from thirty-nine local unions were represented. Indications are that at least ten more will have their representatives at the second meeting.

Since it is yet too early to predict what course of action may be followed, it is most certain that the discussions themselves have stirred up quite a bit of interest. Members in labor's ranks are composed of two schools of thought. The newest theory is that labor af Hamilton county, and eventually of the United States, must prepare to enter a definite Labor party to compete with the two major parties.

The old school advocates continuance of the non-partisan policies which adopted as its own those parties or politicians thought to be most "for" labor principles. A "half-way" group has sprung up that believes labor must perfect a strong fighting political machine of its own, but which will not be used to sponsor its own ticket. Rather, it would throw its weight for certain groups, regardless of party affiliation, and thus elect friendly individuals from either of the major parties.

The meeting will be open only to accredited delegates from their respective organizations.

Big Shoe Company Under NLRB Fire

Washington.—The Brown Shoe company, of St. Louis, Mo., has been served with a complaint charging violation of the national labor relations act. The action was brought through Harold T. Garvey, regional director for the national labor relations board at St. Louis. It is the first to occur in that region. The hearing will be held on Nov. 13 at the U. S. courthouse and customs house, St. Louis, Mo.

The Brown Shoe compony plant at Salem, Ill., where 800 workers are employed, is alleged in the complaint to have laid off four employes because they were known union members of the Boot and Shoe Workers' union, Local 655. The complaint charges that the citizens of Salem were induced to form a "citizens' committee" which restrained workers from joining the union, and that the company not only showed open hostility to the union but that it threatened to close the plant if employes continued their membership.

The company operates seven plants in small towns in Indiana, Tennessee and Illinois, and also has factories and warehouses in St. Louis, Mo.

Older folks so frequently forget that the youngsters don't have a very good time, merely staying at home nursing their joints and resting themselves.

Every Bond Proposal Approved!

Voters of Hamilton county last Tuesday approved by overwhelming majority all seven proposals for issuance of Public Works Administration bonds. Announcement from the county court says that negotiations will be opened immediately for disposal of the bonds. Members of organized labor, Parent-Teacher groups and the Citizens Council waged an active fight to overcome the reactionary program waged by the so-called Taxpayers League to defeat the humanitarian program instituted by President Roosevelt to keep workers from starving and freezing to death this winter.

THEATER MEN GREET CHIEF AT BANQUET

Twenty-fifth Anniversary of Local 259 Celebrated at Patten Hotel.

INTERNA'L PRESIDENT DELIVERS MAIN ADDRESS

Representative Executive Committees From Numerous Southeastern Locals Spend Week-End Here.

Moving Picture Projectionists, Local 259, gave a birthday party at the Patten hotel Saturday evening, November 9. Reputation already gained by this active bunch of trades unionists for their ability to really entertain was in not any wise damaged. Because of the peculiar hours at which this craft works, the banquet began at 12 p.m., and lasted until the early hours of the next day.

To give especial honor to the anniversary, George E. Brown, international president of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes and Moving Picture Machine Operators Union of United States and Canada, came to Chattanooga Saturday afternoon to deliver the principal address of the evening. President Brown nearly brought his listeners to their feet with his report of an astounding strength built up since enactment of NRA. President Brown was introduced by Toastmaster Burson Lowry, who reminisced that four international alliance presidents had visited Local 259 banquets on previous occasions.

Introducing the speakers and guests of honor in turn, the toastmaster exhibited his usual affableness and harkened back to twenty-five years gone by by calling on Mr. Ed Healy, a charter member of Local 259. Recalling the bitter strike in its infancy, Mr. Healy attributed the sound condition of his local to the fact that the local had been bought and paid for by the membership through sacrifice. "Because of the fight which was forced upon us to exist, it is not strange that we value our charter far more than if things had come easier than they did," Healy asserted.

Welcoming the guests to the city, Commissioner R. M. Cooke, himself an honorary member, begged them to give him another year's time to get polished up in the art of awarding the keys to the city.

R. S. McCann, president of the Tennessee Federation of Labor, who came to Chattanooga for the purpose of attending the birthday party, emphasized that the solid support of all union label, shop cards and buttons would eliminate strikes and lockouts.

A. C. Kamin, president of Chattanooga Trades and Labor Council, and an active member of his local, admonished those present that through intense loyalty to all union labels the entire labor movement will be able to push on to yet unheard of successes.

The secretary of the central body, T. R. Cuthbert, presented an opinion that trends in the labor movement indicate that labor is realizing gradually that it must take a more militant and aggressive course in politics.

Ralph Root from Birmingham local, R. E. Morse, secretary for the Seventh district; John McLain of Knoxville, "Bill" Brown, president of Nashville local, and another "Bill" Brown from Chattanooga Stage Employes, in the order named, brought to the banqueteers messages from their respective localities.

Appearing to be the lion of the hour, W. P. Raoul of Atlanta, representative from the alliance, proudly told the group from the Seventh district that he would stack up each local in his jurisdiction against any of the remaining locals in the United States.

Following the banquet and speechmaking several groups availed themselves of the opportunity to hold further conferences and discussions.

Prospects Bright For Good Local Of Retail Clerks

Meeting Arranged for Grocery Clerks to Get Together to Make Plans.

Because of numerous requests sent into its home office in Lafayette, Ind., the International Union of Retail Clerks has sent its representative, Mr. Jack Ellison, of Birmingham, into Chattanooga to look over the field. After several days of inspection and survey, Mr. Ellison stated to The Labor World Thursday that it would be only a matter of several weeks before union shop cards would be set up in many grocery stores.

Already one chain of groceries seem fairly well lined up, and in order to allow other employes in other groceries to participate in the new local being formed, Mr. Ellison announces that he will meet and explain his organization to clerks next Sunday at 3 p.m. in the labor hall at 114 West Seventh street.

Since the death of NRA many employers of clerks have gone back to the "daylight to dark" plan of working hours, and Mr. Ellison will tell Chattanooga clerks how other cities have organized and have enforced the eight-hour day and a minimum wage scale for clerks.

At the regular meeting of Central Body, delegates told the retail clerk representative that in the event any merchant attempted to prevent organization of its employes that such an attitude would be resented in a most effective way.

Newark Dress Makers Win 9-Weeks' Strike

Fifteen Hundred Workers Affected By Settlement Which Provides Closed Shop, 40-Hour Week and Minimum Wages.

Newark, N. J.—Recent settlement here of the nine-weeks' strike among employes of the cotton dress industry brought to a successful close what was probably the most bitterly contested labor battle ever waged in the cotton dress industry in the east.

The strike, which was sponsored by the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union, was provoked by an attempt of the employers to take advantage of the decree of the United States supreme court abolishing the national industrial recovery act to reduce and deflate work conditions to sweatshop standards.

The agreement, signed in the office of Mayor Ellenstein, affects twenty-one shops, employing 1,500 workers.

When considered in the light of work conditions prevailing in the unorganized cotton dress shops of New Jersey, the agreement is a decided gain. It establishes the closed shop, a $9 minimum weekly wage scale for floor girls and $11 for operators, and stipulates that additional wage increases shall be made as soon as the contractors are able to modify present terms with their jobbers.

For the settlement of piece work rates price committees are created and impartial machinery provided for final disposition of discharged cases and other disagreements between the union and employers.

Working hours are to be limited to 40 a week. Overtime will be permitted only with the consent of the union, and limited to cases of emergency, at the rate of time and a half.

Other important clauses in the agreement, which is to remain in effect for one year, include the right to inspect the books and payrolls, to check up on complaints for underpayment or to discover jobbers or manufacturers supplying work to the contractor; equal division of work in each and every department; election of chairladies, etc.

Termination of the strike was celebrated with a big parade. Although many of the strikers were girls, new to trade unionism, they are said to have conducted themselves during the strike much like veterans. When the final settlement was reached, many of them, with tears streaming down their faces, shouted: "We have won; we have won!"

DETERMINATION TO FIGHT WPA LOW WAGES SEEN

Prevailing Wages Must Be Upheld Rather Than Undermined by U. S. Funds.

FEDERATION OFFICIAL PROMISES SUPPORT

Hopkins Ruling Appealed to Overrule Recommendation of Local Politician Who Wants Less Than Union Scale.

Building tradesmen of Chattanooga are rolling up their sleeves in a grim effort to prevent an undermining of wage scales which they have built up by many years of hard work. Although most city and county officials have agreed to payment of the prevailing union scale per hour, one official has caused quite a bit of concern by his recommendations for a wage rate far below the union scale.

Appeal has already been taken to Washington, and since this same vexing problem has bobbed up in other sections of the state by certain political bosses, it is promised by President R. S. McCann, of the Tennessee Federation of Labor, that the state federation will step into the picture. While visiting Chattanooga last week, Mr. McCann told the Central Body that labor must not sit idly by and watch the fruits of years of effort be destroyed.

Mr. McCann said that "the government places itself in the position of advocating prevailing wages and then fixes it so that men have to work for less than 50 per cent of the prevailing wage standard. Such policies will damage very seriously the conditions and wage standards that labor has built up in the past sixty-five or seventy years."

Calling attention to a recent ruling of WPA Administrator Harry Hopkins, whereby hours of work could be cut so that the worker would actually be receiving the standard union per-hour wage, Mr. McCann promised action to try to get Tennessee WPA officials to take advantage of the Hopkins technicality to put the prevailing wage into effect.

"We've worked too hard and too long in building up good wages," said Mr. McCann, "to sit idly by and see them trimmed down again to the bare subsistence level. It is labor's belief that unless prevailing wages are maintained, it will mean a general breakdown of the rate of pay in private industries."

Mr. McCann, on his first visit to Chattanooga as president of the federation, congratulated the local movement on the progress made in organization activities, and had a heart-to-heart talk to delegates of Central Body in its regular meeting last Monday evening.

Wagner Act Valid, A. F. of L. Holds In Defending Law

Exhaustive Brief Drawn by Charlton Ogburn Answers Attacks on New Statute by Great Corporate Interests.

Washington.—An exhaustive brief defending the constitutionality of the Wagner labor relations act as applied to the "great manufacturing industries" is being sent by the American Federation of Labor to affiliated unions. The brief is designed to advise workers how to meet systematic attacks on the law by large corporate interests.

In part the brief, drafted by Charlton Ogburn, American Federation of Labor counsel, is a countermove against the opinion of the lawyers' committee of the Liberty league attacking the act's constitutionality. In part it is a restatement of the rights established by law protecting union organization. Thus, the right of workers to organize into unions "has been recognized by courts since 1842." The NLRB act forbids employers to interfere with this right. This, says Mr. Ogburn, "is a very reasonable requirement and a conservative law."

High Court Decisions Cited.

The only question not established, says Ogburn, "is how broad a class of employers this act will apply to. "It becomes a matter of fact rather than of law to show the effect on commerce among the states of the activities of the great interstate industries."

Many decisions are cited to show that the supreme court has upheld congress' right to regulate mining and manufacturing "when it was shown that those operations related to and affected interstate commerce."

"Practically, the power of congress may even extend to local retail operations when interstate commerce is affected thereby," he adds, pointing to two decisions on this point.

Congress' Power Unimpaired.

"The scope of the Schechter decision (voiding NRA codes) cannot be made broader than it really is by asserting that it positively forbids indirect regulation of local activities. Certainly it does not make the power of congress under the commerce clause any less than it has always been."

Ogburn shows that the effect of strikes on interstate commerce, not involved in the Schechter decision, was decided by the supreme court in the two Coronado coal cases. In the first the court held that a strike did not in itself affect commerce, but on the second trial, when it was shown that the miners intended to stop the interstate movement of coal as well as mining, the court held the strike was a direct burden on interstate commerce.

Discuss Technical Points.

On the two technical legal points most frequently hurled at the law, Ogburn argues that it is a valid exercise of the power to regulate commerce, and does not violate the due process clause of the Fifth amendment.

He cites many recent strike statistics to show the wide national effect of labor unrest, and reports that last June's figures of 317 strikes in progress was the highest figure for any June since 1920.

The court's precedents enable it to take judicial notice of such economic material in deciding whether a reasonable basis exists for the law's provisions.

New York Bakery Workers Strike for Union Shop

New York.—Refusal of the Cushman-Purity Bakeries corporation to enter into negotiations with Bakery Factory Workers No. 50 resulted in a strike of employes of that firm, according to Joseph Schmidt, member of the executive board of Bakery and Confectionery Workers' International Union of America.

It is contended that recognition of the union was rejected, because the corporation wants to protect the "freedom of employed workers," which is coming to be a more or less common evasion.

LABOR UNIONS DOFF HAT TO NEW BAKERY

Union Baking Company Born of Adversity and Sacrifice.

TO HAVE MODERN PLANT AND MUCH EXPERIENCE

Employes Kicked About by Old Merita Company Now to Reap Reward of Being First Union-Labeled Bread of Consequence in Community.

(By T. R. Cuthbert)

Establishment of the Union Baking company did not just happen. A long series of hardships and circumstances which at the time they occurred were hard to bear up under finally has worked out to be a blessing in disguise. A blessing for the labor movement as well as for members of the new company and the employes.

Personnel of the Union Baking company is composed mostly of former employes of the American Baking company. These employes have proven on the battleground that they are true blue unionists who have suffered for a union principle.

Just as soon as the American Baking company realized that they had a union organization in their Chattanooga plant things began to happen. Various incidents occurred one after another until a strike was forced on the men when the union was refused recognition last April a year ago. These boys stuck it out for nine solid weeks until the American chain was forced to recognize the union through the Atlanta regional board.

Things rocked along until NRA was kicked out by nine old men in black robes. The American company thereupon thought that they saw a golden opportunity to crush the two unions in their plant.

Six of the most active members of the union in the company's employ were summarily discharged. Management cold-bloodedly admitted that their work was entirely satisfactory, but the men themselves just did not "fit in the picture." Meaning, of course, that they were union men and not company yes-men.

A strike was called, and the Merita product disappeared almost overnight from the Chattanooga market. After many weeks the nonunion concern gave up the fight and moved from the city rather than deal with the union. The men were forced, thereupon, to secure whatever employment they could in order to make a bare living. The writer personally knows of several who were actually in want. Adversity only made them more determined to make their unions live and prosper.

Curtis Sims, then president of Bakers' Local 25, "got to figuring." He received encouragement from individuals in the labor movement and in the business world, and the begin-

UNION SALESMAN DIES SUDDENLY

Roy M. Sanders, one of the most active members of Bakery Salesmen's Local No. 549, was stricken with a heart attack Wednesday afternoon and died before reaching Erlanger hospital.

Brother Sanders was delivering bread in the Hill store at 403 Market street at 1:35 o'clock when he suddenly began to sway and fell to the floor.

Customer—I want two small hack saws, a pound of assorted nails, a nice oak handle for my hammer, and a pot cleaner for the missus.

Clerk—Sorry, my friend, but this is an old-fashioned drug store.

Angry Guide—Why didn't you shoot that tiger?

Timid Hunter—He didn't have the right kind of expression on his face for a rug.

The Time Must Come

(By T. R. Cuthbert)

The time must come when politicians in Tennessee and the various city and county governments therein shall realize that members of organized labor are not to be used as puppets for their political machines. It has sometimes been the case where political bosses have been most friendly with labor movements in their own back yards. These bosses remain friendly and purr like a cat as long as labor "yesses" them, but woe to the labor official who dares to disobey the orders that go down the line!

Before all political bosses are sufficiently impressed with this fact it may mean that many good union leaders will be thrown out on their ears—both literally and theoretically. However, we say all honor is due to such trades unionists who have the courage to stand up before the powers that be and say "The interests of my labor movement takes precedence over any other loyalty that I may owe."

The time must also come when there will not be an election of any sort held in Chattanooga and Hamilton county with less than 10,000 votes cast. We say 10,000 because there are at least that many trades unionists and their immediate families who are eligible to vote. Whenever the time comes that every unionist does this, there will have to be at least 25,000 votes cast in any election to defeat labor's political objectives, and it is hard to remember any issue that has brought out that many votes.

That time must come, and it will come.

CASKET COMPANY IS CHARGED WITH WAGNER ACT VIOLATION

Washington.—The National Casket company, Incorporated, of Oneida, N. Y., a company which refused to comply with the decision of the former national labor relations board, has been made subject to a complaint of an unfair labor practice under the national labor disputes act.

The charge leading to the complaint under the Wagner act was filed jointly by the Casket Makers' union, Local No. [illegible], and Rudolph Lechner, and cites the alleged discriminatory dismissal of Lechner on July 19 because of his known membership in the union.

At the time of his discharge Lechner was the only remaining officer of the union in the employ of the company. He was one of the workmen [illegible] behalf of union com[illegible] before the [illegible] Jan. 6, 1935. The case arrived for hearing at that time [illegible] NRA expired [illegible] June.

STRIKING SHRIMPERS WIN; BILOXI FACTORIES REOPEN

New Orleans.—More than two thousand [illegible] and several thousand [illegible] factory workers have returned to work at Biloxi, Miss., following a shutdown of two weeks because of a strike of shrimp fishermen. Factory operators met a 50 cent a barrel increase asked for by the Shrimpers' union. Alabama as well as Mississippi factories met the increase.

Easton Fur Workers Win Pay Boost and Union Shop

Easton, Pa.—A 50 per cent increase in wages, the 35-hour work week and a closed shop contract were the net results of a victory won here by 140 fur workers, as the result of a brief, four-day strike.

The Kost Fur company, one of the "runaway" firms from New York during the late lamented NRA, with its Section 7-A, capitulated after an effective strike fully supported by the Central Labor union, proved the power and ability of the union to enforce its demands for decent wages and working conditions. A resolution of thanks to the Central Labor union was passed by the local union of fur workers at the same meeting where terms of settlement were accepted.

Machinists Report More Contracts In 18 More Cities

Chattanooga Lodge Continues to Obligate New Members at Each Meeting.

Continued success of Machinist Lodge 56 in securing from six to fifteen new members each meeting night is in line with the sweeping success the international union is meeting all over the United States. Eighteen cities from various sections have reported additional signed agreements with employers. In San Francisco alone, 250 garages were signed union at one fell swoop.

Itemized list of the localities follows:

San Francisco, Cal. — Business Agent George C. Castleman reports the following: Agreement signed with the Automotive Maintenance and Garage association, embracing 250 garages. The agreement provides that all auto mechanics shall hold membership in the International Association of Machinists; 40 hours to constitute a week's work, with a 90-cent minimum hourly rate for auto mechanics. Ninety (90) days after the effective date of the agreement, the wage scale for auto mechanics and machinists shall be 95 cents per hour, and ninety (90) days thereafter this rate shall be increased to $1 per hour.

Agreement signed with the asphalt plant owners, provides a schedule of seven hours per day and thirty-five hours per week. Wage rate $8 per day. This agreement is a federated agreement embracing unions of all trades involved.

Following a 15-day strike involving forty-one dealers' garages and approximately 550 members of Lodge No. 1305, a truce was declared; all strikers returned to work following an agreement to create a committee consisting of three representatives of the motor car dealers of San Francisco, and a like number selected by Lodge No. 1305 for the purpose of negotiating an agreement to cover all dealers involved.

The agreement with the Automotive Maintenance and Garage association, exclusive of the garages represented by the motor car dealers of San Francisco, increases the list of union garages to 400.

Kansas City, Mo.—Business Agent Campbell negotiated an agreement with the C. A. Frye Manufacturing company, establishing a minimum rate of $1 per hour for machinists.

New Orleans, La.—Business Agent Fricke reports an agreement negotiated with the Jackson Brewing company.

Minneapolis, Minn.—An agreement was negotiated with the Arrow Head Steel company. Employes were represented by Representative H. Husman. Agreements were signed following termination of a strike against the following firms: Flour City Ornamental Iron company, Kienzle & Merrick Manufacturing company, Challman & Co., Demeules Bros. Wire and Iron Works, Inc., Stanley Iron Works, Inc., Standard Iron and Wire Works, Baker Iron company, Minneapolis Ornamental Iron company.

St. Paul, Minn.—Business Agent Lutz reports agreements negotiated with the following firms: St. Paul Milk company, the Consumers' Milk company, the Minnesota Milk company, Sanitary Farm Dairies, Inc., Independent Milk company, Midway [illegible] company.

His further report announces an agreement was negotiated with the [illegible] Service garage, and an agreement with the Murphy Transportation company, which provides for wage increases from 5 cents to 15 cents per hour.

Cleveland, O.—Business Agent Milz reports an agreement signed with the Sands Manufacturing company.

Miami, Fla.—Lodge No. 613 negotiated an agreement with Jimmie's Machine shop, establishing $1 per hour for machinists.

Watertown and Racine, Wis.—Representative A. J. Hayes reports agreement was renewed with the Brandt Automatic Cashier company at Watertown, also renewed agreements with the Universal Motor company, Allover Clipper company and the Andis Clipper company at Racine.

Dayton, O.—Business Agent Loudon reported an agreement signed with the Dayton Auto Parts company.

Portland, Ore. — Acting Business Agent Reardon for Lodge No. 1005 reports an agreement signed with the consolidated Freight lines.

Scranton, Pa.—An agreement was signed with the Wesel Manufacturing company. Representative M. J. McMahon represented the membership during these negotiations.

Chicago, Ill.—Auto Mechanics Business Agent D. M. Burrows reports an agreement with the Tyler-Hippach Glass company, establishing a $50 weekly minimum rate.

St. Louis, Mo.—Business Agent Walker reports renewal of agreement with the Obear Nester Glass company.

New Book Reveals Strikebreakers As Ruthless Pirates and Brigands

Bloody Record of Bergoff and Others, from Great Railroad Walkout of 1877 to Textile Strike of 1934, Vividly Set Forth by Edward Levinson in Factual Record.

Washington.—One cannot help wondering why "I Break Strikes" has never been written before: the material has been gathering for over half a century. This book, written by Edward Levinson, labor editor of a New York daily newspaper, and published by Robert M. McBride & Co., is just off the press. While it is especially the story of Bergoff, King of Strikebreakers, it also sketches in the background of what has been one of the characteristic branches of American industry ever since the days of the Pullman strike, Homestead and McKees Rocks, down to the more recent days when Gov. Talmadge ran Bergoff and his men out of Georgia at the demand of an enraged business community.

The Pinkertons began it, marking their early trail with the blood of innocent victims in the Chicago Haymarket in 1886, after they had gotten their hands in during the Great Riots of 1877 when the railroads were trying to break the growing brotherhoods of the railway men. But that was after the Pinkertons had broken a miners' strike in 1866 at Braidwood, Illinois.

There were other agencies of the same kind, such as that of Thiel, and Mooney and Boland, and the Baldwin-Felts combination. They operated clear across the thousands of miles between Coeur D'Alene and the eastern coal mine country. They collected millions of dollars more than would have been paid in settlement of decent wage demands.

Carried on Actual Warfare

Their leaders fraternized with railroad and bank presidents, and had political wires under control which reached clear to the United States senate. They could get court cases dismissed against men under charges of murder, arson, larceny and abduction. They carried on actual warfare under conditions which the regular army would have not dared to attempt.

But—they broke strikes!

That the American labor movement has come into being under such hellish conditions as have been forced upon our industrial civilization by these brigands, means that the labor movement not only had to be measurably within the law most of the time, but that labor leaders had to take their lives in their hands when they started, and carry with them enough guts to go around among their followers when they met these hellions.

Bergoff Wears Crown.

There were—and still are—dozens of these strike-breaking and union-smashing agencies. But Bergoff seems to have come out of the game wearing the crown of the King of Strikebreakers—alias the Red Demon. That is—until recently. Now it seems that a finer hand — not altogether Italian—is getting control of the business, and it is being organized from the top by a modern corporation known as Railway Audit and Inspection company. That is a real corporation, at first functioning as a set of detectives whose job it was to watch the other detectives and see that their graft was not sliced too thick. Nobody pretended to trust them financially—such as the Bergoffs—nor except for certain psychological and moral (sic) effects upon the workers and the citizens who were foolish enough to sympathize with the workers.

New Concern Modern.

But the Railway Audit and Inspection—according to Mr. Levinson—is along modern lines, and has among its board of directors and stockholders from Porter Locomotive company, Sears, Roebuck & Co., Potter Title and Trust company, First National Bank and Colonial Trust company, of Pittsburgh. R. A. & I., being more or less engaged in warfare, needs munitions; and it has an affiliate which attends to that, named Federal Laboratories, Inc., munitions sellers. This organization is not particular where it sells, and some of its gases and guns and explosives go to little South American war, too. But that is on the side. Its airplanes are used quite extensively to carry guns and gas to strike areas. One of them crashed, not so long ago, on its way to the Rhode Island strike area.

Innocent leaders of communist cadres will do well to take this book home to read, so that they get some ideas of what they—and all regular labor leaders as well—are really up against when they start something against the steel, coal, automobile, and other big business concerns. There are reasons—you can spell that with a big R if you feel like it—why the steel industry has no more union locals affiliated with the A. F. of L. And the communists have been no more successful in finding the argument which answers these reasons than any other organizers.

Spotlight Put on Strikebreakers.

White-handed parlor advisors of the labor movement can learn from this book some of the things which they really ought to know before they begin talking too loudly about the character of the men who have been in these places and done some of the things which had to be done to put the American labor movement where it would stay put.

With the nonchalance of a hired man piling stovewood, Levinson calls the roll of the degenerates, insane criminals and other undesirables who have been engineering these jobs under Bergoff and other union-smashing outfits. He names the officers of corporations who have been their buddies. And then he winds up with the financial statement of the cost of smashing some of the great strikes, with official documents showing the spending of millions of dollars. The mere killing and maiming of men, women and children covers pages upon pages.

Money's Power of Persuasion.

Bergoff's usual charge for his gangs was $5 per day per man for the "finks" — the strikebreakers. These victims of his book on the job for from $2 to $3 per day—and the pickings. Loot, crap games, hold-up acts, thievery of property of the corporations, pocketing of street car fares—everything went in with the $5 per day. And Bergoff got "his" out of all that, too.

then sit down and face the facts that

To explain why this could go on, we have to go back and demember that fellows like Captain Kid and Morgan were often financed by nice people like Queen Elizabeth and Sir Walter Raleigh, in olden days. And money, whether in the form of profits or rake-off of crap games, is possessed of queer powers of persuasion.

The book has over 300 pages. And you will read it at one sitting. You cannot get it by looking at the last page, to "see how it came out." Chronology is sometimes mixed in the telling of the whole story. But you have to read it pretty thoroughly to get the picture. And you will—if you start it.

The joint agreement by and between fourteen building and metal trade unions, including the International Association of Machinists with the Wood River refinery, Shell Petroleum corporation, was renewed and an hourly rate of 93½ cents for journeymen machinists and 78 cents for helpers was established.

Washington, D. C.—Business Agent Garrison signed an agreement with the Nash Quality Service station.

Cedar Rapids, Ia.—Representative William Heath negotiated an agreement with the Rude Auto company.

How A. T. & T. Ownership Aids Your Service

THERE is no mystery about the fact that the Southern Bell Telephone Company is owned by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, and that the Western Electric Company is the manufacturing branch and supply agent of the entire Bell System.

The Bell System set-up is a natural one. It was created by the evolution of telephone service over a period of fifty years, as there developed a need for the various units. It has made possible the extensive and unequalled telephone service which Tennessee enjoys today.

Striking illustrations of its economy and value were given when a disastrous fire crippled the local and long distance service in Birmingham, Ala., when sleet storms devastated the telephone plant in the Carolinas and Tennessee and when floods and storms isolated large sections in the gulf states.

In each instance equipment, apparatus and supplies were speeded to the scene by truck and by train from Western Electric warehouses in Atlanta, New Orleans, Louisville and more distant points. Skilled Western Electric workers and experienced Bell telephone construction crews were rushed from distant points.

The entire resources of the Bell System are available to the Southern Bell Company in any emergency. This relationship makes it possible to restore a vital service quickly and in an orderly and economical manner.

It is this coordination of effort and resources that has made your service so valuable and dependable, and such an important factor in the welfare and happiness of the people of this great State.

W. K. Kellogg, Announcing Voluntary Wage Increase to Highest Level in Company's History, Says 6-hour Day Is Solution of Unemployment

Battle Creek, Mich.—The six-hour day with wages raised to compensate for the shorter working period is the only solution for the unemployment problem, W. K. Kellogg, the cereal manufacturer, asserted recently in announcing the highest wage scale in the history of the Kellogg company, of which he is president and founder. The company pioneered in the establishment of the six-hour day five years ago.

The new scale results from an average increase of 12.5%, which applies to all male factory workers and which will be retroactive to Oct. 28. Under it the minimum wage, paid janitors and other unskilled workers, is creased from $4 to $4.50 for a six-hour day, the highest in the company's history, including wages piad for the eight-hour day, which was abolished Dec. 1, 1930.

Wages in the higher brackets, which include most of the company's men employes, are increased in proportion. Wages of women employes were raised two years ago so that their earnings for six hours work equal those previously paid for eight hours.

Under the new scale, Mr. Kellogg pointed out, the minimum guaranteed wage for men is $27 for a 30-hour week. But, he added, employes in many departments, including those receiving the minimum, earn an average bonus of 15 to 20 per cent in addition to their guaranteed wages, so that they receive above $30.

Employes work for six days a week, except in the winter, when they are on a five-day basis. The plant employs four shifts in each 24-hour period.

In announcing the increase, which came as a surprise to the employes, Mr. Kellogg said he is convinced by the experience of his company and by the "failure of other methods" that the shorter working day without cuts in pay is "the only permanent and workable solution of the unemployment problem." It should increase employment by at least 20 per cent in the plants adopting it, he figured.

"There is no doubt in my mind that the solution of the unemployment problem in the United States lies in spreading employment among more workers without decreasing their buying power through reduced wages," Mr. Kellogg said. "By wages, I refer to the amount in a man's pay envelope—not the hourly rate.

"This isn't just theory with us. We have proved it by five years actual experience. We have found that with the shorter working day, the efficiency and morale of our employes is so increased, the accident and sickness rates are so improved, and the unit cost of production is so lowered that we can afford to pay as much for six hours work as we formerly paid for eight. The company is more than satisfied with the results."

Mr. Kellogg said that when the six-hour day was instituted five years ago to spread employment, the 25 per cent reduction in working time was partially offset by an increase of 12½ per cent in hourly rates, and the $4 a day minimum was maintained. This adjustment, he explained, was designed to maintain the 1928 standard of living.

Asked about the national unemployment problem, the sponsor of the Kellogg plan said:

"We are going to have to come to something like this. From 1900 to 1930, when our company made the change, production increased six times as fast as population. We shall never solve the unemployment problem by 'made work,' by the dole, appeals to patriotism and other methods that have been tried and found wanting. Nor would it do any good to divide up the available jobs without maintaining the total purchasing power.

"Of course, there are some plants in which the six-hour day would not be practicable. But I am convinced that if the plan were tried in those plants that could profit by it, there would soon be a big gap in the ranks of the unemployed. It should increase employment by at least 20 per cent in the plants that adopt it."

30-Hour Week Benefits Chicago Union Painters

The adoption of the 30-hour week by the Chicago local of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers of America has been so beneficial that the union members would not think of going back to longer hours, according to Christian M. Madsen, one of the Brotherhood's delegates to the 1935 convention of the American Federation of Labor.

In an address to the convention supporting the report of the Shorter Work Day Committee making the 30-hour week the "paramount objective" of the Federation, Mr. Madson said:

"I am heartily in favor of the report of the committee and hope that all the organizations assembled here in this great convention, when they go back to the cities where they live and where they carry out the work and decisions of this convention, will do all in their power to institute the 30-hour week.

"The painters in Chicago have enjoyed the 30-hour week for about a year and a half and we find it has been a great benefit to our organization.

Takes Men Off Relief Rolls

"It has helped to take a lot of our men who were on the relief rolls off the relief rolls and it has given them a chance to make a living. It has made this last summer a better summer than we have had for quite a number of years.

"The painters' organization has always been in the forefront in regard to shortening the work day.

"We started some years ago to put in effect the Saturday half-holiday and the rest of the building trades followed suit. We inaugurated the five-day week a little bit later. The rest of the building trades in Chicago and throughout the country followed our lead. Now the five-day week is universally established in the building trades all over the country.

Nation-Wide 30-Hour Stressed

"Unfortunately the building trades in the city of Chicago and elsewhere have not been able to yet to introduce the six-hour day.

"Consequently the painters' organization in Chicago, even though we have enjoyed that six-hour day for a year and a half and all our members are in favor of it, and although we have begun to overcome the prejudice of the general public and the contractors against the six-hour day, yet because we are the only organization fighting against the eight-hour day we are in danger if other organizations do not take the same stand, of having to go back to it.

"Therefore, I want to appeal to this convention here and say that while you applaud the ideal sentiments of this convention, that is not enough.

"Do not forget that the work has to be done in your home towns and where you meet with the contractors to effect the agreements.

"I hope all of you will do whatever you can to make the 30-hour week and the six-hour day a reality in the labor movement of America.

Mine Workers, Carpenters Ladies' Garment Workers, Are 3 Largest AFL Nnions

The United Mine Workers of America, the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, and the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union have the largest paid-up membership of the 109 national and international unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, according to the figures giving the voting strength of the unions included in the report of Frank Morrison, Secretary of the A. F. of L., to the 1935 convention in Atlantic City, New Jersey. The voting strength "is based upon the average membership reported or paid upon to the American Federation of Labor," the report said.

According to Secretary Morrison's figures the following is the voting strength of the larger unions: United Mine Workers of America, 4,000; United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, 2,000; International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, 1,600; International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stablemen and Helpers of America, 1,370; International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers of America, 1,300; Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, 1,000; American Federation of Musicians, 1,000.

The state federations of labor, the city central bodies and the directly affiliated local trade and federal labor unions have one vote each in the A. F. of L. convention. On this basis these groups, if delegates from all of them had attended, would have had the following voting strength in the 1935 convention: State federals of labor, 49; city central bodies, 730; local trade and federal labor unions, 1,750.

The total voting strength of all affiliated organizations is 31,866.

Insurgent Miners' Movement In Pennsylvania Collapses

Wilkes-Barre, Pa.—With disbandment of the United Anthracite Miners of Pennsylvania, the insurgent union movement in District No. 1 of the United Mine Workers of America has collapsed. The insurgent union was organized in 1933. Decision to disband was caused by lack of funds, insurgent leaders admitted.

End of the organization leaves the United Mine Workers of America, headed by John L. Lewis, sole representative of the workers. The United Mine Workers will absorb the insurgents with the exception of the leaders, expelled from the U. M. W. and workers who took part in the "Reign of Terror."

"This is the greatest thing that could have happened in the anthracite field," Michael Hartneady, State Secretary of Mines, declared. "It will help bring back prosperity to the hard coal region."

The union label, shop card and button are perpetual boycotts against unfair employers.

ARMS MAKING CUTS ITALIAN UNEMPLOYMENT

Washington. — Manufacturing of military equipment and recruiting of soldiers has caused "greatly reduced unemployment" in Italy, the commerce department reports.

Basing its assertion on cabled reports from representatives of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, the department noted an acceleration in the drain of Italy's gold reserves.

"The drain on the gold reserve has been accelerated owing to the necessity for conducting most foreign business on a cash basis."

Laxative combination folks know is trustworthy

The confidence thousands of parents have in good, old reliable, powdered Thedford's Black-Draught has prompted them to get the new Syrup of Black-Draught for their children. The grown folks stick to the powdered Black-Draught; the youngsters probably will prefer it when they outgrow their childish love of sweets. Mrs. C. W. Adams, of Murray, Ky., writes: "I have used Thedford's Black-Draught (powder) about thirteen years, taking it for biliousness. Black-Draught acts well and I am always pleased with the results. I wanted a good, reliable laxative for my children. I have found Syrup of Black-Draught to be just that."

Philadelphia Society Women Rally To Support of Underwear Strikers

Philadelphia.—As underwear manufacturers struck back at striking employes with injunction proceedings a group of the city's socially prominent women active in community affairs came to the workers' aid.

The consumers' committee of the women publicly announced its intention of boycotting Philadelphia-made underwear until the general strike is settled.

The statement said, "It has been brought to our attention that the manufacturers of underwear in Philadelphia, unlike those in most large cities, have not accepted union conditions for their workers. Girls work a full week for $8, and men with families get as low as $11 a week.

"After three years of unavailing efforts to organize a union in the underwear shops in Philadelphia, after every opportunity was given the employers to recognize the union and grant union conditions, a strike has been called to give the workers union organization.

"Believing that collective action in industry offers the only effective means of improving working conditions and of composing differences through mediation, the undersigned express their sympathy in this effort and their intention of buying underwear made outside of Philadelphia until an agreement is reached."

The signers are prominent in the social register and are active leaders in women's club work and civic organization.

Twelve hundred of the city's 1,300 underwear workers answered the union's strike call, effectively shutting down the city's twenty-five underwear factories. Elias Reisberg, vice-president of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union, which is conducting the strike, said the aim of the union was to prevent the return of the sweatshop to the city and charged that the underwear manufacturers following the invalidation of the NRA reduced wages, which were from $21 to $40 per week, to a scale of from $8 to $18, and extended the code work week of 37½ hours to a work week of 45 to 54 hours.

He said the injunction proceedings brought by the firm of Zeirer & Bradley would intensify the determination of the union to organize the industry in order to bring working conditions in it to a level of the other branches of women's clothing, all of which are unionized.

Labor unionists can carry on a strike and a boycott at the same time by buying under the union label, shop card and button.

NEW PACT GIVES MORE PAY TO ST. JOHN HARBOR LABOR

St. John, N. B.—Representatives of the harbor front unions of St. John have arranged with a committee representing the transatlantic steamship companies using the port for increases in wages, which bring the wage schedules back to where they were before the depression years. The new agreement is for one year.

The schedules were agreed on after numerous conferences participated in by the representatives of the three unions, all internationally affiliated, and the committee representing the steamship companies.

CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

When Copernicus wrote a book, which in those days was a very daring thing to do, he got around to getting it what he could call published just in time to have the book buried with him in his coffin. Things moved slowly in those days.

Nowadays Edward Levinson can scoop together a great mass of scandalous material about the fiendish work of strike-breaking dicks and flat-foots and get thousands of copies rolled off the press in the short space of perhaps a few weeks from start to finish.

Incidentally that book, about which International Labor News Service tells us, as a smashing piece of news, ought to be in every labor library and on every union man's shelf. Show it to those who think labor never has anything to fight for—or about. "I Break Strikes" is the name. Perl Bergoff is one of the leading characters.

Edward Levinson, the author, has done a grand job with a foul and dirty subject. Strike-breaking by professionals has been a lousy and murderous racket. The author sat at the table at the convention of the American Federation of Labor in Atlantic City and wrote good pieces about what went on. It takes a good reporter to tell the whole truth about the strike-breaking game and get it published. So Eddie Levinson has brought forth this book, this astonishing, almost unbelievable tale of horror and murder in the name of what the big exploiters like to call "industrial freedom," which means freedom for them, serfdom for workers.

There were times when it was thought that the thing to do with the writer of a book was to burn him. Today if a man writes a poor book he doesn't make any money and maybe has to go on relief, but if he writes a good book he is rewarded in large round dollars, sometimes in large heaps. If he writes a very good book he can get paid partly in advance.

Oh, well, times have changed in the last couple of thousand years. It will take a lot more of change, however, and a lot more books, to teach the human race how to behave itself and live in peace and plenty. up to now we have only been able to have peace part of the time and plenty for some part of the time. Some never have any plenty.

And we have Mussolini and we have Hitler and we have Stalin and we have the union-hating Standard Oil of New Jersey and the union-hating Western Union. But books have helped—and honest newspapers help. Because we have some honest newspapers union men everywhere can know that Western Union runs a company union and doesn't like a real union, and that Standard Oil of New Jersey and the United States Steel corporation and so on down the line hate unions. And union men, knowing these things, because they read them, can be real union men, just as they can be when they buy a suit of clothes.

That book, "I Break Strikes," should make union men prouder of their unions and more eager to build them up and more eager to buy union labeled goods and services and more willing to keep their dues paid up.

Things have changed a lot in the last couple thousand years — but there's still plenty of room for more change for the better. Unions help create the right kind of change.

Boeing Airplane Company Gives Up Company Union

Seattle, Wash.—Strong opposition by Aeronautical Mechanics Lodge No. 51 of Seattle to the company union promoted by the Boering Airplane Company in its plant here resulted in the end of the Works Council, by which the company union was known.

Officials of the Mechanics Lodge filed the protest with Charles W. Hope, regional director here of the National Labor Relations Board.

After a conference with representatives of the company Mr. Hope announced they had agreed to meet the wishes of the Mechanics Lodge. The Boering Company manufactures airplanes for the United Air Lines.

Salesman—Any laces, collar buttons, almanacs, chimney cleaners, soap, razor blades.

Irate Man—What the dickens do you mean, shouting here, just when I was having a good, comfortable nap?

Salesman—Will you buy a 10-cent dream book of fate, sir?

From Every Standpoint . . . the Union Label

The history of the union label, shop card and button reveals steady progress and definite achievement. But all that has been accomplished is small compared to what the workers could obtain in higher wages, shorter hours and better working conditions, if they would use to the fullest extent these two powerful weapons—the union and the union label. They are so simple and easy to use that it seems almost incredible when labor unionists fail to take advantage of them. All that is needed, after the worker joins a union, is always to ask for union-made goods and services. It is not only necessary to buy union-made goods, but always to ask for the union label. The dealer will soon carry the word to the manufacturers, and the manufacturers will be anxious to fall into line—if the demand is great enough—and it can be made great enough if every member of the labor unionist's family will help those who help them.

If this pressure of union label buying power were exerted to its fullest extent, organization of non-union firms would become much easier. Through its own inner power, that is, its buying power, labor could increase union membership; and having increased buying power, its strength would become greater and greater. The trouble is that we want the other fellow to do it. We feel that if we have paid our dues we have done enough.

In conclusion, allow me to summarize the advantages of buying under the union label:

From a purely patriotic standpoint, Americans should buy products bearing the union label because it is the best assurance that they are American-made. This country is now being flooded with foreign products. These unfair products are increasing unemployment and destroying industry in our own land. Just so long as the people of this country buy foreign and prison-made goods, they will be lengthening the bread lines in the United States.

From a selfish standpoint, the worker should buy union goods and services because it is the only way for him to raise his own standard of living. Through trade unions and the union label, he will find the only practical method of increasing the contents of his pay envelope. If self-preservation is the first law of man, let us then buy under the union label from a purely selfish standpoint.

But there is a greater cause than the selfish one. It is buying union-made goods from a humanitarian standpoint. In industries that are unionized, there is no child labor, no sweatshop conditions and no unfair conditions for either men or women. Foreign goods are frequently made by children and women under more depressing conditions than were ever known in the dark ages. The health of those who consume or use foreign products may be greatly impaired. The same is true of many non-unionized shops in our own country. It is, therefore, the greatest guarantee of sanitary conditions to buy union-made products.

And last, but most important from a labor union standpoint, there is no better way to show your loyalty to your brother unionists than to demand the union label, shop card and button. Union label buying is the best way to obtain the full benefits of all unions. It is the best insurance for a powerful and lasting American labor union movement. The great reforms which the American Federation of Labor advocates can be more easily accomplished by greater organization and union label buying. Collective bargaining and collective buying are the only methods yet discovered to raise wages, shorten hours and better the conditions of the workers. In just the degree that workers and their friends buy under the union label, shop card and button can they obtain "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness!"

Union of Longshoremen Protest Use of ERA Men on Dock Work

Boston.—In behalf of the New Bedford (Mass.) local of the International Longshoremen's Association, Daniel J. Donovan of Boston, an international vice-president of the I. L. A., has protested to Washington against the use of ERA workers in unloading a steamer at a New Bedford dock recently. Mr. Donovan says the men were obtained through the U. S. Employment Service.

When the steamer docked, Donovan led a delegation from the local to the pier, to interview Captain L. Roberts, of the New Bedford Stevedore Corporation. However, a squad of police made their appearance and barred the way for the union delegation and a request for an interview with the head of the New Bedford Stevedore Corporation was refused. The police kept all but the non-union longshoremen and officials of the stevedoring firm off the dock. About 50 men were used in the unloading work.

Donovan immediately wired his protest to the ERA headquarters in Washington. He said the lockout might result in shipping at the ports of Boston and New York being affected.

FASCIST TACTICS.

The Knoxville Sentinel of Nov. 1, in a feature article explained why the American Federation of Labor, the Indiana Federation of Labor, the Knoxville Central Labor union and the Chattanooga Trades and Labor council have passed resolutions denouncing Gov. McNutt.

"It is not," says the Sentinel, "as erroneously reported, because he called out the national guard against the strikers. Labor's quarrel with Gov. McNutt is based on something new in labor troubles. That thing is that in two counties, Sullivan and Vigo, he has kept military law in effect long after the trouble had ended and the troops had been sent home.

"Military law has been in effect in the two counties for three months. Under it, civil rights are abolished, picketing is not permitted, and violators are brought before a military court instead of a civil judge.

"The rights of workers to assemble peacefully are denied."

The socialist party of Knoxville passed out leaflets at the McNutt session exposing the governor's anti-labor record and fascist methods.

Washington. — Nomination by the American Federation of Labor Executive Council of William L. Hutcheson, president of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, as labor delegate to the forthcoming Pan-American International Labor organization conference in Sanitago, Chile, has been announced here. The Executive Council was unanimous in approving the choice of Hutcheson. Formal nominations to ILO conference are made by the president.

The Geneva headquarters of the ILO has recommended the consideration of several subjects by the convention, including the bureaus of labor inspection, minimum wages and working conditions and hours, child labor and systems of labor. The conference will begin on Dec. 31.

Birmingham Packing Plant Workers Win Union Shop

Birmingham, Ala.—About 275 workers employed in local meat packing plants, after being out on strike against one firm and "laid off" by another for several weeks, have gained a clear-cut victory here with the signing of a union agreement.

The workers are members of Federal Union No. 19054. They were represented in negotiations by V. C. Finch, of the A. F. of L., and others, while John R. Steelman, labor department conciliator, brought the warring factions together. Conciliation and arbitration is provided for future grievances, if any, while workers now expect peace and increasing prosperity in the local packing industry.

Detroit Auto Workers' Union Joins Central Labor Body

Detroit, Mich. — Plymouth Local Union No. 51, recently chartered by the international union, United Automobile Workers of America, set an example for other local unions by promptly affiliating with the local central body, the Detroit and Wayne County Federation of Labor.

Gerald Corkum is president of the local, which was formerly known as Automobile Workers Federal Local No. 18676, when it was affiliated directly with the A. F. of L.

Johnson City Notes

Johnson City.—Washington county court last week in extraordinary session adopted the proposition as presented by Judge John M. Mongold, to abolish "fee grabbing" in Washington county. The plan as adopted by a vote of 16 to 16 places one magistrate and three deputies of the county on salary basis and will handle only criminal cases originating in the county. Magistrate Rex D. Pierce was the successful candidate for this position. His salary will be $100 per month.

The sheriff of the county, J. B. Worley, was also placed on a salary of $200 a month and he was to appoint three deputies to serve with Magistrate Pierce in the duties of his office. The three deputies of the county will each be on a salary of $150 per month.

During the deliberations of the proposition Major J. W. Weeks, Magistrate of Jonesboro, Route 3, suggested that the salary of Judge John M. Mongold be increased from $2,100 to $2,400 per year. This Judge Mongold refused, saying "That he did not want any more money for his services."

The plan as passed will erase the stigma of "fee-grabbing" as applied to some members of the county court, and it is estimated that it will save the taxpayers of the county at least $10,000 per year, say officials of the county.

Organized labor in upper East Tennessee has made an effort to remedy this bad situation and Judge Mongold is to be congratulated by every taxpayer of the county for his efforts in their behalf.

At the meeting of the Clinchfield lodge, No. 559, at Erwin, in regular session, according to President W. A. Harbour, "much business was before the organization and we initiated several new members."

This organization recently was checked by a government inspector and was certified at 85 per cent. Since that time, however, they have initiated new members and the organization is near 100 per cent.

Clinchfield Lodge No. 559, one of the newest organizations in East Tennessee, has made rapid progress and being just a little over two months old and with a membership of near 100 per cent mark speaks well for the leadership. The scope of the crafts covers the entire division of the Clinchfield railway.

The protest made to Colonel Harry Berry, WPA state administration at Nashville, in regard to the appointment of Jerry Thomas, of Elizabethton, as WPA labor relations administrator for East Tennessee, Mr. Berry says: "I am going to do absolutely nothing about the Johnson City Central Labor union's request to oust Jerry Thomas. Mr. Thomas since he became affiliated with the WPA shows nothing which would give reasons for his removal."

Johnson City Central Labor union is still protesting his appointment and is going to continue protesting and will carry it to the highest WPA officials. The organization has nothing against Mr. Thomas since becoming connected with the WPA, but the organization is protesting his record while he was CWA and TERA official of Carter county, and his record previous to his appointment to these positions.

During the time Mr. Thomas was administrator of CWA and TERA affairs of Carter county, officials of the Central Labor union attended meetings of the United Textile Workers at Elizabethton soliciting their help in protesting his actions in refusing to make the proper set-ups in that county. A committee was appointed from that body and included D. W. Moore, vice-president of the United Textile Workers, and this committee attempted time and again to meet Mr. Thomas and he refused to meet them, saying that he would meet Mr. Moore only, and from then on things went as Mr. Thomas wanted them to go, and still did not make the proper set-ups according to government specifications.

Mr. Moore has made a one-man investigation of Mr. Thomas' activities in East Tennessee and at no time conferred with officials of other organizations interested, taking it upon himself to represent possibly 150 organizations interested in East Tennessee.

The one-man investigator says in his statement in the Star: "I have investigated Jerry Thomas' attitude and have conferred with him and found him to be fair and just to organized labor. This request for his removal is for some other reason than to obtain any benefits for organized labor."

The Central Labor union would like for Mr. Moore to make himself plain on this statement. Officials are only interested in the benefits to be derived by the members of the various organizations in East Tennessee and not just because some one is donating money each month to defray cost of an advertising sign in the office of the United Textile Workers in that city."

The Johnson City Central Labor union had Mr. Thomas' appointment blocked when it was up, and Mr. Thomas was informed that he would have to get his labor record straightened out. He did not come to the Central Labor union, but went to officials of the United Textile Workers and "soft soaped them" into giving him their indorsement. No wonder the United Textile Workers in that city makes no progress, it needs officials with backbone enough to stand up for their rights as American citizens.

The average reformer can talk long and loud of the road to Utopia, but he always wants somebody else to build it.

Pinkerton Sleuth Sent Into Plant, Labor Board Told

Employment of Private Detectives in Warfare on Labor Common Detroit Practice, Company Official Testifies.

Detroit.—Evidence of great significance in connection with the activities of private detective and strike-breaking agencies in employers' warfare against organized labor was developed at the hearings in the case of the Fruehauf Trailer company, charged with violation of the Wagner-Connery labor relations act.

The vice-president of the company was forced to admit before the national labor relations board here that he employed the notorious Pinkerton Detective agency to spy on his employes and seek information of their union activities and that this was a prevalent practice around Detroit. The spy, J. N. Martin, sent into the plant by the Pinkerton agency, got himself elected treasurer of the union and his evidence succeeded in getting all the officers of the union dismissed.

Spy Sought Union Members.

Former employes, members of the American Federation of Labor union formed in the Fruehauf plant, who charge they were dismissed for union affiliation, testified that soon after Martin went to work in the maintenance department, he solicited union membership from among the Fruehauf employes.

The union's recording secretary produced four application cards countersigned by what purported to be Martin's name in penciled block letters. Victor Klein, counsel for the company, did not attempt to refute the testimony concerning the cards.

Arthur Hillman, who had been vice-president of the local union, told the board he was dismissed the day after the union's president was discharged. He testified that Martin recently resigned his post as treasurer, having been asked to resign, the witness declared, as the union members suspected him. He added that Martin had the names of all the Fruehauf employes who were in the union.

Union Traps Martin.

The witness said that Martin had been about $30 short in his accounts and Chairman Madden, of the labor board, told Earl Vosler, vice-president of the company, that Vosler owed the union the money, as he had "planted" the detective in the factory.

Hillman testified that although he knew of the rule that there could be no active solicitation of union membership in the shop, Martin had tried to "entice" him to sign up a man in the shop.

John L. Peterson, another employe, testified that company officials suggested that he leave the union and he was offered several promotions if he did so.

It was in this connection that Peterson testified concerning a trap he set to ascertain whether Martin was the "stool pigeon" who had given their names to the company, after which they were dismissed.

Stages Fake Resignation.

Peterson said he set the "trap" after a union meeting in the course of which a proposal to call a strike to assist the discharged men had been voted down. After the meeting, he said, he took Martin aside and in the presence of union officials announced that he, Peterson, would resign from the union "because it meant my job if I stayed in."

The next morning, Peterson went on, Superintendent Halpin called him into the office, greeted him with a smile, announced that Vice-President Vosler was pleased to learn of his change in attitude and said that "now you are one of the Fruehauf family." He received a wage raise of 5 cents an hour, later cut to 4 by Vosler.

Peterson said he was dismissed on Oct. 10, two weeks after he had been seen at the regional labor board by Martin, the Pinkerton man.

Case of Crucial Importance.

When the government closed its case Attorney Klein announced he would not call any witnesses for the company, indicating he would stand on his argument that manufacturing was not interstate commerce, that the Wagner-Connery act was unconstitutional and that an employer had a right to discharge a man for joining a union or for any reason whatever. These company contentions were set forth on the first day of the hearing.

The crucial importance of the Fruehauf Trailer case is that it is the first case heard by the board in any industry other than transportation. The charges were filed by the United Automobile Workers' Federal Labor union, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. If the activities of the Fruehauf Trailer company are held by the courts to affect interstate commerce, then the national labor relations act will apply, of course, to the automobile manufacturing industry and similarly to the steel industry, the rubber industry and textile industry, and none of those industries may thereafter interfere with their employes in their rights of self-organization. In other words, the same protection to workers to organize will be guaranteed by the United States government in those large manufacturing industries as is now guaranteed by the government to railway employes.

Board Overrules Company.

The constitutionality of the act, as applied to the Fruehauf Trailer company was challenged by the company on the ground that manufacturing was intrastate. The attorney for the company read from some of the decisions of the supreme court of the United States cited by the committee of Liberty league lawyers in their attack on the constitutionality of the act. The board overruled the motion of the company and held that the act applied in this case. The ruling of the board was warranted by the long line of decisions by the supreme court cited in the booklet entitled "The National Labor Relations Act; Its Constitutionality," by Charlton Ogburn, A. F. of L. counsel, who had also filed the charges against the Fruehauf Trailer company on behalf of the Federal Labor union.

Procedure Before Board.

In this hearing, as in other hearings before the board, on the complaint of violation of the act, the charge is filed by the union or its attorney and the evidence to support that charge is obtained by the union or its attorney. If this evidence warrants a complaint, the same evidence is then presented at the formal hearing by the attorney for the board. The attorney for the union, however, participates in the hearing. In petitions for an election filed with the board the union must prepare and present its own evidence to support this petition for an election, including what constitutes a proper bargaining unit and evidence to show the existence of a controversy affecting commerce.

Another point of significance brought out at the hearing in answer to inquiry by the chairman was that the attorney for the company, and perhaps other attorneys, are advising their clients that they can violate the national labor relations act with impunity.

LABOR QUERIES

Q.—Has labor taken any stand on the use of tin cans for beer?

A.—The executive board of the Union Label Trades Department, American Federation of Labor, recently condemned tin cans for beer on the ground that the cans are not manufactured by union workers, but are the product of cheap labor and unfair manufacturing plants. The board called upon all trades unionists and friends of labor to support the continued use of glass bottles for beer, ale and porter, pointing out that the bottles are made under union conditions and entitled to the use of the union label.

Q.—What did the recent American Federation of Labor convention do on the matter of convict labor?

A.—The convention recommended vigorous continuation of efforts for a drastic program to eliminate competition of prison-made goods with the products of free labor.

What Next!

A new process which makes synthetic gasoline from the wastes of natural gasoline manufacture was recently reported to a group of industrialists and bankers at Pittsburgh. The basic materials in the process are hydrocarbons, among the chief constituents of natural oil, which have been allowed to escape as waste gases into the air from oil wells, refineries and storage tanks at the rate of 300,000,000,000 cubic feet per year.

Minneapolis Candy Workers Win Wage Increase Strike

Minneapolis, Minn.—Wage increases and the 40-hour work week, establishment of seniority rights and other benefits have been won for every union worker in the candy industry here.

Following short strikes, agreements were reached with all employers, with one exception still pending. Negotiations were carried on by members of the Candy Makers' union, assisted by Roy Wier, representing the Central Labor union.

Success of this organizing work adds 500 workers to the union membership in Minneapolis immediately, with many more to follow.

Iowa Labor Federation Head Hits "Security Wage" Rates

Cedar Rapids, Ia.—"Wrecker of wages" was the epithet hurled bodily at the Iowa WPA Director L. S. Hill, in a scorching letter of protest over "security wage" rates, sent to the director by J. C. Lewis, president of the Iowa State Federation of Labor.

President Lewis hotly contended that Hill is not in sympathy with President Roosevelt's program, which is regarded as strange, since the director is reported to be on two federal payrolls himself. Hill is said to have admitted his authority to pay prevailing wage rates on WPA projects, but has so far refused to do so, with no other indication of a reason than "spite" over some unexplained action of the president.

MORE ABOUT UNION BREAD

ning of a brand-new 100 per cent union bakery first saw the light of day. Many hundred friends subscribed small amounts of stock, and Miss Annie Cameron, of the Cameron & Barr bakery, offered to go along with the venture.

There's a union man—Miss Annie. From the inception of the local, Miss Annie gave her time, finances and advice to help the cause of bakery employes in Chattanooga. She was the one who supplied the last push to get a new company chartered and installation of machinery started off.

The Union Baking company is an established fact now. It is starting in with brand-new machinery, every piece of which is the last word in bakingdom.

More than that, every man running those machines has been in the business from five to twenty years. They know their trade.

The sales force—all union—have proven their worth. They did a good job in making the Merita bread prosperous for many years. When the time came that they were imposed on by the company, they further demonstrated that they had also secured the confidence of the customer friends. When these boys called on the merchants to back them up in their defense, you could not give away the Merita bread.

Now that these boys are back on their routes with a product equal to any on the market, the new union-labeled bread should sweep Chattanooga like wildfire.

The labor movement has been impatient for a good union-labeled bakery product. They want fair conditions in the bakeshops here. Now that a real union bakery of importance is established, the labor movement will no doubt forget that any other bakery exists. They had their chance and muffed it. Long live Mother's bread and cakes!

Mother's bread and cakes was born of necessity and struggle. It did not come easy. Such sacrifice will give it the foundation for success and permanency.

The labor movement hails the Union Baking company and its scrapping artisans. Luck to you. May you prosper and grow. May you spread out into other territory and may you show other non-union bakeries that true union spirit cannot be subdued by injunction, discharge and starvation.

PREDICTION BY SINCLAIR.

Madison, Wis.—The U. S. supreme court is going "to declare most of the new deal legislation unconstitutional" and then President Roosevelt "will be in a bad way," Upton Sinclair predicted here. Sinclair, addressing University of Wisconsin students, advised them not to go out into the real world "because there is no place for you. Stay on as long as papa is able to pay the bill."

ELECTRICAL WORKERS SIGN EVERY CONTRACTOR ON STRIKE BUT ONE TO UNION CONTRACT

Curtis Electric Company Still "Unfair to Unorganized Labor"—Fight to Continue.

Union Asks Public to Support Firms Paying Wage Scale Called For in New Pact.

Electrical Workers Local Union No. 175 notified the public Wednesday morning that ten of the eleven electrical contractors of Chattanooga, with whom a controversy had existed for some weeks concerning a new agreement, were now 100 per cent union, and asked the co-operation of the public in insisting that these ten firms be given their patronage.

The Curtis Electric company is still non-union and remains on the "unfair" list of organized labor. This contractor has declared for the so-called "open shop" and employs none of the members of the electrical union. An active campaign will be carried on against the company, and it is hoped that within a short time it will be back in the union ranks once more.

Officials of the union express appreciation of the frank and sincere manner in which the final settlements were negotiated. When everything was agreed to all differences were amicably adjusted, and once more employer and employe are working together on the job in the same harmonious manner before the temporary breach occurred.

The ten firms that merit the patronage of organized labor are: Allied Electric company, Central Electric company, Chattanooga Electric company, Frost Electric company, Cofer Electric company, Teas Electric company; F. P. Sweet Electric company, Hall Electric company, Terrell Electric company and Brown Electric company. These contractors employ none but union members, who are all skilled craftsmen with years of experience.

Identification Card For Delegates Adopted By D. C. Central Body

Alternate Delegates Are Barred—Plan Seeks to Avoid Padding—Visitors Given Privileges.

Washington.—Setting the pace for the nation's nearly 700 central bodies, several of which are said to have been bothered with alleged "padding" on occasion, the Washington Central Labor union has adopted a system of identification cards for delegates and the prohibited alternates.

A resolution containing these two provisions was passed with what was declared to be surprisingly little opposition.

The two sections of the resolution as adopted, referring to the use of cards and barring alternate delegates, are as follows:

"Resolved, That the secretary of the Central Labor union be instructed to issue cards of identification to all accredited delegates to the Central Labor union from affiliated unions; be it further

"Resolved, That the Washington Central Labor union does not recognize alterates."

The rule concerning alternates is a new one, it was pointed out as nothing appears in the constitution and by-laws either permitting or prohibiting alternate delegates.

It was stated on the floor that no alternates had been allowed to participate in the proceedings of the central body until very recently, possibly within the past two years, although the Central Labor union was formed in 1896. The new rule definitely prohibits alternates in the future.

Visitors will be allowed as heretofore, except when executive sessions are declared. However, no one without an official delegate's card will be allowed to discuss any subject on the floor without special permission and no such person will be allowed to vote on any subject under consideration by the Washington Central Labor union.

Labor Protests PWA Use of Steel Made in Germany

Purchase of Foreign Materials for Relief Projects Keeps Americans Out of Work, A. F. of L. Head Points Out.

Washington.—Labor has made emphatic protest against the use of German manufactured steel on PWA projects.

In a vigorous letter to Secretary Ickes, PWA administrator, President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, objected strongly to purchase of German steel, pointing out that such purchase would give employment to German workers, while American workers seeking an opportunity to produce the same material, are idle. This, he declared, was contrary to the purpose of the public works act.

Contracts for some German steel have been awarded for the Triborough bridge in New York City and the Morehead City ocean terminal in North Carolina. Both projects are being constructed by private contractors.

Secretary Ickes disclaimed responsibility for the situation. He charged that the Triborough bridge authority was directly responsible for purchase of the German steel instead of domestic steel.

Intent of Congress Nullified.

President Green said in his protest to Secretary Ickes:

"Inasmuch as congress appropriated the funds for public works projects in order to relieve unemployment and alleviate widespread distress in the United States, it is difficult for labor to understand how said funds could be used for the purpose of buying material manufactured in Germany. Such action seems contradictory to the aims and purposes of the public works relief measure.

the purchase of material manufac-

"Public works relief funds spent for tured in Germany would serve to create employment for German workers, while American working men who are thoroughly qualified and are seeking an opportunity to produce the same material, are idle.

"American labor contends that PWA funds appropriated for relief purposes by act of congress should be used for the purpose of creating work opportunities for the millions of American working men who are idle and who have been idle for more than five years.

"Intense Feeling Aroused."

"Intense feeling is being aroused among the working people throughout the nation through the publication of reports that the contract for steel to be used in the construction of the Triborough bridge in New York will be awarded to German steel manufacturers."

The protest filed by Green was supplemented by a protest from the officers of the Amalgamated Associationof Iron, Steel and Tin Workers in behalf of that organization.

Though steel makers protested some months ago against the possibility that foreign steel might be used in federal construction jobs, they have said nothing about the use of German steel on the Triborough bridge work. The reason for their silence may have been revealed by the statement of William Goldsmith, head of the Woodcrest Construction company, which bought the German steel for the Triborough job, that material of the kind necessary was not made in the country. American steel plants have declined to produce it, he said.

AUTO WORKERS' UNION ASKS "SHARE-THE-WORK" PROGRAM

Toledo, O.—United Auto Workers' union officials negotiated for a "share the work" program as the Chevrolet Motor company reopened its Ohio plant.

A force of 1,100 was reported working, compared to 2,400 employed before the shutdown several weeks ago. An employes' committee asked the company to employ half of the 2,400 one week, the other half the next week.

"WHERE WERE YOU ON THE MORNING OF OCTOBER 28TH?" "DROWN 'EM" SHEPHERD SINGS IN COURT TRIAL

Milne Chair Company Attorney Makes Another Flop in Effort to Persecute Working People Fighting for Decent Living, When He Fails to Jail Twelve Strikers on Alleged Contempt of Court Charges Before Chancellor Foust.

T. Pope Shepherd, corporation lawyer and legal advisor against strikers, more recently acting for the Milne Chair company, who now have a strike on their hands because of wage cuts, made a miserable fizzle in his attempt last Monday to jail twelve strikers for alleged contempt of court. Mr. Shepherd told Chancellor Foust that his injunction limiting the number of pickets to five had been violated, and asked that they be punished.

Each of the twelve intended victims were asked by the corporation attorney, "Where were you on the morning of Oct. 28?" which was the morning the injunction was alleged to have been broken. Insistent droning of the phrase reminded spectators of the more melodious popular tune "Where Were You on the Night of June the Third," but the tune sung by Mr. Shepherd had a discordant and frustrated snarl as each "victim" succeeded in showing the chancellor that they had not broken his injunction. In fact, some of the strikers proved that they were not even in Chattanooga on that fateful morning which worries the Milne officials so much.

The whole case seemed to be based on Mr. Shepherd's definition of what is a picket. According to spectators at the trial, it appeared that officials of the company define a picket to be any employe who appears within several blocks of the plant on strike. Evidently every striker should rush home, go to bed and pull the blankets over his head and hold his breath. Since Mr. Shepherd has already taken on himself the privilege of ruling on the contitutionality of the Wagner labor disputes bill, according to those who have been in conference with him, he evidently feels that he is capable of making his own ruling as to what constitutes a picket. The court evidently does not agree to the eminent lawyer's opinion.

H. G. B. King, who defended the Milne strikers, presented the defense in his usual able manner, and incidentally, called Mr. Shepherd out on strikes again, just as he has in several other instances.

Although the strike at the Milne Chair company has been in effect for many weeks, and the company has used every method that their clever legal advisors could devise, strikers declare that they intend to fight the dispute to the end, and will endeavor to maintain their rights of collective bargaining.

It will be remembered that Mr. Shepherd has not always inveighed against the gathering of more than five people in a dispute. While the champion of law and order believes in five or less of the disputants collecting together now, it has not always been the case with him. When he was chairman of the local NRA board Mr. Shepherd reminded the public that in another city a mob had swooped down on a merchant who had not displayed the Blue Eagle, and in discussing the case of a local grocery store he practically advised the same course of action, according to the interpretation made by many who heard him.

At a later date, this same attorney made a public statement that labor "agitators" should be put in a sack and be thrown into the ocean. Many are wondering how a prominent lawyer, such as Mr. Shepherd, can advocate mob rule and lynch rule in one breath, and in another instance become frantic when more than five working men stand silently before an unfair employer in protest.

Undercover Men Seek to Destroy A. F. of L. Union

Bakery Drivers Reveal Tactics Similar to Those Employed at Detroit in War to Prevent Workers' Organization.

Philadelphia.—Following close on startling evidence of the use of private detectives to break up trade unions in Detroit, given at a national labor relations board hearing on charges again the Fruehauf Trailer company, comes equally sensational revelations of the activities of labor spies in Philadelphia union ranks.

Both exposures are of national interest, as tactics similar to those in use by Detroit and Philadelphia employers are employed all over the country to wreck trade unions and prevent organization of workers under the American Federation of Labor.

Anti-union activities of private detective agencies in Philadelphia have been revealed in the case of the Freihofer Baking company, against which formal charges of violating the Wagner-Connery labor relations act have been filed with the national labor relations board. A hearing on the charges is expected soon.

Spies Form Fake Union.

The Freihofer company is accused specifically of organizing a company union through the use of labor spies, despite its agreement with the Bakery Drivers' union, the complainant, and of discharging men for union activity.

The case has been given the personal attention of the members of the national board. It is attracting nation-wide attention in labor circles because it is believed to be the beginning of a planned attack by the regional labor board on company unions and similar puppet organizations.

The board has determined on such a campaign, it is reported, because of the renewed company union activity by large industrialists following the passage of the Wagner act.

Quick Action Ordered.

Quick action was ordered by the board to avert a threatened second strike of the union's 450 members who struck successfully in 1933 for increased wages, shorter hours, a union agreement and elimination of credit responsibility. The company does the largest baking business in the city. Its operation extends into southern New Jersey, Delaware and Maryland, providing, according to labor board aides, the necessary interstate character to bring the company under the jurisdiction of the Wagner act.

Data outlined the method of establishing the Freihofer company union

LABEL LEAGUE TO HELP CLERKS FORM NEW LOCAL

Regular Meeting of Label Boosters Friday Night to Discuss Possibilities.

Moving Picture Projectionists' Union Will Serve Refreshments and Tell of Their Local.

Possibilities for formation of a strong local of retail clerks will be scanned by the Chattanooga Label league Friday evening, Nov. 22, at the labor hall, in its regular meeting of the month. Mr. Jack Ellison, representing the Retail Clerks' International union, will address the band of label boosters and solicit their co-operation and assistance in forming an organization for this large group of unorganized and in many cases exploited group of Chattanooga workers. Expressing belief that if the people who sell to the ultimate consumer are trained in trades union principles, the campaign to boost the union label will be advanced beyond any previous success, officials of the league and of the Chattanooga Trades and Labor council are determined that if local clerks are receptive to this opportunity, the local will be formed. If necessary a militant campaign will be inaugurated to put the organization over.

Mr. Ellison has made arrangements to meet with retail clerks who are interested in improving their working conditions. A meeting has been called for Monday evening at 8 o'clock at the labor hall. It is hoped that a good number of grocery clerks particularly will be present to learn of what similar locals have accomplished within a small radius of Chattanooga.

Instituting a courtesy which is believed will be adopted by many local unions, the Moving Picture Projectionists have consented to act as hosts to the Label league this month, and will serve refreshments to members of the league and visitors. They will also give a very short presentation of the founding of their local union, and will show the benefits derived through a compact organization.

It is thought that various locals will avail themselves of a like opportunity to introduce their label and local to this active group of label boosters.

The meeting will be called Friday night at 7:30 sharp. Any trades unionist is welcome, and it is hoped that every local union will have two representatives present.

Raincoat Workers of Jellico, Tenn., Win Closed Shop

Locked Out of Plant When Management Learned of Union Being Formed.

Signed Agreement Secured Two Weeks Later With Increase in Pay.

The Cumberland Raincoat company, of Jellico, Tenn., has just concluded negotiations with its employes, members of Ladies' Garment Workers union, which provide for a strictly closed shop, a shorter work week and an increase in pay amounting to as much as 12½ per cent.

The whole dispute arose after abolishment of NRA. After NRA was destroyed the management announced a wage cut and an increase in hours. Workers immediately got interested in forming an organization and a charter was secured. When management learned that their employes were perfecting an organization they locked them out. Picket lines were formed and the plant was kept closed down, the lockout occurring Oct. 14.

On Oct. 16 a ten-day tentative agreement was reached in which all employes returned to work and further negotiations were carried on for a permanent agreement. On Oct. 31 the final agreement was signed and the plant became a 100 per cent union shop.

The Cumberland Raincoat company manufactures raincoats, ladies' skirts, jackets and zipper jackets. It is believed that these garments will bear the union label.

Local Textile Unions Announce Meetings

Members of Textile Local 2461, who are employes in the National Yarn company, will meet every Saturday morning in the Junior hall at East Lake at 10 o'clock. All employes of this mill are urged to attend.

Textile Local 1751, Peerless Woolen mill, will meet in the same hall at 9 o'clock.

Members of Local 2309 are invited to attend these meetings.

Among the Union Label league sanctions is the demand that each member buy union-mads goods and services.

Workers' wives can do their bit in establishing better conditions for labor by joining the union label-buying army.

UNION LABELED BREAD EXCEEDS FONDEST HOPE IN PUBLIC'S RECEPTION

Demand Is So Great That New Bakery Finds Equipment Is Inadequate to Supply the Demand.

Forced to Order Additional Pans. High Praise Heard Concerning Quality—Run 3 Shifts.

What a week the new Union Baking company has experienced! Although the management had built hopes of a favorable reception of their product, "Mother's Bread," which they introduced to the Chattanooga public last Monday, salesmen for the company were stunned at the rapidity in which their loaves melted from the shelves of grocers all over the city. With the exception of three chain grocers, practically every grocer in the city has put in their bid for their share of this new union labeled product as fast as it can come out of the ovens.

Working three shifts a day, this new company found it imperative to send a rush order to the supply houses for additional pans in order to fill orders. It is estimated that at the present time the Union Baking company can bake 4,000 loaves per day, which sounds like a lot of bread, but it is not enough. Housewives who know their bread have pronounced it tip-top, and already those who have experimented with it are telling the world that it makes the best toast ever found.

Truly, Mother's bread has justified all the struggle and sacrifice put into it to become a reality. Well might the labor movement be proud of the union label that graces each loaf and package of rolls. It shows to Chattanooga what a 100 per cent union product signifies—quality, good workmanship and fair working conditions.

Miss Annie Cameron, secretary-treasurer of this lusty infant in the baking world, says to watch for Mother's cakes which will be introduced Friday. Miss Annie becomes almost tearful in expressing her appreciation to the Chattanooga labor movement for its help and co-operation in making this monument to the movement possible. Speaking to The Labor World Wednesday, she stated that the Union Baking company intended to make Chattanooga proud of Mother's bread, rolls and cakes, and she asks the merchants to be patient until their production can be geared up sufficiently to supply their demands.

Ickes Acts to Bar Foreign Material On PWA Projects

Administrator Reveals Change of Policy, Following Emphatic Labor Protest Against Use of German Steel.

Washington.—The public works administration will change its regulations to virtually bar foreign materials from PWA projects, Secretary Harold L. Ickes announced in a letter to William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor.

Ickes' change of front followed closely on a sharp protest made by Green and others against PWA regulation which allowed a sub-contractor to order $190,000 worth of German steel for New York City's Triborough bridge and $85,000 worth for the Morehead City, N. C., ocean terminal. Previously, Secretary Ickes, as PWA administrator, had contended that the 15 per cent differential as established by PWA was justified and that any efforts to protect American industry and labor against foreign material should be made by the tariff commission.

Asserting that the contracts for the New York City and North Carolina projects had already been awarded and could not be modified, Ickes said in part in his letter to President Green:

"First of all, let me tell you in no uncertain terms that it is not the intention, nor has it ever been the intention, of PWA to permit the use of money voted by congress for relief purposes to be used for the purchase of foreign materials on project construction. . . .

> "Accordingly PWA is changing its regulations so as to provide that no foreign materials may be purchased for federal or non-federal projects unless approval is first obtained.

"I intend, if any bids lower than American are received from foreign producers, to determine the important questions:

"First, is the foreign bid lower because of foreign government subsidy or foreign exchange regulations?

"Second, are the American bid or bids collusive or are the American bid or bids so unreasonably high as to justify the belief that advantage is being taken of the government in administering its relief funds?"

Nashville Hosiery Local to Sponsor Dance Saturday

Announcement comes from Nashville that Branch 55, American Federation of Hosiery Workers, will sponsor a dance to be given Saturday, Nov. 23, at the Nashville labor temple. The fun will start at 8:30 p.m., to the tunes of one of the best union orchestras in the Capital City.

Trades unionists of Chattanooga are invited to take part in the frolic given by the real up-and-going hosiery local there. Price of admission per couple will be 50 cents. Single admission for gentlemen will be 40 cents, while the ladies will be admitted for 10 cents.

FREIGHT RIDERS INCREASE.

Chicago. — Unemployment means greater efforts to secure jobs. And this means, in many instances, "bumming a freight" to get there.

As a result of existing conditions, it was reported to the Association of American Railroads here that 616,000 "trespassers" were either arrested or ejected from the trains or premises of the country's sixty-five largest class 1 railroads during the summer of 1935. This does not include many smaller roads and is said to be a decided increase in this form of "violation" of the sacred rights of railroads.

Toledo A. & P. Stores Fight Clerks' Union

Toledo, O.—Organized labor here is finding considerable difficulty in dealing with the A. & P. stores, operated by the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company, whose "chain" extends from coast to coast.

Attempts of local employes to form a union were reported to have been met with the discharge of active members for "inefficiency"—the same old stall used by chain stores throughout the country.

Action of the management of A. & P. stores here has stirred up a storm of protest on the part of all organized labor. Stores are being picketed, organization efforts are being pressed with renewed vigor and there is an apparent determination in the hearts of all organized wage-earners to support the clerks fully in their efforts to organize and gain some semblance of decent wages and working conditions.

CENTRAL BODY REGULAR MEETING MONDAY EVENING

President A. C. Kamin calls attention to delegates to Chattanooga Trades and Labor council that a regular meeting of that organization will take place Monday evening at 7:30.

All delegates are urged to be present as matters of statewide interest will be discussed.

"No," said the union man to the company "union" stool pigeon, "I haven't anything up my sleeve but I have a union label in my pocket."

The Penalty of Disobedience to a Political Boss

The labor movement of Tennessee is observing with much interest and growing indignation the fate that appears certain for R. S. McCann, president of the Tennessee Federation of Labor, and at present an active and loyal trades unionist of Memphis.

It will be recalled that a few weeks ago those "in the know" were aware that President McCann had received notice from the Crump machine in Memphis that Boss Crump "wished" McCann would be less aggressive in pushing labor's rightful claim for prevailing wages under WPA. Being a good union man and not a political [illegible] McCann continued his policy of being a union man.

It [illegible] that three weeks ago McCann was invited to attend one of Boss Crump's get-togethers to celebrate the smothering of all opposition in the recent Memphis city elections. McCann accepted the invitation. Crump's strong-arm men also got together, and McCann found himself roughly handled and physically tossed out, with the words ringing in his ears that Crump did not like him, and that anyway McCann was a young upstart who had risen in the labor ranks too rapidly. In most labor movements individuals rise to leadership at the pleasure of the members thereof, but it seems that in Shelby county [illegible] Crumpism does not [illegible] contingent upon his ratification.

McCann had already planned a tour of the state to visit various Central Bodies, and immediately after the beating-up incident, he left Memphis to make the tour. Lo and behold, just as soon as he reached the city limits of Memphis on his return home, he was arrested for "speeding." He was charged with going at the dizzy pace of 39 miles an hour, according to press reports. Being absolutely unbiased, The Labor World must give the Memphis czar credit for obtaining for his county a wonderful system of wide streets, and if 39 miles per hour is speeding in Memphis, no one should go more than 20 miles per hour in most other southern cities.

Nevertheless, McCann was picked up for speeding. By the time this is printed, [illegible] has been pinched for playing the radio after 9 o'clock, wearing his tie crooked, or failure to keep his car polished.

We predict a tough time for this courageous labor leader in Memphis [illegible]

Take It or Leave It!

Items of More or Less Interest Picked Up From Various Sources

CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

It seems to be axiomatic, which is the same thing as saying it it just naturally true, that big business men are very foolish and don't know when to let well enough alone. They had a very good thing along in 1928, but they weren't satisfied. They had to go on and kite it up to the bursting point in 1929 and thus set themselves and everybody else back for a long, long time. A lot of folks saw what was coming, but it didn't do any good. The big business crowd kept the kite flying until lightning hit it and smashed the pretty thing to ribbons. They never know when they have enough. Big appetites are never satisfied with moderation.

Take big business today. It has a moderate kind of a labor relations law and it has a moderate kind of social welfare legislation, which will provide some very moderate protection. It has moderate laws to protect buyers of so-called securities. The laws that have been enacted to protect people from greed are moderate. They aren't drastic. But what is big business doing? Does it have sense enough to take these laws and let well enough alone? It does not. It is trying to knock out these moderate laws, seeming to think we shall then go back to the wide open, free and easy looting and exploiting of the past. Are these men wise men? They are just plain saps. That's all.

For why? Well, just because if these laws are knocked out there will be a righteous fury let loose that will go and get itself, not some moderate laws like we now have but some sock-dolagers with teeth and then the big fat boys will wonder why in Sam Hill they didn't have some sense and take a nice red apple instead of giving him a poke in the nose.

Now that's about what seems to be going to happen. They're going to keep right on being foolish—those fat boys. They're not going to learn anything—not until it's too late anyway. Labor served its notice in Atlantic City. And they needn't think labor will be fighting alone, either. There will be plenty of millions of Americans fighting to keep going ahead—to keep from being shoved backward. The people are just about tired of being pushed around by the fat coupon clippers.

If the nine venerable gentlemen on the supreme court bench—and not all of them are reactionary, either—find that the constitution won't stand for laws that try to do what has to be done to protect people, then people will say to themselves that something must be done about that. And they will do it, too. But next time there will be less moderation and more service for people.

The high raters in the ranks of business won't learn that tent-folding time has come until their tents are blown clear away. But if it's necessary, the people will huff and puff and blow the darned tents away—and then the fat boys will get wet and what's more, then they'll know they're wet. Children and fat boys in Wall Street never know when they have enough. But there are ways of teaching both of them. Enough experience and they learn.

MISS ROCHE CHAMPIONS NRA IN COAL INDUSTRY

Washington.—The history of coal strikes in Colorado and the bringing of industrial harmony through higher wages and better working conditions was related in the district supreme court by Josephine Roche, assistant secretary of the treasury.

Miss Roche testified as a government witness in the suit testing constitutionality of the Guffey act.

"The NRA was beneficial to the industry," Miss Roche observed, saying that unless there was some stabilizing influence there would be an inevitable tendency to cut wages and return to demoralized conditions such as existed prior to the NRA.

Commenting on the interstate features of the industry, Miss Roche said that Colorado strikes frequently interrupted the flow of coal from Colorado to markets in adjoining states and had burdened the consuming public with increased costs.

CONSTRUCTION IN NEW YORK SHOWS SLIGHT OCTOBER GAIN

Albany, N. Y.—Construction employment, payrolls and hours showed a slight rise for September to October, Industrial Commissioner Elmer F. Andrews reports. Percentage increases amounted to 0.3 per cent in employment, 1.9 per cent in payrolls and 1.2 per cent in hours. Increases in employment amounted to 3.8 per cent for general building and 5.2 per cent for miscellaneous general contracting. A decrease amounting to 7.2 per cent was shown for highway contracting and 1.3 per cent for subcontracting.

TERRE HAUTE STRIKERS DETERMINED TO WIN

Terre Haute, Ind.—The strike of stamping mill workers, which has been in effect since March 28, 1935, is still in effect, with all strikers apparently still determined to fight until victory crowns their collective efforts.

The Columbian Stamping and Enameling company has tried, but with limited success, to operate on a non-union basis. Among those who have shown sympathy for the union are four foremen who have refused to have any part in the strikebreaking attempt. It is also said that William (Bill) Gorby, son of the president of Columbian, refuses to have any part in strikebreaking efforts and favors dealing fairly with the union.

The strike gained nation-wide notice on July 19, when the company, aided by city police, put some fifty armed strikebreakers in their plant. When strikebreakers arrived, four watchmen picked up their belongings and have not been on the job since.

The men are remaining steadfast to union principles and, while they stand ready and willing to mediate their differences, they are fully determined to win this important struggle in the march of wage-earners in their right to organize and bargain collectively.

That's what they all say about these smartly tailored, practical undies. The fabric won't run, the elastic retains its stretch and the seams won't break out. was given the labor board by John B. Backhus, president of the union, an A. F. of L. affiliate.

According to Backhus, Irving C. Franklin and Donald M. Stoner, company union "specialists" of Jersey City, came to Philadelphia and opened offices in the Beury building.

Six different units were set up—one for each branch of the company.

Each unit is to have a chairman, two vice-chairmen, a financial secretary and trustee. All the officers of the units form a general council for the purpose of "dealing" with the company. Dues are 25 cents a month in contrast with the union dues of $2. One of those discharged by the company, allegedly for union activity, is Samuel Laffer, a driver at the main plant. He was employed for thirteen years. He was dismissed twice previously, but reinstated with back pay following a protest by the union.

LABOR HEADS TO PUSH INDUSTRIAL UNIONISM

Representatives of Seven A. F. of L. Unions Form "Educational and Advisory" Committee Headed by John L. Lewis.

Washington.—At a meeting held in the offices of the United Mine Workers of America here, representatives of seven international unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, formed a committee to promote the organization of unions along industrial lines in the mass production industries.

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, was named chairman of the committee and Charles P. Howard, president of the International Typographical union, was named secretary. John Brophy, of Pittsburgh, Pa., active in the United Mine Workers, was chosen director to supervise the work of organization. The organization will be called the "Committee for Industrial Organization."

Six Others on Committee.

In addition to Lewis and Howard, representing their respective organizations, the following union heads were present and were named members of the committee:

Sidney Hillman, president, Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America; David Dubinsky, president, International Ladies' Garment Workers' union; Thomas F. McMahon, president, United Textile Workers of America; Harvey C. Fleming, president, Oil Field, Gas Well and Refinery Workers of America; M. Zaritsky, president, Cap and Millinery department, United Hatters, Cap and Millinery Workers' International union; Thomas H. Brown, president, International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers.

Committee's Statement.

The committee issued the following statement:

"This committee will work in accordance with the principles and policies enunciated by these organizations at the Atlantic City convention of the American Federation of Labor. It is the purpose of the committee to encourage and promote organization of the workers in the mass production and unorganized industries of the nation and affiliation with the American Federation of Labor.

"Its functions will be educational and advisory and the committee and its representatives will co-operate for the recognition and acceptance of modern collective bargaining in such industries.

"Other organizations interested in advancing organization work along the lines of industrial unionism will be invited to participate in the activities of the committee and name representatives to join in its work."

Q. [illegible] the [illegible] Union of the United States?

A. Earliest unions were as assemblies of the Knights of Labor. The National Federation of Miners and Mine Laborers was formed in 1885, and this was followed in 1889 by the National Progressive Union. In 1890 all the coal miners' organizations consolidated as the United Mine Workers of America.

Q. What union was the last of the craft divisions to leave the International Typographical Union?

A. The International Photo-Engravers Union of North America, which was founded in 1900 and which was recognized by the I. T. U. three years later. The I. T. U. was originally an industrial union composed of the various crafts in the printing industry.

TEACHERS' CREDIT UNION LAUNCHED.

A credit union to serve employes of education departments of Chattanooga and Hamilton county has received its charter from the state government. Its purposes are to provide a safe channel of savings for members and to make it possible for them to borrow at reasonable rates.

Eligible parties may become members by buying one or more shares at $5 per share, plus a registration fee of 25 cents. Each member has one vote regardless of the number of shares he may have purchased.

Interest rates on loans have not yet been fixed by the board of directors. The average rate of similar organizations is 1 per cent per month on the unpaid balance. This makes an actual average rate of 6½ per cent per year on the amount borrowed.

The first board of directors is composed of the following prominent federation members: Sam Harris, E. E. Harris, Lucian Smith, C. C. Burgner, J. D. Bales, Mrs. Fred P. Darwin and W. P. Selcer.

Committee members are: Roy Austin, C. J. Anderson, Miss Margaret O'Grady, credit; Mrs. George Rice, O. C. Kirkman, W. P. Selcer, supervisory.

Further information may be obtained from the federation office or from W. P. Selcer, treasurer of the organization.

NEW METHOD OF REPRESENTATION FOR STATE ASSOCIATION.

The two county teacher groups will meet together Dec. 7 for the purpose of electing delegates to the Tennessee Education association conference in Nashville. Delegates will be chosen so as to represent as many phases of the educative process as possible. There will be representatives of the different groups—primary, intermediate, junior high, and senior high. Also, there will be an effort to give a greater proportion of the representation to the classroom teachers, rather than almost exclusively to principals of large schools.

YOUTH CONFERENCE.

Federation teachers and particularly social science teachers are invited to register at their churches to attned the United Christian Youth conference (interdenominational) to be held at Centenary M. E. church, Nov. 29, 30 and Dec. 1. Religious, moral, social, political and economic problems will be discussed from the general standpoint expressed by the slogan "Christian Youth Building a New World."

Registration fee for the conference is $1.00. Blanks may be had at all churches.

SLANTS AT SCHOOLS AND SCHOOLMEN.

Soddy High—For lessons in democratic procedure attend a community meeting at Soddy High school. Principal J. D. Bales has faith in that sort of procedure, and his faith is not just the theoretical sort. He practices it. He has faith in the fundamental justness and good sense of the people as a whole. He believes that they can solve all their problems if they will only express themselves and put their ideas together.

To illustrate: After a recent community meeting at which L. J. Wilhoite eloquently upheld the interests of the small taxpayer against the forces of corporate wealth represented by the Taxpayers' league, Mr. Bales conducted a forum. In his genial, sincere and yet tactful way he managed to draw expressions from all strata of the Soddy population and from representatives of most of the neighboring communities. All organizations were called on, from the chamber of commerce to the Old Age Pension league. No one was slighted. The result was that everyone seemed to go away with a feeling of good will for and solidarity with his fellow citizens.

East Brainerd—If there is a better teachers' union record than that held by the faculty of East Brainerd school, it has not yet come to light. East Brainerd is 100 per cent union, has been 100 per cent union for the life of the local federation, and it is the prediction of Principal J. B. Smith that it always will be 100 per cent union. Mr. Smith is a charter member of the union, has been active in all fights for the rights of teachers, and was recently elected a member of the board of directors in his district by an overwhelming majority.

Mr. Smith announces the bi-monthly meeting of the East Brainerd Business league on Thursday evening, Dec. 5, for the purpose of forming a Little Theater organization.

Mr. Smith avers that the East Brainerd organization, unlike the big business chambers of commerce and manufacturers' associations, supports the same progressive objectives as the teachers' federation.

Third District—Principal J. W. Abel has an interesting system for motivating self-expression among his pupils at Third District school. He has divided grades 4-6 into eight literary clubs. These give weekly programs and meet one another in monthly inter-club contests. The program consists of a declamation by a boy, a reading by a girl, a story, two musical numbers, a debate, a journal and a chalk talk.

Mr. Abel has perfected a technique for overcoming timidity or disdain about performing. He has succeeded in enlisting the most timid and the most hard-boiled in the activities.

Teachers are invited to his next interclub contest at the school, Friday evening, Nov. 22. Many prominent Chattanoogans have visited at the contests, and all have been high in praise of them.

Third District also has the distinction of having the only elementary school bank in the city. Its deposits this year have totaled over $300.

RESOLUTIONS

Whereas, after having served our local Brotherhood of Railway Carmen of America for so many years in an official capacity and of a readiness always to share his part of the burden to further the interests of the organization he so loved, Divine Providence has called our brother, G. Chester Smith, to his eternal reward; and,

Whereas, in his going we are again reminded of the uncertainty of life, and that in the midst of life there is death; and,

Whereas, the going of one so highly respected makes us keenly conscious of a distinct loss, realizing that we shall no more be greeted in our lodge by his smile, no more shall we receive his handclasp and hear his words of cheer and admonition; therefore, be it

Resolved, That as a fellow-worker and an esteemed member of our organization we shall ever hold in loving memory his untiring services and council; and be it further

Resolved, That with deep sympathy for the bereaved family and relatives of our brother we express the hope that this, our common loss, may be overruled for good by Him who doeth all things well; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of our lodge, a copy be sent to the family of the deceased, and that a copy be sent to The Labor World for publication and that our charter be draped for a period of thirty days.

Whereas, in our busy life we are called upon so often to record the passing of a fellow-workman and fraternal brother, on this occasion it saddens us to place the name of Brother W. J. Norton on the roll of those of our members who have answered the last summons; and,

Whereas, the going of one so highly regarded moves us to the conviction that death is no respecter of persons; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we take this occasion to express to the members of the bereaved family our profound sorrow and heartfelt sympathy in this their hour of bereavement. While we realize that mere forms of expression cannot alleviate the pain of the heart and can never take the place of, or restore to those left behind, one who has gone beyond, yet this resolution carries in it the sincere feelings of our hearts and the hope that the richest blessings of an all-wise Ruler may constantly guard the pathway of the loved ones of our departed friend and brother. And be it further

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the lodge, a copy furnished the bereaved family and a copy sent to The Labor World for publication and that our charter be draped for a period of thirty days.

Minister—Do you promise to love, honor and cherish this woman?

Politician—Yes. Whatever the platform says, I subscribe to it.

Shall We Organize the Unorganized?

By CHARLES P. HOWARD,
President, International Typographical Union.

The question which created the greatest interest in the recent convention of the American Federation of Labor at Atlantic City appeared to be how shall the mass production and corporation controlled industries be organized—upon a craft or industrial union basis? However, the real question in its most concrete form was and is: Shall we organize the unorganized in these industries?

Efforts to organize these workers into the craft unions have not met with success. The records are conclusive upon this point. Management in these industries is under centralized control. There has been the fullest degree of co-operation in opposing organization of the workers, and it is only logical to conclude that any form of organization which will result in division of the workers into classes and destroy their opportunity to act as a unit will meet the same degree of failure in the future that it has suffered in the past. To be successful, organization in these industries must recognize the principle that a grievance of one class becomes the grievance of all the workers in that industry.

Organization of the workers in such industries as steel, rubber, automobiles, utilities, and others, upon an industrial basis does not necessarily mean that all classes of workers in a plant, or community, must be grouped in a single local unit. Where conditions justify, different classes may group themselves into separate units, recognizing community of work, if that action is best to secure results, or all employes of a plant may be grouped into one unit. But to be successful, administration must be centralized. There must be no jurisdictional lines set up to interfere with continuity of employment or permit of disputes about jurisdiction over work and there must be the guarantee that at some future time unity of action will not be destroyed by dividing up the membership of these unions to satisfy the jurisdictional claims of craft organizations.

Among those who advocate a change in organization policies to meet new conditions in industry, there has been no suggestion of raiding the membership of existing craft unions. There is no intention to interfere with craft organization in those industries where that form of organization has been effective. The purpose and intent is to organize the unorganized and extend to them the benefits of collective bargaining and concerted action.

Each passing year makes the unorganized workers more and more of a menace to the organized minority of wage workers. It becomes increasingly difficult for existing unions to maintain established standards at a time when the national interest demands increased wage rates and reduced working hours. The three and a half million organized workers cannot continue to carry on their backs the millions of unorganized. The new industries that have been and are being developed do not require the same degree of skill or the term of apprenticeship that was necessary when craft unions attained their greatest measure of success. It is more important that these workers be effectively organized under proper leadership than it is to continue our efforts to force them to accept a form of organization which reason and logic indicate will not protect them.

The desire to retain what they term jurisdictional rights over a potential membership which the craft unions have been able to organize is not sufficient reason for compelling the workers in mass production industries to remain unorganized or force them to organize and accept a destructive philosophy under subversive leadership.

What organization collects the per capita tax and how these members vote upon questions of union policy is not the dominant factor. They must be organized, and the form of organization must be one they will accept.

Witnesses Say Shoe Firm Tried to Break Up Union

St. Louis.—Testimony tending to show unfair labor practices by the Brown Shoe company was given at a hearing before Dean Eberle, of St. Louis university, appointed examiner in the case by the national labor relations board.

Witnesses swore unions in the company's branch plants in southern Illinois were destroyed through the influence of company's officials.

Maurice C. Norris, organizer of the Shoe Workers union in Salem, Ill., testified that threats to tar and feather him had been made by a non-union mob which surrounded his home. He also said that the head of a detective agency here, employed by the shoe company, had told him "I was hired to break up your union in Salem, and I'm going to do it."

Jock MacTash while walking along the street met Sandy McToon carrying a new piano on his back.

FHA HEAD PREDICTS BIG BOOM IN HOUSE BUILDING NEXT YEAR

Washington.—America is going to have a big residential construction boom next year, FHA Administrator McDonald told President Roosevelt.

McDonald, who went to the White House to discuss the progress of his administration, predicted that "building will be doubled if not tripled next year."

He added that money was getting cheaper, rates and costs were coming down and that "the panic was over."

McDonald explained that his figures showed that residential building was 203 per cent higher the past October than for the same month a year ago.

He explained that 70 per cent of FHA mortgage money now was coming from banks and that they were competing for the business.

Youth—I'd like to kiss you until you hollered "stop!"

Girl Friend—Well, I guess you picked the wrong girl this time.

Youth—You mean you won't let me kiss you?

Girl—No. I mean I wouldn't holler "stop!"

Picketing Held Legal By Washington Judge

Washington.—Peaceful picketing of a business house by members of a labor union is not illegal.

This fundamental principle was again upheld when Chief Justice A. A. Wheat, of the District of Columbia supreme court, dismissed applications for temporary and permanent injunctions applied for by E. M. Kammerman, doing business as the Quaker City Linoleum company, against Upholsterers, Carpet and Linoleum Mechanics No. 85.

Charlton Ogburn, A. F. of L. attorney, represented the union. Pierce H. Deamer, vice-president of Upholsterers, Carpet and Linoleum Mechanics' International Union of North America, has given personal assistance to the local here for several weeks.

Three local linoleum firms have been placed on the "unfair list" of the Washington Central Labor union, including Quaker City Linoleum company, Keystone Linoleum company and Commercial Office Furniture company.

It is contended the "chiseling" tactics of these firms, who employ non-union workers at low wages, threatened for a time to undermine the wage standards established and affect future progress of the union in the several fair shops here.

However, a vigorous fight by the union, with full support of all labor, is apparently bringing results, for Kammerman, in his application for an injunction, alleged that the pickets were "ruining" his business.

At the last meeting of the union, it was determined to continue the fight to a successful conclusion.

4,000 PICKET MILWAUKEE ANTIUNION STOVE PLANT

Milwaukee, Wis.—A mass picketing demonstration in front of the strike-bound stove factory of the A. J. Lindemann and Hoverson company here mobilized over 4,000 union men and women. The strike was called on Aug. 30, 1935, when it was demonstrated that officials of the company were discriminating against workers who had started a movement to organize the company's employes. Over 600 workers left the factory, and since then the plant has had difficulty in operating, even on a reduced output basis, with the strikebreakers, who are escorted to and from the factory by motorcycle police.

The recent annual convention of the American Federation of Labor asked the officers and executive council of the federation to do all that it could to adjust the dispute "in such a manner that the right of the employes to organize is guaranteed and maintained." In case of failure to settle the dispute, the convention instructed the officers and council to take "such further action as may be necessary."

The company manufactures the Alcazar and other brands of gas, electric, kerosene and gasoline stoves.

The federal government advocated a boycott of business firms which did not display the NRA label and the Blue Eagle shop card.

Hubby—I'm glad you only want $5 to go shopping with today. What are you going to get with it?

Wife—Nothing but luncheon, dear. I'm going to have everything else charged.

Industry to Blame For Army of Idle, Wallace Declares

Cut in Production Plowed Millions Out of Jobs, Resulting in Today's Relief Burden, Secretary Says.

Washington.—Cuts in the industrial production which "plowed millions of workers out of their jobs" was denounced by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace in a radio address designed to correct "consumer misunderstanding" of the AAA program.

"The pig iron control of the big steel companies in 1933," the secretary declared, "was in principle 1,000 times as damnable as the pig reduction campaign of 1933."

Referring to the pig reduction program of the AAA, Wallace said that farmers in 1933 and 1934 reduced pig production by 3 per cent when steel companies cut pig iron production by 80 per cent.

Blames Industry for Idle.

To "that sort of industrial reduction program," he attributed millions of idle and the billions spent to keep the plowed-out workers from starvation.

"I hope industry in future reduction programs will not find it desirable to plow millions of workers out of their jobs," Wallace said. "People are more important than pigs.

"Great corporations should not finance people to attack agriculture adjustment. They are too vulnerable. Instead, they should co-operate with agriculture to bring about the increased balanced production of those things which the American people really want at a price which they can afford to pay, but at a price high enough to keep the production coming along without undue speculative gains.

Urges Greater Industrial Output.

"If industry were as productive as it knows how to be, the increased home market for fruit, vegetables, meat and dairy products would be truly surprising. But this market cannot come to pass until industry ceases its reduction control programs."

Secretary Wallace said the 6,000,000 pigs killed in 1933 and distributed to relief families had resulted in a larger pork supply than would have been produced otherwise last year. He contended that with present adjustment control there would never be another need to slaughter pigs.

"We have the machinery," he added, "to furnish consumers a normal balanced supply."

Refreshing Relief When You Need a Laxative

Because of the refreshing relief it has brought them, thousands of men and women, who could afford much more expensive laxatives, use Black-Draught when needed. It is very economical, purely vegetable, highly effective... Mr. J. Lester Roberson, well known hardware dealer at Martinsville, Va., writes: "I certainly can recommend Black-Draught as a splendid medicine. I have taken it for constipation and the dull feelings that follow, and have found it very satisfactory."

Central Body Loses Popular Teacher On Its Executive Board

Bad Health Forces Miss Lassie Munsey to Resign Post as Recording Secretary.

Is Serving Second Term in Efficient Style—Her Sister Appointed to Fill Out Unexpired Term.

Resigned

MISS LASSIE MUNSEY

Delegates to Central Body last Monday evening with extreme regret accepted the resignation of its recording secretary, Miss Lassie Munsey, because of poor health and pressure of duties as an active member of Chattanooga-Hamilton County Teachers association.

"Miss Lassie" was one of the pioneers in the organization of her local union when speaking of a teachers' union was extremely risky. She was named in the first group of delegates sent by her local to Central Body, and it was not long until members of Central Body recognized her value to the labor movement and named her as recording secretary and a member of the executive board of that body.

Last April Miss Munsey was returned to her post, and it appeared that the position was hers as long as she would consent to serve. Although she was generally known for the past few months that she had been devoting all her spare moments from the schoolroom to the labor movement, her resignation was not expected as it was hoped that she would be able to continue on.

In accepting the request of this loyal trades unionist, Central Body gave recognition to Miss Lassie's sister, Miss Virginia Munsey, by appointing her to fill out the unexpired term.

Miss Munsey's resignation was addressed to A. C. Kamin, president of Central Body, and is set forth as follows:

Mr. A. C. Kamin, President of the Central Body of Chattanooga.

My dear Mr. Kamin:

It is with deep regret that I herewith offer my resignation as recording secretary of the Chattanooga Trades and Labor council. My associations with that body have been most pleasant. I feel that I owe to the labor movement of Chattanooga every possible co-operation because of the splendid attitude and loyal support of that group in our fight for improved school conditions in this community. It was because I wanted so much to do my bit that I did not resign earlier in the fall. Now, however, I realize that I have probably worked a little too strenuously in the past few years, and must give up outside activities until I am permanently physically strong again.

With best wishes for the continued success of the body, I am

Very truly yours,
LASSIE MUNSEY.

Bakery Salesmen Called Together Next Tuesday Eve

Salesmen in Every Bakeshop Asked to Attend for Reorganization of Stronger Local.

Officials of Central Body have set Tuesday evening, Dec. 3, 7:30 o'clock at the labor hall, as the time and place for the assembling of every salesman in the Chattanooga bakery industry to make plans for reorganization of the local union. With the advent of a union-labeled bread and cake on the local market it is likely that the sales forces of all bakeries will be able to secure for themselves signed closed shop agreements similar to the one already secured at the Union Baking company with the Bakery and Confectionery Workers' union.

Due to circumstances arising from the bitter and prolonged strikes and lockouts with the American Baking company, now deceased, it is planned at this time to clear up the wreckage incident to the strife and warfare, and from the experience gained therefrom to weld the sales departments of all bakeries into a compact and strong unit for mutual benefit.

Request is made that every one be prompt so that necessary business may be conducted with dispatch.

Hosiery White List Ready

Philadelphia.—The American Federation of Hosiery Workers this week released its "White List" itemizing the brands of hosiery manufactured in union shops, and containing a plea to consumers to purchase the products of such shops.

This year's list, although white in name is pink in color, with an attractive design on the cover.

All persons or organizations interested in securing the list are requested to contact the federation offices at 2319 North Broad street.

Purchasers of the hosiery named contained in the "White List" are assured that the products they wear have been manufactured under decent working conditions, proper sanitation and that a living wage is paid the employes of the said company.

They may further be assured that the workers are not subjugated to conditions of uncertainty and anti-unionism such as exist today in Nazi Germany and Fascist Italy.

The list of union made hosiery and brand marks follows:

Children's Hose

Rambo-Regar — Phoenix

Men's Half Hose

La-Bel — Weston's
Best Maid — Phoenix
Klingtop

Union Label Hosiery

The Best Maid Silk Hosiery company, of Quakerstown, Pa., sells full-fashioned hosiery bearing the union label. The Best Maid also sells men's full-fashioned half-hose with the union label.

The Phoenix Hosiery company, of Milwaukee, Wis., manufactures hosiery for the entire family and will stamp the union label on any style or kind of Phoenix hosiery made either for men, women or children.

The Rambo-Regar company, at Norristown, Pa., manufactures Weston's Seamless half-hose and also a varied line of children's seamless hose, all bearing the union label.

The La-Bel company of Chattanooga, Tenn., manufactures men's seamless half hose.

MACHINISTS GET PACT.

Sacramento, Cal.—An agreement just negotiated with the Buffalo Brewing company by Grand Lodge Representative Walter Nash, of the Machinists, provides for a 44-hour week with minimum wages of $45 for Mechanics and $38.28 for helpers.

Notice to Grocery Merchants and Public at Large

By this time most grocery stores have had opportunity to be supplied with "Mother's Bread, Rolls and Cakes," manufactured by the Union Baking company. These products will all bear the union label of the Bakers' and Confectionery Workers' union. The labor movement is glad to recommend these products as being union-made, the company having signed a closed shop agreement with the bakery union.

Mother's bread, rolls and cakes at the present time is the only bakery product in Chattanooga bearing the union label, and the labor movement hopes that the public will patronize this union-made product abundantly. The labor movement also hopes that in the near future the other bakery concerns in Chattanooga will avail themselves of the opprctunity to use the bakers' union label and thereby deserve the patronage of organized labor and its friends.

On Your Magazine the Non-Union Girl Is the Answer to Everything, But in Winston-Salem Workers Live in 2-Room Shacks.

A steel mill worker, writing in the Amalgamated Journal, paints a pen picture of the ballyhoo of Big Four non-union cigarettes, good for all union men and women to read. Back of the flashing color displays, the cost of which rides high in big money figures, are the underpaid workers in their unpainted shacks, working and wondering, never sure, never far from the bread line. The best way to strike a blow at the ballyhoo and the union-hating combination is to buy union-made cigarettes—CIGARETTES WITH THE LABEL ON THE PACKAGE. Here is what the steel mill worker says in the Amalgamated Journal:

Big ads are daily seen in our press picturing a colorfully dressed, smiling, corn-fed, Turkish gal with even white teeth, crimson lips, rosy cheeks, flashing eyes, with hair as black as anthracite combed back from a brow of alabaster, seated in the sunlight beneath a sky as blue as that of Italy's, sorting leaves of fragrant Turkish tobacco, which leaves, we are told, are what make cigarettes so good, so satisfying, so stimulating, and so productive of new ideas.

Apparently everything connected with the cigarettes from the time the tobacco plant is planted in pleasant Turkish fields until a good looking gal wraps her crimson lips around it, is a thing of beauty.

Then, again, it seems that the silk-stockinged, orchidaceous, cultured, nose tilting dames who broaden their a's, flatten their r's; who never gargle their soup or give a ham or chicken bone a workout, who no matter how sharp the knives, always emerge from a joust with a steak and the trimmings with uncut lips; and who always hold the little finger out at the correct forty-five degree angle when lifting a scuttle of suds or a breaker of wine to their patrician beezers, have little else to tell the public other than the goodness of cigarettes, how they soothe, satisfy, give new thought, etc.

Further, the gents with cauliflower ears, flat beaks, strong arms and big hands join the Janes of the purple, fine linen and brick rocks and add, that zebras never give them a pain above the ears, old tin never give them the heaves, nor wheat fields cause them to become dissatisfied.

It would seem from the picture painted by the fag manufacturer that the cigarette is the answer to everything. If things are breaking tough, light up and puff away, and things will soon soften up. Or if you are in a jam, put a match to an Old Lead, take a few drags and bingo, you have the answer.

Unfortunately, there's another side to the cigarette picture that's not so hot.

In Winston-Salem, N. C., cigarette workers live in two-room unpainted board shacks; shacks in which no good farmer would house his cattle. And some of them receive the magnificent wage of four bucks a week. Instead of sitting out in the sunlight colorfully dressed and smiling overalls and dowdy dresses and are propped against the side of their shacks with a wad of tobacco in their jaws trying to win or woo from Lady Nicotine forgetfulness from their poverty and misery.

That side of the cigarette picture is not painted by the cigaretter manufacturer. No; but this was shown and commended upon by our journal recently.

If you smoke, that's your affair; but be sure you smoke union-made cigarettes, the makers of which get a fair wage and who are fighting to maintain a decent standard of living.

Machinists Win in Dispute With Printing Press Firm

Washington.—The regional office of the national labor relations board has reported the satisfactory settlement of all points at issue between the Duplex Printing Press company and Lodge No. 46, International Association of Machinists, with victory for the union.

The union had filed a petition asking that the board certify it as representing the majority of the employes. Also the regional board had issued a formal complaint against the company charging interference with the employes' rights to organize and discrimination against union employes.

The company agreed in the settlement to accept a certification of the union as the representative of the majority of its employes in the unit involved, and agreed to reinstate all employes alleged to be discriminated against and to pay back for the period of time that they lost as a result of such discharge.

Union label advocates are not going to give the chiselers a "breathing spell."

Tailoring Cos. Listed Unfair

Cincinnati Firms Resist Organization; Amalgamated Opens Big Campaign.

Conducting a vigorous campaign to organize the Cincinnati Clothing Workers on a 36-hour basis and likewise raise wage levels, the joint board of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, of the Ohio city, has addressed communications to all national, state and city central labor bodies concerning their program.

Chattanooga Central Body was advised that five of the important clothing manufacturers of Cincinnati have already settled with the Amalgamated while others located there are bitterly resisting the movement.

The following tailoring firms of the Ohio river city are listed as thoroughly unionized and entitled to the support of organized labor:

Cincinnati Tailoring company, Globe Tailoring company, Leonard Custom Tailors company, The A. Nash company, the Schaeffer Tailoring company, the Seibler Tailoring company, and the W. A. Nash company, of Covington, Ky.

Tailoring firms listed "on strike" against unionization:

Ohio Custom Garment company, Brighton Tailoring company, Robert Tailoring company and Hamilton Tailoring company, while the following are regarded as strictly unfair to labor and on the "we do not patronize" roster:

Storrs-Schaeffer Tailoring company, and P. H. Davis Tailoring company.

The Amalgamated union at Cincinnati, with respect to the strike in the plants above named, says: "Regardless of the tyrannical order of the court, the strikers and the union are vigorously conducting the strike. Over 100 citations for contempt have already been issued by the court as a result of the injunction, and more citations are likely to follow. * * *

"Patronize union-made merchandise. Denounce and expose, by giving the necessary publicity, the unfair tailoring firms who are strike-bound and those firms who are supporting them," the communication reads.

MACHINIST'S HELPER ORDERED REINSTATED

Chicago.—The national railroad adjustment board, second division, has ordered the Texas & Pacific railway to reinstate Machinist Helper C. C. Mays without loss of seniority rights.

Mays was suspended from service at Fort Worth, Tex., May A, 1934, allegedly for insubordination. The employe contended that he was dismissed from service because of his organizing efforts on behalf of the standard railroad labor organizations.

What a powerful weapon it would be if the American Federation of Labor could declare to the industrial world: "Every union member buys only union articles."

Teachers' Union Wins Okeh From City Dads To Cash Protest Check

4-to-1 Vote at Friday's Adjourned Session Overrides Mayor's Rubber Stamp by Instructing Banks to Cash Pay Vouchers.

Mayor Issues Formal Statement That Very Small Group of Teachers Wished to Protest His Stamped Check and Intimates That McMillan Should Reduce School Services Further.

Culminating a fight for two months, led by the Chattanooga-Hamilton County Teachers' association and Chattanooga Trades and Labor council, city school teachers last Friday were successful in enlisting the sympathy of the city board of commissioners, who passed a resolution which will instruct the banks to cash their pay checks under protest. Although the teachers' union succeeded in the last session of the legislature in having enacted a minimum pay scale, the increases were not included in the budget, and the first two pay checks were given out with a rubber stamp "Paid in Full" on the backs thereof. Mayor E. D. Bass announced that he personally caused this to be done, and the banks were instructed not to cash these checks when teachers added thereon, "Accepted Under Protest."

By this rubber stamp trick, the mayor stated that he intended to frustrate the teachers' action of an effort to sue for their rightful pay was instituted. Appeals to the mayor to allow teachers to cash their checks under protest met with stony resistance and refusal.

As a last resort, the board of commissioners were appealed to as a body to override the mayor, and as a result every commissioner voted "aye" to Commissioner R. M. Cooke's motion to grant the teachers' request. The mayor voted "no," and the motion was passed.

After the motion was passed the mayor produced a prepared statement which he read, which was to the effect that the city was broke and that he was only protecting the city's interests against a threatened suit. In this statement he said that only 84 teachers had made a protest to him concerning his action, and when later it was brought out that nearly 700 teachers had actually signed their protest through their union he said he "did not know about that." Representatives of Central Body pointed out to the mayor that the teachers had an organization through which to protest, and the fact that only 84 had personally contacted him did not mean that only 84 were dissatisfied with the rubber stamp.

On the following Tuesday, at the regular commission meeting the mayor presented another resolution instructing the Commissioner of Education to look into the possibility of "revising the curricula" of the schools in order to come within the budget. Commissioner McMillan expressed his willingness to vote for this resolution if the city commission would attempt to bring the school appropriations up to a favorable comparison with other cities of like size, or even up to the county per pupil appropriation.

Many citizens interpret the mayor's latest resolution as an attempt to force the Commissioner of Education to discharge some two hundred teachers, and in this manner create such a furor that the teachers' union's effort to secure their pay increase would be scuttled.

Officials of the teachers' union have repeated time and again that it is not their intention to create an unbearable hardship on the city, but that they did intend to stop being discriminated against.

Clinton Cotton Mills Locked Out 165 Union Members, Is Charge

Witnesses at Greenville, S. C., Tell National Labor Board That Membership in Firm's Company Union Is Compulsory for Employes.

Greenville, S. C.—The scope of operations of the national labor relations board was broadened when it began here and in Spartanburg the consideration of the first cases charging violation of the Wagner-Connery labor disputes act by two cotton mills. The hearings were opened simultaneously in both cities.

In Spartanburg the case consisted of a petition for an election of a representative for collective bargaining by the employes of the Sacon mills, who walked out on July 30. The petition was presented by the local union of the United Textile Workers of America. The attorney for the mill asked for the dismissal of the case on the ground that the Wagner-Connery act is unconstitutional. The request was denied.

The case in Greenville involved the organization of a company union by the management of the Clinton Cotton mills of Clinton, and wholesale discrimination against union members. The hearing was presided over by John M. Carmody, a member of the national labor relations board.

Members of the United Textile Workers declared the organization of the Clinton Friendship association was stimulated by foremen and overseers of the Clinton concern to kill the local textile union, and that employes' powers of attorney had been sought by the foremen.

Union Men Barred.

Later, witnesses asserted, the Clinton Friendship association, under which title the company union was camouflaged, signed a closed shop agreement with the mill management. Acting under this agreement 165 union workers who refused to join the friendship outfit were refused employment.

Paul E. Dean, president of the local textile union in the Clinton mills, presented damaging testimony regarding the anti-union and espionage activities of mill representatives and the company union. He said the Friendship association made an arrangement with the employer for taking 40 cents a month from the pay envelopes of the members of the association to carry on its work.

Spies at Union Meetings

Last July, according to Mr. Dean, overseers and second hands watched union meetings. Later thirty or forty union members were discharged. He testified that on Aug. 15 members of the union asked for a collective bargaining conference under the terms of the Wagner-Connery act, but the company ignored their requests.

The day after the second request, he said, officials of the company announced it had made a closed shop agreement with the Clinton Friendship association. When members of the union not belonging to the association tried to enter the mills, he added, they were barred at the gates.

It's easy enough to eat corn off the cob,
When you've nice teeth to be proud about,
But the guy worth while
Is the one who can smile
When all his front teeth are out.

Labor's Political Victory in Knoxville

Trades unionists in Chattanooga for the last month have been showing a great interest in the city elections in Knoxville, due to the fact that C. C. Arthur, president of the Knoxville Central Labor union, and also secretary of the Tennessee Federation of Labor, was a candidate put forward by labor on one of the city tickets for councilman.

Reports on the run-off election last Saturday indicated that Arthur was elected after a hot campaign. Although he was not definitely known as a labor man on a labor ticket, he was indorsed by the Central Labor union as one of their own, and the entire movement lent its efforts to secure his election from his ward.

This victory in Knoxville by an out-and-out labor individual will no doubt add encouragement in Chattanooga trades union ranks to go and do likewise in forthcoming elections.

Press reports this week say that R. S. McCann was charged by a certain lady in Memphis with driving his car while drunk and with running his car into hers. She is suing for $150 damages. Mrs. McCann was with President McCann at the time.

Just as we predicted, the Crump machine is clicking in Memphis. Just as we predicted, McCann is in for a tough time in Shelby county because he refused to obey Crump's orders.

The first week after his refusal to toe the line he was beaten up. The following week he was arrested for "speeding" at 39 miles per hour. This week it is "driving while drunk." We are interested in what it will be next week—and the weeks following.

Verily, the way of a true trades unionist in Memphis is hard if his way does not conform to Boss Crump's orders.

MUNICIPAL EMPLOYES IN SEATTLE ORGANIZE

Washington.—The first charter to a local union composed of municipal employes to be granted by the American Federation of Government Employes, since that national union was given jurisdiction over municipal, county and state employes, has just been issued to municipal employes of Seattle, Wash.

The charter request was sent in by National Vice-President Perry S. Myers of the Seattle district. The new organization will be known as A. F. G. E. Lodge No. 1001. It is explained that in order to distinguish between federal, county, state and others, all municipal, county and state employes' lodges will be numbered consecutively, beginning with 1001. The federal employes' lodges begin with No. 1.

Temporary officers of the Seattle Municipal Employes' Lodge No. 1001 are announced as follows: Edwin M. Hill, president; George W. Lewis, secretary, and Charles H. Bates, treasurer.

Pat—When are you going to pay me that $10 for pasturing your cow? I've been keeping her now for ten weeks.

Mike—Why, Pat, she ain't worth ten dollars.

Pat—Well, suppose I keep her for what you owe me, then?

Mike—No, indeed, Pat, but I'll tell you what I'll do. You just keep her two more weeks and then you can have her.

Nervous, Weak Woman Soon All Right

"I had regular shaking spells from nervousness," writes Mrs. Cora Sanders, of Paragould, Ark. "I was all run-down and cramped at my time until I would have to go to bed. After my first bottle of Cardui, I was better. I kept taking Cardui and soon I was all right. The shaking quit and I did not cramp. I felt worlds better. I gave Cardui to my daughter who was in about the same condition and she was soon all right."

CARDUI

Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

Prison Goods Law Must Be Enforced

Industry and labor groups which have been fighting unfair competition of prison-made goods have protested the propriety of the attorney-general's instructions to U. S. district attorneys that no further investigations of violations of the Sumner-Ashurst prison industries act be made until the constitutionality of the federal act is definitely determined. While it is since reported that the instructions have been withdrawn, the principle needs stressing that is the business of the executive departments to enforce the laws made by congress until they are held invalid. A sharp reprimand from congress is entirely in order if the department of justice lies down on its job at the first signs of objection to a law, especially from prison contractors.

To balance the account it should be entered on the record that considerable credit for the success of U. S. Attorney Donnelly in obtaining an indictment against the Minerva Manufacturing Company of New York is due to the G-men of the department of justice. State prosecutions of prison industry law violation have produced indifferent results. Donnelly adopted a new procedure. Although operating from Grand Rapids, Mich., he called in the G-men to get facts; through them he got at the books of the concern in New York; state lines were eliminated; evasions, legal and otherwise, were stopped. But one such victory is not enough. After having once slowed down enforcement of the act, Atty.-Gen. Cummings needs to do more than adopt a do-nothing policy in order to show his good faith. Unless he does take a more aggressive position towards these lawbreakers, somebody may charge that his heart is not in the job of enforcing the act and that he may be sympathetic toward the system operating in his own state of Connecticut, which ships large quantities of prison-made goods into other states in ruinous competition with free industry and with disastrous effect upon labor standards.

State enforcement is not easy. Contracts for 25,000 wood tables from the Iowa and 10,000 metal bridge tables and 40,000 metal chairs from Jackson (Mich.) prisons were allegedly made after passage of the Michigan act prohibiting sale of prison-made goods in Michigan in competition with those manufactured by private enterprise.

Labor wants federal prosecution and G-men co-operation continued as already stated. Labor is anxious to obtain enforcement of the Sumner-Ashurst and Hawes-Cooper acts and does not want to have progress delayed by either new deal or regular government agencies, some of which seem to be working at cross purposes and playing into the hands of prison contractors. Industry, too, is watching closely the moves of the prison industries reorganization administration, which has funds for surveying the field. Is that to be just another boondoggle? Or is it to be suspected as another deal to delay enforcement of the laws for which labor, industry and the public fought for so many years?

Home Work Menace

The U. S. woman's bureau finds that women and children are working in poverty-stricken homes at rates which net as low as 3 cents an hour. This is in making parts for artificial flowers.

Chiselers who pay starvation rates for industrial home work are reported by the woman's bureau to be found in every part of the country, though most commonly in the industrial cities. Every center of such "home industry" is a deadly menace to decent wages.

CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

The word Mussolini is an apt word: Nov. 18, 1935, when League of Nations' sanctions went into effect, was a "Day of Shame!"

Shame, unacknowledged, for a hypocrite and turncoat, who repudiated and attempted to destroy the principles of democratic action.

Shame, for a son of a workingman, who has wiped out the free labor unions of his own land.

Shame for a nation, which shows that it has never risen, as a nation, to the levels where it could live in the light of democracy.

Shame for a people, who found, in the twentieth century, no way to escape the domination of an autocratic brigand.

Shame for a government, which having joined the international league formed in the name of peace, in cold blood formulated a policy of war.

Shame for a modern nation, possessed of the advantages of modern mechanical equipment, and turning that advantage into military weapons against a primitive and peaceful land.

Shame for a greedy and exploiting national organized appetite, demanding of the rest of a peaceful world that it be supplied with the military means of destroying the mercantile decency and good order of the high seas and the continents.

Shame, unashamed, for the high-handed hardihood that risks the peace of the neighborhood nations for the sake of a dictator's prestige.

And—should it prove that the rest of the community of nations has been too tardy in facing the emergency presented by this shameless buccaneer, it will be a shame to a civilization which has been furnished with the means of preventing such an issue from culminating.

The Italian nation has permitted itself to become a nest and focus of pestilence for the rest of the world. Quarantine against such a plague is justified by all the laws of self-preservation. Unless the infection ceases, its germinating medium should be sealed in wax against all outer contacts—and buried under its own Vesuvius!

At a recent important meeting, the general council of the joint National Trade Union Centre of Czechoslovakia dealt with a report on the action taken by the International Federation of Trade Unions in the Italo-Abyssinnian conflict. The general council expressed the hope that the Czechoslovakian government would resolutely support the efforts made by the league to maintain peace, and emphasized that it is the "duty of all trade unions to support to the utmost the application of sanctions, to prevent the transport of material of war, and to refuse to buy goods from those countries which grossly infringe all the canons of civilization, violate the right of self-determination of the peoples and thus menace the peace of Europe."

LABOR QUERIES

Q.—Is the Boilermakers' union an old organization?

A.—Yes. A conference of nine independent unions formed a national organization at Chicago in 1880. A few years later another national organization was formed at Atlanta, Ga. In 1893 the two national organizations consolidated under the present name of International Brotherhood of Boilermakers, Iron Ship Builders and Helpers of America.

Why Drink Canned Beer—When You Can Buy Fresh Beer in Glass Bottles?

The campaign of the Glass Bottle Blowers' association to have all union workers refuse to purchase the non-union tin can as a container for beer apparently is having telling effect, according to reports received at union headquarters today.

Many trade unions throughout the country have passed resolutions condemning the can and their members have promised to refrain from purchasing beer in this container and to urge their friends to do likewise. Union leaders report that the campaign thus far has been very effective.

The Glass Bottle Blowers' association opened their campaign soon after the can was introduced on the market and say that the purpose of the campaign is to arouse strong union sentiment against use of the can, which is manufactured by the non-organized steel industry. Popular use of the can would eventually cause hundreds of union members of many international unions to be thrown out of work.

Immediately the Union Label Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor took up the cudgel in behalf of the union container and adopted resolutions strongly condemning use of the non-union can. It read in part:

"That the Union Label Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor express its disapproval and opposition of the use of non-union tin cans for bottling beer by the breweries and bottlers throughout the country and call upon all affiliated unions and friends to support the continued use of sanitary containers, such as the glass bottle, for bottling beer, ale and porter, and which are made under union conditions and entitled to the use of the union label."

William Laffey, secretary-treasurer of the Pittsburgh Brewery Workers' Local union, following this resolution, declared that hundreds of men in the bottling departments of breweries in western Pennsylvania would be thrown out of employment if the tin can was adopted to replace the glass bottle.

Adoption of this resolution was followed by a concerted drive throughout the country to eliminate the can as a beer container with surprising results, according to union heads. Several instances were cited where the can had been thrown out by retailers when their union customers refused to deal at the stores because this non-union product was being handled. Tavernkeepers, too, were discarding the can as a means of retailing beer because of the complaints.

Several brewers also have refused to adopt the tin can. But, union officials admit this is not alone because of their strong union sentiment, but also because they feel it would be doing an injustice to their brew to place it in cans instead of the conventional sanitary bottle.

A prominent Michigan brewer, after a visit to various brewing friends who had tried the can in Milwaukee and Chicago, returned to his brewery to declare that he would never install the can "because it is only a fad, and that the discriminating public will still continue to prefer bottles."

Asked pointedly whether he would ever install equipment for canning beer, he replied emphatically:

"No, I am 'putting up beer—not sauer kraut or tomatoes."

He refused to say whether the union campaign had anything to do with his decision.

Another instance of the effectiveness of the union campaign was cited by a union leader who produced a clipping from a Los Angeles paper urging its readers not to purchase canned beer because "these cans are manufactured by firms not employing organized labor, while all of the bottles which beer come in are union-made."

This was followed by a resolution adopted by the Central Labor council in Los Angeles condemning the use of cans for beer and urging its members and affiliations to desist from their use.

"There is little doubt," one union official said, "that the campaign is having the desired effect. It is my personal opinion that the can cannot possibly exist without the support of organized labor, especially when it is remembered that beer is the working man's drink. Some of the field workers report that the sales of cans are dropping off enormously in territories where they were introduced with widespread ballyhoo and that many retailers are throwing them out because of the decreases they have suffered in business by handling them. It is predicted that they won't last a year."

The Passing Show

Note and Comment on Things Doing in the March of Events

So many things go to the making up of this sad and merry world that a chronicle of a week's doings sounds like nothing so much as an exhibit of the contrariness of all things, including mankind. There are contradictions in nature and in most of the things we humans do. Thus, there are several things to discuss this week—things that bear no relation to each other whatever.

League of nations members start their boycott of Italy. One press association says there are fifty-two nations in the boycott. Another says there are fifty-one. This column hasn't counted them. Mr. Mussolini is being punished—plenty rightly—for defying all decency.

But meanwhile Japan walks over into China and coolly detaches five provinces with a population of some fifty-five million people and there has been thus far no talk of a boycott for that gorgeous piece of downright aggression.

Sir Samuel Hoare, speaking for Britain, has said that those who suggest his country acted in the Italian case out of self-interest were all wet. He hasn't said much yet about Japan which, having taken Manchuria to make a Japanese Manchukuo, takes another territorial gobble to serve the same purpose for which Mussolini says he must have Ethiopia. Anyone can take a look at that set of circumstances and see what it resembles.

Incidentally, the device called sanctions is the newest and probably the most potent thing in the world today—Unless some nation takes a run out. It's a trick learned from labor—strike and boycott.

LOCAL 246, A. F. of T.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS' MEETING

The regular monthly meeting of the board of directors will be held next Tuesday evening, Dec. 2, at 7 o'clock. This meeting will be held at the Central Y. M. C. A. unless otherwise announced.

MEMBER GENERAL MEETING

There will be a general meeting of the federation at the university on Monday, Dec. 7, at 10 o'clock.

SALARY SUIT CAUCUS

A special subcommittee of the executive committee composed of Stanley R. Smith, J. D. Hales and C. C. Burgner met in a one and a half-hour conference with Attorney Fred Ballard and Judge W. B. Swaney, federation counsel, early this week. The details and progress of proceedings in the salary suits were thoroughly discussed.

The committee reports encouraging prospects from both city and county suits. The counsel appears to have the situation well in hand, and there is ample ground to look forward to a successful conclusion of both cases.

The city suit is practically ready and will be filed within the next few days.

BUY MOTHER'S BREAD.

Federation teachers are urged to support the new Union Baking company, bakers of Mother's bread. The personnel of its management and operating staff is representative of the best types in the labor movement. It is sure to set an example to other baking establishments by its practice of trade union principles. Demand Mother's bread and ask your grocer to have it on hand.

A UNION LABEL TEACHER

Mr. C. C. Burgner, of Tyner High school, prominent federation official and delegate to the Central Trades and Labor council, is one of the most ardent supporters of the union label. He believes that becoming union label conscious is the most important step toward solidarity of all labor. He looks for the union label in the barber shop, the clothing store and the grocery. If the merchant he patronizes does not have a union-made item, Mr. Burgner asks that he put it in stock.

Recently Mr. Burgner bought a hat that was a second choice because the first choice failed to carry the union label. If every trade unionist were as zealous, sweat-shop labor conditions would soon be eliminated.

DISTRICT SECRETARY IMPORTANT POST

Since the division of the federation into geographical districts the office of district secretary has assumed a distinct importance. The district secretary is one of the two members from a district to the board of directors. In that capacity she may serve as the best intermediary between the executive bodies and the rank and file membership. She may help the general office in distributing notices, the financial secretary in the collection of dues and the chairman of the membership committee in making a closer local contact with prospective members.

The Tyner district is fortunate in having for secretary Mrs. J. D. Cliett, a member who realizes and shoulders fully the responsibility of her office. Tyner district members know that any work may be entrusted to Mrs. Cliett with the assurance that it will be conscientiously and efficiently attended to. Whether it is collecting dues, soliciting new members or getting out quick notices that she may be called upon to do, she does it with a promptness and thoroughness worthy of emulation by all district secretaries.

COLUMBIA PROFESSORS FOR LABOR AFFILIATION

Mrs. Ethel Stroud, principal of Anna B. Lacey school, and Miss Anne Carpenter, county supervisor, both of whom attended Columbia University Teachers' college last summer, report a very outspoken belief in unionism for teachers on the part of their instructors. Professors Counts, Rugg and Kilpatrick advised all in their classes to join unions at once. They thought this the best move not only in order to protect the economic status of teachers and to insure academic freedom, but also in order to help fight fascist attacks on democratic institutions and civil rights in all phases of American life.

William Randolph Hearst, whom Charles Beard said "no decent man would touch with a 10-foot pole," was characterized by the professors as the greatest single enemy of civil liberties and the foremost prophet of American fascism.

The professor advocated the presentation of all the different social and economic theories in the schools.

NEW MEMBER OF PUBLICITY COMMITTEE

Miss Mildred MacKenzie, of Anna B. Lacey school, has been appointed a member of the publicity committee. Miss MacKenzie is eminently suited for her work by training and temperament. She comes of a family of militant trade unionists, her father being secretary of a bricklayers' local. Hence, she brings a solid background coupled with a fine, intelligent enthusiasm to her work. The publicity committee is fortunate in having her.

HEARD ON ELEVATOR AT LOVEMAN'S

A lady whose veracity is unimpeachable relates the following story:

"I was going down on the elevator at Loveman's when a young lady teacher I knew quite well got on at the second floor.

"'Hello,' I greeted. 'How are you?'

"'I'm cold,' she replied with a slight shiver that didn't seem to be simulated.

"I looked at her thin coat suit and her thin dress underneath and decided that her reply was no cute witticism. As if in answer to my question she went on:

"'I started to look at the coats, but I decided not to. I knew the temptation would be too great. I would want to buy one. But I just can't do that. I couldn't possibly pay for one this year.'

"She left me thinking. Here was an intelligent, alert young lady with a college education receiving a salary, as she had previously told me, of $90 per month. Out of this she must save for four payless summer months. She must supply herself with professional helps for her work. She must join her various professional organizations. She must give to community enterprises, to charities, to special funds. With all this she is expected to live at such a standard of decency as will set an example for her pupils. All this at a time when commodity prices are soaring. What is the answer?"

BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS SEEK COMPROMISE

The city board of commissioners Wednesday afternoon unanimously passed a resolution calling on Commissioner McMillan to readjust his budget and seek a compromise on the salary schedule suit.

Get rid of constipation by taking Black-Draught as soon as you notice that bowel activity has slowed up or you begin to feel sluggish. Thousands prefer Black-Draught for the refreshing relief it has brought them. Mrs. Ray Mullins, of Lafe, Ark., writes: "My husband and I both take Thedford's Black-Draught and find it splendid for constipation, biliousness, and the disagreeable, aching, tired feeling that comes from this condition." With reference to Syrup of Black-Draught, which this mother gives her children, she says: "They like the taste and it gave such good results."

Each bid must be accompanied by a bid bond executed by the bidder and a Surety Company licensed to operate in Tennessee, and satisfactory to the Public Works Administration in the sum of 5% of the amount of the bid. The bond is required as a guarantee that if the bid is accepted the contract will be entered into and the performance of it properly secured. Proposal Forms must be properly filled out and must not be detached from specifications. No changes shall be made in or riders attached to the proposal.

Johnson City Notes

At the regular meeting of Johnson City Central Labor union last week, a resolution was passed requesting Major George L. Berry, president of the Pressmen's International union, to announce his candidacy for governor of Tennessee.

The resolution terms Major Berry "one of the most prominent and influential men of the labor movement" and referred to him as being of "unquestioned integrity and ability." The resolution was submitted by the resolution committee of the Central Labor union, which is composed of W. G. Hart, chairman, of Typographical Union No. 763; W. H. Lacey, of the Plasterers' organization No. 756, and Joe Robinson, of National Operative Potteries of Erwin, Tenn., No. 103.

The resolution is as follows:

"Whereas, Major George L. Berry, president of the Pressman's International union, has been prominently mentioned for the governorship of Tennessee; and,

"Whereas, Major Berry has indicated that he would be willing to make the race if the people wish him to do so; and,

"Whereas, Major Berry has been for years one of the most prominent and influential men of the labor movement and he is of unquestioned integrity and ability; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That the Johnson City Central Labor union in regular session on Friday, Nov. 22, 1935, hereby goes on record as requesting that Major Berry announce his candidacy for the office of governor of the state of Tennessee."

The meeting of the Johnson City Central Labor union last Friday night was attended by one of the largest groups of delegates in many months and the organization had as its guest for the evening over 100 WPA workers on all projects in and around Johnson City.

The organization went on record as concurring in the action of President R. S. McCann, of the Tennessee Federation of Labor, in demanding that the prevailing wage scales be paid to all WPA workers in Tennessee, and a telegram was dispatched to Harry Hopkins, WPA administrator at Washington, stating the action of the organization.

President D. C. Long, of the Central Labor union, said following the meeting that there was much "unrest among the WPA workers because of the low wages paid on all projects in East Tennessee." The scale being paid in this territory does not compare in any respects to that being paid in many other adjoining states.

The Central Labor union is endeavoring in every way to be of assistance to the workers and there is a strong possibility of the forming of a federal labor union at an early date. The organizing committee of the Central Labor union will meet with a delegation of the workers this week.

Reports were made at the meeting Friday night of the activities of the organizing committee and we are hopeful that several new delegations will be added to the Central Labor union roster at an early date.

An election is expected to be conducted soon under auspices of the national labor relations board to select representatives for collective bargaining, whom the company will be obliged to recognize.

Charter Member Of Typo. Union Dies Suddenly

J. J. Hennessey, Well-Known in Local Labor Ranks Years Ago, Leaves Many Friends.

J. J. Hennessey was called by death last Saturday at his home in St. Petersburg, Fla., where he had been residing for several years. He was one of the charter members of Typographical union No. 89 of Chattanooga, and in his younger days was one of the "war-horses" in the labor movement.

Mr. Hennessey retired from the printing trade and became eligible to receive the pension provided by the Typographical union. He moved to St. Petersburg, Fla., to receive the benefits of the milder climate, but frequently returned to Chattanooga on short visits with his son, John Hennessey, who is a mailer at the Labor World.

News of Brother Hennessey's death was received Sunday by members of Typographical union while in session, and a committee was immediately named to draw up resolutions and to send floral expressions of sorrow to the home. The resolution adopted at the meeting is signed by the committee, who were T. J. Davie, W. L. Gardner and T. R. Cuthbert. The resolution says:

Whereas, at the last meeting of Typographical union, No. 89, Sunday, Nov. 24, news was received that James J. Hennessey died Saturday night, Nov. 23, at 6:40, in St. Petersburg, Fla.; and

Whereas, He was a charter member of Chattanooga Typographical union No. 89, and a good and ardent worker in the interests of the printing industry during the many years he resided in this city, we believe that in his death unionism has lost a good and useful member; and

Whereas, by his demise his family has lost a good husband and a loving father;

Therefore, Be it Resolved, that the members of Chattanooga Typographical union, No. 89, hereby extend to the bereaved wife and family their sympathy and compassion, with the hope that the God whom he worshiped will assuage their grief, dry their tears and bring them His great peace.

Be It Further Resolved, That a copy of these Resolutions be sent to the family, a copy to the Labor press for publication, that our charter be draped for thirty days and that a page be set apart in the minutes for these resolutions.

T. J. Davie,
W. L. Gardner,
T. R. Cuthbert,
Committee.

Organization of County, City and State Employes Is Planned by Babcock

Washington.—E. Claude Babcock, president of the American Federation of Government Employes, issued a call for a convention in Chicago beginning Dec. 9 for the purpose of establishing organizations of state, county and municipal employes.

Although the American Federation of Labor some time ago authorized the A. F. G. E. to include these workers in its jurisdiction, the actual work of enrolling them in the union was postponed until the necessary changes in the constitution were effected.

The new locals will be entitled to representation in the annual convention of the A. F. G. E. on the basis of their average membership, Mr. Babcock said.

LABOR WINS OFFICES IN CANADIAN CITIES

Ottawa.—A. C. Ellison has been elected first labor mayor of Regina, capital city of Saskatchewan. In Winnipeg the labor party won nine of eighteen seats in the city council, giving re-elected Labor Mayor John Queen the casting vote. Labor retained its control of the Winnipeg school board for a second year.

Geo. Rogers Named Musicians' Head For Third Term

Lively Meeting Sunday Indicates Better Times Arriving—Carter Made Secretary.

Reports from the regular meeting of Musicians' local No. 80 held last Sunday had a tone of optimism and more employment for its members is being enjoyed for the last four or five weeks.

Being time for election of officers the "tooters" decided to give the baton to George Rogers for his third time, since he seems to have the knack of leading his membership in harmonious ways.

Other officers chosen include Earl Van Arsdale, vice-president, who was also re-elected. Ed Carter was elected to succeed Ellis Goodloe as secretary, and Everett O'Neal will be sergeant-at-arms for the next twelve months.

The very responsible positions of executive board members were given to Lester Cohn and John Washburn, who will serve with the officers.

Delegates to Central Body will be George Rogers, Earl Van Arsdale, Ed Carter and Ralph Miller.

CENTRAL BODY MEETS

Regular meeting of Chattanooga Trades and Labor council will be held Monday evening, Dec. 9, at 7:30 o'clock.

RAILWAY CLERKS FAVOR REAL UNIONS

Cincinnati.—"Company unions" are going down to defeat with consistent regularity, in voting for collective bargaining representatives by employes of the nation's railroads.

The Brotherhood of Railway Clerks reports victories in votes by employes of the Santa Fe railroad and the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis railway, in both of which instances a "company union" was put forward in opposition. Employes of the Duluth Union Depot and Transfer company provided the third winning battle of ballots in one month for the union.

Only in one instance has a company union won out recently, and that by a narrow margin, when the steel-controlled Duluth, Missabe & Northern Railway "clerks' association" beat the Brotherhood union by 195 to 124.

CUSTOM TAILORS REACH PERFECT ORGANIZATION

New York.—Custom tailors of New York and Brooklyn have won a decisive victory, following a general strike, which lasted just one week after it became effective on call of the New York joint board.

The Manhattan Merchant Tailors' association agreed to the union's demand for a 10 per cent wage increase, and this action was immediately followed by the Brooklyn Merchant Tailors' association.

About 400 workers were out and nearly all of these have returned to work, independent merchant tailors following the lead of the associations in signing up with the settlement committee.

It is said that, for the first time in history, this branch of the clothing industry in New York is now completely organized and workers are reported as well pleased with results being accomplished.

TEACHERS STRIKE.

Inverness, Nova Scotia. — Twenty-one school teachers struck here demanding satisfactory arrangements for paying their back salaries amounting to $16,000. They had worked without pay for a year. The strike affected 800 school children.

LABOR MAYOR RE-ELECTED

Winnipeg.—John Queen, first Labor mayor of this city, has been re-elected by a majority of over 10,000 for a second term. Last year his majority was 499. Queen's daughter, Mrs. Gloria Hughes, was elected to the school board. Rate-payers killed a $500,000 housing project.

Make It a Merry "Union Label" Christmas!

I. M. ORNBURN

Secretary-Treasurer, Union Label Trades Department.

In what better way could the members of labor unions and their friends help the cause of organized labor than by buying only those Christmas presents which bear the union label? Many practical gifts are made under union conditions and they can be purchased at just as reasonable prices as the products of unfair and foreign industries. By patronizing only the firms which display the union label, shop card or button, labor unionists and their sympathizers can make this Christmas a merrier one for themselves, their children and all the nation's citizens.

The women of the labor unionist's home have a combined purchasing power of over six billions of dollars annually. If this vast sum were spent for only union-made goods and union services, it would be the greatest stimulus to organizing non-union concerns that the American Federation of Labor has witnessed in years. It would also be a great encouragement to fair employers in industries what are unionized.

All that is necessary is just to ask for the union label. The merchant or other business place will carry union-labeled goods if the demand is great enough. He will pass the word on to the manufacturer that his customers are demanding the union label and the manufacturer, in turn, will be compelled to recognize the standard labor unions if he desires to continue in business.

There is no better period in which to test the value of buying union-made goods than during the shopping season before Christmas. Let's make it a Merry "Union Label" Christmas!

MACHINISTS SIGN PACT WITH PHOENIX MILLS

Milwaukee, Nov. 27.—An agreement has just been negotiated for the first time with the big Phoenix Hosiery mills here, Business Agent Otto Jirikowic, of the Machinists' union, announced this week.

The company also recognized all of the other unions having members in its maintenance department. It has an agreement with the Hosiery Workers' union. This makes the firm 100 per cent. union.

Union Label Goods Show Is Success in St. Louis

The third annual Union Industrial exposition, held recently in St. Louis, Mo., was attended by many thousands of people and proved a marked success.

The exposition, which is gradually gaining some national as well as local fame, has been sponsored for each of the past three years by the St. Louis Union Label Trades section, assisted by local and nearby labor organizations.

Thirty-eight booths displayed the products of organized labor to the general public. The booths were very instructive and interesting in appearance. Plenty of entertainment was furnished to amuse those attending. Prizes were given at various booths, and in addition the label trades section had 101 valuable prizes as attendance prizes. Among the prizes were a suit of clothes, four tons of coal, furniture, tobaccos and many others too numerous to mention. Those who left early and won attendance prizes were notified by mail by Secretary Joyce. The exposition is a non-profit making enterprise conducted in the interest of union-made products and of union services.

HOUSE LEADER OPPOSES DIRECT RELIEF FOR IDLE

Washington, D. C.—President Roosevelt will ask congress to appropriate only one billion dollars next session for direct relief of the unemployed in the next fiscal year, Chairman Buchanan of the house appropriations committee predicted. Buchanan's statement was made on his return here from conference with Roosevelt.

Buchanan said he considered direct relief to the unemployed "wrong in principle" and that he was hopeful that eventually business could absorb those on direct relief entirely.

"I favor cutting off direct relief anyway," Buchanan said. "I think that industry during the next six months should be able to absorb the greater part of those on the relief rolls."

CURTIS ELECTRIC LAST TO SIGN PEACE TERMS

The last of the eleven electrical contractors who broke with Electrical Workers local 175 some months ago has reentered the field as a union employer. Contract was signed last Saturday by the Curtis Electric company, who had held out against signing even after the other ten had done so.

A. T. Johnson, business agent for the union, states that this company is now fair to his local and deserves the patronage of all union people and friends.

CAPITAL UNIONS FAVOR NEW NRA

Washington, D. C.—The Washington Central Labor union has endorsed the principles of the National Industrial Recovery Act, with the recommendation that new legislation "within the scope of the constitution" be enacted.

The resolution of endorsement passed unanimously, declared that the NRA, before it was held unconstitutional by the supreme court, helped to stabilize both industry and labor by minimizing ruthless competition, thereby bringing about a revival of fair trade and the relief of unemployment.

OHIO SHERIFF SHUTS STRIKE-BOUND PLANT

Barberton, O. — Sheriff James T. Flower on Nov. 25 ordered the Ohio Insulator company's strike besieged plant closed and said he would de-commission 100 special company guards protecting it.

Flower's announcement followed the Central Labor union's vote to call a general strike if an agreement was not reached when a forty-eight hour truce expired.

Cleveland.—Striking Barberton pottery workers have carried their fight for higher wages, seniority rights and union recognition to the National Labor Relations board. A union committee headed by Frank Hull, international organizer, and F. M. Brackett, Barberton union official, charged the Ohio Insulator company with violation of the Wagner labor disputes act.

Clerks Ask Court To Make Railroad Recognize Union

Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis Charged With Forming Company-Controlled Union in Violation of Law.

Memphis.—In what may be a test case of the Wagner-Connery labor disputes and the amended railway labor acts, the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks asked the federal district court to force the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis railroad to recognize its union.

The injunction petition charges the railroad with attempting to form "The Clerk's Association" as a "company-controlled" union in violation of the amended railway labor act of 1934.

Brotherhood Won Election.

The Wagner-Connery labor disputes act is not mentioned in the petition, but labor authorities said the alleged violations come within its provisions.

The Brotherhood union points out it was named official representative of the 710 employes in an election last summer, the vote in which was 409 to 243 in favor of the Brotherhood.

The railroad, which allegedly has ignored negotiation attempts by the Brotherhood, also is charged with threatening employes with loss of group insurance and loss of representation in labor settlements unless they join the clerk's association.

Objects of Injunction.

The injunction asks the court to:

1. Require the railroad to appear and answer the charges.

2. Require the railroad to show cause why an injunction should not be granted forcing it to deal with the Brotherhood.

3. Require the railroad to show cause why it should not be restrained from interfering with or influencing its employes or their agents in labor activities.

4. Require the company to show cause why it should not be forced to stop dealing with the Clerk's association.

Permanent Writ Sought.

Plaintiff's attorney, A. B. Galloway, Cleveland, said a permanent injunction will be sought.

The petition, filed by the Brotherhood and its board of adjustment, and George M. Harrison, Cincinnati, grand president of the Brotherhood, contains portions of a letter from William Leiserson, chairman of the national labor mediation board, to the railroad authorizing the latter to deal with the Brotherhood.

Labor Wins Big Victory In New Zealand Election

Drives National Government From Office by Securing 52 Out of 80 Seats in House.

Wellington, N. Z.—The New Zealand Labor party, in a hotly contested election, secured 52 seats in the house of 80 members, doubling its former total. The election gives the labor group control of the government.

The New Zealand Labor party is committed to a general program of planned production, including state control of credit and currency designed to provide reasonable prices for farm products, public works to create employment for the jobless, and control of wage levels by government action.

Michael J. Savage, the prime minister-elect, was born in Australia. He is 63 years of age and has been the leader of the Labor party since 1923. In commenting on the election, he said: "New Zealand has nothing to fear from a Labor government. Our object is to co-operate with all the people in the work of building up the dominion."

CLASH IN POTTER'S STRIKE.

Barberton, O.—Three hundred strike pickets clashed with fifty guards armed with gas guns and clubs as officials of the Ohio Insulator company attempted to open its plant here, closed for nine weeks.

Members of the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters voted to strike for union recognition, a 20 per cent wage increase, time and a half for overtime and union seniority rules. The company closed its plant and until Nov. 20 had made no effort to operate.

Child Labor Evil Held Now as Bad As Before NRA

National Committee Finds Employment of Boys and Girls Growing Fast Since End of Industrial Codes.

New York City.—Child labor abuses have increased to such an extent since the invalidation of NRA codes by the U. S. supreme court that conditions now are as bad as they were three years ago, the annual report of the national child labor committee charges.

The report, issued by Courtenay Dinwiddie, general secretary, recommended that the federal child labor amendment be adopted as a means toward "the elimination of child labor from our national life forever."

Pointing to increasing indications of the growth of the child labor evil, the report said:

"In New York City, for instance, during September, 1935, there were 1,428 permits for full-time work granted to 14 and 15-year-old children as compared to only 390 in 1934."

Home Work Increasing.

The report cited similar increases in child labor throughout the country and emphasized in particular an investigation in four Paterson, N. J., silk mills where children 13, 14 and 15 years of age were found working.

In discussing industrial home work, the report declared such work is carried on in 75,000 homes throughout the country. The earnings of the children were found to be "extremely low and hours inhumanly long." Since the labor codes are no longer effective, the report said, there is a distinct trend toward building up home-work business by mail.

Blow at National Welfare.

"The gainful employment of nearly 1,000,000 children of 15 years or younger during the expiring years and months of the recent era of business expansion pointed directly to one of the weakest spots in our defense against an economic breakdown," the statement continued.

"Rightfully interpreted, this exploitation of children, without a shadow of necessity, was an evidence of unsoundness at the very core of our shiny apple of prosperity. Children with their readiness to work for low wages were not only keeping adults out of employment but were acting as a sharp brake on the distribution of wages and purchasing power so essential to any sound flow of goods and of business.

Depression Revealed Truth.

"While these truths were far from obvious to most persons before the depression, they were revealed with startling sharpness in the economic debacle of 1929-33. With twelve to fifteen million adult breadwinners out of employment, children were being snatched from school at the earliest ages permitted by law, put to work at starvation wages, actually replacing adults in many cases.

"So crudely was cheap child labor used to drive down the pay of their elders that it became evident to many, even among those to whom the science of economics is an impenetrable jungle, that the labor of immature children was a most potent destructive force sapping the foundation of our national security."

The report held that the elimination of child labor in most of the principal industries through new deal legislation has been virtually checked by the supreme court NRA decision last May and that the trend is now toward re-employment of children.

Augusta A. & A. Stores Remodeled by Union Men

Augusta, Ga.—The ability of organized labor to seccure higher wages was well illustrated here recently in the controversy with the Atlantic and Pacific Tea company over the remodeling work on the company's stores.

At first the company paid the workers only from 40 to 60 per cent of the organized building trades scale. The Central Labor union joined with the building trades in opposing this policy.

The combined action was so effective that the company took all non-union workers off the jobs and put on union men at the union wage scale.

Now the possession of a union card is absolutely necessary for a building trades worker to secure employment at any of the A. & P. stores in Augusta.

Teachers Have Carried Load Too Long

(By T. R. Cuthbert)

Press reports indicate that pursuant to the mayor's resolution a conference will be held with Commissioner McMillan with the object of endeavoring to avoid an impending suit against the city for wages rightly due the teachers.

Judging from past performances it appears to many that the teachers might be asked to "be lenient" again —"you'll get yours next year" (maybe)—and that they should serve several weeks or months without pay to advance "public interest."

Speaking of lawsuits, many teachers are acquainted with this form of collection. Garnishments particularly, and bankruptcy proceedings.

It is our opinion that now is the time for teachers to draw a line beyond which they will steadfastly refuse to budge. They should insist that they have financed the public schools long enough. They owe a prior duty to their families and dependents as well as to the public. They have a necessary service to perform for our children and the public must become conscious that this service must be paid for on a decent basis.

If it is true that parents and taxpayers are expecting their children to be educated at the expense of those who do the teaching, it is time that they be made to realize that teachers must be paid, and be paid a wage that will allow them to maintain themselves according to the standards that parents want their children taught.

After all, a parent's child belongs to the parent and not the teacher. Therefore the responsibility rests with the parent to pay the bill and not the teacher.

We contend that if it is proven that the city and county is not raising the necessary funds to adequately pay for education, the teacher should stop this monkey business of serving without pay simply because glorious phrases are formed that they "serve society."

That's bunk. No pay, no work, we say.

What Next!

One of the latest of the synthetic resins is vinylite, which is being put on the market as panels for walls in houses, floors, tiling, doors, mouldings, baseboards and sills and for virtually everything that is used in finishing an interior. If doors are made of this material, hinges and latches can be molded right into it.

LABOR QUERIES

Q.—Is there an American Federation of Labor organization of workers employed by states, counties and cities?

A.—There will soon be, as President E. Clauce Babcock, of the American Federation of Government Employes, has issued a call for a convention in Chicago beginning Dec. 9 to form organizations of state, county and municipal employes. President Babcock's organization has been authorized by the A. F. of L. to include these workers in its jurisdiction.

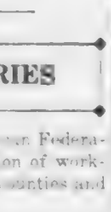
Q.—Who said: "I regard it as the imperative duty of all members of organized labor to give their moral and financial support to the labor press of the country?"

A.—Samuel Gompers.

The Union Label Trades department is having an old-fashioned revival and how they are packing the Union Label Temple!

Lady Took Cardui When Weak, Nervous

"I can't say enough for Cardui if I talked all day," enthusiastically writes Mrs. L. H. Caldwell, of Statesville, N. C. "I have used Cardui at intervals for twenty-five years," she adds. "My trouble in the beginning was weakness and nervousness. I read of Cardui in a newspaper and decided right then to try it. It seemed before I had taken half a bottle of Cardui I was stronger and was soon up and around."



Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

LABOR DRIVE ON TIN CANS FOR BEER GETTING RESULTS

Retailers and Brewers Fight Shy of Recently Introduced Metal Containers as Trade Unionists Insist on Buying Amber Beverage in Union-Made Glass Bottles.

Philadelphia.—The campaign of the Glass Bottle Blowers' association against use of the non-union tin can as a container for beer apparently is having telling effect, reports received at headquarters here indicate.

Many trade unions throughout the country have passed resolutions condemning the can and their members have promised to refrain from purchasing beer in this container and to urge their friends to do likewise. Union leaders report that the campaign thus far has been very effective.

The Glass Bottle Blowers' association opened its campaign soon after the can was put on the market, emphasizing that the cans are manufactured by the non-organized steel industry. Popular use of the can would eventually cause hundreds of union members of many international unions to be thrown out of work.

Use of Can Condemned.

Immediately the Union Label Trades department of the American Federation of Labor took up the cudgel in behalf of the union container and adopted resolutions strongly condemning use of the non-union can. The resolutions read in part:

"That the Union Label Trades department of the American Federation of Labor express its disapproval and opposition of the use of non-union tin cans for bottling beer by the breweries and bottlers throughout the country and call upon all affiliated unions and friends to support the continued use of sanitary containers, such as the glass bottle, for bottling beer, ale and porter, and which are made under union conditions and entitled to the use of the union label."

William Laffey, secretary-treasurer of the Pittsburgh Brewery Workers' local union, following this resolution, declared that hundreds of men in the bottling departments of breweries in Western Pennsylvania would be thrown out of employment if the tin can was adopted to replace the glass bottle.

Labor Boycotts Can.

Adoption of this resolution was followed by a concerted drive throughout the country to eliminate the can as a beer container, with surprising results, union heads say. Several instances were cited where the can had been thrown out by retailers when their union customers refused to deal at the stores because this non-union product was being handled. Tavernkeepers too, were discarding the can as a means of retailing beer because of the complaints.

Several brewers also have refused to adopt the tin can. But, union officials admit this is not alone because of their strong union sentiment, but also because they feel it would be doing an injustice to their brew to place it in cans instead of the conventional sanitary bottle.

"There is little doubt," one union official said, "that the campaign is having the desired effect. It is my personal opinion that the can cannot possibly exist without the support of organized labor, especially when it is remembered that beer is the working man's drink. Some of the field workers report that the sales of cans are dropping off enormously in territories where they were introduced with widespread ballyhoo and that many retailers are throwing them out because of the decreases they have suffered in business by handling them."

Lewis Explains Resignation From Executive Council

Quit Because of "Irreconcilable Differences" of Opinion on Organization of Mass Industries, Miners' Head Says.

Washington, D. C.—"I resigned because of irreconcilable differences between myself and the majority of the council on the question of organizing the mass industries," John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, told reporters in explaining his resignation from the American Federation of Labor executive council two days before.

President Lewis declared he was not in sympathy with the views of the executive council in the matter of unionizing mass industry workers and charged that the A. F. of L. had failed to follow the mandate of the San Francisco convention on the issuance of charters to workers in the automobile industry. The council, he said, had refused to accept what he and some others believed was the decision of the convention and had exempted all workers eligible for craft unions from the provisions of the charter for the auto workers.

Charges Organization Failure.

The miners' union head assailed a contract made between craft unions and the Anaconda Copper company as a "Jameson raid" on the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers and declared the contract was an "act of repudiation" of the decision of the San Francisco convention of mass industries.

"Back of all this," Lewis added, "is the outstanding fact that the American Federation of Labor has not organized the workers of the nation's great industries and is not going to try to organize them except on the basis of craft organization."

"The inadequacy of this policy," has been determined in the last quarter of century and it was a waste of time for him to sit with the executive council discussing issues which have been decided, Lewis said.

Praises Craft Unions.

The union chief charged the craft unions with adopting a "dog-in-the-manger" policy in what he said was their refusal to permit the workers of mass industries to be organized on an industrial basis, but paid tribute to the craft unions as effective instruments in serving their own members.

"The craft organizations," he said, "have given splendid service to their members and I feel that their officers reflect the interests and feeling of their memberships. But they represent the 'aristocracy of labor' and fail to see the vital necessity of organizing the mass production industries.

"The time has come when they must abandon these dog-in-the-manger tactics and surrender jurisdiction in industries which they have shown they are unable to organize. The American Federation of Labor must adapt itself to modern industry."

No Question of Personalities.

"The question is whether the labor movement in America is going to be a powerful one or a feeble one," Lewis added. "This question rises over personalities. I think the labor movement needs the workers in the mass production industries; that the people in these industries need organization to voice the feeling and defend the interests of great masses of toilers. Effective and large-scale organization is the best insurance for the public against the evils of Fascism, Communism and other isms."

Lewis declared that there was nothing personal in his differences with the executive council and that he had the highest regard for William Green. He praised Mr. Green as an able official and a "fine citizen" and said that whatever differences he might have with him and other members of the council were purely on points of policy.

Hopes to Work With A. F. of L.

President Lewis emphasized repeatedly that he has no thought of leaving the American Federation of Labor and that he expected the forthcoming convention of the United Mine Workers in Washington in January to continue its affiliation with the federation. He said he would like to work out an agreement with the federation whereby the mass production industries would be effectively organized and said that the committee for industrial organization, in which he is a leading figure, will go ahead with its educational effort in behalf of industrial unionism within the A. F. of L.

Elected to Council in 1934.

In response to questions, President Lewis outlined the already announced purpose of the committee for industrial organization as to work in general for the organization of workers in the mass production industries. He said the functions of the committee will be educational and advisory and that other organizations interested in advancing organization along the lines of industrial organization are being invited to join. The committee, composed of representatives of seven A. F. of L. unions, was formed at a meeting here on Nov. 10.

President Lewis was elected a member of the A. F. of L. executive council at the San Francisco convention of 1934. He led the fight for industrial unionism at the recent Atlantic City convention. The convention rejected a report submitted by Lewis and others and reaffirmed the stand on organization of mass industries taken at San Francisco.

Committee Program Set Forth.

The program for the committee for industrial organization has been presented in letters sent to central bodies, state federations, federal labor unions and international and national unions in the United States. With the letters were enclosed copies of the minority report of the resolutions committees at the Atlantic City convention of the American Federation of Labor, together with the speeches of President Charles P. Howard, of the International Typographical union, and President Lewis, of the United Mine Workers, in its support.

In sending the documents, the committee put itself on record as believing there is urgent need of organizing the workers in the basic industries of America.

LABOR DEPARTMENT CONCILIATOR SETTLES LONG NORFOLK WALKOUT

Fourteen Weeks' Strike of Garment Workers in Finkelstein Plant Ended by Pact Providing for Reinstatement of All Strikers and Arbitration of Disputed Points.

Norfolk, Va. — The strike against Sam Finkelstein & Co., Norfolk clothing manufacturer, has been settled through the intervention of Miss Anna Weinstock, of the division of conciliation, United States Department of Labor. Hyman Blumberg, member of the general executive board, Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, conducted the negotiations which were carried on with officials of the company. Sam Finkelstein signed the terms of settlement but remained out of the negotiations. The strike was called Aug. 14, 1935. It ran for fourteen weeks, and was the longest strike in the history of Norfolk labor troubles.

The settlement terms are not made public as a result of an understanding between attorneys representing the company and the counsel for the Amalgamated. However, the strikers are to go back to work on their old jobs pending the seasonal reorganization of work. Within a reasonable time, all workers "as of Aug. 14," the date of the strike, will resume their places in the factory. All other disputes will be taken up through the facilities of arbitration provided in the settlement.

Strikers Approve Settlement.

Following the close of negotiations a rousing meeting was held by the strikers who came to ratify the settlement already agreed to by their committee.

Although many statements had been made that not more than twenty persons had joined the strike and that "all jobs were filled," nevertheless on Nov. 1, an advertisement was inserted in Norfolk daily papers inviting the strikers to make application for reinstatement. Immediately following, thirteen more skilled operators joined the strike. No striker broke ranks. The hundred and twenty-odd strikers represented far more than their numerical strength in point of effectiveness.

Mass Picketing Banned.

Camp was pitched on a lot facing the factory, and until a sweeping injunction directed against mass picketing was granted the management, strikers were daily singing and parading in front of the factory. After the injunction, picketing was limited to one at an entrance.

The Amalgamated conducted an intensive educational campaign in Norfolk, making use of every conceivable means of reaching the public, from newspapers and bulletins to a parade of the strikers, the first labor demonstration in Norfolk for seven years, the use of the microphone, etc.

The state office of the Amalgamated will be maintained in Norfolk. It is expected that joint offices with the Central Labor union and the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union will be secured.

TEACHER TALK
LOCAL 246, A. F. of T.

GENERAL MEETING SATURDAY

There will be a general meeting of the Federation on Saturday morning, November, at the university student activity room. The salary suits and the proposed Permanent Labor Committee for Political Action will be the principal matters discussed.

MISS BROWN'S NEW OFFICE HOURS

Hereafter, the Federation office will be open each day except Sunday from 9 a. m. to 1 p.m., and on Saturday from 9 a. m. to 5 p.m. This change was voted at the board of directors meeting Monday.

LAW ENTHUSIASM AMONG TEACHERS

Anyone who was present at the board of directors' meeting last Monday evening could have failed to be impressed by the optimism, confidence and harmony evident among the forty or odd Federation members present. A spirit akin to that found in a Methodist revival or a football pep meeting prevailed. One would not have been surprised at any time to have heard an inspired "hallelujah" followed by a fervent "amen" as one spontaneous testimonial followed another in rapid succession.

Slogans that caught the fancy of the gathering were "All Labor's got to stick together," "Don't believe the bunk that there's no money to pay teachers' salaries" and "Labor's interests first, for Labor's interests coincide with the interests of progress."

There seems to be growing among teachers a feeling of solidarity, not only among themselves, but also with labor as a whole.

WHERE'S THIS MONEY GOING?

Last year city revenues were approximately $125,000 in excess of the amount expected and originally budgeted. It is reasonable to suppose that this year's collections will be considerably greater than last year. As a matter of fact it is unofficially admitted that tax collections are ahead of expectations to date. Teachers are wondering why this is not applied to the pitifully inadequate school budget, so that the city may make a start toward the goal of civilized educational facilities.

SCIENCE SPREADS FROM OOLTEWAH

Ooltewah High school has probably the most complete equipment for the teaching of the physical sciences of any rural high school in Tennessee. The greater part of the equipment has been accumulated from sources other than the county education department through the ingenious efforts of Mr. C. J. Doub. He has quite a collection of home-made machines for experiments in physics and chemistry. He makes odds and ends into radios and generators and what-have-you.

Ooltewah's equipment does not confine its benefits to its own students. Mr. Doub makes frequent excursions to the smaller schools and gives excellent laboratory lessons in general science. He doesn't do this by halves. He loads his sedan chuck full of magnets, generators, test tubes, color charts, chemicals, vacuum pumps, etc. The children get a good cross-section of a high school laboratory. This interests them in science and motivates high school attendance.

PUBLICITY COMMITTEE COMPLETE

With the acceptance of Miss Margaret O'Grady the personnel of the new publicity committee is complete. The committee is composed of J. B. Campbell, chairman; Miss Mildred MacKenzie and Miss O'Grady. Miss Lassie Munsey, tried-and-true Federation fighter, has agreed to serve unofficially on the committee in an advisory capacity.

The committee will try to keep the teachers informed on significant events and issues and to make the public aware of the direct connection between the Federation policies and good schools.

LABOR SEES BIG DANGER IN COMING BUSINESS "BOOM"

Unless Hours Are Cut and Wages Increased, Prosperity Will Inevitably Be Followed by Worse Depression Than Ever, Monthly Trade Survey Declares.

Washington, D. C.—The monthly Survey of Business by the American Federation of Labor this month needs to be read clear through in order to get the picture which the survey is meant to give. As often happens, the daily press has taken a fraction of the story, and "blown it up" to represent the whole.

"There is good basis for business confidence," says the survey. "The upturn this fall has reached a higher level than anticipated. Profits of 1,900 corporations have increased 78 per cent. in two years. Profits in 1933 were $1,314,000,000; 1934, $1,733,000,000; 1935 profits will probably reach at least $2,340,000,000."

The survey then gives instances and authorities, all pointing to a "boom." Then it asks:

"Can the coming boom create jobs for all the unemployed? In the five years since 1929, the average worker's producing power in our factories has increased 25 per cent. Unless hours are shortened, we shall still have a standing army of unemployed, numbering in the millions, even when we reach the peak of the coming boom.

"In every industrial boom, profits increase faster than wages. Wages today are not even keeping pace with the cost of production. In the first three quarters of 1935, production has exceeded last year by 8.7 per cent.; workers' buying power by less than 1 per cent."

Workers' losses of income, the survey states, have reached the appalling total of $76,200,000,000 since 1929. All other losses have been about half that much—$40,500,000,000. And all this is needless.

"A recent study by competent engineers shows that in America today no one need be unemployed or in poverty. Proper use of our industrial resources, equipment and man power can produce enough to give every family an income of at least $4,370 a year.

"In our year of greatest prosperity, one-sixth of our population were living below the minimum necessary to health, when all might have had a comfortable living standard."

"While industry operates without control, depression follows prosperity as night follows day."

The survey, speaking for the A. F. of L., believes that unless hours are ever before, there will be another deshortened, wages increased faster than pression, perhaps worse than that which began five years ago.

Individual Agreements

Increase in Silk Strike

Paterson, N. J.—The American Federation of Silk Workers announced that it would continue negotiations for individual settlements with several manufacturing concerns here, where a strike of 8,000 broad silk workers has been in effect for some time.

Twenty-five large shops out of the 600 whose employes are on strike have signed agreements since the strike began, union officials said.

Employers as a group have so far tenaciously refused to settle the differences with their workers, although it is said that a number of manufacturers have expressed a willingness to negotiate. The union is seeking a rate of $1.94 per 100,000 picks, which is regarded as reasonable.

Union officials state that any employer wishing to settle strikes at their respective plants will be given opportunity to do so. However, picket lines will not be withdrawn from any shop until a contract is signed.

SALINAS BAKERIES ALL DISPLAY UNION CARDS

Salinas, Cal.—Every bakery in Salinas is now reported to be displaying the union store card.

The 100 per cent organization was announced following an intensive two-weeks' organization campaign, during which time Jack Larripa, of Oakland, international representative of the bakers' union, and Charles M. Smith, of Salinas, business representative for General Truck Drivers No. 287, successfully interviewed every employing baker.

As a result of this drive, Local No. 24, Bakery and Confectionery Workers' International Union of America, gets off to a flying start. Later, bakers in Watsonville and the Pajaro valley are expected to become members of General Truck Drivers No. 287, the latter affiliated with the Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stablemen and Helpers.

CLEVELAND UNIONS WIN HIGHER WAGES

Cleveland, O.—How labor organization benefits the the workers has just been demonstrated by substantial gains made by printing trades unions here.

Photo-engravers on Cleveland's three English daily newspapers have accepted a $2 weekly increase in pay with a reduction from 40 to 37½ hours work weekly. The pay raise and cut in hours were given after the photo-engravers had taken a strike vote.

Commercial printers have received an advance of 5 cents an hour under a new contract. The pay is now $1.20 an hour, said to be the highest ever received by commercial printers here.

Typographical Union No. 53 has been negotiating with newspaper publishers for a new wage scale. The old one expired Oct. 1. About 400 printers are concerned. They are seeking an increase o 10 per cent on a 37½ hour weekly working time.

No matter how small the article, look for the union label. Every little bit helps!

Big Business Rallies Forces For Supreme Effort to Kill New Deal In New Congress

Fierce War on Recovery Program Seems Certain to Dominate National Legislature, Threatening Long-Drawn-Out Session and Death to Progressive Legislative Proposals.

By STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Washington, D. C

Congress is in for a tough and probably long session this winter. It will be surprising if there is an adjournment before June. The stake of the great mass of the people has never been larger than it will be in what is done in this session.

No session in recent years has faced such fundamental and far-reaching issues, involving the welfare and future of the country. In the list is a basic 30-hour week in industry, appropriations for social security, textile stabilization, the soldiers' bonus, farm relief, laws to retain essential features of the NRA that were not held unconstitutional by the Supreme Court last May, and measures that affect the vast problem of unemployment.

Big Business Fighting Mad

Big Business is in a rebellious and fighting mood and out to destroy every root and branch of the recovery program and of the New Deal. Its leaders, it is charged, appear to have learned nothing from the depression and they are reaching out for profits to the exclusion of every other interest and consideration with the same rapacious greed that brought on the depression itself.

Methods and practices which these men in Big Business are using in their unrestrained effort at destruction appear to differ from that of the ram-raid "reds" in name only; their methods and disregard of consequences are practically identical with those of the "reds".

Politics Big Factor

The grand old game of politics will enter into this session in a large way, with strategic moves in anticipation of the election next year, but the fact remains the Congress has more work ahead of it, with more sweeping consequences attached to what it does, than has been the case in many a day.

Unemployment is recognized outside of the ranks of Big Business itself as the most serious and threatening problem that faces the country and is the factor that jeopardizes the whole trend to recovery. Standing alongside of it is the question of whether the effort to stabilize agriculture and to continue the movement of recovery in buying and consuming power in rural regions shall be safeguarded from the attack that is being made on it along the entire front of organized industry.

Leaders of organized workers are in readiness to make their greatest fight for a reduced basic hour week with the intent of not only bringing up wages to meet the heavy increases in the cost of living in the last two years, but at the same time to absorb the vast army of unemployed and to relieve the federal government of its heavy burden of relief expenditure.

To Fight Appropriation Bill

On this issue they will meet the combined strength of organized industry which is overlooking no chance to show that it is not a buddy of the New Deal.

Appropriations to set going the social security program, the National Labor Relations Board and a host of other things created under laws passed in the last session, and defeated in the last minute filibuster of the late Huey Long, will come up at the very opening of the session. Big Business in its resistance to the appropriations will make its first effort to defeat the legislative program of the session.

There is no indication that the session will escape a hard fight on the soldiers' bonus question. The President gives indication that he will again veto the measure if it is passed, and probably with it becoming a law over his veto.

U. S. Court Hits Prison Goods Act

Tennessee Shirt Company Wins Interlocutory Injunction Forcing Three Railroads to Accept Shipments Forbidden Under New Law.

Nashville, Tenn. — Federal Judge John J. Gore has issued an interlocutory injunction ordering the Louisville & Nashville, the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis and the Tennessee Central railroads to accept prison-made shirts for interstate transportation.

The writ was issued in a case attacking the constitutionality of the Ashurst-Summers act, authorizing states having laws against the sale of prison-made goods on the open market to prohibit shipment into their borders of such goods.

The injunction was brought by the Huffines Shirt company, of Nashville. Judge Gore allowed the injunction, taking the challenge of the act's constitutionality under advisement and requiring the shirt company to post a bond of $1,000 in each of the three cases.

Charles I. Dawson, recently resigned federal judge of Louisville, Ky., chief counsel for the Huffines company, charged the act is unconstitutional.

FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION BEGINS MILK PROFIT PROBE

Washington, D. C.—Acting under legislation passed by the last session of congress, the federal trade commission started a nation-wide investigation of the profits pocketed by those who own dairies and milk processing plants.

The purpose of the probe is to ascertain the toll levied on both dairy farmers and consumers by middlemen. It is expected to reveal exactly what the difference is between the price middlemen pay the farmers for a bottle of milk and the price taken from the housewives.

The investigation is part of an exhaustive inquiry into the income of farmers and middlemen. When it is completed the commission will make recommendations for improving the economic conditions of both farmers and consumers.

STEEL COMPANY SIGNS 31ST UNION CONTRACT

St. Louis, Nov. 27.—Here is an employer in the traditionally "open shop" steel industry who has done business with organized labor since 1904 and likes the experience so well that he has just renewed his union agreement.

The concern is the Granite City Steel company, across the river in Illinois. The union is the International Association of Machinists. Last week Business Agent E. Walker, of the machinists, negotiated a new pact with the company. It was the thirty-first consecutive renewal of the agreement. Each time the pact granted concessions to the machinists.

MACHINISTS SCORE.

New Orleans.—The Dixie Brewing company has just signed an agreement granting many important concessions to its machinists, it was reported this week by Robert W. Fricke, business agent of the local Machinists' union.

MADDEN DEFENSE OF LABOR RIGHTS BURNS BOSSES

Workers Justified in Demaning Freedom to Organize.

IN CAMP OF THE ENEMY

Convention of Industrialists Cheers Lund's Demand for End of Social Laws.

New York.—J. Warren Madden, chairman of the national labor relations board, carried the fight for the Wagner-Connery act into "the camp of the enemy" here.

Speaking before the Congress of American Industry, held in connection with the annual convention of the National Association of Manufacturers, Madden, former professor of law at the University of Pittsburgh, fired a devastating broadside at interests which are seeking to have the Wagner-Connery act declared unconstitutional.

The audience of big industrialists winced several times when the NLRB chief vividly pictured the brutality and shallowness of those who would deny American workers the right to organize.

Big Business Hysteria.

His speech followed a series of hysterical clamorings from big "open shop" leaders for the government to wipe out all social and labor legislation and let big business run things to suit itself.

Approximately 1,000 employers, representing the most extreme reactionary elements in industry, are attending the convention. Early in the week a picked committee of "hard-boiled" manufacturers met behind closed doors to decide on just how far it would be wise for them to openly snub the government.

Their immediate concern was the "best method" to use to knife the national conference of industrial and labor representatives which George L. Berry, President Roosevelt's co-ordinator for industrial co-operation, has called to meet in Washington Dec. 9.

Bosses Have Jitters.

This conference, Berry has frequently explained, will be solely for the purpose of discussing methods to speed up recovery and eliminate unemployment. He characterized the claim that the meeting will be dominated by labor interests as an "imaginery fear" of those who "prefer to indulge in a bad case of NRA jitters rather than face realities of the present and future."

Clinton L. Bardo, notorious "open shopper" and president of the National Association of Manufacturers; "Jim" Emery, veteran lobbyist for the association; Robert L. Lund, chairman of its board of directors, and Alfred P. Sloan, head of General Motors, are the leading lights at the manufacturers' pow-wow here.

Wants Laws Wiped Out.

Lund viciously attacked practically every reform law enacted within recent years. He wants wiped out:

The agricultural adjustment act, the securities and exchange act, the holding company act, labor legislation and laws to tax big incomes.

Other speakers sounded a similar "call to arms." Proposals to "gang up" and put the recovery movement out of business were greeted with cheers and wild applause.

It was into this atmosphere that the national labor relations board chairman came to throw down the gauntlet to what he called "certain busy-bodies" who "are teaching employers how to evade the law"—the Wagner-Connery act.

No Right Without Remedy.

The supreme court, Madden pointed out, has ruled on several occasions that workers have the right to organize and congress passed the Wagner-Connery act to curb forces which were nullifying that right.

"It is an ancient legal truism," he emphasizedd, "that 'there is no right without a remedy,' and the American worker is speaking in the best legal tradition when he says that, unless the law will restrain persons who prevent

Labor Party Wins In New Zealand; Has Sweeping Plan

Production Planned Along Socialist Lines; Country Pioneer in Social Security.

The first labor government in the history of New Zealand was the outcome of an election held last week. It will rule a territory two and a half times as large as New York state, with a population of more than 1,500,000.

Michael J. Savage, 63-year-old leader of the labor party since 1923, will be premier, with 52 out of 80 seats in the next house of representatives. He will succeed Prime Minister G. W. Forbes, whose national government has held office since the financial crash in 1931.

Savage was among those who promoted the socialist secession from the reform party in 1910 and had a prominent part in forming the Australian labor party.

Sweeping Program.

The labor party is committed to a program of planned production along socialist lines, with state control of credit and currency, to guarantee stable prices for farmers, an extensive public works program to absorb 50,000 unemployed workers, land settlement projects and government control of wage levels.

In most countries this would seem to be an extremely radical program, but, as the Toronto "Globe" points out, New Zealand is already far advanced in social legislation.

Pioneer in Social Security.

"She has had old-age and widow's pensions since 1898," the "Globe" declares. "She has had government ownership of railroads and public utilities from the beginning of her history. She long ago established, through the co-operation of government and organized labor, a widespread system of protection for workers and one of the highest living standards in the world.

"But the victorious labor leader's proposals go far beyond all that. They go beyond Mr. Roosevelt's new deal in its ambitious youth." They approach Sir Stafford Cripps' (British labor party leader) vision of the ideal socialist state."

5 Injured in Strutwear Knitting Company Strike

Anti-union Concern Used Dummy Outfit to Obtain Court Order for Moving Goods From Plant.—Trucks Meet Militant Picket Line.

Minneapolis, Minn.—The attempt of the anti-union Strutwear Knitting company here to use the federal government as a strike-breaking agency resulted in the injury of four truck drivers and Deputy United States Marshal John J. Kane, when the drivers, acting under the direction of Kane, who claimed he had an order from the federal court here, undertook to crash through the picket line with goods from the Strutwear plant. The Hosiery Workers' union declared a strike against the concern last August following refusal to recognize the union.

Organized labor here claims that the struck concern used a dummy corporation, the Peacock Knitting Company of Missouri, to get the court order. The Missouri outfit is said to be owned by the Strutwear company.

At the very time that the court issued the order officials of the company were feigning an interest in the amicable adjustment of the strike under way by the union and the mayor's committee. The national labor relations board was also endeavoring to effect a settlement of the controversy through the election of a collective bargaining agency by the company's employes.

WIN WAGE INCREASE.

Toledo, O.—A wage increase, ranging from 10 to 27 per cent, has just been negotiated for all automobile mechanics employed by firms belonging to the Toledo Automotive Trade association, it was announced this week by Business Agent A. M. Jurus, of the International Association of Machinists.

Practically all of the car dealers and repair shop owners in Toledo are members of the Automotive Trade association.

LABOR WELCOMES NEGRO TEACHERS INTO ITS RANKS

Mountain City Union Joins Ranks to Gain Justice in Profession.

DELEGATES OBLIGATED LAST MONDAY EVENING

Hopes Expressed That This Local Will Be Followed by Many Thousands of Negro Workers Organizing Locally.

The last meeting of Chattanooga Trades and Labor Council was one to cheer the hearts of thousands in organized labor who believe that there should be no color line when industrial justice is dispensed. Having been informed some weeks ago that the teachers in the Negro schools of Chattanooga were following an example set by the white pedagogues, the council immediately invited the new unionists to affiliate with the parent organization of labor in Chattanooga.

On Monday evening the new local sent three delegates to Central Body, who were obligated in the usual manner and told something of the aims and objects of the labor movement. Various delegates from other local unions informed the newcomers that the two races must not allow the unscrupulous employer to play them off against one another, but that the competent and skilled Negro artisans should organize and demand for themselves adequate wages for the work that they do.

Particular mention was made of the fact that in the molders' trade the Negro molder has been used to keep the white mechanic's pay down in the South due to the fact that the Negro molder, although as competent as his white co-worker in industry, but unorganized, was forced by lack of resistance to work for wages far less than they were entitled to receive.

Irrespective of the views one may hold regarding race problems, we must come to the realization that cooperation on the economic front is essential if justice for all working people is to be obtained, it was pointed out.

George A. Key, president of the new local, presented to the council the gratitude of his union on behalf of his race for the humanitarian and unselfish attitude taken by the Chattanooga Trades and Labor Council, and pledged its support in the future.

RAILROADS MUST REPORT NUMBER OF FREE PASSES

As a part of a plan to reduce unnecessary expenses in operating the railroads, the interstate commerce commission has ordered the executives of Class 1 railroads to report quarterly on the number of free passes handed out. At present the executives only report the number of "revenue passengers."

Under the law railroad officials are permitted to give passes only to certain classes of persons, including inmates of homes for disabled soldiers, livestock caretakers, railroad employes and their families, physicians, clergymen, inmates and agents of hospitals and eleemosynary institutions, indigent, destitute and homeless persons and certain government officials.

The interstate commerce commission said the information regarding free passes was desired to give a clearer picture of the number of passengers the railroads are actually carrying and show to what extent free passes affect rail revenues.

Milwaukee Hosiery Plant Moves to Low-Wage South

New Orleans.—The Van Dyke Knitting company, incorporated, will open a hosiery mill on Jan. 1 in McComb, Miss., and put 100 girls to work. The plant comes from Milwaukee, where labor is high, to Mississippi, where labor is cheap.

State Fed. Executives Turned Down 'Cold' By Tennessee WPA

President McCann Holds Meeting at Nashville Friday; Large Number of Labor Leaders Attended; Wages and Hours were Principal Topic; Berry Opposes Prevailing Wage.

The executive board of the Tennessee Federation of Labor, together with representatives from the Building Trades and Central Labor bodies, were called to meet in Nashville Friday afternoon. The meeting was for the purpose of considering wages and hours on WPA projects and also to take up complaints relative to wages on PWA projects. The call for the meeting was issued Thursday by President R. S. McCann, of Memphis, and Secretary-Treasurer Arthur, of Knoxville.

The meeting was held in the Sam Davis hotel and was attended by labor leaders from all over the state.

The meeting was called by George L. Googe, director of southern activities of the American Federation of Labor, in Atlanta.

There has been considerable complaint concerning wages and hours, and while no strikes have developed in Tennessee as in other states, there is much dissatisfaction and it was hoped that the Nashville meeting and the conferences on Friday would bring about a statewide agreement that will be acceptable to all parties concerned.

Such hopes were blasted when Administrator Harry Berry admitted that he had the power to agree to the prevailing wage rate, but which he refused to do because he said that he was opposed to the principle. He stubbornly held that he would continue in his stand until such time as federal authorities in Washington ordered him to do so. According to Paul J. Aymon, of Chattanooga, appeals should be made by all labor organizations directly to Senators McKellar and Bachman to take a personal part in organized labor's right to uphold the prevailing wage rate.

The members of the state executive board of the federation are: President R. S. McCann, Memphis; Secretary-Treasurer Cecil C. Arthur, Knoxville; J. O. Nevil, Nashville; George McNamara, Memphis; W. H. Drummonds, Jackson; A. C. Kamin, Chattanooga; W. Clay McKenzie, Knoxville; D. C. Long, Johnson City, and T. J. Smith, Graysville.

Truckers Warned Against Transporting Jail Goods

Violators of Ashurst-Sumners Law Are Liable to Thousand Dollars Fine and Confiscation of Shipments.

The Southern Garment Manufacturers' association, in connection with its campaign against prison-made goods, has called to the attention of trucking companies the illegality of transporting convict-made goods in contravention of the Ashurst-Sumners law enacted by the recent session of congress which prohibits the interstate transportation of such goods into states operating under the state use system. There are twenty-four of these states in which the law bans the sale on the open market of goods manufactured in their own prisons and also in the prisons of other states.

The Manufacturers' association points out that the statute prohibiting this traffic in prison-made goods is equally binding upon the transportation agencies and manufacturers, agents or contractors engaged in the sale and transportation of the prison products.

The Ashurst-Sumners law also provides that all goods manufactured wholly or in part by convict labor and shipped in interstate commerce shall be plainly marked so that the name and address of the shipper, the name and address of the consignee, the nature of the contents and the penal institution or reformatory where manufactured or produced may be readily ascertained on an inspection of the outside of the package in which the goods are shipped. Violation of the law is punishable by a fine of not more than $1,000, with the provision that the goods shall be forfeited to the United States.

Union Label Paragraphs That Tell in Few Words How Purchasing Power Can Be Used to Boost Labor Movement and Restore National Prosperity.

In a rage, a big corporation attorney asked the witness, "What is sabotage?"

A shoe worker was on the stand. He replied, "That's when the employer orders us to put one-half pasteboard in the sole of a shoe and——"

The attorney, still raging, cut off the witness by explaining his question. "I do not mean from an employer's standpoint—I mean from the employe's standpoint. Proceed!"

"Oh," said the employe, "sabotage is when the worker puts all leather in shoes when the boss orders him to use half pasteboard and——"

"Witness dismissed!" cried the red-faced lawyer.

You do not have to worry about pasteboard in your soles when you buy shoes which are stamped with a union label. You obtain the best material and the highest class of workmanship.

Meatcutters, Bosses To Throw Big Party Next Tuesday Night

Business Agent Mack Ball, Local 600, Meatcutters, announces that on Tuesday, Dec. 17, at the labor hall, members of his local and also their employers will have a good time together. Brother Ball says that there will be plenty of good sandwiches and refreshments, besides other forms of amusement.

T. R. Cuthbert and A. C. Kamin, secretary and president of Central Body, and H. G. B. King, labor attorney, will give very brief talks.

The festivities are slated to begin at 7:30, and all people in the craft are invited. Admission free.

MEMBER OF I. A. OF M. ELECTED MAYOR IN OHIO

Barberton, Ohio, has elected Brother Fred Marvin, a member of Local No. 607, as mayor for the next two years.

Brother Marvin, who was elected to this office, is at present treasurer of Local No. 607 and a charter member. He learned the trade in his early life, but has not always followed it, having been in the laundry business a number of years, and also the automobile business. But for the last seven years he has been back at the old trade, although not employed steadily. He is a staunch trade unionist and a firm believer in organized labor, realizing that the only hope of the laboring man to get his just share of the wealth he produces is through organization and the proper use of the ballot.

May his term of office be productive of his great ambitions.

The New Deal and the Postmaster

By T. R. Cuthbert

Last Sunday evening it was our pleasure to be thrilled along with thousands of others at the sight of President Roosevelt. In his few minutes of greeting, Mr. Roosevelt took occasion to give Congressman McReynolds a boost by intimating that the congressman kept under his heels trying to get something for Chattanoogans and better their conditions.

Congressman McReynolds, apparently, will run again for congress under the auspices of the new deal because he has been for most of its principles, among which is included new deal wages. Many members of organized labor are wondering if our congressman will in turn put a stamp of approval on his Chattanooga postmaster, who recently had a house built by non-union workers who, according to the postmaster, were recipients of his boundless charity.

Along with Postmaster Dennis, Chattanooga has many manufacturers who are openly anti-new deal, and who want to employ their help on a relief wage basis. Since organized labor does not appreciate relief wages, the Chattanooga Trades and Labor council has rightfully declared that, in its opinion, Mr. Dennis is "Unfair to Organized Labor."

Mr. Advertiser, This Should Mean Something to You

Think It Over!

"First Houses"

First houses, first new deal experiment in slum clearance in New York, was dedicated Dec. 3. It is a project of the New York Housing authority; and was built by government loans and relief labor.

"They told us we couldn't build with relief labor," said Langdon Post, head of the housing authority, "but we did." There are plenty of headaches and heartaches in those bricks (pointing to the building), but we have done it."

There might be less headache and heartache in the rehousing of America if we took a leaf out of the experience of Britain. The essence of the British law on slum clearance has been told before; but is worth telling again and again. The local authorities, after hearings, have power to declare any area a slum. When that declaration is made, all "improvements" on the land lose all value, except for salvage.

The government clears the area. If the salvage is more than the cost, the landlord gets a check for the difference. If the salvage brings less than the cost, the landlord writes a check for the difference in that direction. The land is appraised for its value for low-cost housing; and no speculative prices for other purposes are allowed.

England's climb, not complete but remarkable, has been made very largely by the home building route. Getting rid of the speculative profits in land, home building on a large scale becomes possible.

Not more than one-third of the families of this country are housed properly, according to American standards of living. A little of the work of rehousing has been done during the past year—and probably has accomplished more than anything else in improving business. But though progress is being made, it is too slow and too costly; for the landlords and the corporations which control building materials stand in the way and collect their toll.

We shall never, as a people, be properly housed until all obstacles are stripped away. Wisdom has been defined as the faculty of learning from the experience of others. That should be as true of nations as of individuals. In the matter of housing, it is high time that we as a people were "getting wise."

One Reason for Low Wages

In 1934, nine officials of General Motors collected $1,255,558 in salaries and bonuses. William S. Knudsen, who had the distinction some years ago of being fired by Ford, was top man in G. M., getting a total of $211,128, of which $120,000 was straight salary.

In the same year, wages of General Motors certainly averaged less than $1,000 a year. That is to say, nine officials cost the company as much as 1,255 workers.

Union-Made Goods Raise Workers' Living Standard, Morrison Says

Toilers Do Not Work "Under Sweatshop Conditions" in Making Products Carrying Union Labels, A. F. of L. Secretary Daclares.

Washington.—A strong argument for the purchase of union-made goods as a major implement to improve the living standards of the masses was made here by Frank Morrison, secretary of the American Federation of Labor, in a radio broadcast over Station WJSV under the auspices of the Washington Union Label league at the opening of the League's special campaign in the interest of articles made and services rendered by trade union members.

Mr. Morrison stressed the importance of union goods and services in improving the living standards of the workers and pointed out that union labels are used by a large number of the national and international unions affiliated with the A. F. of L.

"I have been requested to speak on the subject of union label products and union services," Mr. Morrison said. "I will, therefore, outline briefly the machinery that the American Federation of Labor and the national and international unions have perfected to assist and enable the purchasers of products to recognize articles or commodities that have been produced by union men and women.

Label Department Established.

"Over fifty years ago national and international unions adopted labels which were placed upon the finished product, which indicated to the buying public that all articles or commodities bearing a label were produced by members of those particular organizations.

"The American Federation of Labor in April, 1908, issued a charter to the Union Label Trades Department which consisted of national and international unions that use a label to distinguish the product of their union members from a product by non-union workers. The Union Label Trades Department was organized to aid and encourage the sale of union label goods. Today we have fifty national and international unions that are using labels, and ten issuing display cards, buttons and emblems.

"The Union Label Trades Department has councils in each city for the purpose of carrying on a continuous campaign of education to influence the people to ask for and purchase products that are produced under union conditions.

Sweatshop Conditions Abolished.

"The labels used by a national and international organization or the A. F. of L. on any products are a guarantee in itself that the workers who manufactured the articles or commodities are not working under sweatshop conditions.

"The union label councils in each city urge all those who desire to improve the conditions of the members of these particular national and international unions to demand of the manufacturers that the union label should be placed upon the articles that they are selling providing there is such a label in existence.

"The success of the demand by members of organized labor and their friends for commodities bearing the union label gradually and steadily increased the use of the label, and thus resulted in factory after factory being organized and the employers entering into a contract with the union so that they would be in a position to have a label upon their goods and commodities to sell to all purchasers that demanded and insisted upon the union label.

"If you desire to assist workers to improve their living conditions, purchase articles bearing the union label, which, in itself, is a guarantee that the articles were produced under fair working conditions. If there is no label used, then hire union men and women, which is a guarantee that you have competent workmen and that you are also assisting in improving the conditions of the members of organized labor.

Employ Union Contractors.

"When you need anyone to work for you arrange to secure the services of members of organized labor. The mere fact that they are members of a union is a guarantee that they are competent workers. For instance, if you have a building to erect or renovate arrange for the contractor to employ union men.

"A few months ago a party who had several houses to renovate insisted that her representative should let the contract, with the proviso that the contractor would employ union men to do the work.

"The agent who looked after the property said that it would cost more to do the work if she insisted upon union labor being employed instead of non-union labor. Then the party instructed her agent to request bids from union contractors, as well as non-union contractors. The result was that a union contractor, who employed union workers, was the lowest bidder and secured the contract to do the work.

"When you enter into a contract with a union contractor to do your work you know that all other union contractors are paying the union scale, while the non-union contractors compete with each other by hiring non-union men at the lowest rate they will accept and in nearly every case they have incompetent men to do their work.

"I, therefore, urge all who earnestly desire to be helpful in this campaign to purchase the products of union labor and employ members of organized labor whenever and wherever an opportunity presents itself to you."

GOVERNOR FIGHTS SALES TAX

St. Paul, Minn.—Gov. Floyd B. Olson, farmer-labor, declares that a Minnesota sales tax to raise old age pension funds would be a "penalty upon the needy, imposed in an endeavor to help the needy." Instead, he asked the legislature to finance the state's social security program by increasing taxes on iron ore, gross earnings, income and inheritances.

Building Trades Reach Agreement For Settling 18 Months' Dispute

1,250,000 Workers Involved—Convention Will Be Held in Washington on February 6 to Ratify Special Mediation Committee's Plan.

Green Says Provision for Settlement of Jurisdictional Disputes "Is of Deep Significance and of Tremendous Importance Not Only to Labor But to the Public as Well."

Washington.—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, announced that the nineteen building trades unions which have been separated into two groups for the past year and a half had settled their differences and had also agreed on a plan designed to secure the continuance of building trades work during disputes over jurisdiction.

The terms of the settlement were contained in a report made by the special mediation committee which the building trades groups set up to adjust the dispute.

Decision Pleases Green.

In announcing the adjustment of the controversy, Mr. Green said:

"A report from the representatives of building trades organizations of a full and complete settlement of all differences was submitted to the American Federation of Labor. The report embodies within it the details of the settlement arrived at. The provision relating to a plan for the settlement of jurisdictional disputes is of deep significance and of tremendous importance not only to labor but to the public as well.

"There will be general rejoicing among the membership of the organizations and universal approval on the part of contractors, builders and others closely associated with building construction, over the terms of the settlement and particularly the provision which provides for the orderly and just settlement of jurisdictional differences.

Craft Union Victory.

"The settlement is regarded as a great achievement. The nineteen craft unions composing the Building Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor have composed their differences, settled the most vexing internal and jurisdictitonal question which had ever arisen in the American Federation of Labor, and have demonstrated their ability to settle their own differences within the family of organized labor.

"They have made a complete answer to those who charge the craft unions with failure to settle jurisdictional disputes and to settle internal problems which seemed impossible of solution.

"This action of the Building Trades Department solidifies the American Federation of Labor, places it in an indestructible position and assures its establishment upon an enduring basis. It cannot be destroyed or permanently injured whether attacked by professing friends from within or open foes from without."

Mediation Committee's Report.

The report of the special mediation committee made public by Mr. Green follows:

"Representatives of nineteen craft unions comprising the powerful Building Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor met in Washington on Dec. 4, and composed all differences.

"At the same time, it was announced that a building trades convention will be held in Washington on Feb. 6.

"The understanding calls for a comprehensive plan for the settlement of jurisdictional disputes by referee within the organizations themselves. This plan by referee will be announced in full at the February convention.

"The announcement closes a controversy of eighteen months duration. Beginning at the San Francisco convention in September, 1934, the dispute grew in dimensions, found its way into the courts, and did not end until a special mediator appointed by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, effected a preliminary settlement at the 1935 Atlantic City convention in October.

United Front Is Achieved.

"Officials of the building trades unions were elated at the achievement of a united front in an industry where disputes have been frequent.

"'In my opinion, all differences have been ironed out,' declared Dan W. Tracy, international president of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, and chairman of the special mediation committee, 'and such machinery set up that will guarantee continued harmony. The building trades unions are prepared to meet all attacks from any source.'

"It was the opinion of L. P. Lindelof, Lafayette, In., president of the Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers and secretary of the special mediation committee, that 'an important new era had been opened in the long and honorable history of craft unionism.'

"The total membership of the nineteen craft unions involved is estimated at 1,250,000 workers.

"Besides Mr. Tracy and Mr. Lindelof, the special mediation committee was composed of William McSorley, president of the International Union of Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers; William Hutcheson, president of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America; M. J. Colleran, president of the Operative Plasterers and Cement Finishers' International association, and Harry C. Bates, president of the Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers' International union.

Harrison Plays Important Role.

"Shortly prior to the Atlantic City convention of the American Federation of Labor, President Green appointed George M. Harrison, president of the Railway Clerks and chairman of the Railway Labor Executives' association, as his special representative, to seek to effect a settlement. After prolonged negotiation, Mr. Harrison announced to the convention that an agreement had been reached. Thereupon the special mediation committee was appointed. The final settlement came after repeated meetings in Washington.

Building Trades Unions.

"The unions comprising the A. F. of L. Building Trades Department are: International Association of Heat and Frost Insulators and Asbestos Workers; International Brotherhood of Boiler Makers, Iron Ship Builders and Helpers of America; International Union of Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers of America; International Association of Bridge, Structural and Ornamental Iron Workers; United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America; International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers; International Union of Elevator Constructors; International Union of Operating Engineers; Granite Cutters' International association; International Hod Carriers, Building and Common Laborers' union; International Union of Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers; International Association of Marble, Slate, Stone Polishers, Rubbers and Sawyers, Tile and Marble Setters' Helpers; International Association of Sheet Metal Workers; Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers; International Association of Operative Plasterers and Cement Finishers; United Association of Journeymen Plumbers and Steamfitters; United Slate, Tile and Composition Roofers, Damp and Waterproof Workers' association; International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stablemen and Helpers."

Federal Judge Will Referee Disputes

In a statement amplifying the provision for the settlement of jurisdictional disputes in the building trades, Mr. Green said a federal district court judge will act as referee in cases where the unions involved are unable to reach an agreement.

He also pointed out that while the details of the settlement will be considered by the Building Trades Department convention on Feb. 6, it was understood that the president and secretary of the department will be chosen by Mr. Harrison from the list of secretaries and two presidents of the present groups so that each group will have one of the officers.

Union-mined coal, Union label shirts, hats, shoes, tobacco, cigarettes, printing and other goods are easily obtained simply because the demand for them has been so great dealers have realized the wisdom of handling them.

The average merchant has slight regard for sentiment in business. He wants to handle goods that move. Move the first consignment of union-made products for him and he will order the second at once.

CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

Edwin Markham speaks somewhere of "the long, long patience of the plundered poor," and a recent rereading of early American history shows that the patience is even longer than one thinks. Witness this:

"A man who performed what now would be called unskilled labor, who sawed wood, dug ditches, mended roads, mixed mortar, carried boards to the carpenter and bricks to the mason, usually received as the fruit of his daily toil two shillings. He became the envy of his fellows if, at the end of the week, he took home to his family 15 shillings.

"On such a pittance, it was only by the strictest economy that a mechanic kept his children from starvation and himself from jail. In the low dingy rooms which he called home, . . . sand on the floor did duty for carpets; there was no glass on his table, no prints on his walls. What a stove was, he didn't know; coal he had never seen, matches he had never heard of. Over a fire of fragments of boxes or barrels, lit by the spark from a flint or with live coals from a neighbor's fire, his wife cooked a rude meal and served it in pewter dishes. He rarely tasted fresh meat as often as once a week."

That is a picture of the lives of unskilled American workers shortly after the Revolution, in 1784. Just why men in such case should fight for liberty is rather hard to imagine. Some of them did it, however; perhaps it is another case of the triumph of hope over experience, as the French say of a second marriage. And this grim picture is drawn by John Bach McMaster; a clear-headed, tireless and usually accurate historian, who put down in his chronicles phases of life which more dainty recorders passed by on the other side.

The modern unskilled American workman—before the depression came—had a considerably better standard of living than his ancestors did in 1784. But it is easy to exaggerate the gain—and to whom does the worker owe that gain, such as it is?

To the philanthropy of his masters? Say rather of his master's neighbors; but the improvement which springs from that source is not spacious.

To the opening of the west, which gave the poor a chance to get land? That was worth much, though many of the good results it would have brought otherwise were offset by immigration.

To the development of science in industry? Again one must admit that this had some effect. Science enabled the worker to make so many things that the boss couldn't take all of them away—except under certain circumstances.

But all these "uplifting" forces left the cotton mill barons of 1932 prescribing a diet for their serfs on which four people could exist for a week on $1.60; a diet of corn meal and "sowbelly" and occasional beans. That is a piece of barbarism which 150 years of philanthropy, and land settlement and science could not erase—except with the help of labor unions; and there were few unions in the southern cotton mills in 1932.

The moral would seem to be that the plundered poor would better discard some of their long, long patience; and join with their fellows to fight for their rights.

Steamship Head Blocks Plan to Mediate Gulf Longshoremen's Strike

Houston, Tex. — Anti-union steamship executives here refused to accept mediation of the Gulf Coast dock workers strike by the board appointed by Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins. The strike was called by the International Longshoremen's association on Oct 11, following the refusal of the ship operators to make a new wages and hours agreement with the union.

The mediation board consists of Dr. George Stocking, professor of economics at the University of Texas; Assistant Secretary of Labor Edward F. McGrady, and Frank P. Douglas, an Oklahoma City attorney.

Dr. Stocking had announced a hearing by the board, with the information that it would be confined to the board members, the steamship men and representatives of the striking International Longshoremen's association.

The steamship executives told Dr. Stocking they would not meet in executive session with representatives of the Longshoremen's association.

Wages and Employment In Pennsylvania Gain

Philadelphia.—The number of wage earners in Pennsylvania manufacturing industries gained nearly 2 per cent and the amount of wage disbursements increased 7 per cent from the middle of September to the middle of October, according to indices prepared by the federal reserve bank of Philadelphia. The total number of employe-hours actually worked in about 90 per cent of the reporting factories also increased 8 per cent.

The trend in employment, payrolls and working hours has been upward since July and the rate of monthly increases in these items has been in line with the usual seasonal autumn increases. Gains have continued to be well diversified among individual industries.

The employment index in October was nearly 80, relative to the 1923-25 average or 7 per cent higher than a year ago. The payroll index was 69 or almost 21 per cent higher than in October, 1934.

Delaware manufacturing industries report declines from September to October in employment, payrolls and employe-hours, owing largely to decreases in food and tobacco products. Compared with a year ago, increases amounted to 3 per cent in employment, 4 per cent in payrolls and 7 per cent in working hours.

$339,171,211 Dividends Grabbed in Two Years by Standard Oil Stockholders

Who says prosperity hasn't returned—at least for those who own and control American industry? According to an analysis of recovery in the oil industry made by Carl H. Pforgheimer & Co., New York City, the cash dividend payments to stockholders of the Standard Oil group of oil companies are estimated at $170,078,682 for 1935 compared with $169,092,529 for 1934. The total cash dividend for the two years reach the tidy sum of $339,171,211.

But there is still another item in Standard Oil prosperity to be considered. In addition to cash payments, the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey passed out to its stockholders on March 15 last a stock dividend of 1,339,345 shares of the Mission corporation, owned by the New Jersey company, which had a market value when distributed of about $13,206,000, which swells the total dividend payments during this year to $168,284,682, or $14,192,153 more than in the preceding year.

Of course, most of the useful work in extracting oil from the bowels of the earth, refining it, transporting it and selling it, as well as most of the used work in manufacturing the many articles produced by the Standard Oil company, is performed by the employes. But their share in the renewed prosperity is a bagatelle compared with the millions of dollars appropriated by the stockholders. The Standard Oil companies are noted for imposing upon their employes various forms of the notorious company union, outlawed by the Wagner-Connery labor disputes act, and by this action have thrown their influence against the organization of Standard Oil employes in bona fide trade unions, which are the major instruments used by the workers in securing wage increases.

It used to be that if you had no good reasons for doing a thing, you had to invent a slogan. Now if you have a sound cause, you've got to find a sanction.

LABOR RELATIONS ACT DEFENDED BY MADDEN

Workers' Right to Organize Must Be Backed by Law, Federal Board Chairman Says.

New York.—The fundamental principles of the Wagner-Connery labor disputes act, guaranteeing the rights of workers to organize in bona fide trade unions and bargain collectively, with drastic inhibitions against employers interfering with, restraining, or coercing employes in the exercise of these rights, were vigorously defended by J. Warren Madden, chairman of the national labor relations board, charged with the enforcement of the act, in an address here before a luncheon meeting of the National Association of Manufacturers, an organization of employers notoriously known for its opposition to effective grouping of workers in labor unions.

Mr. Madden bluntly told the anti-union group that "[illegible] to organize is an empty privilege without [illegible]."

Employers Block Union Organization.

In connection with the [illegible] number of workers that have [illegible] in strikes, Mr. Madden pointed this fact "proves that there are forces at work which nullify the right which was so completely recognized by so high a legal authority as the late Chief Justice Taft, who ruled that labor unions were necessary because a single employe is helpless in dealing with an employer."

"The active administration of our law has now been going on for several weeks," he continued. "The evidence in many cases has indicated that the congress was not in error when it supposed that there was, in some quarters, serious and effective obstruction of the right of self-organization, and that such obstruction constituted an imminent threat to industrial peace and the free flow of commerce.

"In many cases our regional directors have been able to convince employers of the wisdom and desirability of the standards set by our law, and to obtain complete compliance without any formal hearing. We regard such work as of first-rate importance. Such employers have the immediate satisfaction of having no further worry as to whether our law is within the powers of the state government or the federal government or the government. They have no more interest in it than you or I have in [illegible] pending as to whether [illegible] automobile stealing is interstate commerce. In some communities we find apparent evidence that certain busybodies, in order to [illegible] their communities of their [illegible], are teaching employers how to evade the law."

"THEY'VE KILLED THREE"--!

New Orleans, La. — Down on the docks, where longshoremen are on strike. A man hopped from a taxi, started toward the water front as if he owned the place.

A company guard, uniformed like a chauffeur, stopped him. "Where you going, Mister?"

"Want to have a look at the water front. I'm from the north, a tourist, and I'd like to see what it looks like."

On the guard a "billy" and a revolver showed plainly.

"Nope. You're not going down there. 'Taint safe. Those damned scabs don't know their business. They've killed three men already. You're not going down there."

The tourist went away. Cargo loaded by unskilled scabs, using hoisting machinery and heavy swings about which they know next to nothing, make the docks about as safe as Ethiopia.

Press Industry Is Now 100% Union

Machinists Gain Complete Recognition When Duplex Co. Signs Agreement.

The International Association of Machinists now has 100 per cent. recognition in the printing press manufacturing industry.

The union crossed the last hurdle this week when the Duplex Printing Press company, Battle Creek, Mich., formally agreed to accept the I. A. of M. as the collective bargaining agency for all of its machinists. All of the other big companies were already doing business with the union.

It was also agreed that the company will reinstate all employes who have been discharged because of their labor activities. The firm deposited sufficient funds with the Machinists' Union to pay the discharged men for the time they were out of work.

Sweeping Victory.

This is a sweeping victory for not only the Machinists' Union but also for the Wagner-Connery act.

The union had filed charges with the National Labor Relations Board, alleging that the company was violating the Wagner-Connery act by interfering with the employes' right to organize and was discriminating against union workers.

After an investigation, the Detroit regional office of the NLRB issued a formal complaint against the Duplex management and was preparing to try the case when the company agreed to settle.

Burlington Engine Workers Vote Strongly for Walkout

Chicago.—More than 1,700 engineers and firemen of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad voted to strike if the railroad did not place two men instead of one in the cabs of their stream-lined trains and electric switch engines, it was announced here.

Results of the strike poll taken by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen were announced by J. P. Farrell, vice-president of the organization.

More than the required two-thirds majority of the voters approved the strike, Farrell said.

The way was left open for further negotiations with the company. The vote indicated, however, that the Burlington firemen and engineers stand behind the position taken by their officials.

A statement issued by Farrell said: "A favorable vote very largely in excess of the required two-thirds majority to call a strike has been authorized. In a communication just forwarded to the management of the company advice has been given regarding the result of the vote taken, and also an expression of our own willingness to again confer with representatives of the company for the purpose of negotiating a satisfactory settlement of the involved dispute."

LABOR QUERIES

Q.—How many unions have membership in the Building Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor?

A.—Nineteen.

Q.—Is the move by labor for the six-hour day a development of the depression years?

A.—Labor has seen the movement coming for many years. In 1919, the American Federation of Labor convention declared that many unions doubtless soon would demand the six-hour day and the Executive Council was directed to give help to all such organizations.

Union Will Push Great Campaign For Textile Bill

U. T. W. Executive Council Scores Business Attacks and Acts to Show Congress Need of Proposed Law.

New York City.—An immediate campaign in all parts of the United States in support of the proposed national textile act was voted by the United Textile Workers of America executive council, meeting here. The general officers, executive council members and organizers will address mass meetings to call forcibly to the attention of Congress the necessity for immediate passage of the legislation.

Commenting on the opposition directed at the textile bill by the National Manufacturers' association, President Thomas F. McMahon said that this, in itself, should be sufficient proof of the need of Congress to take action—that the organization is well aware of the methods being used by the reactionaries and leaders of Big Business against the working people of the United States, and the money being spent for detective agencies and other services, in an effort to destroy the trade union movement.

Labor to Accept Challenge

He said that labor would accept the challenge—that the consciousness of the people is aroused by the despicable tactics being used, and they will not be fooled by the same type of hypocritical preachments coming from Big Business; and that when the real condition in the textile industry is reported to Congress, showing the breakdown of wages, hours and other working standards, the National Manufacturers' association and the leaders in the textile industry will have some explaining to do.

The executive council endorsed the Committee on Industrial Organization recently established in Washington.

Secession Report Denied

A statement published in the South that the United Textile Workers of America would leave the American Federation of Labor on account of this issue was denied by Francis J. Gorman, vice-president of the union. He termed it another trick to divide the labor movement and hurt the workers' cause.

The question of government loans and contracts to industry was also discussed at length by the council. Protests from all parts of the country and criticisms of the policy of making loans to mills that fight the union and destroy working standards were received. The officials of the United Textile Workers have discussed this question in Washington, and were told that nothing could be done in regard to these loans, and that government contracts would go to the lowest bidder, regardless of conditions. The general officers of the union will file a written protest, including sentiments expressed by the executive council.

Vice-President's Report

Organizational activities were reported by the vice-presidents. (Vice-President William F. Kelley, in charge of the middle Atlantic district; John A. Peel, in charge of the Southern district; Joseph R. White in charge of New York, and Horace A. Riviere in charge of the New England district.) Plans were agreed upon to bring into the union the unorganized textile workers.

Vice-President Francis J. Gorman announced that the union expects a public hearing on the textile bill in January, and that the officers of the various departments in the United Textile Workers would report on conditions in their branch of the industry.

Johnson City Notes

Mr. O. S. Tislow, of Tulsa, Okla., representative of the Painters' and Decorators' international organization, spent last week in this city in the interest of his organization. This is the second visit from Mr. Tislow in this city in the past two months, and officials of the Johnson City Central Labor union are glad to report that organization work in the Painters is progressing nicely.

After protests were made by the Johnson City Central Labor union for the unfair attitude of the commanding officers of CCC Camp No. 2427 at Kingsport, Tenn., a special investigator for the administration at Washington, T. J. McVay, spent some time in this territory, his report was made direct to the CCC administrator at Washington, and last week Johnson City was advised by Lieut.-Col. J. B. Conyers, of Fort Oglethorpe, Georgia, district investigator for the war department, has been in this city getting affidavits in regard to conditions at the said camp. Officials of the Johnson City Central Labor union co-operated with Col. Conyers in securing the information that he desired from local men and from ex-service men at the camp.

Still fighting the unfair manager of the local theaters, Majestic, State and Liberty, the Moving Picture Operators of this city are active. Last week the local operators handed the musicians a "road call" and they refused to go on, remaining at Bristol playing at a local cafe in that city. The manager of the local house published statements in the local press stating that the orchestra was so far away they could not reach this city in time to play, when in fact they were only twenty miles away. Some actors of the show refused to go on with their acts without the regular musicians. And were the customers disgusted?

Elizabethton.—Watauga Teachers' Federation Local No. 405, of the American Federation of Teachers in Carter county last week presented to the trustee of the county, Frank H. Anderson, a resolution that he supplement the regular monthly payments to the teachers with county funds to the extent of $75 per teacher.

The resolution, which was signed by a committee of the teachers' organization, were Wiley Hardin, chairman; B. R. Howard, Arthur Crumley, Vernon Elliott and Joe Taylor, follows:

"Whereas, the teachers of Carter county have received no cash payment from said county for their services thus far this school year; and, whereas, a sizable surplus, payable said services has accumulated from tax payment and other sources;

"Whereas, the teachers of Carter county are in great need of a substantial payment to aid them financially during the Christmas season; therefore, be it

"Resolved, that the executive council of the Watauga Teachers Federation No. 405, in extra session, Saturday, Nov. 30, 1935, hereby goes on record as requesting Frank H. Anderson, trustee of Carter county, to supplement the regular payment of thirty ($30) dollars for high school teachers and forty ($40) dollars for elementary teachers, which is paid by the state, with funds to be taken from the aforementioned surplus to the extent of at least seventy-five ($75) dollars per teacher, and that they shall receive such payment on or before the date of the next regular pay day."

LOW INTEREST FOR FARMERS

Warm Springs, Ga. — Representatives of a group of farmers who called on President Roosevelt here said the president regarded favorably legislation making 3½ per cent. the maximum interest on farm loans made by the government.

GOVERNOR FIGHTS SALES TAX.

St. Paul.—Gov. Floyd B. Olson, farmer-labor, declares that a Minnesota sales tax to raise old-age pension funds would be a "penalty upon the needy, imposed in an endeavor to help the needy." Instead, he asked the legislature to finance the state's social security program by increasing taxes on iron ore, gross earnings, income and inheritances.

COPPER MINERS' PAY RAISED

Calumet, Mich. — The Calumet & Helce Consolidated Copper company announced an approximate 11½ per cent. increase in wages, effective Dec. 1. The company is Michigan's largest copper producer. More than 1,400 men are affected.

The League of Nations has filled the world with sanctions. Slogans get us into wars and now sanctions are going to take us out.

Sanctions mean authoritative confirmations. What America needs is some sanctions right here at home. The union label is the authorized symbol of labor unions. Let's look for it.

Wouldn't it be glorious and grand if the 100 per cent Americans bought only American-made goods!

TEACHER TALK

LOCAL 246, A. F. of T.

CONSTITUTION REQUIRES DUES INVESTIGATION

The constitution of Local 246 requires that the executive committee investigate and make recommendations to the board of directors at its January meeting concerning all members who are delinquent with dues.

The board of directors will determine whether or not said members will be dropped from the rolls.

It is hoped that those who have not paid their dues in full will do so before the Christmas vacation period. This is important since the board of directors meets on the first Monday in January, which is the day schools will reopen following the holiday vacation.

CITY SALARY SUIT

The city commission is now holding conferences at which the teachers' salary situation is the main item for consideration. It is hoped that some equitable solution will result from the conferences. In the meantime the executive committee will probably order the suit filed immediately. If a fair solution is arrived at, the suit will be withdrawn. If the solution is not arrived at, the suit will be well on its way without having lost any time.

GENERAL MEETING APPROVES MEASURES

Unanimous agreement was achieved at the general federation meeting Saturday, Dec. 7, on the following two main points: (1) The permanent labor conference for political action was indorsed, and Stanton E. Smith and C. C. Burgner were named delegates to it; (2) the position taken by the executive committee on the city salary issue was approved.

Results of the vote on the proposed amendment to the constitution of the A. F. of T. were read. The vote was 300 to 1 for the amendment. (J. B. Campbell denies the charge that he was the one who cast the sole dissenting vote. Mus've been someone else.)

OUR ORDER OF THE OLD SOUTH

Story and song proclaim that eloquence of the orators of the Old South. Their mighty tones could run the gamut of their emotions, and could carry their hearers with them. The Calhouns, Haynes and O'Gradys have passed on. Many of those who carry on their traditions in form and manner use their eloquence for unworthy ends, such as false patriotism and the defense of reaction.

But members of Local 246 know at least one orator of the vintage of the Old South who will use his talent to further the ends of decency, justice and progress. The orator is Mr. Guy M. Swingley.

When Mr. Swingley arises to speak in a union meeting, his hearers know that there is something more than a superb art of expression in his eloquence; they know that what Mr. Swingley says is based on sincere and intelligent conviction.

Mr. Swingley has had every opportunity to be the company union type of school man. But though he is secure in his position and his salary is relatively high, he throws his full energies into the fight for tenure and equitable salaries. He identifies his interests with the least influential and lowest salaried teachers, in order that teachers of today and tomorrow may not see and suffer the injustices that he has seen in the past.

Younger teachers are fortunate in having Mr. Swingley for a leader and an example.

DID YOU KNOW—

1. Ten cents per day paid by every person of voting age in the United States would pay the entire bill for public education?

2. Aside from the labor press, labor has no real friends in the field of journalism?

3. Knox county has raised its tax rate for schools 14 cents on the hundred dollars of assessed property. According to press reports, the board of education has restored all cuts previously made in the teacher salary schedule.

(From Tennessee Teacher, Oct., 1935.)

HAMILTON BANK'S CHRISTMAS CLUBS DISTRIBUTE CASH

The consuming power of hundreds of citizens of Chattanooga was increased in a big way last week, according to O. U. Dykes, of the Hamilton National bank. Mr. Dykes said that the Christmas savings clubs started last year began issuing their checks on Dec. 3, and that in Chattanooga $118,000 was turned loose in this way, most of which will be spent with Chattanooga merchants.

Christmas savings clubs are not profitable to banks, Mr. Dykes said, but they teach people to be thrifty and saving. The Hamilton bank is ready to start Christmas savings accounts for the coming year, and members of organized labor will be welcomed to take part in this form of preparation for Christmas next year.

PUBLIC OWNERSHIP ADOPTED.

Paris, Tenn.—Following a referendum favoring a $300,000 bond issue for a publicly owned distribution system, Paris city officials took steps to finalize a contract for electric power with the Tennessee Valley Authority.

Now is the time to put an embargo on unfair and foreign goods and make America safe for Americans.

Among the Union Label league sanctions is the demand that each member buy union-made goods and services.

MORE ABOUT BIG BUSINESS

branches of the industry, will be pushed by the United Textile Workers of America in conjunction with other big labor groups.

The stabilization bill is being carried over from the last session, and it is one of the points on which the workers of the country will face the massed industrial and banking strength of the country.

In the course of the session the Supreme Court is expected to hand down decisions in a large number of cases that have been brought in the courts to knock out "New Deal" and recovery legislation. These decisions, if they hold that such measures as the Agricultural Adjustment, the social security, the public utility regulation, and the Wagner labor board act, are unconstitutional, will intensify the issues facing Congress.

Constitutional Changes Loom Big

Certain it is that adverse decisions will bring up to the forefront the question of constitutional changes. It is entirely likely anyway that a proposal will be advanced early in the session to ask the states to ratify an amendment to the constitution providing that the federal government shall have power to regulate the processes of production, manufacture and distribution to the extent necessary to supervise working conditions, control of child labor and to safeguard fair trade practices.

This would be an amendment merely to the commerce clause of the constitution, which says now in substance that the federal government shall have power "to regulate commerce . . . among the several states."

The knocking out of the Agricultural Adjustment Act will give Congress one of its biggest problems. Practically every one outside of the ranks of Big Business itself recognizes, and is not slow to acknowledge, that the backbone of business recovery this year is due to the increased buying power of the rural population, and further, that if the structure of farm prices should collapse, much if not all of the recovery gains would vanish.

Short Session Not Expected

Wages in some industries have advanced, and there is a larger measure of employment, but the vast army of unemployed that still waits to enter the ranks of private industry gives certain indication that the recovery gains of this year are not due, either in whole or in large measure, to increased buying power of industrial workers alone.

The President would like to see a short session, with a brief legislative program stripped down to non-controversial essentials. But not even the most optimistic congressional leader expects anything of the kind.

Big Fellows Block Majority

Whether some agency will be created to carry on the basic principles of NRA, but probably under a new name, remains to be seen. The question of fair trade practices and elimination of cut-throat competition is closely tied up to the issue of the 30-hour week, and it is rather hard to see how there can be one without the other.

There is strong indication that a majority of the industrial leaders of the country would like to see the fair trade practices of the NRA preserved, but under the bludgeoning of the big industrial leaders and the banking interests, few of them have been brave enough to say so. How to encourage legislation of this nature, thus closing the door to cut-throat competition, without at the same time taking a clubbing from the rampaging anti-New Dealers in their ranks, is the problem that faces every one of them.

Terrorism Maintains "Unity"

If there is fighting resistance to the whole recovery program on the battle front of industry, there is likewise terrorism within their own ranks to maintain the appearance of a united front.

This feeling, like a seething caldron, is going to be dumped right into Congress this winter, and whether Congress would escape it or not, it is going to make one of the most momentous sessions that have ever been held.

him from combining with his fellows into a union the law is only mocking him when it tells him he has the right of self-organization."

Libel on Fathers.

The contention that the constitution prevents congress from passing legislation to relieve the helplessness of workers in dealing with employers, Madden said, is "an unjustified libel against the constitutional fathers."

Answering the allegation of "open shop" employers that the Wagner-Connery act "is in violation of the constitutional guaranty of free speech," Madden declared:

"The thought apparently is that if an employer can't say 'You're fired!' whenever he feels like saying it, his constitutional freedom of speech has been curtailed. By the same argument, a legal warning to one that he must not cry 'Fire' in a crowded theater would violate a precious constitutional privilege."

Bosses Switch Position.

When the question of what is or is not interstate commerce is raised, employers change sides according to their immediate interests, Madden said, pointing out that the same industries which are now claiming they are not "interstate" were the ones which "sought injunctions against strikers under the Sherman anti-trust law and the Clayton act, claim-that that the interruption of their businesses affected interstate commerce."

Employers, he declared who are complying with the decent labor standards set by the Wagner-Connery act are not worrying over whether the law "is within the proper powers of state governments, the federal government or no government" any more "than you and I do over whether kidnaping or automobile stealing is interstate commerce."

SEES NRA COMEBACK.

New Orleans.—"The principles bebind the NRA will ultimately come back and be put into effect by the United States" in spite of the supreme court's decision against the Blue Eagle, it was predicted here this week by the Rev. Charles C. Champman, professor of money and banking at Loyola university.

"No," said the union man to the company "union" stool pigeon, "I haven't anything up my sleeve, but I have a union label in my pocket."

Workers' wives can do their bit in establishing better conditions for labor by joining the union label-buying army.

Stop the pocket-picking racket of chiselers by adopting the pay-envelope filling process of buying under the union label, shop card and button.

Buying articles with union labels on them is the best guarantee that the money spent for them will return to the American workers' pay envelope.

'OPEN SHOPS' GANG UP ON BERRY'S MEET

GOVERNMENT'S JOB-MAKING PARLEY SNAGGED BY BOSSES

Labor Only Group to Offer Full Cooperation in Move to Speed Recovery.

BIG BUSINESS GROWS ARROGANT

Carefully-Laid Plot to Steal Meeting Fails—Berry Will Form Council.

Two highly significant facts were demonstrated at the conference of industrial and labor representatives held in Washington Monday and Tuesday. They were:

1. Big business will not co-operate with the government in a program to eliminate unemployment and maintain decent labor and business standards.

2. Organized labor is the only group which has a definite program to bring about lasting recovery.

The antagonism of big business, clearly apparent for weeks before the conference, reached its height shortly after the parley convened when representatives of "open shop" industries tried to seize control of the meeting and turn it into a medium for denouncing any move that sought to put a curb on predatory interests.

Labor Co-operates.

Spokesmen for every industry and every labor organization and consumers' associations had been invited to the conference which was called by George L. Berry, President Roosevelt's co-ordinator for industrial cooperation, to discuss methods of speeding up recovery and abolishing unemployment.

Labor and the consumers responded 100 per cent to the government's request. None of the large anti-union industries, such as steel, automobiles, lumber, textiles, etc., did.

The latter either sent no representatives at all to the conference or had them there as "undercover" men to block any attempt made by the government to secure co-operation.

Berry Explains Program.

Approximately 2,000 persons were present when Co-ordinator Berry opened the meeting in the new federal auditorium. He explained the program, which called for the delegates dividing into smaller groups, each representing specific industries or sub-divisions of industries. These groups, he said, would decide what recommendations they wished to make and choose spokesmen to present them at a "round table" discussion.

Out of this "round table," there might be formed a permanent industrial council composed of employer and labor representatives.

After making these announcements, Berry adjourned the meeting to give an opportunity for the various groups to organize. It was at this point that the "open shoppers" tried to seize control.

Leaping to a chair, A. P. Haake, secretary of the National Furniture Manufacturers' association, shouted:

"I nominate John W. O'Leary (head of the Machinery and Allied Products Institute and a former president of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce) to continue this meeting. All those in favor say 'Aye.' The ayes have it and Mr. O'Leary is nominated as chairman.

A negative vote was not called for. It was the same kind of tactics used in the lowest form of ward machine politics.

Berry, however, refused to be railroaded.

"The proposal is out of order," he said.

Radio Operators' Convention Urges CTU Affiliation

Members of Telegraphists' Organization to Take Referendum Vote on Proposal, With Approval Seen Certain.

Chicago.—Affiliation of members of the American Radio Telegraphists' association into the Commercial Telegraphers' union is expected to be voted by referendum in the next few months. A convention of the A. R. T. A. has unanimously voted to recommend such affiliation in a referendum vote, following conferences in October with a committee of the Commercial Telegraphers' union, and again during the Telegraphists' convention the first week of December with President Frank B. Powers of the C. T. U.

The referendum vote will not be counted until April 15, 1936, owing to the time which is required for the members of A. R. T. A. who are at sea to be polled, but with the unanimous support of delegates from every section of the country, it is regarded as certain the convention's recommendations will be ratified.

The Commercial Telegraphers' union has agreed that if the vote is favorable the A. R. T. A. will be affiliated as a radio department with the same autonomy which other subordinate units are entitled to under C. T. U. laws. Each officer and member would be obliged to sign the C. T. U. obligation and be amenable to and perform all duties specified in the constitution.

The jurisdiction of the radio department would not include Canada, which leaves Canadian Marconi Division 59 with its present direct affiliation to the International. The department will consist of the Marine, Point-to-Point Airways, and Broadcast divisions. The details of jurisdiction over the Broadcast division, however, remains to be worked out with the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

Arrangements for the transfer of A. R. T. A. members into the C. T. U. are included in the agreement. The present official organ of the A. R. T. A. is to be incorporated in the Commercial Telegraphers' Journal under the editorship of Editor Allen, but with a sub-editor selected by the Radio Department.

The successful conclusion of negotiations between C. T. U. and A. R. T. A., which seems assured, will bring into the C. T. U. a group of young, aggressive workers who have been able to improve the condition of radio operators to a considerable extent in the last three years. In some cases wages have been increased over 100 per cent and hours reduced to eight from anywhere between twelve and 24. Between 2,000 and 3,000 marine, broadcast and point-to-point airways operators are affected by the affiliation.

MOTHER OF JOHN COTTER DIES SUDDENLY

Trades unionists of Chattanooga were grieved to hear that John Cotter's mother passed away early Wednesday morning.

Mrs. Cotter was 76 years of age, and was the mother of one of the staunchest union men in Hamilton county, John Cotter, at present plumbing inspector for the city of Chattanooga and old-timer in the Plumbers and Steamfitters local union.

Mrs. Cotter is survived by two other sons, Hugh and Will Cotter.

Services will be held Friday morning at SS. Peter and Paul church.

Arbitration Board Finds Paper Fired Men for Union Membership

Newark, N. J.—An arbitration committee has ruled that eight employes dismissed by the Newark Ledger in November, 1934, were discharged because of affiliation with the Newark Newspaper guild.

The committee, comprising Circuit Judge Edwin C. Caffrey, Prof. Edward Fuhlbruegge, of Dana college, and John J. Clancy, an attorney representing the newspaper, was set up last March 28 under an agreement that ended the guild strike against the paper.

Under the decision, the dismissed employes are entitled to reinstatement as of March 28, with pay to May 20, when the Ledger was dismissed from trusteeship.

State Unemployment Insurance Not Help For Workers Now Idle

New York Labor Commissioner Emphasizes New Law Is Safeguard Against Idleness in Future But Is No Solution of Present Problem — Declares Act Not Heavy Burden.

Albany, N. Y.—Replying to employer attacks on New York's unemployment insurance law, State Industrial Commissioner Elmer E. Andrews denied in a speech here that the law will impose heavy burdens on employers and consumers.

Commissioner Andrews said that the new law, passed by the last legislature, will in no way help those now unemployed and that it is intended as a safeguard against future unemployment. He spoke before the New York State Highway Chapter. Associated General Contractors of America, Inc., saying in part:

"The unemployment insurance law is the most important and far-reaching single piece of labor and social legislation to be enacted by the state of New York in more than 20 years, or since the enactment of the workmen's compensation law. The unemployment insurance law extends protection even farther than the workmen's compensation law, in that every worker is more exposed to the hazard of unemployment than he is to the hazard of physical injury in industry.

To Relieve Charity

"Affording this wider protection, the unemployment insurance law may be relied upon to relieve public and private charity of some of the burdens now imposed upon them by industrial hazards. Thus the law provides a degree of protection to every man, woman and child in the state whether he or she is engaged in industry or not.

"It means that in a measure each individual's share of the burden of public and private charity will be reduced. It means that industry will assume more fully its responsibility for the economic hazards it imposes upon its workers. It means that the public's subscription to this industrial stabilization will be distributed in such minute installments through the years as to be unnoticed, and when unemployment does afflict a workman there

WHARTON VISIONS HIGH STANDARDS THROUGH UNIONS

Organization Held the Only Method of Attaining Benefits of Producing Power.

Instead of having millions of unemployed and destitute families in America, the nation could, through the sensible use of its producing power, provide every family with a $4,370-a-year living standard, President A. O. Wharton, of the International Association of Machinists, declared in a coast-to-coast radio speech last week.

Speaking over the Columbia Broadcasting system on a program sponsored by the workers' education bureau in co-operation with the national advisory council on radio in education, Wharton scored present conditions as "not only deplorable but unnecessary."

The solution, he said, is organization of workers into strong labor unions with effective bargaining power.

Can't Rely on Bosses.

"Our" Chamber of Commerce

AN EDITORIAL
By T. R. Cuthbert

"Our" Chamber of Commerce, that great organization of "civic boosters" (God help us!) flings another insult at the working people of Chattanooga, and in doing so, reveals its true character, which is composed in the main of greed, brutality and lust for power.

In a prospectus which it has just broadcast to northern and eastern industrialists, it sings its siren song of CHEAP LABOR. It describes southern labor, particularly Chattanooga labor, as being "tractable," and, by coming to the south, the northern industrialist is not in danger of unions. Our dictionary defines tractable as follows: "easily led or controlled; manageable; docile; readily worked or handled."

Only a few months ago, these same Chattanooga ployes were not tractable. That was before NRA was abolished. These employers either lied six months ago, or they are lying now to northern capitalists in an effort to lure them here.

The propaganda under discussion also quotes wage rates which are supposed to prevail here. These wages represent the dregs, and if the chamber wants consolation from them, they alone will chortle in fiendish glee over suffering human beings.

Is there no shame to the chamber of commerce? How can a self-respecting person in any section of the country truly or falsely advertise his own people as being dumb, insipid and inferior sort of humanity?

What a wonderful prospectus this chamber could write for a penitentiary! The inmates of that sort of institution are really tractable. There's really cheap labor for you! And everyone knows that the warden and the convict "speak the same language," which the chamber declares is the case in southern plants wherein the worker and the mill superintendent "understand each other."

This chamber of commerce overlooked one of its best arguments to demonstrate it has cheap labor here. They should have reminded the northern capitalist that the industrialists of Tennessee were successful in defeating ratification of the child labor amendment; everyone knows that a small child that should be in the kindergarten or in the cradle is really cheap—and tractable no end.

A merry Christmas to the minions of the southern industrialist!

ROCHESTER LABOR FIGHTS WPA WAGE

Rochester, N. Y.—Organized workers here are fighting WPA "security wages" and are demanding payment of prevailing rates of wages.

One hundred truckmen refused to work on WPA projects in Rochester and Monroe county until their demands for increased hourly pay were met. All trucks used on WPA work were tied up, truckers said.

Union labor leaders on their round of projects said 123 skilled mechanics were on strike at eight projects, mostly in city schools. WPA said 700 mechanics still were working. Unions threaten to continue their efforts until all skilled labor projects are halted.

LABOR COMPLAINT FILED AGAINST MOTOR CONCERN

Washington, D. C.—The American Federation of Labor is filing a complaint with the National Labor Relations Board against the Motor Products Corporation of Detroit.

Charlton Ogburn, A. F. of L. counsel, said he was preparing the complaint at the request of Francis J. Dillon, international president of the United Automobile Workers of America. Dillon came here with Loren Housner, Detroit local president.

Dillon and Housner conferred with Department of Labor officials and with A. F. of L. President Green.

Meanwhile Joseph Daylor and Thomas Parry, representatives of the Automobile Industrial Workers' association and the Mechanics' Educational Society of America, sought conferences with union and Department of Labor officials.

Take It or Leave It!

Items of More or Less Interest Picked Up From Various Sources

CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

Mussolini's conquest of Ethiopia is not going according to schedule. The censorship, drastic and with long experience, keeps back everything it can, and suppresses all details and explanations. But a few items of significance manage to escape.

For example, Mussolini has changed generals. The man whom he picked to lead a parade march through northeast Africa has not delivered the goods; and even the fascist press thought it necessary to explain that the Ethiopian campaign was being reorganized. The Italian armies are not advancing anywhere, and at two points, it is fairly certain that they have retired, even if one discounts the Ethiopian stories at least 80 per cent.

But the most significant facts relate to the embargo, as yet barely started, which the league powers are laying on war exports to Italy. Statements which seem authentic say that Italy already is feeling the shortage of oil, and that a month's effective stoppage of oil would bring Mussolini to his knees. Double that period; and the feeling in Rome must be distinctly uncomfortable.

Which is another evidence that war is an industry that requires a world commerce, or carefully prepared substitutes for it. Italy has fewer natural war resources than any other great power; she lacks coal, oil and iron. The United States is the most fortunate of nations in this respect; yet even we have our weak spots.

Taking metals alone, we have no dependable supply of vanadium; yet vanadium steel is unmatched for resistance to severe and repeated strains. We could—though we don't—produce about half the tungsten we need. Tungsten steel retains its hardness at high temperatures. It is estimated that one man with tungsten steel high speed tools can do more work than five men with other tools. Of manganese, again used in steel making, we have not more than 10 per cent of what we need; and our lack of tin is so complete that Barney Baruch wants to buy and store 2,000,000 tons of steel as a war measure.

If war that interrupted our imports would be thus tough on us, what would it be like for Italy?

New terroristic sentences against German trade unionists have been pronounced by the Nazi tribunal in Hamburg. Five workers have been sentenced to terms ranging from two to four years at hard labor and deprived of their civic rights. The defendants were accused of having distributed anti-Nazi propaganda and periodicals sent to them from labor headquarters at Copenhagen, Denmark.

The extreme nervousness of the Nazi dictatorship is indicated by the threats of the prosecuting attorney, Behr, who stated that "this infernal propaganda" must be stopped at all costs and that if necessary "the heads of such criminals would be laid before their feet."

The same court sentenced twenty-seven defendants to terms ranging from two to five years at hard labor. The defendants, all of them workers, were accused of having distributed an illegal newspaper and other anti-Nazi literature smuggled across the border.

workers the prosperity which is possible through full utilization of our resources," Wharton pointed out.

"This is not because of any lack of humanitarianism in employers, but because their dominant interest in workers is not welfare, but profit.

"It is only through effective organization that workers can make possible a wage consistent with their capacity to produce. It is the right of workers to strive for such a wage; a duty they owe to their families and to society. A lesser wage means inefficient operation of our social and economic institutions and periodic collapse."

Wharton cited some startling figures obtained during various surveys made recently by research organizations.

Princes and Paupers.

For instance, during the heyday of 1929 "prosperity," there were 36,000 rich families whose annual income was almost as much as the total received by 11,653,000 families which were receiving less than $1,500 a year.

In addition, he said, there were 19,000,000 families who could not afford to buy enough food to provide what the U. S. department of agriculture has declared is necessary for a liberal diet. Several million families couldn't have bought this diet if they had spent their entire income on food, Wharton emphasized.

FLOGGINGS MAY COST FLORIDA AFL CONVENTION

Green Outraged by Violence of Tampa Business Men. Demands Punishment.

Unless the state of Florida punishes members of a mob which, on Nov. 30, beat three workers so badly that one of them died, the A. F. of L. may change its plans to hold its 1936 convention at Tampa, President William Green, of the A. F. of L., declared Wednesday.

Substitution of another convention city for one already chosen would be an unprecedented action. Delegates at each annual meeting pick the place for the meeting the following year. The federation's executive council, however, has authority to make a shift.

Green, thoroughly shocked and aroused by reports of the mobbing of workers at Tampa, said "it is altogether probable" that Tampa will be scratched off the A. F. of L.'s list unless Florida authorities act promptly to punish the mobsters.

Represented Idle Workers.

The three vicitims were members of the Workers' Alliance of America, an organization for unemployed workers. It is not affiliated with the A. F. of L.

The men are said to have been arrested for "questioning" and then released to fall into the hands of a mob of business men. Dispatches from Tampa said the victims were taken to the outskirts of the city, stripped of their clothing, and, after having their bodies covered with boiling tar, beaten with clubs. One died later.

"The American Federation of Labor will insist and demand that a full investigation be made by the proper authorities and that those found guilty of the perpetration of the outrage be punished," Green said.

"Unless said thorough and complete investigation is made and those found guilty of the alleged acts of violence and brutality are punished in accordance with law, it is altogether probable that the American Federation of Labor may find it necessary to change the holding of the convention of the American Federation of Labor in November, 1936, to some other city where working men and women are properly protected, and the exercise of the rights conferred upon them by the laws of the land is fully recognized."

TEACHER TALK

LOCAL 246, A. F. of T.

DUES NEEDED TO CARRY ON SUITS

Teachers who are delinquent with dues are urged to bring them up to dato immediately as the money is sorely needed in order to carry through the salary suits effectively. The federation has shown itself to be the one organization working wholeheartedly for the interests of teachers. Ie deserves whole-hearted support—financial as well as moral.

SLASHING EXPENSES

In the palmy days of this city and county money was lavished on nearly everything but teachers' salaries. No doubt teachers were though to be docile creatures, who wouldn't protest much, and who weren't worth many votes on election day anyway.

But when the day for slashing expenses arrived, what departments departments have fared worst? You're right the first time; the education departments, teachers' salaries bear the brunt of the cuts.

Maybe it won't work so well this time. Teachers aren't so docile as they used to be.

BOTH SUITS ON THE WAY

Now we'll find out whether officials can ignore the legal rights of teachers, as set forth in the salary schedule bill. Suits against both city and county have already been filed. Those who have compared the cases pro and con as filed by the opposing attorneys are of the opinion that the teachers haveconsiderably the better of it.

HORN TOOTING

Did you ever hear the saying "He who tooteth not his own horn, the same shall not be tooted?" William McAndrews, a former teacher, writes that he became a business man because he used to thinkof the business man as the acme of civilization. It took but a short while, so he says, for him to learn that, although they talk in an important manner, their inanities, stupidities and general intellectual poverty are amazingly boresome.

McAndrews came to the conclusion that business men maintain their superiority myth through self-advertising.

If we teachers would only tell one another and the world more convincingly of the importance, the scope, the dignity of the teaching profession; if we would show up more relentlessly the business man's feet of clay, all concerned would be benefited: teachers, business men, and the world in general.

TEACHERS HAVE TO PAY BOARD

Some horse-and-buggy minds must think we still live in the days when teachers "boarded around" with their patrons if we are to judge by their ideas on adequate salary. It might be well to inform them, if there is any way of doing it, that teachers have to pay money for board now.

MERRY CHRISTMAS

The executive committee wishes a Merry Christmas to all federation members.

SEASON'S GREETINGS TO MAYOR BASS

GREETINGS TO LOCAL 428

This column wishes to extend the heartiest greetings to the members of Local 428, A. F. of T. With its fine, forward-looking president, Mr. George Key, and its other progressive members, Local 428 is a welcome asset to Local 246 and to the local organized labor movement.

NOT AGAINST FIREMEN

We don't want to conciliate the L. T. Smith of the News Forum column, for we have little use for anyone who thinks teachers are "getting enough." But L. T. is completely misinformed when he supposes that we teachers advocate cuts for firemen. We don't advocate cutting any rank and file wage-earner's salary. We think the firemen's pay should be raised if any change is to be made.

Teachers want fair play, not preference at some one else's expense.

NLRB PETITIONS COURT TO MAKE BUS COMPANY DEAL WITH UNION

In First Action of Kind Under Wagner Act, Federal Circuit Judge at Philadelphia Is Asked to Make Greyhound Management Obey Board's Order.

Philadelphia.—The National Labor Relations Board has petitioned the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals here to enforce a "cease and desist" order which the board had made to the Pennsylvania Greyhound Lines, Inc., and the Pennsylvania Greyhound Management Co. It is the first case of the kind on record.

The board's order required the motor subsidies of the Pennsylvania to bargain collectively with their men. This order was issued after hearings following a complaint by the Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes, that the companies had indulged in unfair labor practices. The board, in its findings, declared that the companies had discouraged membership in the union, had refused collective bargaining with its employes, and had discharged a considerable number of men because of their union activities.

The board ordered the companies to cease their illegal interference, reinstate the discharged men with back pay, and post notices telling the men of their rights under the National Labor Relations Act. The companies have ignored these orders, and the board, as provided by the act, has petitioned the court of enforcement.

Washington, D. C.—Discussing the action begun in Philadelphia to force Pennsylvania Greyhound bus line companies to obey an order of the National Labor Relations Board, Chairman J. Warren Madden of the board said:

"The board of its own motion has gone into court for the first time. It is following the enforcement procedure provided by law, because the board has no enforcing powers. The court is directed by law to sustain our finding of facts if there is evidence to support them.

"The question of constitutionality will certainly be involved. If we didn't think the law was constitutional and the facts warranted our findings, we would not have taken this case into court."

The board announced that it and the 21 regional offices had handled 350 cases. Eighty-six were either settled satisfactorily or the charges were withdrawn for lack of sufficient evidence to sustain the complainants' charges of unfair labor practice.

COAL BOARD TO STUDY MINERS' CONDITIONS

Washington, D. C.—The Bituminous Coal commission soon will study working and living conditions among 300,000 bituminous coal miners, Commissioner Percy Tetlow announces.

The Guffey Coal Act, Tetlow said, specifically provides that the commission shall investigate "the rehabilitation of mine workers displaced from employment and the relief of mine workers partially employed."

Findings of the commission and its recommendations will be reported to the "proper agency of the government for relief, rehabilitation and subsistence homesteads," Tetlow said.

Christmas Eve Alliance Made Two Hearts Happier

THE wind howled dismally, and Oscar Huggins, looking out at the whirling snow, put up the shutters. Put them up right, too as the little grocery would be closed tomorrow. Dimly, he wondered how to spend Christmas.

He checked over his stock, nibbled a bit of cheese, and opened the back door to throw out a rotting apple.

In the snow stood a boy. The lad dove for the apple, polishing and handling it as something precious.

"Here," said Oscar roughly. "What are you doing?"

The boy looked startled. "I thought you threw it away," he answered, "and see, it's pretty good."

"Humph," said Oscar. "All right, keep it. But, mind, you've no business loitering here. You should be home in this weather, and on Christmas eve, of all times." The lad shifted uneasily but did not leave. "Well?" Oscar demanded.

"I was looking for work, sir."

Oscar looked at him sharply. "Out on your own, son?"

"Yes, sir."

Where are your folks?"

His tale of bereavement, struggle and and loneliness was brief but impressive.

"How'd you like to spend Christmas with me?" the grocer offered. Funny, this life. A bit ago he had almost wished he wasn't closing tomorrow—now it seemed jolly.

"Gee!" exclaimed his new friend. "Swell!"

They packed a market basket to overflowing. But Oscar turned back. "Wait a minute." He selected his best candies and found a bit of red string.

"If I keep him to help in the store he'll probably eat it anyway," he consoled, "might as well show him a Merry Christmas."—Helen Gaisford.

Santa as He Appears in the Different Countries

SO SANTA CLAUS wears a red suit and a long white beard, and when he isn't busy in the toy store, drives a sleigh pulled by Donner and Blitzen?

Not if you live in Hawaii. There, on a moonlit December night, you might see Santa come riding in from the ocean on a surf-board. As likely as not there would be a lei, or wreath of flowers, about his neck, though he wears the same red suit and waterproof boots he dons for boys and girls of the United States, since Hawaii is really American territory.

In the Philippines, though it, too, is American, the white cap turns conical like a Spanish clown's. He carries a red-and-white lantern which helps him find the home of every good boy and girl, and drives buffalo, which they call carabao. The gifts are packed in baskets slung across the backs of these creatures.

What would you think of Santa in a rickshaw? But, after all, if you were a Chinese child isn't that what you would expect? And Santa never disappoints. In Japan he sits with his feet tucked under him to take his rea ons a wintry afternoon, and in the African tropics—well, you just wouldn't recognize the red suit! He has even taken to using the airplane in our own country. I am sure that when he leaves the reindeer in his barn, he pats the nose of each one and urges the ice elves to feed them plenty of reindeer moss till he comes home again.—Frances Grinstead.

It is merely a stabilizing device to replenish party deficits and create slush funds.

It is a face-lifting operation for reactionary politicians whose mugs are about to sink from public gaze.

Christmas At The Barracks

By Helen Gaisford

"I HATE Christmas!" Marcia thought passionately. She pressed her face close to the toy window, so passersby would not notice her burning cheeks nor tear-filled eyes.

Suddenly she was face to face with it—that overwhelming longing for some one to make Christmas worthwhile. "Why am I such a fool?" she asked herself miserably. "A grown woman weeping at a store window display!"

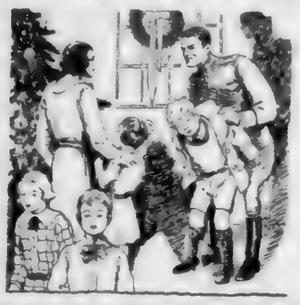
She hurried on to her lonely flat, and stood looking in the mirror. Thirty-two! "I don't feel old," she said.

After a while she got up and washed her face, determined to be sensible. She couldn't eat yet—she was too shaken—so she sat down with the home paper. No use trying to avoid the Christmas ads. Might as well face the fact that no one really cared—

Well, why not find some one? And then, as though in answer, she saw the item in the paper.

"Poor children of this and neighboring communities will be treated to a real old-fashioned Christmas dinner and tree at the McKinley barracks. Officers and men are providing turkey and all the trimmings, and several hundred children are expected. Churches and social agencies are being asked to furnish women to act as chaperones and also cars to transport the children to the barracks."

Marcia stepped timidly into the social welfare bureau. "I wonder if you could use me to help take the children out to the barracks on Christmas," she asked. "It would be so much nicer than—than anything else," she finished lamely. She had really meant that it would be nicer than a sympathy dinner invitation from one of her friends. "I even thought maybe, if I happened to find the right youngster—I might adopt one."



He Was Taking the Coat Off a Tousle-Headed Boy.

She stopped, a little breathless. She hadn't meant to commit herself so far. Yet the lady was very kind, and arrangements were easily made.

She had never been to the barracks before, and she thrilled to the ride over the snowy road, but she was more fascinated by the children under her care. Their too-bright eyes glittered, and they pressed sharp noses against the car windows, leaving marks where they had touched.

They were excited, terribly excited, but happy, too. So was Marcia. Joy and excitement shone from her eyes, making her usually pleasant but rather plain countenance radiant.

He stood tall and straight in his officers' uniform, a handsome man, not many years her senior. As soon as the children began eating, he came over and introduced himself.

"Having a good time?" he asked.

"Glorious!"

"So are you."

"What?"

"Glorious, of course. Don't mind my bothering, do you? I thought you seemed, well—understanding. When I was looking at you—remember?" Marcia nodded. "Somebody once said that if you look into a person's eyes, you create a bond that can never be broken. I know what he meant, now."

"I felt it, too," Marcia murmured.

He looked about. "I say, shall we ditch the program? I'd like to show you around the barracks, if you'd let me."

They didn't notice the cold, the falling snow, nor, later, the children's carols.

"Goodness!" Marcia exclaimed at last. "They're leaving. I must look after my carload of youngsters."

"Wait!" He caught her hand, held it fast. "I'll want to see you again, soon. We have so much in common, you know—we're both lonely, we like children, we enjoy Christmas parties—and I want to know if you like hiking and tobogganing, movies, operas, lots of things. Me, for instance."

"Of course," answered Marcia. "But let me go now. Here comes that welfare lady." She pulled away. "We were just coming," she apologized.

The lady smiled. "No hurry. But I wonder—you said something, you know—have you decided what child you want to adopt?"

"Heavens!" declared Marcia. "I forgot!"

"Well, why," asked the soldier, "adopt one? I mean—wait until next Christmas. Things change so in a year."

"In a day," breathed Marcia.

Merit Wins The Soul

A Christmas Story

By Agnes Myers

IT WAS Christmas eve and Jane Harrison was preparing to close the Book and Gift shop after a busy day. The door opened and an elderly man wearing spectacles and a white muffler entered hurriedly.

Setting aside his gloves and cane, and hastily scanning the shelves, he said: "I have but a few moments to make a selection; perhaps you could assist me. Something for an elderly lady."

Jane was more than a bookseller; she was reader. And, too, she could quickly sense the literary taste of an individual. Delving into a case she brought forth Mrs. Gaskell's "Life of Charlotte Bronte"; also "Sonnets from the Portuguese" and "Out of Doors in the Holyland," all in new holiday bindings.

"Here are some delightful gift books," she remarked.

The gentleman raised a pair of surprised eyes and wonderingly surveyed the girl, rather than the books. Drawing a wallet from his inner coat he replied:

"My dear young lady, your excellent choice has tempted me to take all three." Handing Jane a card he continued, "please have them sent over to Miss Adelaide Perkins, Burton street, number 78."

Thanking her he dashed out to his cab and was gone.

"Seventy-eight Burton street!" gasped Jane, "and the delivery boy gone for the night on his last round!"

Locking the store and with Miss Adelaide Perkins' gift in the hollow of her arm, the tired girl started off on her errand.

Jane and her widowed mother had lived in Edgebrook on a small income. She attended Miss Edmonds' School for Girls as a day student and received a very thorough education. In the evenings Jane worked in the town library. Her mother passed away and Jane had gone to the city. This was her first Christmas to be alone.

At the Perkins address the door was opened by an elderly lady. "My goodness, child! A package for me! Do step in." But before she could close the door a boy called out:

"Telegram for Perkins."

"Yes, yes," she said, all bewildered.

"Mercy me, where are my glasses!" and she fumbled around in her pocket.

"I'll sign for you, if I may," said Jane.

"Yes, please do—dear, dear, where are my glasses! Oh, here they are," and Miss Perkins' fine patient hands trembled as she opened the envelope.

"It is from my nieces, the Bosworth girls. They are driving down from Hartland tomorrow afternoon and will be here for tea with me around five."

"Your nieces the Bosworth girls!" exclaimed Jane; "not Emilie and Susan! Why, they were my best friends at Miss Esmonds' school," and thoughts of Edgebrook dashed through her mind. The June commencement — Richard Bosworth, the tall brother, up from the city for the festivities.

"And don't forget, tomorrow at five," called Miss Perkins as Jane was departing.

The next afternoon Jane helped Miss Perkins put the finishing touches to a table set in blue china of willow pattern. There was the sound of a motor, then merry voices in the hall. Emilie, Susan, Richard, Uncle Carroll, the elderly gentleman who had sent the books, were greeting Miss Perkins.

"Why Jane Harrison!" gasped the Bosworth girls in one breath.

Then followed such excited exclamations: the bliss of renewed friendship.

With a rustle of her silken skirts Miss Perkins led the way to the dining-room. Jane sat opposite Richard. She liked the strength in his broad shoulders, his well modulated voice and his clear honest eyes. Emotions of newly awakened interest roused her sentiments.

Richard was beaming across the table at the young woman in the blue frock; her quaint charm, rippling laughter, the glance of her brown eyes and the lift of her pretty shoulders.

As the happy gathering moved into the sitting room Jane felt the warmth of a large hand gripping her own slim one. Looking up, she smiled into Richard's firm and understanding face.

Uncle Carroll, with an approving nod, stroked his beard like a prophet, and reflected upon the words of the poet:

Charms strike the sight
But merit wins the soul.

Christmas in Shanghai Just One of Their Days

WHEN Christmas comes to Shanghai, a cross-section of the world's best holiday. The average Chinaman has to get the meaning of it, but such fun-loving people can do well with any more celebration. So the Chinaman himself adds to the din with firecrackers and gift-giving, parties and the making of calls.

There is a distinct western touch to the observance of the season by this most cosmopolitan city. Shanghai's "social registerites" start plans for dinners and dances as early as the middle of November; immediately reservations are checked off on the calendars of the ballrooms and restaurants. The native form of observance varies with the nationality divisions of the city. In the Russian section, the day is observed as it is on the steppes or in Moscow. The French greet Santa Claus in their own way, even though the wax dolls have to be brought far down the Champs Elysees. The Japanese prefer to make merry by drinking mikl. The English must have their plum pudding and holly.

At the mission schools, where boys and girls are taught in separate classes, Christmas carols around the tree give the student school girls a chance not only for singing hymns but of "seeing hims."

In interior China, however, most of the people prefer to celebrate their Dragonboat, Mid-Autumn, and New Year holidays rather than this imported one. They do not even try to understand these queer foreigners. As a poem December 25 is just another day.—Frances Grinstead.

Made Best of Worst of Christmas-Time Mishap

THE snow began nearly a week before Christmas and when the great day arrived, folks were trying to remember the time when it didn't snow in Morton City. Barnes, the only merchant had put off getting his shopping until so there were no gifts in town to be bought for love or money. But when news got about that the train stuck on the railroad siding was snowbound in Morton City, old and young alike forgot about the lack of gifts. Even the president of the road with his party had a special car on the rear for the snowbound passenger, and wasn't that a great honor indeed?

Folks got over the novelty of their plight in time for the organization of a huge choir of carol singers that went down to the train and paraded through the length of the coaches, even the singing for the chef and the porters and, of course, all the train men. They had remembered to take along a tree decorated with the makeshift ornaments they had on hand from previous years. But somehow, they made a great hit with all the strangers who joined heartily in the fun.

The passengers dove into their baggage and brought up books, boxes of candy, candy bars, ties, fancy soaps and bath salts, highly perfumed, beautiful towels and even lovely baby clothing, wearing apparel and jewelry. In fact, not a soul in the little settlement was without one of the impromptu gifts. The passengers received old-fashioned roasted fowls and all trimmings of a generous feast. What one man got, the other had, seemed the most terse explanation of the happy condition.—Luella B. Lyons.

ON HIS WAY

Green—Going away this Christmas?
Wise—No, but I guess I'll go away right after Christmas.
Green—Where to?
Wise—To jail as a bad debtor.

Popcorn Presents

Apples, jelly or canned fruit, and even big cherry homemade wreaths tied up "Christmasy" make practical presents; but the gayest and most welcome of the off-the-farm-and-on-to-the-city presents seem to be pop corn and hickory nuts. With a basket of pop corn and a bag of hickory nuts all kinds of Christmas boxes are suitable for every one from grandfather and grandmother who lived on a farm and picked up chestnuts when they were young, all the way down to the littlest boy cousin, who's inordinately fond of candy.

Holiday Garnish for Salads

Cranberry jelly sliced and cut into fancy shapes with a cookie cutter or a knife makes an attractive and unusual garnish for salads and desserts during the holiday season.

Uncle Eben's Advice

"Santa Claus will soon be here," said Uncle Eben, "and tain't no time to tell yoh financial worries. If you writes him a letter, don't write it in red ink."

Father (admiring his recently born boy)—That fellow will be a great statesman one of these days.

Mother—Oh, Charles, dear, do you really think he will?

Father—Sure of it. Look how easily he wriggles out of everything.

"Cause, Let Us Adore Him," Happy Christmas Thought

THERE is a magical pause, a mysterious something in the air, an awakening of man's best and sweetest instincts as the Yuletide carols ring out the hallowed words: "Peace on earth, good will toward men." A pause when even the most sullen, forbidding, hard-hearted person feels an urge of the soul within him, to join in the merry festival of Christmas.

Then, too, there is magic in red holly berries, gray green branches of bewitching mistletoe, and the perfume of woody evergreens, melting wax and the burning log. How mysteriously they recall sweet thoughts of long ago to the elders! How they fill the hearts of playful children with joyous delight!

Christmas is the significance of childhood, for almost two thousand years ago the Christ Child brought the redeeming message of love to the world. Love that keeps the little flame of hope burning; love that gives patience and courage to endure the problems of life; love that prompts the giving and receiving of gifts.

When Wise Men of the East, men of profound learning, saw a brilliant star and followed it, they found this little messenger of love in his rude and humble resting place, and they laid their most precious gifts before him.

These gifts were highly symbolical. Gold to a King, the King of Love and Humanity. Frankincense to a Divinity, the God of human needs. Myrrh for a man, and for the sorrow that redeems. Thus they recognized in a little Child, the King, the Divine and the Man.

As we commemorate Christ's birth each Yuletide, there is a radiant warmth and spirit of love in the giving and receiving of gifts; we pay homage and reverence to our King, our God and our Redeemer.—Agnes Myers.

Martha Found a Way to Raise Christmas Funds

CHRISTMAS was drawing nearer and nearer, but Martha Woods seemed no nearer a solution of her problem. The giving of gifts at the Yuletide season had been a tradition with Martha as long as she could remember. This year, however, she saw no way to keep up the cherished custom.

During the past months her income had shriveled to where it would buy only the necessities for herself and Emma, her faithful servant. Through no scrimping or saving could even the tiniest gifts be sent to those whom she wished to remember.

Now, as she watched the whirling flakes of snow, she thought how lovely it would be to see the big room full of gaily tied packages, waiting to be sent on their various ways. Regretfully she pictured the disappointment of relatives and friends who would think she had forgotten; they would never dream she had grown too poor to buy Christmas gifts; they all believed her wealthy.

With a heavy sigh she looked around the beautiful living room. The furnishings were luxurious; many of them had been in the family for generations. . . . Suddenly a cry came from her lips. She had thought of a quick, sure way to fulfill her desires. She would sell a few of the lovely old pieces. She would send for the proprietor of the antique shop without a moment's delay! Her Christmas gifts would be on their way tomorrow!—Katherine Edelman.

MANY TYPES OF HOLLY

HOLLY, so popular as a Christmas decoration, is most abundant along the bottom lands of eastern Texas and southern Arkansas. There are about 175 species of holly found throughout the world, the largest being the American holly which attains a height of 50 feet. The red-berried holly is most common, although some species bear yellow berries and others black.

Ancient German Christmas Belief

Germans of ancient times believed that crumbs of bread made at Christmas, and which fell on the ground, would grow into little star flowers with miraculous healing powers.

Santa Claus as Usual

"Santa Claus is comin' around as usual in December," said Uncle Eben, "tryin' to bring along enough good cheer to beat de tax collector."

Non-Christians and Christmas

Non-Christians frequently join in the social observance of the day. To them, it simply has no religious significance.

Christmas Cards Old Custom

The sending of Christmas cards by way of friendly greeting and remembrance has grown up since about 1800.

Christmas Puddings Made Round

Christmas puddings are made round so that they may go round.

Mother—Eat your spinach, Junior!

Junior—Aw, I don't like it, mother, dear.

Mother—Just make believe you like it, dear.

Junior—I'd rather make believe I'm eating it.

Friend—Have you any objection to whisky and soda, Sandy?

Sandy—Never heard of it.

Friend—What? Never heard of a whisky and soda?

Sandy—No—an objection.

Old Ed Howe, the sage of Kansas, says a couple of mouthfuls in his statement that if you spend all your money when you are young, you will be found cussing the government when you are old.

Country Boy—Say, mister, can you tell me what an orator is?

Man—Sure. It's a fellow who is always ready to lay down your life for his country.

Friend—I suppose you have your share of doubtful bills on your books.

Merchant—I only wish they were. There's no question about most of them.

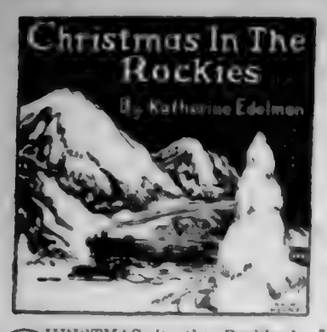
There's a Station in Your Neighborhood



CHRISTMAS in the Rockies! I felt thrilled, excited, as our train wound its way in and out through the mountains, thundering through the crisp, pine-scented air. Now, we were climbing an almost precipitous grade, now, slowing down for a dangerous curve, while every little while as a stretching plain was reached, the steady hand upon the throttle sent the long line of cars speeding like an arrow through the bright December sunshine.

We were on our way to spend Christmas with Uncle Jerry and Aunt Emma. They had sent a hearty invitation for us to come out, and now we were almost there. I held my breath at the sheer beauty of the scene that stretched before our eyes. Mountain peaks that seemed to touch the sky, canyons dropping thousands of feet, lakes covered by glittering thicknesses of ice, vivid green pines, looking like giant Christmas trees. I had never seen, never even visualized anything so beautiful.

A loud shriek from the big whistle, a slow crunching and grinding of brakes, and our train came to a stop. Uncle Jerry, rosy and smiling, stood waiting upon the platform, giving dad, mother, Helen and myself a true western welcome.

"Aunt Emma is all excited about your coming," he beamed.

A short drive through a wonderland of beauty, and the big sprawling ranch house came in sight. Aunt Emma stood in the doorway, and a cowboy, who was grooming a pony, looked curiously at us. I wanted to look around before going indoors, but tantalizing odors from the kitchen made me suddenly realize how hungry I was.

All was bustle and excitement, hurry and preparation. Even the horses and ponies in the corral seemed excited, as if they sensed something in the air. The afternoon and evening went by on wings.

Christmas morning dawned upon a world that looked even lovelier than it had yesterday. A million jewels hung on bush and tree, a sky of turquoise stretched itself across the snow-covered mountains and valleys.

Inside the ranch house a fire of crackling logs threw its ruddy glow over the living room. The dining table was spread with tempting foods. Breakfast of home-cured ham and sausage, fluffy flapjacks and syrup, steaming hot coffee with thick cream.

Then a short drive to the little church, an inspiring talk by the pastor, and the strains of the old and beautiful Christmas hymns; neighbors and friends stopping Uncle Jerry and Aunt Emma to wish them "Merry Christmas."

Back again through the clear, frosty air, and later the big Christmas dinner. Golden-brown turkey and dressing on a big blue platter, a huge mound of snowy potatoes, native vegetables and relishes, tempting pieces of mince and pumpkin pie. And best of all, an appetite that only the mountains can give.

A hundred things to see during the afternoon, the horses and ponies, the ranch equipment, the silver fox farm that Uncle Jerry had just started, and a special show the cowboys put on for our benefit.

Food again in the evening, and after, a happy time around the fire. The cowboys standing around the piano, where Helen played the old Christmas carols, their lusty voices joining in the beautiful words. I thought of the beautiful setting outside as they sang:

Silent Night, Holy Night!
All is calm, all is bright,
Round yon Virgin Mother and Child
Holy Infant so tender and mild,
Sleep in heavenly peace!

I stole outside for a few minutes as they went on to the next lines. A new moon was sending its silvery light down upon the world, a million stars added their smaller gleam. Around me I felt the faint, mysterious noises of night in the open places, the stirring of unseen, unknown things. My lips and heart joined in the words that floated out from the warm, lamp-lit room.

Silent Night, Holy Night!
Shepherds quake at the sight!
Glories stream from heaven afar,
Heavenly hosts sing Alleluia;
Christ the Saviour is born!

I have spent many a happy and memorable Christmas, but never one as wonderful, as unforgettable, as this Christmas spent in the Rockies.

Hosiery White List Ready

Philadelphia.—The American Federation of Hosiery Workers this week released its "White List" itemizing the brands of hosiery manufactured in union shops, and containing a plea to consumers to purchase the products of such shops.

This year's list, although white in name is pink in color, with an attractive design on the cover.

All persons or organizations interested in securing the list are requested to contact the federation offices at 2319 North Broad street.

Purchasers of the hosiery named contained in the "White List" are assured that the products they wear have been manufactured under decent working conditions, proper sanitation and that a living wage is paid the employes of the said company.

They may further be assured that the workers are not subjugated to conditions of uncertainty and anti-unionism such as exist today in Nazi Germany and Fascist Italy.

The list of union made hosiery and brand marks follows:

Children's Hose

Rambo-Regar — Phoenix

Men's Half Hose

La-Bel — Weston's
Best Maid — Phoenix
Klingtop

Union Label Hosiery

The Best Maid Silk Hosiery company, of Quakerstown, Pa., sells full-fashioned hosiery bearing the union label. The Best Maid also sells men's full-fashioned half-hose with the union label.

The Phoenix Hosiery company, of Milwaukee, Wis., manufactures hosiery for the entire family and will stamp the union label on any style or kind of Phoenix hosiery made either for men, women or children.

The Rambo-Regar company, at Norristown, Pa., manufactures Weston's Seamless half-hose and also a varied line of children's seamless hose, all bearing the union label.

The La-Bel company of Chattanooga, Tenn., manufactures men's seamless half hose.

SANTA CLAUS

THERE is a Santa Claus. His real name is Spirit of Charity. He is the symbol of benevolence, compassion and altruism. He is the ideal of that small legion of really human humans who pave unselfishly numerous paths to happiness with kindness, sympathy and charity.

He Was a Dutch Boy

Christmas was celebrated long before Santa Claus was ever thought of. His prototype was the Dutch boy bishop, St. Nicholas, who on December 5 used to go round punishing little children who did not say their prayers and rewarding those who did. Gradually he was changed from a boy into a jovial old man, while the sledge and reindeer are modern additions. Actually, Santa Claus was unknown in England a hundred years ago. The Dutch founders of New York introduced him to America, and England borrowed him from the States.—London Tit-Bits Magazine.

Believe in Yuletide for Dead

Kitzbuhel, Austria, is one of the few places in the world which believe that the dead should share in the Yuletide celebration. On Christmas eve, this picturesque little village in the Tyrol has, for many years, decorated each grave in its cemetery with a tree lighted by candles and other small lights.—Collier's Weekly.

Select Sturdy Toys

Well-built toys which will provide happy play throughout the year are better than those which make a brave showing on the Christmas tree but which are soon broken or discarded.

TO ENCOURAGE OTHERS.

Here there perished one William Ward;
He drove 'em straight and he drove 'em hard,
Till out of a side road came a truck,
And Billy was just plumb out of luck.

Here lies the body of Richard Slosson—
He tried to beat the train to the crossin'.

The federal government advocated a boycott of business firms which did not display the NRA label and the Blue Eagle shop card.

Mr. Gandy Good Shopper, but Forgot Own Present

IT WAS simply out of the question for Mrs. Gandy to go to Sayville that morning. The day before Christmas and a thousand things to do; but Mr. Gandy was going. Of course he could do many errands, yet hardly the one she wished most to have done—a gift for himself. Sayville was the nearest shopping place to the tiny village where the Gandys lived, a good fifteen miles over the mountain, by a rickety bus which ran once a day.

Mrs. Gandy was struck with an idea. She hurried to a neighbor's house and begged her to come home with her "Just ask Mr. Gandy if he will buy for you a pair of gloves, for your husband. Give a large size. He'll never guess."

The neighbor obligingly consented. Mrs. Gandy felt well pleased with her bit of a scheme to get her husband to buy his own gift (unknowingly) for himself, but she was a trifle dismayed when, at five o'clock, Mr. Gandy came home, tired, hungry and tumbled an armful of packages on the kitchen table.

"You got the sage for the dressing? The celery? The red toy truck for Tommie? The blue mittens for Sarah? The nuts and raisins, and the white wool for grandma?"

Mr. Gandy nodded and inquired how soon supper would be ready.

"And," asked his wife casually, "the gloves for Andrew, his wife wanted?"

Mr. Gandy smiled. "I clean forgot about them until the bus was ready to start! So I just hopped into a place and grabbed the first pair I saw. 'Good enough for old Andrew,' I thought, but they aren't much." He grinned a little shamefacedly, like a boy.

Mrs. Gandy plumped down in a chair. "Bill Gandy, that serves you just right. Those gloves are a Christmas present from me to you. You are served with your own sauce!" And she laughed so hard that Bill Gandy had to join her at his own expense.—Martha B. Thomas.

Mothers' Night, Ancient English Christmas Name

THE oldest English name for Christmas is Moddra Night, or Mothers' Night. In the early days, when our Saxon forefathers had just settled down in the country that was to be England, the day of December 25th was given up to games and feasting, but the night was dedicated to the special honor of mothers. They occupied the seats of honor, and everyone brought them gifts. Sons and daughters who had gone out into the world strove to be at home on that one night in the year.

A little later the name Yule was given to Christmas, and the rejoicings of the day were prolonged into night, when men sang and told stories sitting round the cheerful blaze of the Yule log.

The old customs of Mothers' Night gradually died out, though they still survive in a few parts of the country. Its place has been taken to some extent by Mothering Sunday in the North of England. On that day everyone who can do so still makes a pilgrimage homewards, and the mother receives the homage of her family.—London Tit-Bits Magazine.

THE DAYS BEFORE

"What nice manners the polite little Thompson boys have!"

"Yes. They are always like that just before Christmas."

Proper Size for Toy Blocks

Four inches long by two inches square is a good size for children's building blocks, according to educational experts. These can be made at home by cutting them from a 2 by 2 planed joist, sandpapering the edges and corners to a slight roundness, and painting them in bright colors. Old, worn blocks can be given a new lease on life by enameling them in gay hues.

Shakespeare and Christmas

Christmas is mentioned but twice by Shakespeare and then incidentally Yuletide was, however, an important time in his life, because it was then that his plays were produced by command at the courts of Queen Elizabeth and James I, with Shakespeare in the casts.

Toys Should Please the Child

Select Christmas toys to please the child, not to amuse the adults in the family.

Your Christmas Pleasure

Your Christmas pleasure is due when your Christmas duty is done.

Lady's Painful Trouble Helped By Cardui

Why do so many women take Cardui for the relief of functional pains at monthly times? The answer is that they want results such as Mrs. Herbert W. Hunt, of Hallsville, Texas, describes. She writes: "My health wasn't good. I suffered from cramping. My pain would be so intense it would nauseate me. I would just drag around, so sluggish and 'doless.' My mother decided to give me Cardui. I began to mend. That tired, sluggish feeling was gone and the pains disappeared. I can't praise Cardui too highly because I know it helped me." . . . Workers' Right to Organize Is Held Essential to Recovery; 'Company Unions' Are Called Great Menace by Father Haas

Milwaukee.—The free organization of workers is the only effective means of securing social justice and when the right is fully recognized we shall have not only recovery, but freedom, progress and opportunity for all.

Speaking last week at a testimonial dinner given by the Milwaukee Federated Trades council and the Wisconsin State Federation of Labor, Rev. Francis J. Haas thus concluded a remarkably lucid discussion of depression problems.

A number of distinguished guests were in the audience of 300, including Gov. Phillip La Follette, Mayor Daniel W. Hoan, of Milwaukee; President Henry Ohl, Jr., of the Wisconsin State Federation of Labor, and Nathaniel Clark, director of the regional labor board.

Father Haas recently took over the leadership of St. Francis seminary, St. Francis, Wis. The dinner was a mark of labor's appreciation of his achievements in the field of social and industrial welfare.

Notable Career

An outstanding economist, for years Father Haas was director of the Catholic School of Social Service at Washington. He also rendered conspicuous service as a member of the Labor Advisory Board of the NRA and as a member of a number of other tribunals dealing with labor questions.

Recalling that from eight to ten millions are still unemployed and at least 20 millions are living on public and private charity, Father Haas voiced the fear that unless certain things are done we must face the dreary prospect of a permanent army of unemployed.

Union Is Only Way

"It is simple arithmetic," he said, "that unless hours are drastically reduced—and the trend is certainly not downward—unemployment will remain permanently and perhaps increasingly with us."

One way hours can be reduced, wages increased and unemployment eliminated, Father Haas suggested, is to fix maximum hours and minimum wages for the entire country, as was attempted under the NRA.

Another way—and a better and the only lasting one—is organization, Father Haas asserted, and added:

Workers Must Be Free

"Organization, of course, must be free. Workers must not be compelled to accept their representatives from the restricted group making up an employers' pay roll or to have only such representatives as the employer will permit. This is the essence of the 'company union,' which is industrial Fascism.

"Under a dictatorship, workers have representatives, but the government appoints them. When all is said and done, this is what the company union does. It tells workers what representatives they must take."

Father Haas insisted that "company unionism" constitutes one of the greatest menaces to American life and institutions, and emphasized that in making that charge he was merely echoing what had been said by heads of the Catholic Church.

Pope Leo XIII, Father Haas said, held that the right of workers to organize in free unions is a "natural right," while Pope Pius XI proclaimed that workers "have the right to adopt such organizations and such rules as may best conduce to the attainment of their objectives."

Declaring that democracy is a sham and a fraud unless people are permitted freely to choose those who are to represent them, Father Haas continued:

What Labor Asks

"This is all that wage earners ask in forming labor organizations and asking employers to recognize them.

"On May 26, 1930, the United States Supreme Court in a unanimous decision recognized the fairness of this position. In the Texas and New Orleans Railroad company case, brought by the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, the court ruled against a 'company union' set up by the company, saying:

" 'Such collective action would be a mockery of representation were made futile by interference with freedom of choice.' "

Johnson City Notes

Johnson City, Tenn.—The regular semi-monthly meeting of the Johnson City Central Labor union last Friday night had the largest attendance of any meeting of the organization in many months. The meeting was presided over by President D. C. Long.

Elizabethton Local No. 2207, United Textile Workers, was headed by Delegate J. C. Lancaster, recently elected president of that organization; the Kingsport delegation was headed by President Jack Shelly, of United Textile Local No. 2466. Mr. E. C. Cluney, organizer of the United Textile Workers in East Tennessee, accompanied the Kingsport delegation and gave the members of the local Central Labor union a complete report on the present outlook of the Kingsport Silk mill, which has been in progress since early in September. The Pottery Workers' delegation was headed by retiring President J. W. Marshall, who gave the delegates in attendance at the meeting an inspiring talk on organization work covering many years of his experience as a member and representative of organized labor. President Marshall also said in the course of his talk that this would more than likely be his final visit to the Central Labor union from his organization as he expects shortly to return to his native state of Ohio.

The most outstanding event of the meeting was a report on the CCC camp situation at Kinksport, Tenn., which this organization has been protesting the action of officials at this camp. Recently the CCC administration at Washington sent T. J. McVay here for an investigation, he making his report to the administration at Washington, who then in turn placed the matter in the hands of the war department, and last week Lieut.-Col. J. B. Conyers, of Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., spent two days in this city securing affidavits on grievences of the Central Labor union and other affiliated locals in this city.

According to members of Clinchfield Lodge No. 559, Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, at their regular meeting in Erwin, Tenn., last week was largely attended and much enthusiasm was prevailing over the rapid progress that this organization had made since chartered some six months ago, and is one of the youngest organizations in this section and if it continues in its growth of membership will nearly surpass some of our largest locals.

In the last meeting the annual election of officers was held and all old officials were re-elected for another term, who are as follows: W. A. Harbour, president; W. B. Morrow, vice-president, and G. A. Murray, secretary-treasurer.

We understand that negotiations will soon be under way between this organization and the Clinchfield railroad for contracts for the clerks.

This organization at the present time, we are reliably informed, is better than 90 per cent organized.

Elizabethton.—At the regular weekly meeting held last week in the offices of the United Textile Workers, Local No. 2207, in this city, the principal business of the evening was the semi-annual election of officers for the term, which were as follows: J. C. Lancaster, president; D. E. Jacobs, first vice-president; D. W. Moore, second vice-president; J. Karl Umholtz, recording secretary; Carl Lee, warden; "Jargo" Gentry, conductor, and M. M. Jones, trustee, to serve for eighteen months.

This organization has found since moving their office and hall to nearer the center of the business district that their attendance at all meetings have been increased more than 100 per cent, and we feel with the election of the new officials and with the able assistance of other representatives of organized labor in East Tennessee this organization will continue to make progress as it has in the past.

Officials of the Johnson City Central Labor union and other labor leaders in East Tennessee expect to visit this local as early as possible after the first of the year and offer them any assistance that may be needed from this organization.

Wide Variation In Labor Laws

Statutes Regulating Women's Industrial Work Broad in Some States, Narrow in Others.

Washington, D. C.—Laws affecting the conditions under which women may be employed have been passed by every state in the Union—and no two states have the same regulations.

This astonishing fact is revealed in a bulletin just issued by the Women's Bureau of the Department of Labor. Oregon, New York, California, Wisconsin and Massachusetts have public regulation of hours and wages and control of working conditions. Florida, Iowa and West Virginia require employers to furnish seats for women workers. Other states range ebtween these two extremes.

The bulletin states further that:

Industrial workers have higher sick and death rates than the rest of the population.

More than one-eighth of all workers lose a week or more from illness during the year.

There were 1,250,000 industrial accidents in this country in 1933, and they cost not less than half a billion dollars.

FHA HEAD SEES 175,000 NEW HOMES BUILT IN '36

Washington, D. C.—About 175,000 new homes will be built in the United States next year, according to the estimates of Steward McDonald, federal housing administrator. As a start on this record, he adds that the FHA has put out about $500,000,000 this year. And that does not include a sum more than twice as large which has been spent on home modernization and repair which was not insured by FHA.

"Residential construction has been revived to such an extent," said Mr. McDonald, "that authorities in that field are predicting a boom. The worst of the old home financing abuses—which in effect were methods of taking homes away from people—have been eliminated.

"The home financing system has been put on a sound basis that will weather future financial storms, and is enabling the home renter to become a home owner."

The Resettlement Administration has just announced that it will construct a $10,000,000 "model green belt" community at Mount Healthy, near Cincinnati. It will provide low rent housing for the families of 1,500 workers. Schools, stores, playgrounds and other facilities will be provided; and when the project is completed, it will be turned over to a non-profit corporation for management.

About 7,000 men will be employed at this project at the peak.

Patient (nervously)—And will the operation be dangerous, doctor?

Doctor—Nonsense! You couldn't buy a dangerous operation for $40.

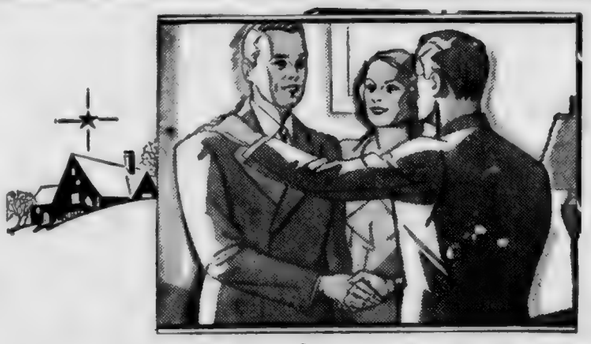
A Great Store in a Great City — THE Vogue — A Great Store in a Great City



At Christmas Time . . .
ALL ROADS LEAD TO HOME

Go home for the holidays if you can. The clasp of a welcoming hand, the sound of a friendly voice, are gifts of happiness that nobody should forego.

Time or distance, however, may prevent you visiting a few close friends and relatives whom you would so much like to see. Then all you have to do, as many folks have learned, is to let "long distance" bring you and your friends together for a voice-to-voice visit.

It doesn't matter whether you call on Christmas day or not, you will both get a real thrill from your telephone visit any time during the holiday season.

The pleasure you will experience from your visits by telephone is not expensive. For example, by using Station-to-Station service after 7 P. M., you can talk 150 miles for about 50 cents, and other distances for similarly low cost.

Your "long distance" operator will be pleased to inform you about rates to any point, and help make your holidays pleasant by giving quick connections to the friends you want to greet.

For that useful gift to the family—have a convenient extension telephone installed in your home.

said calmly. "The program of which you all were fully advised in advance calls for no speeches or general discussion at this preliminary meeting. All will have full opportunity to present their views at the group conferences and then through other spokesmen to the 'round table.'"

Haake and his crowd continued to shout and mill around in the crowd.

Scheme Carefully Planned.

Cupping his hands like a megaphone, Berry announced that he had known a week in advance that Haake was coming to the conference to start a disturbance.

"You know you were sent here to disrupt the meeting—to dynamite it," Berry charged.

"You are an unqualified liar," Haake shouted above the uproar of his colleagues.

Berry, without losing his composure, retorted that he understood hurling names was to be a part of the opposition's tactics.

"As far as me being a liar is concerned, if you will come up here (on the platform) I'll make you eat your words," Berry said.

Meeting Not Held.

Haake did not accept the invitation. Instead, he shouted an announcement that "Mr. O'Leary will hold a meeting in the street in front of the auditorium." The meeting was not held, however. When a Labor reporter asked Haake why the latter said:

"After due consideration we decided we would not lower our dignity by meeting in the street."

Berry, in commenting on the affair, said that the attempt to seize control of the meeting was similar to "the tactics of communists."

"The difference was that the communists usually have a program," Berry said. "These interests were without one and their efforts were pathetic."

Bosses' Prearranged Plan.

Only a few of the industrial representatives attended the scheduled group meetings. And those who did meet had no constructive suggestions to offer. Most of the group meetings of employers followed what appeared to be a prearranged plan.

They met, adopted a formal declaration that they would not co-operate, demanded an end to social and labor legislation and then adjourned.

Stripped of hypocritical cant regarding "constitutional freedom," "regimentation" of private enterprise, "interference with individual initiative," etc., these declarations simmered down to sullen and savage assertions that it is none of the government's business how industry conducts itself.

Sabotage Expected.

This action of the industrialists was not unexpected. Weeks before the conference, the National Association of Manufacturers and the U. S. Chamber of Commerce began inciting employers to oppose Berry's proposal. In addition, enormous pressure was used in an effort to get members of congress to issue statements condemning the proposed parley.

Organized labor, however, co-operated from the beginning. Every organization affiliated with the A. F. of L. was represented at the conference. And the labor group was the only one to submit a constructive program. It called for:

1. Shortening of weekly work hours without reduction of pay.
2. Minimium wage standards for women and minors designed to operate on an industry-wide basis.
3. Elimination of child labor, of night work for women, and of home work.
4. The right to bargain collectively.
5. Enactment of the O'Mahoney federal licensing bill to protect labor, decent employers, and minority stockholders.

Berry Not Discouraged.

In spite of the refusal of the big employers to co-operate, Berry is going ahead with his plans to form an industrial council on which industry, labor and the consumers will have equal representation. Names of the council members will be announced next week, he said.

"There are great problems which can never be solved without general discussion and general co-operation between leaders of industry, labor, and the people," he declared.

"The biggest problem is unemployment. And there are only two alternatives. Either industry must find jobs for these millions or submit to taxation to provide funds with which the jobless are to be fed."

MORE ABOUT INSURANCE

will have accrued for him a saving which he himself has earned and to which he is entitled as a matter of right, not as a matter of charity.

Limitations of Act

"However, it should be emphasized that the unemployment insurance law is not, and was not intended to be, a solution for existing unemployment nor a complete guarantee against unemployment in the future. Unemployment now existing in this state, which has driven 550,000 families to relief rolls, at a total annual cost of $350,000,000 for public relief of all sorts, is the penalty which we are paying for our past sins of omission and commission.

"A sound system of unemployment insurance must be set up on some sound basis. An orderly method of accumulating a fund from which to pay unemployment benefits must be adhered to. It is impossible to set up a system of insurance and immediately load it with the accumulated weight of existing unemployment.

"The unemployment insurance law will gradually, over a period of several years, take over a large part of the burden of unemployment after the law comes into full operation. It would be brutally unjust to those now unemployed and extremely short-sighted to confuse a long-range unemployment insurance law with the immediate and pressing problem of unemployment relief which must continue to be handled by existing relief and public works agencies. What we are doing now is to build slowly and firmly a permanent safeguard against suffering and loss due to unemployment in the future, while at the same time continuing our efforts to get those now unemployed back to work and to maintain them until they are again employed.

Burden of Law Light

"Unemployment insurance is slow, gradual in its application, and permanent; unemployment relief is the immediate answer to a pressing emergency.

"Because of technical complexities of the law it has been possible for some prejudiced interests seeking to serve their own ends, to give the impression that the administration of the law will be greatly involved, impose a heavy burden upon employers and result in greatly higher prices for the consuming public. This is not so. The best available estimates indicate that the cost of unemployment insurance will amount to a small fraction of one per cent of the retail selling price of consumer goods. The total cost of the entire Federal Social Security program, including old age pensions and other benefits, has been estimated by the National Retail Dry Goods association at slightly more than one per cent of the retail selling price. Some of the cost will undoubtedly come out of profits."

TVA OFFICIALS MAY ASK FOR TROOPS TO PROTECT WORKERS

Chamber of Commerce Terrorization Brings Threat from Officials.

"Patriots" of Corinth "Business Body" Endeavor to Keep Pickwick Dam Workers from Accepting Jobs on Government Project—Protest Establishment of Regional Offices.

Corinth, Miss.—Officials of the Tennessee Valley Authority, the government's big power project for this section of the south, said this week that they would call for federal troops if agents of the Corinth Chamber of Commerce do not cease trying to terrorize men from taking jobs on the TVA Pickwick dam project near here.

Opposition to the TVA is based on the fact that the latter's lowest wage scale is more than twice as high as Corinth manufacturers have set as the prevailing rate."

The minimum rate on TVA jobs is 45 cents an hour. Corinth employers are paying 15 to 20 cents an hour.

The chamber of commerce, dominated by local manufacturers who came south on a promise of "a plentiful supply of cheap and docile labor," went berserk when it discovered that the TVA was going to set a terrible example" by "paying wages so high as to lure men away from their regular jobs."

To add to the horror of the C. of C. mind, it became known that TVA officials recognized the right of workers to organize and bargain collectively and dealt regularly with committees and officials of A. F. of L. unions.

The resentment of the bosses was so great that the C. of C. actually protested against the TVA establishing a regional office here.

Strictly speaking, Corinth is not an industrial city, although it has dreams of becoming one. It has a pants factory, a hosiery mill and a few similar enterprises, all of which are violently anti-union.

Until just recently it has been impossible to hire a hall for a union meeting here. During NRA days two union organizers were roughly handled by a chamber of commerce vigilance committee and taken forcibly out of town. Another organizer was recently threatened but the vigilantes lost their nerve when he defied them. The better element among the business men is not in sympathy with the chamber's short-sighted policies, especially its attitude toward the TVA.

Aside from the fact that these trading merchants realize well-paid workers in this area will have just so much more money to spend in town, they recall the gouging they got on their electric bills in by-gone days—when the only current available was to be bought from a private utility company owned by Harvel C. Couch, Arkansas politician and railroad and utility magnate.

For more than a year now, Corinth has been using TVA electricity at a rate one-half to two-thirds less than the Couch company had been charging them.

For example, householders' bills used to run from $3.50 to $4 a month for a sparing use of electricity. They are now averaging $1.50 for those who are using the "juice" liberally—and for those who are not using more than they did in the Couch plant days. Business houses have benefitted still more. A typical example is a store which used to pay the Couch company an average of $120 a month. Its bills under TVA current now run around $40 a month.

Corinth, Miss.—When the local chamber of commerce, which wants to keep wages low in this area, discovered that the lowest wage paid to any worker on a TVA job is 45 cents an hour, it objected to the plan to establish the regional office of the TVA here for the Pickwick dam project here. The prevailing wage in Corinth for unskilled labor is said to be 15 to 20 cents an hour.

Officers of the TVA were reported to threaten to call for federal troops when agents of the Corinth Chamber of Commerce began to interfere with the labor recruiting in the dam area.

Local manufacturers are bitterly opposed to the wage policies of the TVA. However, local merchants who realize that a good business can be had from well paid workers in the area are becoming resentful of the short-sighted chamber of commerce policies and may force a change of attitude. The TVA Workers' Council will probably refrain from dealing in Corinth until local authorities adopt a favorable attitude on the question of labor organization.

Organizer Frank Ward, of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers, was recently able to hire a hall for a union meeting in Corinth, which had hitherto been impossible. Ward let it be known he would take the hosiery workers to Pickwick if he could not secure a meeting place locally.

The TVA Workers' Council at Pickwick is lending its assistance to the hosiery workers and to other union representatives in their efforts to organize employes in this region.

The Corinth Hosiery mills recently discharged its oldest employe, who had taken some interest in organizing the plant here. Town bullies threatened to run Organizer Ward out of town on a recent trip. The local mill management told its workers at the time that it would grant a wage increase if unionization efforts were discontinued. Not only was this promise broken, but the active leaders among the employes was fired.

The Neinig company, of Reading, Pa., controls the Corinth mill, it is understood.

Dairy Workers' Union Asks Labor Support To Secure Contracts

Local 428, Dairy Workers, are calling on all unionists to demand of their milk service companies that they immediately sign the new agreement which the local is negotiating. For some reason or other, all dairies but one have refused to sign agreements for the coming year, although they have not locked out their union employes.

The Koons dairy signed the agreement at once, and it is hoped by the local union that the labor movement will bring to the attention of the other dairies that they are expected to renew signed agreements before they are entitled to the expected support that they have been receiving in the past.

DAY-OLD STRIKE WON BY LEATHER WORKERS

Federal and State Officials Assist in Settling Philadelphia Controversy.

Philadelphia. — Six hundred employes, members of the United Leather Workers, won a 24-hour strike against Robert H. Foerderer, Inc., 100-year-old tanning company. The men walked out Monday and returned Tuesday when the firm signed an agreement.

In addition to a committee from the union, Stanley W. Root, regional director of the national relations board; James F. Dewey, of the U. S. bureau of conciliation; Charles Kutz, mediator for the Pennsylvania department of labor, and President Foerderer, of the company, participated in the settlement.

One doesn't have to be a handcuff king to remove his chains. All you have to do is to buy union labeled goods.

Ministers Blame Tampa Officials For Mob Killings

Ministers, in Service of Public Penitence, Denounce Worker's Murder—Move Florida Convention, N. A. A. C. P. Asks.

Tampa, Fla.—Tampa clergymen, in a service of public penitence, denounced the flogging to death of Joseph Shoemaker and laid responsibility for his death at the door of public officials.

The footsteps of those responsible "can be traced to the very citadel of justice and law administration," the Rev. G. F. Snyder, of St. Paul's Lutheran church, declared.

Shoemaker, E. F. Poulnot and S. D. Rogers, leaders of a workers' organization, were abducted on Nov. 30 by a mob outside Tampa police headquarters as they were released after being arrested in a lawless raid conducted without a warrant and questioned about alleged communistic activities. Poulnot and Rogers recovered, but Shoemaker died on Dec. 8 from a beating and the application of hot tar and feathers to his body.

Local Government Distrusted.

The Rev. R. E. Wicker told the mass meeting thatdistrust of local government had grown as a result of crimes in recent months.

"The Tampa mind," he said, "is indicated by a sign in a lumber yard here which reads, 'Tar today: whitewash tomorrow.'"

The Rev. Walter Metcalf, president of the Ministerial association, said that the killing of Shoemaker was "only a symptom of a deep-seated disease" in public office.

The day following the meeting, Mayor R. E. L. Chancey suspended six policemen and a fireman, as a grand jury began an investigation of the flogging outrage. The policemen were involved in the arrest of the three men later flogged by a mob.

New York City.—In a telegram to President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People urges that the 1936 convention of the federation be removed from Florida.

Don't Stay Long

ARTHUR C. KAMIN

Labor Movement Loses Services Of Valued Leader

Temporary Retirement of Arthur Kamin Will Be Keenly Felt by Fellow-Workers.

Resignation of Arthur C. Kamin, president of Chattanooga Trades and Labor council for the past five years, removes temporarily from the official life of the local labor movement one of its most valuable assets.

Always-strenuous life of a labor executive, made doubly so in the case of Mr. Kamin by his unusual zeal and energy, has for some time been threatening the health of the retired president, and his temporary retirement was not alone on doctors' orders, but had been strongly urged by his closest friends for some time.

Arthur Kamin embodies a powerhouse of active, energetic interest in and love for his labor movement, and it will doubtless require the combined efforts of his physicians, family and friends to "hold him down" until his strength shall have returned.

A member of the Moving Picture Projectionists' union since its early days in Chattanooga, he has given to that organization the same type of loyal service which has characterized his activities in the general movement, and it long ago became evident that his abiding purpose to advance the cause would not, or could not, be confined within the limits of one local union.

Mr. Kamin has served the Picture Operators in every possible capacity, filling all offices and representing his local in district, state and national conventions. He served for a number of years as recording secretary of Central Body, retiring from that position because of failing health. His intelligent, constructive activities, in fact, led to his election for a term as member of the executive board of the Tennessee Federation of Labor, and he has frequently been mentioned as a possible contender for president of the state body.

The writer has long had the pleasure of association with the retired president, and unhesitatingly states that no one among the hundreds with whom we have worked in our labor movement has given greater inspiration, more intelligent, constructive cooperation or more sincere advice and counsel than has Arthur Kamin.

While it is not the purpose of the writer of this feeble tribute to become unduly sentimental, we are funny that way when it comes to giving credit where credit is due in the sometimes unenviable and too many times thankless efforts of a true trades unionist—and Art Kamin is just that.

The local labor movement will miss what he has put into it for many years, regardless of who may be his successor, and hundreds of friends throughout the state will hope for a speedy and complete recovery of his normal health and energy.

Printing Plant Has Christmas Party, Tree, Dinner 'n All

C. P. & E. Company and Employes Observe Season With Enjoyable Fete.

Last Friday, from 12 to 1 o'clock, the Chattanooga Printing & Engraving company held their annual Christmas "get-together." The young ladies of the bindery and pressroom had converted the long bindery table into a dining table, and had it tastefully decorated in holiday effect. The menu consisted of fried chicken, vegetables, and all the fixin's and wound up with a big Christmas cake and gallons of ice cream and coffee.

Several days before the event names had been exchanged for the gifts on the tree. They were all piled about a beautifully lighted Christmas tree. This caused a great deal of merriment, and when "time" was called at 1 o'clock, some were loath to go back to work, so intent were they playing with their toys.

Those attending were: Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Coolidge, Misses McCracken, Ross, Woy, Gannaway, Mrs. Bailey; Messrs. J. C. Meyer, Wade Smith, Tal Kennedy, Leon Wood, Wallace Cash, Pete Morris, A. Z. Gregory, Wallace Bentley, C. R. Davis, F. P. Singleton and Hinkle.

U. S. COURT HOLDS WAGNER LABOR ACT UNCONSTITUTIONAL

Missouri Judge Rules Progressive Measure Invalid in Mill Case.

Judge Otis Holds Congress Cannot Regulate "That Which Merely Affects Commerce" and Enjoins Labor Board from Attempting to Maintain Workers' Rights.

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 25.—Federal Judge Merrill E. Otis is "agin" the emancipation proclamation. Dozens of people who heard or read the judge's opinion in the case of Majestic Flour Mills vs. National Labor Relations Board remarked that if Otis had been on the federal bench during the Civil war, he would have enjoined Abraham Lincoln from freeing the slaves.

The Majestic company refused to bargain with a union of its employes for an agreement on wages and hours. The workers appealed to NLRB. The board cited the Majestic for its refusal; and the Majestic came to Judge Otis' court, asking for an injunction. They got it; and in giving it, Judge Otis said that the labor act treats the individual worker "as if he were a recently emancipated slave."

Then, so far as his power goes, he proceeds to stop the emancipation by issuing an injunction against the labor board.

Says Commerce Not Affected.

Dismissing sarcactically the answer of the board that the acts of the Majestic complained to affect commerce, Judge Otis gave the most sweeping condemnation of all efforts to humanize relations between workers and employes that has been heard for many a day.

"Congress has no power to regulate that which merely affects commerce," he declared: and then went farther still:

"There is no way," said the judge, "in which any of the specified unfair labor practices in any business, whether mill or mine or factory or store, conceivably can affect commerce."

Sweatshop Safe from Congress.

In other words, congress cannot reach the sweatshop. Employers may be guilty of all the unfair labor practices specified in the labor disputes act; they may pour the goods thus produced over state lines, and drive more scrupulous manufacturers out of business; and still Judge Otis holds that these practices would not affect commerce.

Whether this case will be carried by the labor board to the supreme court is doubtful. The general belief in legal circles seems to be that the supreme court will pass on the validity of the labor disputes act in another case before the Otis ruling has time to get to Washington.

Amendment Held Possible.

As a crumb of comfort to the board, Judge Otis said that the constitution could be amended so as to give congress the power which he denies it now. A large proportion of labor spokesmen think it might be wise to take this hint.

CANADIANS PAY LESS THAN HALF AMERICAN RATES FOR ELECTRIC POWER

Ottawa.—The average rate for electrical energy for household use in Canada is only 40 per cent of the average American rate, while the average domestic customer in Canada consumes twice as much energy as the average customer in the United States, according to a special report of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

The amount paid by the Canadian consumer of electrical energy for domestic services, lighting, heating, cooking, etc., averaged 2.22 cents per kwh in 1933, while the American average cost was 5.58 cents per kwh. The average monthly consumption per customer in Canada was 101 kwh, compared with 50 kwh in the United States.

Canadian producers of electrical energy for all purposes had an average revenue of .75 cents per kwh, including transmission losses running as high as 25 per cent in some systems.

The report points out that the relatively high proportion of electrical energy produced by water power brings down the average rate below what it might be if the higher proportion was produced by coal. However, in practically all the provinces public enterprises are in operation, and provide a guage for the charges of private enterprise.

ATTENTION, QUILLERS

To all members of Quillers' Local 1747, U. T. W.: We will have our first meeting Jan. 4, 1936, at 2 p.m. in our new location, Roosevelt hall, in the Odd Fellows' building, West Seventh street, between Broad and Chestnut. Election of officers and other important matters to be discussed. Refreshments will be served. All members are urged to be present.

The most effective way to give unorganized industries a ride is to see that the Union Label is on the right spot.

MEATCUTTERS' PARTY WAS HUGE SUCCESS

Local 600, Meatcutters, were delighted with the turnout for their party that they "threw" last week at the labor hall. The large room was filled with guests, and the room adjoining was used to prepare the delicious refreshments which were served during the evening. Sandwiches and coffee were prepared by wives of members of the local.

Several short talks were made by H. G. B. King, labor attorney; T. R. Cuthbert, C. D. Puckett and others. Piano selections and recitations were offered the guests.

Members of this local are jubilant over the bright prospects and the wonderful work accomplished thus far, and it is predicted that it will not be very long before the entire meat industry in Chattanooga will be sporting the shop card of the union meat butchers.

Experts are taking polls on elections and everything. Why not take a poll of your union to ascertain the number who buy under the Union Label, Shop Card and Button.

WHY DUES SHOULD BE UP-TO-DATE.

Federation members are probably all aware that benefits and voting privileges are not accorded those who are delinquent with dues. But specifically many do not know that a member must be up-to-date before he can receive the American Teacher and The Labor World. Per capita tax must be paid for a member before his name can be placed on the mailing list for these publications.

Both of these publications are stimulating and helpful for teachers. They keep one abreast of his fellow-teachers. Let's keep up our dues and not miss an issue of either.

MISS LASSIE MUNSEY.

Back when it was dangerous for a city teacher to be even a member of the teachers' union, Lassie Munsey was not only a member, but a fearless, whole-hearted fighter for teachers' interests. She was a militant trade unionist at a time when many of us who now consider ourselves good union teachers were unawakened, slave-minded pedagogues. She risked her job to stand up for the rights of teachers, and her health suffered from her too-generous giving of her time and energy to the cause of tenure and salary legislation.

Recently Miss Munsey resigned as a member of the board of direcotrs and as delegate to the Central Trades and Labor council because of doctor's orders not to attend night meetings. In her resignation she expressed faith in the objectives of the federation and confidence that they will be achieved. She expressed her willingness to do any work for the union that her health will permit.

When her letter was read to the executive committee there was considerable delving into retrospect over the union battles of the past and the part Lassie Munsey played in them. The veterans of the committee could hardly conceive of an executive committee, a board of directors, or a Central Trades and Labor council delegation without her.

Things won't seem the same with Lassie Munsey out of the first line trenches, but we'll carry on with her past example as an inspiration. Meanwhile we'll hope for an early complete recovery of her health so that she may again march with the vanguard.

WHAT IS FASCISM?

This column has been asked to define fascism. Briefly, fascism is the open dictatorship of the most reactionary sections of finance capital. This is achieved through violent suppression of all civil liberties, including the right of workers to organize, bargain collectively and strike.

Any one can recognize fascism fully developed, but it is more important to be able to recognize the trends toward it, in order to be able to prevent it. Some of the symptoms of incipient fascism are—if we can learn anything from the experiences of Germany and Italy—a crop of demagogues who have no definite program but try to promise everything to everybody; attempts by organizations controlled by big business to pass "patroitic" measures that violate the bill of rights, such as sedition bills, loyalty votes bills, etc.; increase of vigilante activity against workers' organizations; the broad extension of the term "red" so that it covers every organization or individual with any progressive ideas whatsoever.

Do you recognize any of these tendencies in this country?

EUROPEAN FASCISM.

Those interested in hearing how fascism developed in Europe will do well to hear Miss Tony Sender in the second L. I. D. lecture at Chattanooga High school auditorium, Wednesday, Feb. 5. Miss Sender's subject is "Fascism, the Black International." She should know her subject, since she served in the German reichstag from the World war until Hitler came into power. She was elected in the last legal elections, but Hitler ousted her along with all others who opposed him.

She is now on the editorial staff of the Antwerp Volks Gazet.

A Long Overdue Move by the Treasury

The United States treasury has filed liens against the Associated Gas & Electric company and its subsidiaries and affiliates for $53,406,031, for evaded taxes, interest on the dodged payments, and penalties for evasion.

This is the best news that has come from the treasury in many a long day. It should make labor, the farmers, small business and consumers in general join together in singing the good old revival hymn:

"This is the way we long have sought,
And mourned because we found it not!"

It is found now, and if the "way" is followed with sufficient intelligence and energy, we shall hear less about unbalanced budgets. It is common talk in Wall Street that while the A. G. & E. reported losses to the government every year from 1925 to 1932, both years included, in one of those years it reported more than $10,000,000 net profits to its stockholders.

* * *

Utility spokesmen are saying that the government's action is in "reprisal" for the drive of propaganda, in Congress and now in the news papers and courts, to escape from all effective regulation. Of course, they would say this.

"No rogue e'er felt the halter draw
With good opinion of the law."

But the fact is that reprisals by the government are a hundred times justified and long overdue.

Few people realize how multimillionaires and their corporations were coddled and the treasury dodged during the long years that Andrew Mellon was the real financial dictator of the United States. Here are a few figures that may help understanding.

Official records of the Bureau of Internal Revenue show that before Mellon took charge of the treasury, the highest refunds—that is, money which the treasury returned to taxpayers for legal or moral reasons—was $28,656,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1921, when Mellon was in control for three months after the Wilson administration went out of office.

The next year, 1922, with Mellon in full control, refunds, credits and abatements totaled $182,372,000. In 1923, they came to $430,577,000; in 1926, they were $513,358,000, and in 1930—after the depression began, they were $326,774,000.

In the nine years of Mellonism, $3,432,453,000 were either turned back from the treasury as refunds or kept out of it by credits and abatements—twelve times the high record of that sort before Mellon came.

If that money had come into the treasury and been paid out on the public debt or public works, there would have been a perceptible gain for pay envelopes, and a big reduction of chips on the Wall Street gambling tables. And either of those effects would have postponed or mitigated the depression.

DOWN TOBACCO ROAD

TOO HOT FOR CHICAGO

By Chester M. Wright

Chicago's mayor didn't like Tobacco Road.

Tobacco Road is a play—a rather stark sort of a play that shows how a great many persons live.

And there's very little beauty about the way they live.

But it was too hot for Chicago—Chicago that kept Al Capone until Uncle Sam went and took him away and plunked him down in Alcatraz for safe keeping; Chicago that had its St. Valentine Day slaughter with gangland's machine guns; Chicago that has known as much dirt and corruption per square inch as any city in the land.

Tobacco Road got too close to mean realities for Chicago and the mayor of Chicago.

But Chicagoans probably smoke plenty of the products of the life about which Tobacco Road is the stage story and which gets too close to urgly truth to suit the mayor of the Windy City. There's no doubt of it.

Chicago helps to pile up the enormous profits of the Big Four, for which S. Clay Williams was the alert and omnipresent spokesman while the cigarette code was being gerrymandered and delayed and lost in the good old days of NRA.

The Big Four do their full share to make the conditions of life out of which Tobacco Road was written—too strong for the nostrils of Chicago, which gave "The Jungle" to the world, first via the nostrils, then via the pungent pen of Upton Sinclair and the printing press.

Chicago union men know a better answer than censoring plays. Chicago knows a better way to answer to the villainy that is in the life that made possible the play, "Tobacco Road".

Chicago union men know that there is a label on cigarettes and on cigars a label that fights an unending war against the kind of life that made Tobacco Road and that fights for freedom and decency and good citizenship for the workers who do the work from which cigarettes and cigars go to market.

They know the foolish, frivolous hypocrisy and hokum that is in such first-page-hunting gestures as that of the mayor. They know that when they walk up to a counter and ask for Twenty Grands, Wings, Raleighs, Spuds or Kools, with the union label on every package, they are doing something real to wipe out ugliness and slavery and dirt and the things that warp life and make it mean and sordid.

It's the union men and women that are fighting the real fight. The ridiculous gestures of censoring mayors look like child's play—very poor and distorted child's play, too, in comparison.

Here are some facts for the mayor of Chicago:

The Woman's Bureau of the Department of Labor found by an investigation on the spot last year that the average earnings of tobacco stemmers working 55 hours a week was $6.55 a week.

While paying these less than starvation wages to the "mudsills" of their industry, tobacco magnates of the Big Four were paying themselves salaries and bonuses running at times to more than a million dollars each per year.

In Winston-Salem, N. C., the town owned by the Reynolds Co., there are reputed to be 50 millionaires, Big Four tobacco millionaires. Winston-Salem spends 24 cents per day for each pupil in the public schools, while the manufacturing town of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., spends 55 cents per pupil per day.

In the 10 years from 1924 to 1933, inclusive, the following bonuses were paid to the inside cliques of the three biggest of the Big Four:

Liggett & Myers	$146,473,000
American Tobacco	184,441,000
R. J. Reynolds	267,544,000

And the stemmers for R. J. Reynolds lived in two-room shacks so ramshackle that the present writer has literally looked clean through them from front to back by the cracks.

There ought to be letters of fire to tell the lurid story of tobacco and the Big Four of America.

The river of swollen profits runs in a flood to the pocket of the Clay Williamses. The rivulet of shrunken wages trickles into the pockets of the poor in a dribble that stops ever so often for a great many of them, leaving their throats choked on hunger, their stomachs in a convulsive grasping for the food that doesn't come.

For the mighty few, palaces and power—the dictatorship of monopoly.

For many, misery, underfeeding and every so often that queer state of suspended animation that comes with the order, "You're through."

Millions of dollars tell thousands of men and women when to come and when to go, how much to eat and how to bend the knee.

And in the heart of the Tobacco Road country stands Duke University, endowed out of the shriveled bowels of the poor of Tobacco Road.

The monopoly hates the union. But the union and the union label proclaim to the world their war on the tobacco dictatorship and its human victims. The blue label on your union cigarette is a battle flag of freedom. Tell it to the mayor of Chicago, tell it to Clay Williams, tell it to the fat Big Four—and tell it to the man behind the counter where you spend your money.

JOBS AND PAY ROLLS DECLINE IN NEW YORK

Albany, N. Y.—The number of factory employes in this state dropped 1 per cent from the middle of October to the middle of November; and pay rolls in the same time went down 2.7 per cent.

Elmer F. Andrews, state industrial commissioner, who makes this report, adds that a seasonal decline at this time of year usually takes about one-half of one per cent from employment, and eight-tenths per cent from pay rolls. The largest losses were scored in men's and boys' clothing factories, shoe factories, fruit and vegetable canneries, and beverage plants.

The Passing Show

Note and Comment on Things Doing in the March of Events

Christmas, just gone again. Tales of joy on every hand. Tales of woe on every hand. One of the troubles with a season of happiness is that so many don't have much to be happy about. So many don't have anything. Not even any hope of anything.

Poets have made songs about sleigh bells at Christmas, but there was snow only over a part of the country and in many places where there was snow there was not any fuel to make the heat required to create comfort in the midst of cold. And there are no sleigh bells in the Carolinas. Not much of anything to take the mean edge off the misery of unemployment. No sleigh bells in Georgia, either. Commander-in-Chief Talmadge isn't bringing any joy of any other kind, either.

Meanwhile the moguls of business are ranting against taxes. They are willing to let the jobless ones shrivel up in their joblessness. They will fight taxes for unemployment insurance and for old age relief. They seem to think they have got the hungry ones licked and that they can now be thrown over the fence without either compunction or danger.

They are a great lot—those organized business men. They seem to think that business is something marked off, apart from the rest of our social existence and that it has a fence around it, marked "strictly private." They seem to think the nation has no right to be concerned about it, no right to impose laws upon it, no right to even try to find a knot hole through which to have a look at what goes on.

Private business is a fine thing, a necessary thing. But when it indulges in practices that hurt the millions, then we have to do something about those practices. That's all the people want to do. That's what business doesn't want. That's where the conflict comes. That's where the issue is buried. It is a particularly interesting thing to face this just at Christmas time. You can write down for yourself the facts about it all and you can see just which facts do not square with the Christmas idea. In that way, you can be just as good a judge as anybody. You will find it very interesting to try. Forget about labels. Just take the facts, sort them out and see where they fit with rights and wrongs.

It is a nice time for the supreme court to be going into action, too, to see just how far the people can go in governing themselves under a representative form of government. It will be interesting to see which kind of thinking the court will do in weighing issues that will have a great deal to do with whether there is to be help for the otherwise helpless. That's about what it comes to. It is interesting that just at the Christams season, the lines of conflict and struggle are being drawn. There is little interest in peace, for there is no peace. There is strife and the prospect of strife. The poor will read the Christmas story and they will know, too, that if they are to have the rights and safeguards of a decent freedom, they have got to fight for them. The privileged and over-fat will read the Christmas story and somehow they will make their privilege and their fat fit in with it, to their satisfaction. And they will push forward their plans to keep their privilege by fighting for it. Everywhere everyone will know that struggle is the order of the day.

This wireless dispatch from Berlin to the New York Times is well worthy of being quoted in full:

"Berlin, Dec. 11.—The Nazi project of rewritting history, for which a special institute has been created under Prof. Walther Frank, has started in earnest, it is revealed in a lecture delivered before a distinguished audience of educators and government and party officials by Dr. Alfred Baeumler, professor of political pedagogy in the University of Berlin.

"According to Dr. Baeumler, the Middle Ages did not come to a close with the discovery of America or with the Reformation, as the world has been led to believe, but with the assumption of power by Adolf Hitler. Only after Hitler's accession did Germanic strength conquer the independence of the Roman spirit, Dr. Baeumler asserted, and thereby open the real modern era."

How do even the Nazis get that way? Here is an open, brazen attempt to manufacture fake history out of records which are known to all countries and indeed are to be found in every important library in the civilized world. And the baleful miracle is that in Germany, at least, the gang gets away with it.

The purpose of such stuff is obvious. The Nazi regime obviously is not quite so impressive as it was designed to be. There is even a chance that the contempt which most of the outside world feels for Nazism may seep over the border, and make some Germans wonder if their present so-called government is all that it is cracked up to be. To meet the ever-present menace of a possible revival of common sense in Central Europe, history is to be rewritten from the viewpoint of race hatred and prejudice, and Hitler is to be dramatized as the hero who abolished the Middle Ages!

And, as remarked before, the appalling fact is that in Germany, the gang gets away with it.

Mendieta is the sixth Cuban president to resign in a little over two years. The elections which might—or might not—give the Cuban people a chance to register their wishes have been postponed four times.

Under Machado, Cuba was ruled by a single ruthless tyrant. Since Machado left the scene, Cuba has had a shifting melange of masters; none of them strong enough to take the dictatorship to which all aspire; none of them honest or intelligent enough to take the chance of a real appeal to the people.

It is a sad, sad mess; and the United States of America is not entirely free from blame for it. We freed Cuba from Spain to leave her a chattel of Wall Street; and the rule of the Chase National bank and the sugar trust is no more enlightened than that of Madrid.

End Employment Of Labor Spies, Concern Is Told

Detroit Company Also Directed To Reinstate Seven Discharged men and Stop All Interference with Organization.

Washington.—The national labor relations board has ordered the Fruehauf Trailer company, of Detroit, to reinstate seven employes and to cease and desist from interfering with its employes in the exercise of their rights to join labor organizations or to bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing.

The company is also ordered to end employment of detectives to report on union activities or become members of any labor organization for the purpose of obtaining information.

The board ordered further that the company end any practices tending to discourage membership in the United Automobile Workers' Federal Labor Union No. 19375, and from threatening discharge because of membership in the union.

Victory for Wagner Act.

The order, issued after exhaustive inquiry in Detroit on Nov. 6 to 8, constituted a victory also for the Wagner-Connery labor disputes act, the applicability of which was challenged by attorneys for the trailer firm. They maintained that the activities of the discharged employes could not be construed as in interstate commerce.

The seven employes found to have been discharged because of union activities were ordered to be reinstated, with back pay at the rate in effect at the date of their discharge.

There were two complaints against the Fruehauf company, each based on charges brought by the Automobile Workers' Union No. 19375 and each alleging discriminatory discharge. The two complaints were consolidated into one case at the November hearing. The Michigan Manufacturers' association intervened to the extent of filing a brief.

Fruehauf Business Described.

At the hearing, the company moved to dismiss on the ground that the board was without jurisdiction because the unfair labor practices did not affect interstate commerce. The board overruled this motion. In its decision, the board states that the Fruehauf company is the largest manufacturer of commercial trailers in the United States, sells its product through thirty-one branches in Toronto, Canada, and in twelve states other than Michigan, and also through distributors and dealers in all principal cities of the United States; and that the trailers themselves "are designed for the transportation of merchandise, and are extensively used as instrumentalities of commerce between the states." The company ships 80 per cent of its products out of Michigan. Its sales in 1934 were $3,318,000.

The decision describes the activities of J. N. Martin, a private detective, whose espionage for the Fruehauf company were revealed at the November hearing.

Spy Visited Board Office.

Martin, in the pay of the company, passed as an ordinary employe and as such became a member of the union. Eventually he became union treasurer, having access to a list of members. He reported once a week to Supt. Halpin, who went about the shop withthe list in hand warning workers against union activity.

Martin, it appeared from testimony, visited the Detroit office of the national labor relations board on Sept. 27, 1935, and conferred in the guise of a union member with the board's regional attorney while the latter was investigating the union's charge against the Fruehauf company. On the occasion Martin was known to have noticed J. L. Peterson, a sub-foreman and the recording secretary of the union, and testimony showed that Martin reported this fact to Earl Vosler, vice-president of the company. Peterson das discharged two weeks later.

Martin Opposed Strike.

At a July 8 secret strike vote meeting of the union, Martin spoke against calling a strike, and his attitude is stated to have had a bearing on the fact that the union voted not to strike.

The discharge of each of the seven employes took place during the working day under circumstances which led to the board's finding that the company was moved by a desire to break the union.

Nicholas Trusch, five years with the company, was asked by his superior, "Do you want your job or your union?" William Woinman, three years with the company, was similarly approached. Arthur Beck was a union shop steward. In the case of Leonard Shaloux, a sub-foreman had been instructed to tell him not to attend union meetings.

William Milne, two years with the company, at the time of a previous discharge in 1934, was told, "You should leave that union alone. I am just warning you." Milne on that occasion was reinstated as a result of a conference with the former national relations board. On July 8 of this year he was told that orders f upstairs were to fire him . . . "Bi warned you a year ago about union business." A week later a with much less experience was hi in Milne's place.

Woolrey Coonrod, eight years the company and at one time a f man, was told by Foreman Goo that his troubles arose from "foo around the damn union."

Two officers of the union, Ste Sprytzer, its president, and Art Hillman, its vice-president, were charged July 2, three days before national labor relations act signed. The decision notes this and in its order the board dismi the complaint as to these two me

The findings of facts in the dec presents a detailed picture of Fruehauf company's business. It clared that in 1932 there were Fruehauf trailers in use in six states. Fifty per cent of the mate used in manufacture came from o states. The company maintains ice stations manned by its own chanics in thirty-one cities in United States. These mechanics stall the company's devices know the "fifth wheel," which in al every case has to be installed at point of destination before the pany's trailers can be used with tors and trucks.

Fight to Block Order Begun

Cincinnati.—A review of an orde the NLRB was asked in the U. S. cuit court of appeals here on De by the Fruehauf Trailer company, troit.

The trailer company was ord by the board to desist from disch ing men for union affiliation, n hire detectives for espionage pur and to reinstate seven discharged and pay them wages for the time were off.

PUBLIC VOCATIONAL EDUCATION FUNDS USED TO BENEFIT PROFIT-HUNGRY MILL EMPLOYERS

Washington, Dec. 25.—Federal and state funds intended to aid vocational education have been diverted to the illegal profit of reactionary mill bosses, and the report in which two government agents uncovered this situation has been kept "confidential" for nearly six months.

Anna Lalor Burdick, of the office of education, and Ruth Scandrett, of the department of labor, were commissioned by their official superiors to investigate stories of the misuse of vocational education funds. They found:

That workers were trained on production in manufacturing plants without pay for six to twelve weeks, and then transferred to payrolls at "learners' wages."

That goods thus produced without payment of wages were sold on the open market.

That workers were kept busy at mere machine tending, which they could do as well in two days as in two years; yet were told by the bosses that such training was "vocational education."

Other tricks of incredible meanness were uncovered by the investigators. The workers served two training periods, one in the plant training school and one in the plant. The superintendent and foremen of the factory are made "teachers" and paid at public expense.

"The good name of the public school," said the investigators, "was used to cloak schemes for commercial gain and to cover practices contrary to code regulations."

It might have been expected, the investigators experienced many difficulties in getting into the plants and schools where this skulduggery was going on. However they made a pretty complete investigation of thirteen plants.

This report was completed in June, but was not made public. Representatives of labor publications who asked about it were put off with stories which were miles from telling the truth. The essence of the report was published on the front pages of some newspapers before any official statement was issued.

GREEN IS MEMBER OF NEW RADIO EDUCATION BOARD

Washington.—The federal communications commission announced the creation of a federal radio education committee composed of about thirty-five educators and radio executives.

Dr. John W. Studebaker was named chairman of the committee, which includes William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor. Other members are Merlin Aylesworth, president of the National Broadcasting company; William S. Paley, president of the Columbia Broadcasting system; Dr. S. Parks Cadman, Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, and Mrs. B. F. Langworthy, president National Congress of Parents and Teachers.

The committee was established by authority of the communications act of 1934, which instructed the commission to "study theproposal that congress by statute allocate 6 per cent of radio broadcasting facilities to particular types of non-profit radio programs, or to persons identified with particular kinds of non-profit activities."

CARNEGIE BAKERY WORKERS WIN UNION RECOGNITION

Carnegie, Pa.—At the conclusion of a strike lasting more than three months, the Bakery and Confectionery Workers' union here won union recognition from the Viviano Marconi Manufacturing company, including return of all strikers to work and the pledge by the company to adhere to the provisions of the national labor relations act.

A complaint against the company based on the union's charges that the company refused to recognize it as representing the majority of the employes had been issued by the labor board and a day set for the hearing. Clinton S. Golden, regional director at Pittsburgh for the board, was instrumental in securing a meeting of the company officials and union representatives, which resulted in the strike settlement. The hearing was therefore canceled.

ANTHRACITE CODE PLANNED.

Washington.—Senator Guffey, of Pennsylvania, author of the bill for the stabilization of the bituminous coal industry enacted into law by the last session of congress, announced that he planned to introduce a similar bill for the anthracite coal industry when congress reconvenes in January.

The bituminous law authorizes price fixing with suitable protection for consumers, together with a fair adjustment of wages and hours linked with the complete right of the mine workers to organize and bargain collectively. A commission of five members administers the law and a board of three members adjusts labor disputes.

Fight on Guffey Act Renewed

Cincinnati.—The fight against the Guffey Coal Act was renewed in U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals when 19 coal companies of Harlan County, Kentucky, filed an appeal from a decision of Federal Judge Elwood Hamilton, in Louisville. Judge Hamilton, on November 14, dismissed a bill of complaint in which the companies asked that the act be declared unconstitutional.

MORE ABOUT MINISTERS

of Joseph Shoemaker and beating, tarring and feathering of E. F. Poulnot and S. D. Rogers for labor activities, but because negro workers will inevitably be discriminated against should they attend convention. Lynching of Joseph Shoemaker fits snugly into frame of violence of Florida. In October, 1934, Claude Neal was lynched with incredible barbarity at Marianna, Fla., and on July 19 Rubin Stacey, negro sharecropper, was lynched at Fort Lauderdale. Removal of American Federation of Labor convention from state with such a record and consequent economic loss to the state would be a salutary lesson."

Green Demanded Punishment.

On Dec. 11 President Green made a vigorous demand for punishment of those responsible for the attack on Joseph Shoemaker and two others at Tampa. He said that unless a full investigation was made of the outrage and the guilty punished, the American Federation of Labor might find it necessary to withdraw its convention from Tampa, which was selected as the 1936 convention city by the last convention.

Huntington, W. Va.—The Huntington Central Labor Union has pledged its support to Dr. James E. Allen charged deliberate misrepresentation of his remarks.

Laxative combination folks know is trustworthy

The confidence thousands of parents have in good, old reliable, powdered Thedford's Black-Draught has prompted them to get the new Syrup of Black-Draught for their children. The grown folks stick to the powdered Black-Draught; the youngsters probably will prefer it when they outgrow their childish love of sweets. Mrs. C. W. Adams, of Murray, Ky., writes: "I have used Thedford's Black-Draught (powder) about thirteen years, taking it for biliousness. Black-Draught acts well and I am always pleased with the results. I wanted a good, reliable laxative for my children. I have found Syrup of Black-Draught to be just that."

REACTIONARIES FAIL TO ALTER POLICIES OF UNION CONCERNS

Axton-Fisher and Brown & Williamson Tell Major Berry They Are Observing Code Signed Under NRA and Have Recently Renewed Contracts With Tobacco Workers' Union.

Washington.—Tobacco manufacturers who employ union labor once more have taken the lead and set a pace for their industry. This time they have led off in co-operating with the federal government to bring industrial peace through conferences between management and workers. The two largest union-employing tobacco firms signed and sent the following letter:

Washington, D. C., Dec. 9, 1935.
Maj. George L. Berry,
Coordinator for Industrial Corporation,
Washington, D. C.
Dear Sir:

At your suggestion, the undersigned tobacco manufacturers attended the Industrial Conference, meeting in Washington on Monday, Dec. 9, 1935, with a view of cooperation by the tobacco industry in accomplishing the purposes for which the Industrial Conference is held.

In accordance with the grouping arrangement, we were assigned to and met with Group No. 16, for the Food Industry. At the meeting of that group a resolution as follows:

"Resolved, That we report to Major Berry, through an individual appointed by the chairman for the specific purpose, that we are reporting back to our individual industries or associations or individual companies, Major Berry's introductory statement and list of questions for discussion, with a view to securing the designation of a representative or representatives to a Central Conference Board with authority to present the views and recommendations of the food processing group or the individual industry groups or of individual companies"— was adopted with the definite understanding and concurrence of the meeting that such resolution imposed no obligation upon any party attending the meeting who did not have an association or other trade group for the industry represented.

Inasmuch as the tobacco manufacturers have no association of any kind prepared or authorized to function, or which can function, in representation of the industry, the representatives of the undersigned companies (with the concurrence of the food group meeting) withdrew. It was also understood that the coordinator approved of groups breaking up in this way.

We, of course, represent only a small part of the tobacco industry and have no right or authority of any kind to speak for the industry, and we speak only for our individual companies.

On behalf of our companies, we sympathize with the purposes of the Industrial Conference, which you addressed on the morning of Dec. 9, 1935, and we hold ourselves in readiness to meet with you at any time with a view of carrying out the purposes of the Conference.

In this connection we would say that we are at the present time adhering to the provisions of the Code of Fair Competition for the Cigarette, Snuff, Chewing and Smoking Tobacco Industry which was in effect at the time of the Supreme Court decision declaring the National Industrial Recovery Act unconstitutional.

Both of the undersigned companies have within the last 30 days executed contracts with the Tobacco Workers' International Union, continuing for a period of two years provisions respecting maximum hours, minimum wages, and child labor conditions, which are, from the point of view of labor, equal to or better than those contained in the above-mentioned Code of Fair Competition.

ENGLISH COTTON MILL HEADS DECLARE FOR TRADE UNIONISM

Lancashire Employers State They Prefer Employes to Be Members of Organized Labor and Will Urge All Operatives to Join Union.

London.—Lancashire cotton employers have declared in favor of trade unionism among their employes.

Their conversion to this point of view was announced in a statement of the conciliation committee which has been dealing with a dispute at a Rochdale cotton mill.

The dispute arose over the employment of non-unionists.

The terms of the agreement reached were as follows:

"On behalf of the Federation of Master Cotton Spinners' associations, it was stated that they preferred that employes in cotton spinning mills should be members of a trade union. Furthre to remove any doubt that might exist on this point, they agreed to circulate (circularize) the members of the federation to this effect.

"On behalf of the operatives, it was agreed that, should any similar dispute arise, they will observe the provisions of the agreement for avoiding stoppages of work. They reserve the right to resubmit, if necessary, the case now under consideration to this conciliation committee direct."

In the case put before the committee by the Cardroom Amalgamation, it was stated:

"We have established and maintained a system of collective bargaining, a system whereby every operative received equality of treatment, the non-unionist included. During negotiations the employers will only deal with the trade union officials. At these times the non-unionist is ignored and is apparently non-existent; in actual fact, however, we are in the position of negotiating agreements for members and non-members alike. So far as the issues dealt with are concerned, the non-unionist reaps a definite advantage over the trade unionist; he gains equalityof treatment without contributing anything towards it.

"We have already, and probably will again, be reminded of the freedom of the individual. We would point out that liberty of action is restricted, and in certain circumstances, the individual has no freedom of action. Contributions under the national health and unemployment insurance acts are compulsory; legal remedies are provided for the non-payment of rates and taxes. In these matters the individual has no choice; he must pay hisquo ta for the benefits he receives."

UNION WINS VOTING IN HOSIERY PLANT

Washington.—The national labor relations board announces that employes of the Wayne Knitting Mills, Fort Wayne, Ind., voted to be represented in collective bargaining by the American Federation of Hosiery Workers, an A. F. of L. affiliate.

The election gave 516 votes to Branch 2 of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers, the organization upon whose petition the balloting was held, and 401 votes to the Association for Employes for Representation of Employes Only of the Wayne Knitting mills. Fifteen votes were challenged.

"The Hosiery Workers' 516 votes is a majority of the 960 eligible to vote, giving that organization majority and confirming it as the exclusive representative for the purpose of collective bargaining with the mills," the NLRB said.

The direction for an election was issued by the board on Dec. 7. The balloting was the first to be conducted under such direction by the board.

BUILDING UNIONS CALL STRIKE ON SWIFT PLANT

New Orleans.—The New Orleans Building Trades council has called a strike on the work of constructing the storage and warehouse plant of Swift & Co. (main headquarters, Chicago). Delegates from organized labor called several times on the officials of the company and contractors. Because of refusal to treat with them, the council placed the company on the unfair list.

JOBS ON DAMS TO BE GIVEN BY EXAMINATION

Application Forms Must Be Filled In and Turned In by January 25, 1936.

FORM 20 OBTAINED AT LOCAL POSTOFFICE

List of Cities in Five States Announced Where Job Hunters Will Be Quizzed—Must Have Been Resident in Locality on July 15, 1935.

Labor for Chickamauga, Guntersville, and Hiwassee dams will be selected from applicants taking examinations to be given in 82 cities in the immediate vicinity of these projects during February and March, 1936, the Tennessee Valley Authority announced January 1. The examination will be similar to those given in 1933. Experience on TVA construction has demonstrated the value of the examination as one of the steps in the selection of skilled and unskilled personnel. Application Form 20 may be obtained from local Civil Service secretaries or postmasters in the vicinity of the three projects. Applications must be mailed to the Tennessee Valley Authority, Workmen's Examination Unit, Knoxville, Tennessee, postmarked not later than January 25, 1936.

The examination will be for positions as skilled workmen, helpers and laborers, and will consist of tests of mechanical skill and ability to perform simple tasks. It will also include a simple test of ability to follow oral instructions. Samples of these tests may be found in the official announcement of the examination.

Persons desiring work on these projects must file applications and compete in this examination even though they have Civil Service status, or have taken previous TVA examinations, or are now employed by the Authority. Applicants must be at least 16 years of age on the date of the close of receipt of applications.

No person will be permitted to take the examination unless he or one of his parents, or his wife, or one of his wife's parents was living in one of the counties listed on the official announcement on July 15, 1935.

This examination will not qualify persons for clerical, professional, or other positions not classified as skilled, semi-skilled or unskilled labor.

Owing to the large number of applications expected, examinations will be held on several dates. Each person who is to be examined will be notified by admission card from the Authority when and where he is to be examined.

Wages for labor on these projects will not be less than those prevailing in the region where the work of the Authority is carried on.

The Tennessee Valley Authority will make appointments and communicate with applicants as the need for workers arises, or if additional information is needed. Appointment from the register will be made after investigation of character, employment record, and competence in particular trades or skills. Unnecessary correspondence on the part of the applicant is discouraged.

Cities and towns in which the examination will be held are:

Alabama—Anniston, Athens, Bessemer, Birmingham, Center, Cullman, Decatur, Fairfield, Fayette, Florence, Fort Payne, Gadsden, Guntersville, Hamilton, Huntsville, Jasper, Montevallo, Moulton, Oneonta, Russellville, Scottsboro, Sheffield, Talladega, Tuscumbia, Wheeler Dam.

Pulaski, Tenn., Delighted With TVA's First Year

Net Saving of $18 Per Customer Shown—Taxes Not Raised—New Prosperity Evident Because of Cheaper Current.

Pulaski, Tennessee, today completed its first year of power distribution under its contract with the Tennessee Valley Authority.

Figures furnished the TVA by the city showed a net saving of $18.50 per electric customer for the year. This represents a total saving to the citizens of more than $14,000 annually. Consumption of electricity has jumped from a monthly average of about 50 kwh per residential customer to 100 kwh.

The system has been entirely self-supporting and in addition to paying all of the direct costs of service has provided sufficient income to take care of interest and amortization requirements on the $85,000 of bonds allocated to the system. The City of Pulaski has been credited by the electric system with more than $1,700 as tax equivalent and operations show a net income of $12,000.

In a letter to the Authority Mayor W. R. Rackley pointed out that citizens are delighted with their experience. He wrote:

"We made our tax levy last week and to the delight of Pulaski and the chagrin of the enemies of TVA, we didn't have to raise our taxes, but held it at the same rate it has been for several years.

"While it has been heralded all over the country that we would have to raise our taxes on account of using TVA current to where it would be almost prohibitive to own a home in Pulaski, but to the contrary we are delighted with it and have doubled our patronage since we have been using it.

"The business men and leading citizens of the town say it has put new life in Pulaski."

BOSSES YIELD AFTER THREE-MONTH STRIKE

Barberton, Ohio, Pottery Workers Granted Sweeping Concessions in Settlement.

Barberton, Ohio.—A three months' strike of potters at the Ohio Insulator company here ended this week, when the firm granted sweeping concessions. They include reinstatement of all employes, regardless of their strike activities, a guarantee to bargain collectively, maintain seniority rights and pay overtime wages.

The only time there was any disorder in connection with the strike was a few weeks ago when Sheriff James T. Flower tried to take a crowd of strikebreakers into the factory. The sheriff and his deputies precipitated a serious clash when they discharged gas shells into the strikers' picket line.

The public's reaction from this attack on the strikers was so emphatic, however, that the sheriff was forced to withdraw his deputies and close the plant.

AUTO MECHANICS SIGN UP BIG TRUCKING CONCERN

Seattle, Wash.—An agreement has just been negotiated with the Consolidated Freight Lines, a big trucking concern, providing for a 15-cents-an-hour wage increase for auto mechanics, Acting Business Agent M. R. Sterns reported this week.

The new pact establishes a minimum wage of 90 cents an hour for mechanics, provides for the eight-hour day and 44-hour week with time and one-half pay for all overtime.

SHOE WORKERS WIN PACTS

Haverhill, Mass.—Agreements providing for the 40-hour week, have just been signed by 12 of the largest shoe manufacturing firms here and the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union. About 3,000 workers are affected.

Japanese Christian Declares Labor Is Pillar of Society In Labor Review Story

Believes Churches Should Take Active Part in Encouraging Formation of Labor Unions—First Federation of Labor in Japan Set Up in 1911 After American Pattern.

Believes in Us

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 2.—"Labor is the pillar of society."

It was Dr. Toyohiko Kagawa, disciple of human rights and the "world's greatest Christian," speaking. He had paused in the lobby of Hotel Peabody to meet Horace Kelley, editor of the Memphis Labor Review. The renowned Japanese pacifist social worker was in Memphis to address the Methodist Young People's conference.

Asked for an interview by the labor press representatives, Dr. Kagawa graciously agreed. A few minutes later in his room he discussed the growth of trade unions in his country and the relationship between church and labor.

And 'tis no wonder that the diminitive Dr. Kagawa apparently welcomed an opportunity to talk of trade unions. His interest is with the masses, because they have the greatest need. And then, too, he has helped lead the shipyard strikers at Kobe, was arrested and sent to prison.

As Dr. Kagawn talked with Mr. Kelley, a secretary urged him that the time for a radio talk was nearing. Dr. Kagawa indicated that he had rather discuss labor organizations than face a radio "mike."

"When was the first labor union formed in Japan and after what organization was it typed?" Mr. Kelley asked.

"It was in 1911," he said. "The first federation of labor was established in 1918. The union was typed after the English organization."

Dr. Kagawa then explained that labor in Japan has been greatly influenced by the materialist socialism of Marx, as introduced by the Russian communists. Kagawa is sympathetic with most of their objectives, but feels that materialism is equally futile whether socialistic or capitalistic and that a new spirit must come into the world.

The visitor went on to explain that the leader of the trade union movement in Japan is a Christian. He then launched into a discussion relative to the relationship which should exist between the church and the trade union.

"What should be the attitude of the church toward organized labor?" Mr. Kelley asked.

"The church should take an active part in encouraging the formation of unions."

"Do you believe that the unionization of the industrial workers of Japan would tend to put Japanese products in a better light on the American market?" he was asked.

"Yes," came the reply. "That would mean that the products were not made under sweatshop conditions."

In his address to some 9,000 young Methodists and people of other creeds Saturday night, Dr. Kagawa made a stirring appeal to industry to put into practice the law of love and fairness in dealing with employes. He also added that labor should practice these virtues.

Suffering from trachoma, which he contracted during the fourteen years he voluntarily spent in the filthiest slums of Japan, Dr. Kagawa, after thirteen operations, has lost the sight of one eye and must use a powerful magnifying glass to read with the other.

An attack made on him by a thug while he was working in the slums was recalled by Dr. Kagawa. He said:

"He hit me in the nose with his fist and knocked my teeth out. That's why I can't pronounce English any better. I have false teeth."

Dr. Kagawa is on a nation-wide speaking tour. He was detained by immigration authorities at Angel Island, California, for three days because of the eye condition. President Roosevelt personally intervened in the case and Dr. Kagawa was granted a visitor's permit. He is attended constantly by a doctor or a nurse.

Whatley Named As President Local 1785, UTW

W. T. McKenna, Leader for Two Years, Declines to Succeed Self — Given Watch in Appreciation.

Other Officers Elected at Meeting Dec. 28—Condolence Extended Member Who Lost Sister.

December 28 was election day for Local 1785, United Textile Workers of America, employes of the Standard-Coosa-Thatcher units in Chattanooga. W. T. McKenna, who has been at the head of the local for two years, declined to accept nomination to succeed himself for the third term, and Vernon Whatley was selected to guide his local through the coming year.

After the election and installation of officers by C. D. Puckett, representative for the United Textile Workers, Mr. McKenna was given a pleasant surprise when he was called forth to accept a handsome timepiece as a token of appreciation for the hard work and thought he has given during the strenuous and perilous history of this local.

Other posts of responsibility were filled as follows: First Vice-President, Lyman Wade; Second Vice-President, Carl Walker; Recording Secretary, Miss Fannie Sutherland. As expected, Miss Ina Greene was re-elected to her well-performed duties as secretary-treasurer. Tom Travis was named conductor, and Miss Agnes Oldham was made warden. The trustees are Sam Jones, E. T. Smith and J. P. Moore.

A sad note was struck when the local expressed its sympathy to Miss Pearl Gollahan, whose sister, Mrs. Tessie McRoy, passed away on December 10. Formal resolution of condolence was spread on the minutes as follows:

"Whereas, our Heavenly Father, in His infinite wisdom, has removed from our midst this dear friend and your beloved sister, Tessie McRoy; and

"Whereas, as members of Local 1785, we wish to express to you and your family our deepest regret in the loss of your beloved sister; therefore, be it

"Resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, one to the Labor World for publication, and a copy spread upon our minutes."

NEW ARBITRATION BOARD WON BY FERRY STRIKERS

Seattle, Wash.—After a four weeks' strike, the Masters, Mates and Pilots' association and the Ferryboatmen's union here won their fight against the award made by William A. Gaines in the controversy with the ferry boat operators when Gov. Martin appoioted a new board with full power to probe all phases of the dispute as to hours, wages and overtime.

Under the agreement signed by the president of the boat owners' association and officials of the two unions, operation of the ferries and freight boats was resumed pending the award by the governor's three-man commission, which will make its findings on Jan. 20, retroactive to Dec. 9.

LABOR BOARD TO APPEAL JUDGE OTIS'S DECISION VOIDING THE WAGNER ACT

Edict Enjoining Board and Holding Measure Unconstitutional Was Issued Before Officials Had Either Heard the Case or Ruled On It.

Washington, D. C.—The National Labor Relations Board announced that it would appeal as soon as possible the decision handed down by Federal Judge Merrill E. Otis in Kansas City on December 21 holding the Wagner-Connery Labor Disputes Act unconstitutional and enjoining the board proceeding with its announced hearing in the case of Majestic Flour Mills of Aurora, which had been cited for alleged violation of the unfair labor practices section of the Wagner Act.

Practices Banned by Wagner Act

The unfair labor practices by employers which are banned by the Act, include:

1. Interfering with, restraining or coercing employes in the exercise of their rights of self-organization.
2. Dominating or interfering with the formation or administration of any labor organization or contributing financial or other support to it.
3. Discriminating in regard to employment terms to discourage or encourage membership in any labor organization.
4. Discharging or otherwise discriminating against an employe for filing charges or giving testimony under the Wagner Act.
5. Refusing to bargain collectively with representatives of employes.

Although the Wagner Act prescribes definite procedure by the Labor Board, including a review af the Board's orders by the Federal Circuit Courts of Appeals, Judge Otis ignored this procedure, and despite the fact that the Labor Board had not even heard the case, declared the entire Act unconstitutional on the ground that it exceeded the power of Congress to regulate commerce among the states, and enjoined the Board from holding a hearing on the complaint.

In announcing that Judge Otis's decision would be appealed, the Labor Board stressed the point that it had made no decision under the act in Majestic Flour Mills case. "The Board had proceeded no further," the statement said, "than the calling of a hearing to examine the facts involved, both as to whether the company is actually engaged in interstates commerce and whether it had committed unfair labor practices as charged by its employes."

Labor Board Procedure Explained

In explaining Board procedure under the Act, it was pointed out that a labor organization, to which Majestic Flour Mills' employes belong, had filed charges alleging company interference with its right to self-organization. A preliminary investigation having been made, the Board's Kansas City office issued a complaint and set a date for a hearing on the facts. This hearing was stopped by a temporary restraining order granted by Judge Otis.

"Had the hearing been held," the statement said, "the Board would have been required to dismiss the case if it had appeared at the hearing either that evidence of unfair labor practices was lacking or if the company is not engaged in interstate commerce.

"If, however, it had developed at the hearing that unfair labor practices had been committed, and that such practice burdened or obstructed interstate commerce, these findings would have required the Board to order an end to the specific practices for which the company was cited.

"The intervention of the temporary restraining order, at the stage when the Board had gone no further than providing for a hearing, prevented inquiry into both the labor practice matter and the question of facts regarding the company's interstate operations."

It was pointed out that the Board's regulations provide opportunity for review of the recommendations made by the examiner at the initial hearings. The Act itself makes the Board's cease and desist orders reviewable in a Circuit Court of Appeals; and a decision by that Court may be reviewed by the Supreme Court of the United States.

MACHINISTS SIGN SHIP BUILDERS

Twelve Concerns Make First Contracts—Call for Wage Increases, Recognition.

Significant wage gains in the North Pacific Coast shipbuilding industry were reported this week to national headquarters of the International Association of Machinists.

At Seattle and Tacoma, 12 companies signed agreements with the Machinists and other bona fide labor organizations. According to General Vice-President Harvey Brown of the I. A. of M., the majority of these firms have never before had pacts with the machinists.

All of the machinists' agreements provide for a wage increase of 10 cents an hour, the establishment of a $1-an-hour minimum wage and the 40-hour week.

The companies listed by Business Agent I. A. Sandvigen at Seattle are: Barbee Shipyards, Olson & Sunde Shipyard, Bell Shipyard, Rowe Machine Works, Puget Sound Engineering company, Fishing Vessel Owners' Marine Ways, McKenzie & Petrich Machine Works, and the Maritime Boat & Engine Works.

The Tacoma agreements reported by Business Agent William F. Zenk of that city are with:

The Western Boatbuilding company, Mojean & Erickson company, J. M. Martinac & Co., and the Foss Launch company.

Materials for WPA Work Will Cost $400,000,000

Officials of the United States treasury in charge of purchasing supplies for relief work under the Works Progress Administration declare that during the next six months over $400,000,000 of the $4,800,000,000 relief appropriation will be spent for materials by federal and local governments.

The Treasury Procurement Division, which implements the purchases, has already paid out $68,974,161 for supplies, and, to quote the language of an official, the division has "just started buying."

Government purchases for PWA work are interpreted as giving a large forward push to business recovery. Officials expressed the conviction that $15,000,000 of WPA funds used to purchase textiles would restore sound financial conditions to many of the distressed textile mills and enable them to distribute more profits to stockholders.

It was estimated by WPA officials that over two million items have already been purchased for supplies to keep the 3,500,000 jobless now on the federal payroll at work. Office equipment, cement, cotton, textile goods and trucks lead the big list of supplies to keep the WPA relief projects going.

MACHINISTS GET HEARING.

Canton, O.—Charged with refusing to bargain collectively with the International Association of Machinists, the Canton Stamping and Enameling company has been cited under the Wagner-Connery act to appear at a hearing before Ralph A. Lind, regional director of the national labor relations board.

The hearing will be held in the Canton city hall.

MACHINISTS REPORT THREE WAGE BOOSTS

Canton Strike Ends With Union Pact; Press Concern Signs New Agreement.

Settlement of the strike at the Canton Drop Forge and Manufacturing company, Canton, O., was announced this week at grand lodge offices of the Machinists' union in Washington.

The new agreement provides for wageincreases ranging from 2 to 15 cents an hour with practically all of the strikers receiving the 15-cent boost. The men were out two weeks.

At Plainfield, N. J., the Wood Newspaper Machinery corporation and the Walter Scott company, both large manufacturers of printing presses, signed a new agreement with the Machinists granting a 5-cents-an-hour increase.

NORWEGIAN SEAMEN REFUSE TO CARRY IRON TO ITALY

New York City.—Seamen on the Norwegian freighter Spero, docked at Jersey City, went on strike in protest against carrying a load of scrap iron to Italy.

Agents for the shipowners said a new crew would be signed.

A spokesman for the seamen sadi they struck because their union in Norway advised members to stay off ships carrying war materials and because of the Norwegian sanctions against Italy.

Value of Labor World Ads Demonstrated

The Labor World may be pardoned if it seems to stick its chest out a bit because of the part it has played in introducing Mother's Home Style bread and cakes to the Chattanooga market. The Union Baking company, makers of these products, came into the market from the ground up. Ordinarily, for any new bakery of consequence to introduce its products, many months of constant and expensive advertising is necessary to "take hold." This new company advertised in The Labor World exclusively, and when they opened up for business they found that from their first hour the public was ready to take its loaves and cakes faster than they could get them from the ovens.

This is a feat that other merchants would do well to observe. Labor World advertising pays big dividends.

What Next!

Standard Oil of Ohio is now packaging automobile engine oil in cardboard. "Cans" of cardboard, with tin ends, made in the Standard plant, are opened just as tin containers are. The new cans are long and thin and are easily handled in winter, it is said.

The first pump serving gasoline made from British coal was recently placed in operation, with Tom Williams, a member of parliament, turning on the pump at formal ceremonies. The gasoline is distilled from hydrocarbon oils produced by submission of coal to hydrogen pressure at 450 Centigrade. An initial output of 100,000 tons of gasoline a year is expected, giving employment to several thousand miners and processors.

A. A union of seamen on the Great Lakes in 1863 is believed to have been the first.

Q.—When did the American Federation of Labor adopt a slogan?

A.—In 1910, the convention of that year declared: "Let every union member regard it as his mission to organize, to bring at least one fellow-worker into membership in his trade union. Let the slogan be: 'Organize, Agitate, Educate.'"

Q.—Can party politics be brought before American Federation of Labor convention?

A.—Section 8 of Article III of the A. F. of L. constitution says: "Party politics . . . shall have no place in the conventions of the American Federation of Labor."

Q.—Who called Moses the founder of the labor movement?

A Tale of Two Autocrats

The Nizam of Hyderabad—that title ought to be set to music—has ordered 1,000 oxen and 10,000 sheep to be slaughtered and roasted to feed the populace on the twenty-fifth anniversary of his coming to the throne. The Nizam is the richest of the native princes of India.

General Motors Corporation made a "Christmas present" of $5,000,000 to its employes. General Motors is perhaps the richest of the princes of American industry.

The Nizam has 14,000,000 subjects, so it is clear that only a minor fraction of them will get even a taste of the meat. They're not used to meat, anyway.

The General Motors has 200,000 employes who share in the corporate prince's bounty, so the $5,000,000 comes down to $25 per worker. But few of them are used to seeing more than that amount of money at a time, anyway.

* * * *

Both items of news were printed on the front page of the New York Times just before Christmas. They should have been printed in parallel columns; for they are parallel stories in a dozen particulars.

Both are tales of the charitable impulses of despots.

Both are gratuities from despots to men who could not possibly claim similar rewards as a matter of right.

Both despots would be shocked into spasms if their subjects organized to claim equal powers in distributing benefits. But it must be admitted that there is some difference in the ways in which the two despots would be likely to react to the shock.

The Nizam probably would shoot or saber as many revolting subjects as seemed necessary, and send the leaders to be trampled to death by elephants.

* * * *

The corporation would be content with dismissing the revolting workers, so that they and their families would go hungry, and bring in strikebreakers or police to shoot or club the more recalcitrant leaders.

But in both cases, an irresponsible autocrat decrees arbitrary benefits to underlings without so much as dreaming of consulting their wishes; and has the power—sometimes exercised—to decree disaster to the same underlings with the same indifference to what they may think about it.

The difference between the military autocracy of an Oriental monarchy and the industrial autocracy of a great corporation is not so wide as one might think.

Cannon Fodder for Next War

One hundred and eighty thousand young Germans were recently released from German labor camps where they underwent a course of free military training. In each camp the departure of the future soldiers was celebrated by festive gatherings and war-like speeches of the Nazi leaders. The most aggressive of all seem to have been the leaders of the camps in East Prussia. In their speeches the men were urged to "hold themselves in readiness."

"In one, two, or four years at the latest Hitler will give the order and require from each German the supreme sacrifice," the men were told.

The Terrible Plight of Marlene

Really something should be done about this. Marlene Dietrich, who probably never earned $100 a week in her native Germany, complains she cannot afford to live in America because of "excessive taxation."

Marlene's tastes are ridiculously simply. All she wants is a house with a tennis court and a swimming pool, and she can't get such an establishment for less than $1,000 a month. And how can the poor woman rear her daughter without a tennis court and a swimming pool?

Then she must have six guards for the little one, to say nothing of "a cook, a maid, a studio maid, a chauffeur, a gardener, and tutors for my daughter."

Marlene is so put out about it that she threatens to take her American dollars, go to Paris and "live with my husband."

Marlene winds up with this:

"If America were my home, I would not object to the high income tax."

At least, the incomparable Marlene is more patriotic than J. Pierpont Morgan, who refused to pay a penny of income tax to his native country for a number of years, while contributing rather lavishly to the British treasury.

Wagner Says 14,000,000 New Homes Are Needed

New York Senator Urges $800,000,000 Federal Fund to Subsidize Local Housing Groups.

Declaring that large numbers of the American people live in houses which are unsanitary and not well adapted to decent living conditions, Senator Robert F. Wagner, of New York, is sponsoring a bill which calls for a federal appropriation of $800,000,000 to assist local housing groups in carrying forward to large-scale national housing program.

"It is reliably estimated," he stated in explaining the necessity for an extensive housing plan, "that during the next ten years we shall require 14,000,000 new homes to provide adequately for normal population increases, for obsolescence and for the demolition and abandonment of millions of dwellings that are totally unfit for human habitation."

In describing his housing bill for remedying this condition, Senator Wagner said:

"Through the Home Owners' Loan corporation and the federal housing administration, the government has provided the initial impetus to home building and renovation for people of moderate incomes. To round out that work, but more particularly to care for that third of our population whose dire needs have been overlooked, I have introduced a housing bill which I expect will be passed at the coming session of congress.

"It carries an initial appropriation of $800,000,000 for federal subsidies to local housing authorities, in the form of grants up to 30 per cent of labor and materials, and in the form of loans at very low rates of interest.

"While federal action will thus supply the ignition for a housing program, practically all land acquisition, construction, supervision and financing will be entrusted as largely as possible to local agencies and private capital.

"Such a housing program will appeal to the banker, the tradesman and the industrialist as a sound business proposition. But above that, its social and humanitarian aspects will appeal to every sensitive person."

The Passing Show

Note and Comment on Things Doing in the March of Events

Stupidity keeps bobbing up.

Even the holiday season doesn't stop it.

Take Mexico. Or Italy. But, for the moment, Mexico.

The president thinks his rule is endangered, so he clamps down with a censorship.

Naturally, the moment a censorship is imposed, just that moment the world is warned not to believe the news passed by the censor.

Censors don't usually merely take out things; they also put in things. Likewise they leave emasculated portions that have lost their first meaning.

It's all very stupid. The Mexican president seems to have learned nothing from others in this respect. And his record indicates that he has learned no more about a number of other things.

Whatever may be the truth about a good many things, there can be no doubt that the Mexican president has agreed to the program of some of his ministers for arming communist groups.

That is something that is of paramount interest to the United States as a whole. We have the spectacle of a wholly intolerant regime using public funds for the purpose of creating an armed communism on our southern border.

And if anybody thinks that is just a happy Christmas greeting and a New Year hail of fellowship across the border, he doesn't know much about the matter.

Latest reports told of the arming of school teachers who are under orders to teach socialism, which most of the teachers probably couldn't even define, let alone teach.

It's a muddle and one in which the strutting Cardenas will do to watch his step.

Many in the United States make the mistake of measuring things Mexican by United States standards.

That is one reason there has been so much past misunderstanding of Mexican men and policies.

Mexican standards are the growth of the soil of Mexico.

Today we have a picture of turmoil which has grown out of things that are purely Mexican.

It isn't by any means a clear picture.

But the American people will draw certain conclusions.

They have drawn conclusions as to Fascism in Italy and Naziism in Germany and one of the definite results is that both Italy and Germany have found fewer American dollars flowing to their merchants and fewer of the American people coming to spend vacations and money.

It might be too much to suggest to President Cardenas that he observe these facts, because at the moment he seems too busy in the effort to save his job, which is a pretty good job.

But whatever may be the domestic facts or the reasons for them, it seems to be axiomatic that no regime can stand permanently upon a foundation of intolerance and injustice.

Censorships may halt the flow of full information for a time, but after a while the truth seeps through and when it does get through it strikes with doubled force.

Through the underground, American workers now get the truth from Italy and Germany. Truth penetrates.

All who care about international affairs in this hemisphere will hope for peace and fairness in Mexico. But a riotous, rampant communism under arms isn't any too reassuring.

Where Gangsters Get Their Inspiration

If Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., and his charming wife have been forced to flee to England to keep their young son out of the clutches of brutal gangsters, it is a terrible indictment of our American institutions.

When government is no longer able to insure the life and property of its citizens, it is time to stop and ponder whither we have drifted.

Colonel Lindbergh is said to feel that the criminal element is so powerful that no citizen is safe. He believes there is more reverence for law in the "tight little isle," which has neither bill of rights nor written constitution, or a supreme court to "interpret" the law.

One of the first things that the dashing colonel will discover when he reaches England is that wealthy and influential men do not join the gangster racketeer and thug in heaping contempt upon the government, nor openly and flagrantly flout its laws.

From that he may conclude that a little more respect for government at the top might make it easier to deal with the discreditable element at the bottom here at home.

Lawyers of the American Liberty League have advised their wealthy clients to disregard any laws that they do not like.

The courts have been degraded into shamelessly partisan tribunals, where judges resort to stump speeches in denouncing statutes that do not meet their particular economic theories.

Colonel Lindbergh may ask himself, as others have been asking, whether this defiance of government and disrespect for its authority are not the source which inspires the underworld to arrogance.

Organized Labor Supports Union-Made Clothing in Behalf of Cincinnati Strikers

Nation-Wide Response Meets Plea of Amalgamated Clothing Workers for Support—Workers Determined to Win.

Cincinnati, Ohio.—As the strike of the three hundred Cincinnati clothing workers of the Hamilton Tailoring company, the Lauer Tailoring company, the Brighton Tailoring company, the Robert Tailoring company, and the Ohio Custom Garment company stretches into the third wintry month, the militant spirit of the strikers is receiving great impetus from the support being extended to them by organized labor everywhere.

Greatest response to the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America's appeal to the labor movement for moral support to the strikers is coming particularly from the locals of the United Mine Workers, the Brewers, the Ladies' Garment Workers, while central labor unions everywhere have enthusiastically entered into the campaign to buy union-made men's clothing only.

The sweatshop bosses are ganging up together in the hope of crushing the organizational spirit of their striking workers. Thugs, imported scabs, professional union-busting lawyers have been hired by the gang of sweatshop bosses to help defeat the Amalgamated. Anthony Pesa, a leading striker, has just received a five-day jail sentence, to add to the growing number of jail sentences meted out by the courts to the more militant strikers.

Despite the elaborate efforts of the bosses and their henchmen, the strikers are determined to hold out until they win. Their determination increases as they witness the fine solidarity of labor, being shown by veteran unionists all over the country, in the nation-wide campaign of labor to buy union label men's clothing.

The Storrs-Schaefer company, the Windsor Tailoring company, the P. H. Davis Tailoring company are Cincinnati clothing firms, unfair to labor, who are beginning to feel the pinch of the campaign of labor to buy only union-made clothing.

FOUNDATIONS CUT GRANTS HEAVILY IN DEPRESSION

New York City.—A study of 12 foundations, including those of Carnegie and Rockefeller, shows that on the average, these institutions have cut their grants in half during the years of the depression, from 1930 to 1934. The Twentieth Century Fund, which makes a yearly survey of these institutions, reports that:

"By compressing expenditures to $34,000,000 last year, their capital was kept unimpaired.

Some kinds of grants were "compressed" much more than others. As to the investigation of physical science was cut 77 per cent; to medicine and public health, 70 per cent; to child welfare, 39 per cent.

Unusual Greeting Received by Editor

A friend of the labor movement wished to extend the season's greetings to the editor of the Labor World, and here is how he did it:

Dear Bob:

Do you remember thirty years ago, when eggs were 10 cents a dozen, three dozen for a quarter; butter, 15 cents a pound; milk 5 cents a quart; the butcher gave away liver and kidneys to the kids with wieners; the grocer wits stick candy and brown sugar; the hired girl received $3 a week and did the washing and ironing; the women did not powder, paint and smoke (in public), vote, drink, play poker or shake the dickens.

Men wore whiskers, home-made jeans suits and boots, chewed tobacco, spit on the sidewalk and cussed to hear the band. Beer was a nickel a schooner and all the lunch you could eat free. Laborers worked 10 hours a day and never knew what a union or strike was. No tips were given to waiters and the hat-check grafter was unknown. The kerosene lamp, horses, buggies and pretty women were among the luxuries of life.

No one was ever operated on for appendicitis or bought glands. Microbes were unheard of; folks lived to a good old age and walked miles to wish their friends a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Today, you know, everybody rides in automobiles, or flies; plays golf, shoots craps, play the piano with their feet, goes to the movies nightly, or listen to music a thousand miles away; smokes cigarettes, drinks ruckus juice, blames the H. C. of L. on the politicians; never go to bed the same day tsey get up, and think they are having a wonderful time.

These are days of suffragetting, profiteering, excess taxing and prohibitioning, and if you think life is worth living,

THEN . . .

I wish you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Yours very truly,

PETE.

TO ENCOURAGE OTHERS.

Hard was the lot of Albert Spink,
Who could "stop a car as quick as a wink."
But a telephone pole, it stopped him quicker,
When he tried to mix his gas with licker.

Items of More or Less Interest Picked Up From Various Sources

CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

Every time you give the other fellow a boost it is a hitch ahead for you.

Neighbor—Have you got a bottle opener?

Parent—Yes, but he is away at college.

In spite of the depression there is still some money hid away that is growing mouldy and moth-eaten. It is generally in unsuspected places.

The actor was boring his listener badly:

Actor—Ah, my boy, when I played Hamlet the audience took 20 minutes to leave the theater.

Listener—Really! Was he lame or something?

It is announced that ears are growing larger. But that doesn't mean that anybody is going to listen any more attentively to all you say.

Harold—Did you hear the big news?

Gerald—Spill it!

Harold—My dog visited a flea circus and stole the show.

A lot of folks keep their radio on every minute of the day. They perhaps can't get over the notion that it will finally "say something."

Hester—Haven't I shaved you before, sir?

Customer—No, those scars are from the war.

Most girls are of the moody type unless the right fellow is along.

Prisoner—Judge, I don't know what to do.

Judge—Why, how's that?

Prisoner—I swore to tell the truth, but every time I try some lawyer objects.

An old-timer is one who is convinced that the people should support the government, and not the government support the people.

Mrs. Smathers took a great interest in the doings of her neighbors. It was a great day for her when a new arrival came to the house next door, and she watched with interest as furniture was carried into the house.

Husband—What did you find out about the social standing of the folk across the street?

Mrs. Smathers—They're not much. They have no automobile or radio or even a grand piano. I can't imagine what they have got.

Husband—Perhaps they have a bank account.

Ham (mournfully, as he leaned out of a window of the Ark)—This is tough luck.

Shem—What's the kick now?

Ham—Why, we've got all this water around us to fish in, and only two fish worms on board.

Sweet Young Thing (at the music counter)—Have you "Kissed Me in the Moonlight"?

Abashed Clerk—Er—it must have been the man at the other counter, I've only been here a week.

Work is the best way to drown worry. Work frequently gets us somewhere. Worry never, never does.

Business Man—And can you take dictation, girlie?

Girlie—I know how, but I must admit I won't, and that's why I've stayed single.

The last time Ed Masterford of Brushville went to the city he came back with the news that even a toe-dancer walks on her heels when crossing a muddy street.

Are you prepared for the next depression which the forecasters say will be along in the 'forties?

Conductor—How old are you, my little girl?

Little Boston Girl—If the corporation doesn't object, I'd prefer to pay my full fare and keep my own statistics.

Did you ever solicit a contribution for a good cause from a professional money-raiser?

Junior—Which of your two fellows are you going to marry, sister?

Sister—Why do you want to know, Junior?

Junior—Well, I don't want to waste my valuable time bothering with the wrong one.

The fellow who wears low shoes all winter long nowadays used to consider them a sign of poverty.

If it wasn't for marriage folk wouldn't get much accomplished aside from love-making.

A smart man is one who never makes the same mistake twice, but a smarter one is he who never makes it the first time.

Done to a Turn

When I was just a callow brat
I got my fingers burned and that
Was quite enough. But since the day
I sagely swore to keep away
From conflagrations, I have found
My resolution wasn't sound
In view of feminine endurance,
So now I'd like some fire insurance.

Mr. Newrich—Yes, sir, I started in life a barefooted boy.

Mr. Oldfam—I, too, was born without shoes.

The wise person wastes no time whining for things he knows he can't get.

Robert—I've a great mind to rock the boat and frighten you!

Marie—Once a young man like you tried that with me and the boat upset.

Robert—And what did you do?

Marie—I swam ashore and notified the coroner.

Roomer—I like this room, but the view from the windows is rather monotonous.

Landlady—Well, of course, this is just a rooming house, not a sightseeing bus.

A man celebrates his golden wedding in fifty years while the chap divorced celebrates every night.

Daughter—Mother, I wish you'd stop bossing father around so much.

Mother—What's the matter now?

Daughter—Well, every time I get some young man interested in me he grows serious and asks me if I take after you.

Nothing turns out right unless somebody makes it his job to see that it does.

A father was giving some advice to his son. At the end of the lecture he said:

Father—Now, son, you understand perfectly what I mean?

Son—Yes, it boils down to this: If I do well, it is because of my illustrious forebears; if I fail, it is my own fault.

Keep Smiling!

There's never a load too heavy to bear,
nor a road too steep to climb;
There's a Friend who our troubles will gladly share. And He is not hard to find.
We often find Him in dens of sin,
sometimes in a baby's smile;
He seeks lowly places souls to win,
we must help Him all the while.
We can aid Him by lending a helping hand to a traveler on his way;
By speaking kind words to a downhearted man in the end it will surely pay!
Words cost but little—a smile is worth-while, small effort on our part is spent;
Yet it may brighten the day for a little child through the message
God has sent.
Let's just do our best from day to day, help a weak brother over the stile.
Smile and be cheerful 'till "over the way," we reach the end of the last weary mile.

UNION ORGANIZER MAKES HOT REPLY TO TALMADGE

High Point, N. C.—"The unemployed cannot starve themselves into jobs," Representative Henry I. Adams of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers declared in a stinging criticism of Governor Talmadge of Georgia.

Talmadge in an anti-Roosevelt diatribe stated that as a nation we cannot spend ourselves into prosperity.

"Neither can the unemployed starve themselves into jobs," was Adams' comeback.

Adams directs a withering fire on Talmadge for his loose declaration that the "Communists" had inspired the Child Labor Amendment.

"For your edification the Child Labor Amendment was originally adopted in the Wilson administration when communism as a political doctrine was unheard of," Adams pointed out.

Talmadge is making a drive in the Southern States to become the candidate for the bourbon interests who have for generations dominated the economic and political life of the entire aren. Organized labor is lining up against Talmadge and is constantly reminding the public of the Georgia governor's record in the textile and hosiery strikes of 1934, when he used the National Guard to drive workers back to toil in the mills for slave wages.

MACARONI WORKERS WIN RECOGNITION OF UNION

Pittsburgh, Pa.—Agreement by the Viviano Macaroni Manufacturing company to adhere to the provisions of the National Labor Relations Act has brought about a settlement of the strike in the company's plant at Carnegie, Pa., announces Clinton S. Golden, regional director at Pittsburgh for the National Labor Relations Board. Golden was instrumental in bringing together representatives of the company and of the Bakery and Confectionery Workers' Union Local No. 12. The union struck September 11, 1935, because the Viviano company refused it recognition as representing the majority of its workers. A complaint was issued by the regional office on the union's charges, and a hearing set for December 20. The settlement provides for union recognition and the return of all employes to work. The hearing has been cancelled.

UNION LABEL LEAGUES URGED BY SECY. ORNBURN

Local Groups Stressed for Promoting Sale of Union Goods and Services—Mobilization of Women Asked to Spend Trade Union Money for Benefit of High Labor Standards.

Washington, D. C.—The organization of union label leagues in every community where there are trade unionists was recommended as a 100 per cent effective method for popularizing union goods and services by I. M. Ornburn, secretary-treasurer of the American Federation of Labor Union Label Trades department, in a radio address here over the network of the National Broadcasting company.

With wage and hour chiselers doing their utmost to lower living standards of the workers by cut-throat competition and other subversive schemes, Mr. Ornburn stressed the importance of mobilizing women in a movement to spend for union-made goods the billions of dollars earned by trade unionists, and thus become a mighty force in improving the economic conditions of all workers.

"The best way to promote union labeled products is to organize a local union label league," Mr. Ornburn said. "Hundreds of them have been formed in cities throughout the land. There is an initial fee of $1 to cover the cost of a charter. No additional charge, such as dues or assessments are imposed by the Union Label Trades department.

"All that is necessary is to have an application for a charter approved by three local unions of the affiliated trades of the Union Label Trades department. It must also be accompanied by an endorsement of the central labor union, if there be one in the immediate vicinity.

"For by-laws and full particulars, simply write to the Union Label Trades department, American Federation of Labor, Washington, D. C.

No Child Labor in Union Industries

"The women can also join a union label league. With a spending power of over six billion dollars of union-earned money, they can 'break into the big league' and become definite and vital factors in protecting the pay of all wage earners.

"Stocks may boom and prices may soar, but it does not place any more buying power in the pocketbook of the average citizen unless he joins a labor union and trades with firms which display the union label.

"In this way women can obtain better working conditions and wages for themselves, and abolish child labor. Let's place our children in school and prevent their competing with heads of families for jobs. There is no child labor in unionized industries or other business places.

Buy American-Made Goods

"The union label league furnishes a constructive program for all citizens. It is thoroughly American because it starts with the buying of only American made goods.

"It is also American because union label buying establishes the American standard of living by promoting union-made products which are made by American labor.

"Some people purchase foreign goods because they are cheaper. They are cheap, but they are no bargain because they do not receive any more for their money. By buying foreign-made goods our citizens only chisel on themselves and reduce their purchasing power. In fact, they cheat themselves and their own breadwinners. The best yardstick with which to measure American goods is the union label.

"If the merchants who sell cheap oriental and Chinese merchandise placed behind their counters, as clerks, the workers of the unclean factories who produce these foreign-made products, American women would not buy from them. If their shops were as filthy and unsanitary as the sweatshops in which the goods are manufactured, Americans would not enter them.

Union Label Abolishes Sweatshops

"Within our own United States we have unfair and unsanitary conditions in sweatshops. Since the NRA was declared unconstitutional, child labor is increasing again. When the buying public patronizes firms which fail to display the shop card or button, and do not sell union-labeled goods, Americans are encouraging the exploiters of children and women who work for scanty wages.

"By purchasing unfair products of chiselers and foreigners our own citizens are increasing unemployment at home and reducing the size of the pay envelope of everyone who receives a salary. They are likewise reducing mass-purchasing power which is generally agreed to be the only means of obtaining permanent, economic recovery. The union label is the best guarantee that goods are made in America and under fair labor conditions.

Big Business Wants Low Wages

"Here, in the nation's capital, recently, at an industrial conference, we witnessed the refusal of certain large industrialists to cooperate with the United States government. These big business interests walked out of the meeting because, as they put it, they wanted to be free. Free for what? Free to exploit women and children? Fee to cut wages and lengthen hours? These are the real reasons.

"Major George L. Berry, the coordinator in charge of the conference, is the president of the International Pressmen's and Assistants' Union, affiliated with the Union Label Trades department. His broad experience and natural fairness have proved him to be an industrial statesman. Any publishing house in this nation will testify to his qualifications.

"While these large corporate interests refused to help solve our baffling economic problem, the American Federation of Labor has cooperated in the highest degree. With the aid of smaller independent business leaders, definite results may still be attained.

"The chiselers want to continue the cut-throat competition which caused the panic of 1929. If these large industries were unionized and displayed the union label on their products, business conditions would be better for them as well as for the average citizen and permanent prosperity would return to America."

Drive Begun to Tax Louisiana "Chains"

New Orleans Owners of Individual Retail Stores Sponsor Movement for Benefit of State and City Revenues.

New Orleans.—A group of New Orleans business men who control individual drug stores, groceries, shoe stores and small department and notion stores are sponsoring a movement to have introduced in the next session of the Louisiana legislature a law to tax chain stores for the benefit of the state and the city, the contention being made that the chains contribute nothing to the upbuilding of the community, but on the contrary send millions of dollars annually to disatant points.

Some time ago the late Senator Huey P. Long had introduced and passed at a special session of the Louisiana legislature a chain store bill which not only taxed the Louisiana establishments but other outside stores as well no matter where located. The supreme court, however, declared the law unconstitutional.

Since that time the chains have been tax-free with the exception of city and state occupational taxes. The proposed measure, it is siad, would impose a heavy tax on all chains whether local or national.

TEACHER TALK
LOCAL 246, A. F. of T.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS MEETING MONDAY.

The first regular monthly meeting of the board of directors for 1936 will be held next Monday evening, Jan. 6. The place of meeting has not yet been definitely established, but this information will be sent to directors by postal card.

PROGRESS OF SALARY SUITS.

The motion of federation counsel in the county salary suits will be considered by Chancellor Foust Saturday morning, Jan. 4. Judge Foust may either act on the motion immediately or defer action until the following week. Hence, county teachers will be getting some news very soon from the first test of the salary law.

The city salary suit is expected to come up for hearing sometime within the next two weeks.

DUES ROLLING IN.

Federation members who have been delinquent have in general responded nobly to the call for dues payments. The response has shown that teachers are devoted and loyal to their union and appreciate its role as the only unequivocal champion of teachers' interests.

A few directors have not yet reported. It is important that these do so at once in order that the executive committee may make its report to the board of directors next Monday.

HISTORIANS UP-TO-DATE.

Somehow the professors of history and social science who convened here last week-end were not content to keep their noses buried in musty archives to the exclusion of the bustling contemporary scene about them. They gave lively, forceful analyses of current trends that boded no good to reactionaries, particularly those who try to obstruct progress through questionable means. These professors were no deadheads of the type told of in absent-minded professor jokes. They were real teachers and real men.

Howard Cummings, of Clayton High school, St. Louis, scored fascist trends in present textbooks, saying that inferences that certain races are inferior have no place in textbooks calculated to educate for a democracy. The theory of racial inferiority is not championed by any psychologist or biologist of recognized standi[ng] said.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE CALLED FASCIST.

Dr. F. A. Shannon, of Kansas college, stated that the new [deal] not socialistic, as has been [cha]rged by the Tories, but that its aim [is] save capitalism. The high point [in] speech, however, was his enumer[ation] of fascist elements in this co[untry]. He said, "The fascists, who [would] include such diversified elements [as] the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, Liberty league, the Sentinels of [the] Republic, the Huey Longites, [the] Coughlin and William Randolph Hearst, agree only in condemning everything or promising everything typical fascist attitudes."

OHIO STATE DEAN LIKES LECTURES.

Dr. Walter Shepard, of Ohio university, who was the [only] speaker at the civil liberties [meeting] of the American Historical [Associa]tion, comments as follows on the League for Industrial Democracy lectures: "I should say that the L. I. D. lectures are a group of able and competent people who [are] to illuminate current problems by approaching them with objectivity [and] regard for fact. I believe the lectures are worth while for any community."

WHY THUMBS DOWN ON SALES TAX.

Miss Mabel L. Walker has presented some statistics in a recent issue of Business Week which [should] be of interest to low salaried workers such as teachers are. She finds that the sales tax shunts the burden overwhelmingly on the backs of the wage-earners. To illustrate, a wage earner who receives $1,000 per year spends 60.9 per cent of it for taxable commodities. On the other hand, a man with a yearly income of $1,000,000 pays only 1 per cent of it for taxable commodities.

With a sales tax of 2 per cent Miss Walker figures the wage-earner will pay $12 per $1,000 of income, while the multi-millionaire will pay 20 cents per $1,000 of income.

WAR AND RELIEF.

Big business complains bitterly because the Roosevelt administration is spending a considerable sum to relieve those who cannot get employment. However, $1,000,000 an hour is not being spent on relief, and that amount was spent by the U. S. government for each hour of the World war. Why did big business protest? Not only sponsored the war and it took in profits of the $1,000,000 per hour that was spent.

TEACHER SALARY LAW IS UPHELD!

SAYS FIXING OF SALARIES CONSTITUTIONAL; WAY IS CLEARED FOR TEST CASE

County Teachers Given Right to Ask for Mandamus to Force Payment of Salaries Set by Law.

Chancellor's Ruling Might Be Appealed by County to Higher Court. Similar Suit Against County Still Pending.

Chancellor J. Lon Foust Wednesday handed down a decision overruling the demurrer filed by the county to declare the teachers' salary law unconstitutional. The chancellor says that the law is constitutional, and that the teachers have a right to ask for mandamus proceedings against the county which will secure payment of salaries due them by law if the mandamus succeeds.

Although the ruling does not settle the salary controversy, it does put the teachers in position to push their claims in other courts.

Enactment in the legislature of the salary and tenure laws for teachers was secured through the efforts of the Chattanooga-Hamilton County Teachers' Union and the cooperation of the Chattanooga Trades and Labor Council. For the first time, through their union, school teachers have gained the privilege of considering themselves full-fledged citizens, with the right to speak for themselves.

RFC May Refuse Loans to Plants Fighting Labor

Change in Policy Indicated in Reply to Protest of Textile Unions Against Financial Aid Given Unfair Employers.

Philadelphia.—Indications that the Reconstruction Finance corporation may deny loans to corporations in industrial plants involved in labor disputes or violation of the Wagner-Connery labor relations act is given in a letter from Ben Johnson, special assistant to RFC head Jesse Jones, to John W. Edelman, research director of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers.

Edelman had protested on behalf of the federation and the United Textile Workers of America against Reconstruction Finance corporation loans being made to "sweat shop" hosiery manufacturers and labor act violators.

The union official pointed out that companies with definite militantly anti-labor policies, invariably ran into strikes that inevitably destroyed the security of any loan.

Edelman said, "The list of hosiery manufacturers who have been able to obtain RFC loans includes several of the most notorious anti-labor concerns in our industry—companies that have made it a policy to fight the union and keep wages low rather than attempt to operate efficient manufacturing businesses.

Asks Pertinent Questions.

"Is it merely a coincidence, or a result of some definite policy, that among the list of hosiery manufacturers borrowing from the government we cannot find one who is willing to bargain with his employes as required by the labor disputes act adopted by the recent congress?" Edelman asked a number of questions in his letter, including the following:

"Is it sound public policy for a governmental body to financially aid a corporation which has deliberately broken the laws of the country in regard to its labor relations

"Would it not be proper and just for the RFC to refrain from making government funds available to manufacturers who are part of an open conspiracy to create industrial disorder by defying the authority of the national labor lreations board?"

In closing, Edelman wrote:

"We ask the RFC to adopt a policy which will halt the practice of making government funds available to corporations or businesses which violate the law and the public policy of these United States in regard to labor relations."

Ready to Give Information.

Johnson answered Edelman that "the Reconstruction Finance corporation, in connection with industrial loans, will be glad when requested by any authorized federal agency, to answer any questions concerning labor disputes."

Edelman disclosed that Secretary of Labor Perkins is considering making representations to the Reconstruction Finance corporation against loans similar to that granted the Mooresville, N. C., Cotton Mills company, which found itself in need of financing last September. It requested a minimum of $241,000 from the RFC Sept. 20. The management discharged all the officers and active members of the United Textile Workers of America employed in the plant.

A strike followed Sept. 23. A loan was granted Oct. 21.

The RFC loan put the company in a position to go out and hire strike-breakers, and it is now operating at about 60 per cent of normal. Prior to that, the company was operating with only about 30 per cent.

Ironically enough the strikers are being supported by government funds through the WPA and while the Moorestown mills are running on RFC money it is awaiting a hearing before the national labor relations board.

What a wonderful thing it would be if the A. F. of L. could say, "Every union man buys only union-made goods."

Milwaukee Judge Propounds Novel "Barber Shop" Theory To Justify Enjoining NLRB

Milwaukee, Wis.—Federal Judge F. A. Geiger, notorious injunction judge, has pulled out a novel theory of what constitutes interstate commerce in order to uphold an injunction in which he prohibited the National Labor Relations Board from conducting hearings against the Infant Socks company.

In fighting the board, which acted following a complaint by Branch 16 of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers that union members had been discharged for belonging to the federation, the company admitted that it bought its raw materials outside of Wisconsin and sold its products outside of Wisconsin.

However, according to Judge Geiger, this does not constitute interstate commerce.

Very patiently and considerately, the judge explained this to attorneys for the Labor Board, counsel for the union and an amazed world.

"If a barber buys a face lotion outside of Wisconsin," the judge said, "and shaves a customer who afterwards hurries and takes a train to Massachusetts, very obviously the barber is not engaged in interstate commerce. Equally obviously, the Infant Socks company is not engaged in interstate commerce.

"Injunction granted."

Geiger ignored the fact that Congress removed jurisdiction over the Labor Boards from the lower federal courts, specifying the U. S. Circuit Courts for such actions as brought by the Infant Socks company.

Other injunctions restraining the Labor Board have been issued by Geiger in other cases. Wisconsin bosses learned quickly that Geiger is the man to go to when they want to violate tse Wagner Act and oppress their employes without interference from the law.

The hosiery federation is pressing its organization drive without so much as quail or flinch in Geiger's direction. The Board is appealing from the Geiger "Barber shop" theory of interstate commerce.

8 Police Indicted in Tampa Flogging Death

Tampa, Fla.—The Hillsborough county grand jury indicted eight police officers for second-degree murder of Joseph Shoemaker on Nov. 30. Mr. Shoemaker was one of three men who were kidnapped, flogged and tarred and feathered by a gang who waylaid them as they were leaving police headquarters here after questioning in regard to their alleged radical activities. Mr. Shoemaker died as a result of injuries inflicted by the gangsters. The other two men were E. F. Poulnot and S. D. Rogers.

The policemen were also indicted on three different charges of kidnaping and two charges of assault with intent to murder Poulnot and Rogers.

The indicted officers were C. A. Brown, Jr., John P. Bridges, Sam E. Crosby, C. W. Carlisle, F. W. Switzer, R. L. Shappell and Arlie Gillian and Edward Spivey, of Orlando, who were special policemen in the municipal primary in Tampa last September. Bond was fixed at $7,500 each.

Sheriff J. R. Cleod said Gillian and Spivey are members of the Ku Klux Klan.

Official investigation of the flogging was begun after a strong protest by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, who threatened to have the federation's 1936 convention scheduled for Tampa held in another city unless prompt action was taken to apprehend and punish those responsible for the outrage and Shoemaker's death.

Mr. Poulnot, formerly a member of the Pressmen's union, was connected with an organization of unemployed workers. Mr. Rogers is a member of the socialist party. Mr. Shoemaker, formerly state committeeman of the socialist party in Connecticut, was chairman of a Tampa political organization called the "Modern Democrats," whose program advocated production for use.

UNDERWEAR COMPANY FIRED UNION MEMBERS, IS CHARGE

Baltimore, Md.—The Yale Underwear company of this city was charged by B. F. Schauffler, regional director of the National Labor Relations Board here, with violating those provisions of the Wagner-Connery Labor Disputes Act which prohibit employers from interfering with the rights of their employes to organize in unions and bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing and from using discrimination in terms of employment to encourage or discourage membership in any labor organization.

The charges, which were filed with the regional director by officials of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, allege that the underwear company dismissed two members of the union because of union activity and refused to reinstate them.

Britain to Take Over Coal Mines

Plan for Single Public Ownership of Coal Production Contemplates Government Buying of All Royalties — Church Tithe System Slated to Go.

London.—Two projects to end the remains of the feudal system in Britain have been launched. One is the virtual taking over of British coal mines as a public enterprise, and the other is the abolition of tithes paid by British farmers to the Church of England.

Sir Thomas Inskip, attorney-general of Great Britain, announced the government's plan to buy up all coal mining royalties. "It will involve," he declared, "a change of ownership and direction from 4,000 private owners to single public ownership, controlled by the state in the interest of the community."

Of course, the ownership of coal mine royalties means the real ownership of coal mines; but England loves to approach her reforms by a roundabout road. At present, the Church of England gets $1,850,000 a year in coal royalties; the estate of the Duke of Hamilton gets $565,000; the Marquess of Bute, $545,000; several other peers receive $500,000 or more each year from the same source.

The wages of coal miners in England average $11 a week—or less. It is expected that these will be raised materially, and that the government will take over the coal royalties at a price which will relieve the mines of heavy burdens.

The general strike in Britain in 1926 grew out of a miners' strike which British workers insisted could be settled only by government ownership.

At the same time, the royal commission which has been stdying the question for a year reported in favor of abolishing the tithe system which now takes $11,000,000 a year from farmers for the Church of England; and another $5,000,000 for priavte owners of tithe rights. It amounts ot a 10 per cent royalty on the product of cultivated land; and is known, from the date of its enactment, as "Queen Anne's Bounty." It has been a sore point to British farmers for centuries; and last year, numbers of the farmers banded together, and refused to pay.

Buying products with union labels on them is the best guarantee that the money spent for them will return to the American worker's pay envelope.

Stanton E. Smith Expresses Joy in Foust's Decision

Teacher Board of Directors Draw Resolution Favoring Strict Neutrality Laws.

Also Recognizes Valued Services of Miss Lasssie Munsey, Who Has Resigned From Active Service Temporarily.

Stanton Smith, president Chattanooga-Hamilton County Teachers' association, in a statement to The Labor World expresses for the teachers their happiness over the decision rendered by Chancellor J. Lon Foust which gives them the right to pursue their fight for observance of their salary law recently passed in the state legislature.

Mr. Smith said:

"Judge Foust's decision overruling the demurrer of Hamilton county in the teachers' salary suit is very encouraging to the teachers. It clears the way for the suit to be appealed to the supreme court of Tennessee, where it will have to be finally decided.

"This is only the first step, but it is gratifying that the matter is on its way to a final decision which we have high hopes will see justice done the teachers for the first time in many moons.

"It is appropriate to point out at this time that although the county increased its tax rate 43 cents and the city increased its rate 14 cents, neither the teachers nor the schools received a single penny of these increases. In fact, the appropriations in both cases were decreased and the elementary schools of the county are facing an eight months' term. The ultimate success of the salary suit will automatically solve this difficulty, inasmuch as the salary law calls for yearly and not monthly salaries.

"The teachers are grateful for the support of labor and other friends. We are confident that it will continue until, in the end, the teachers and the schools shall receive a square deal."

Expressing a firm belief that the United States must not become embroiled in any European war, the board of directors of the union formally drew up this resolution:

"Whereas, the maintenance of peace and the prevention of war are among the most important matters before the congress of the United States; therefore, be it

"Resolved, by the board of directors of the Chattanooga-Hamilton County Teachers' association, Local 246, American Federation of Teachers, in regular meeting, Jan. 6, 1936, that we favor enactment of neutrality legislation, embodying the following points: First, embargo on arms, munitions and materials and supplies of war against both belligerents; second, embargo on loans and credits, public or private, against both belligerents; third, travel by United States citizens on vessels of belligerents or in the war zone at their own risk. And be it further

"Resolved, That copies of this resolution be sent to Senator K. D. McKellar, to Senator Nathan A. Bachman and to Representative S. D. McReynolds, with the request that it be inserted in the Congressional Record; and be it further

"Resolved, That copies of this resolution be furnished the press."

Taking recognition of the services rendered by Miss Lassie Munsey, one of the most loyal unionists in Chattanooga, who has been forced to curtail her many duties due to ill health, the board went on record as follows:

"Whereas, our friend, Miss Lassie Munsey, has been a member of Local 246, A. F. of T., from its beginning and through its stormy pioneer days and has served the organization faithfully in important offices and committees; and,

"Whereas, she has signified her intention to withdraw from active service as a member of the board of directors on account of ill health; and,

"Whereas, our success is due largely to her untiring energy, her counsel and advice. She was ever brave and fearless in fighting for the right, and in the darkest hour pointed unerringly the way and ever inspired us onward and upward. By assidious attention to and mastery of all federation affairs entrusted to her, she soon came to be looked upon as an able counsellor—that type of whom all could turn for association and aid. She was ever leading the way and setting the pace in hard and purposeful work, contributing to the betterment of the common cause she truly loved.

"Strength and purity of moral purpose along with high ideals gave keynote to her work. She was at all times and under all circumstances ethical, both in thought and act. Fidelity to the Federation of Teachers, fidelity to her professional associates, characterized her course and conduct. Her work was ever a sacred duty. She loves her profession and knows the wonderful part it plays in the scheme of social existence.

"We shall miss her in the consultation chamber of the executive committee. We hold forever the tenderest memories of her comradeship and we will treasure up all she has said and done. Therefore, be it

"Resolved by the board of directors, That we hereby express our sincere appreciation of the high abilities and ever loyal services of Miss Lassie Munsey, and that we send our deepest and sincerest good wishes to her."

UNIONISTS TO HEAR LECTURER FROM JAPAN

Toyohiko Kagawa, Christian Unionist, Upholds Trades Unions in Face of Persecution.

TO APPEAR HERE ON JANUARY 11

Sponsored by Religious Organizations and Univ. of Chattanooga — Labor Should Hear Him.

On Saturday, Jan. 11, at 2:30 p.m., at the First Baptist church, trades unionists of Chattanooga should avail themselves of the opportunity to learn something of the trades union movement in Japan and other Asiatic countries when Toyohika Kagawa lectures on conditions in his country.

Mr. Kakawa is outspoken in his belief that trades unions, along the lines of our American Federation of Labor, "is the pillar of society," and he contends that the churches of the world should do all in their power to help working people organize to combat the evil forces of greedy employers. He has paid dearly for his convictions in his native country, being beaten up in the same manner that unionists in America are set upon by reactionary elements.

Six civic groups of Chattanooga are sponsoring Mr. Kagawa's visit here. They are the Y. M. C. A., the Y. W.

LABEL LEAGUE MEETS FRIDAY

The Label league will meet Friday night at 7:30 at the labor hall. The regular meeting was postponed until then because of the Christmas holidays.

Officers for the coming year are to be installed and there will be a special program.

The Typographical union is furnishing refreshments and the Label league plans to make these meetings informal and real "get-together" events. All members of organized labor and their families are invited to come.

Stop the pocket-picking racket of chiselers by adopting the pay-envelope-filling process of buying under the union label, shop card and button.

Time to Make Some Constitutional Changes

(By T. R. Cuthbert)

The most recent decision of the United States Supreme court further strengthens the belief that there is something unbalanced in the form of government of this great land. Although sweeping majorities of citizens have approved of our president's reform measures, it is possible for five other citizens to nullify the wishes of their people.

We concede that supreme court justices know constitutional law better than we do. That is their business. All their reactionary decisions may probably be based according to the letter of the constitution as it is now written. We cannot help but notice, however, that their decisions have unusually been in favor of those who have, and have taken away from those who have not.

Granting that the historic dissolving of most of congress' reforms in behalf of the so-called common people by the court have been because the constitution has forced them to do so, the next step should be to rewrite the constitution so that the common people might be protected against the voracious few who are gobbling up the wealth of the nation.

We hope to see President Roosevelt continue his apparent fighting spirit in presenting sweeping amendments to the constitution which will curb the powers of the supreme court to nullify the wishes of vast majorities of the nation.

We wonder if anybody can tell us why it is that Brother Joe Dobbs has taken such an interest in football that he can hardly wait for the next season to start? We have heard rumors that it is because Joe has gotten so interested in the passing game they use.

LABOR QUERIES

Q.—Does labor look for better business conditions in 1936?

A.—In a statement on the outlook for the year, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, said: "The indications are that the improvement in economic and industrial conditions which set in during 1935 will continue during 1936."

Q.—Did the federal government initiate the first 8-hour day in American history?

A.—Historians give this credit to the government for establishing the 8-hour day at the Charleston Navy yard in 1842.

Wisdom

The best preparation for good work tomorrow is to do good work today.—Elbert Hubbard.

What Next!

A ship of aluminum has been built at Bath, Me., as an experiment. The ship, the Alumette, is only a 10-foot section of what might be a 100-foot vessel. The builder, W. Starling Burgess, hopes to prove aluminum alloy practicable for shipbuilding.

PAINTERS' WALKOUT ENDS: CONCESSIONS ARE GAINED

Duluth, Minn.—A number of valuable concessions have been won by employes of the Western Paint nad Varnish company, where a seven-day lockout ended last week in an agreement to arbitrate. The men were locked out when they organized and applied for an A. F. of L. charter.

Points gained so far by the workers are the reinstatement of all employes, recognition of a shop committee, time and one-half for overtime, and assurance of no discrimination against men for their labor activities.

Grade Crossing Fatalities Gain.

Washington.—Sixty more persons were killed in grade crossing accidents in the first nine months of 1935 than in the same period last year, the interstate commerce commission reports.

No Pleasant News for Mussy

Things in Ethiopia are not going in a fashion to please Benito Mussolini. He counted on a short, dramatic, "glorious" campaign of conquest. He has been forced to endure a stalemate so far as conquest is concerned, and a guerrilla war to which no end is in sight.

Guarded statements show that Italian troops have "changed positions toward the rear," and the world chuckles understandingly. Italian casualty lists have begun to trickle through; and although no one trusts these lists, they show that the Italian command was in a box where it had to say something.

The Italian general in chief has been ordered home; airplane bombing expeditions have harmed little save hospitals; and the whole Mussolini adventure seems stuck in the mud.

It is not the first military campaign that has marched from confidence into confusion. The elder von Molkte, before his head was swelled by victory over France, said that all war plans are likely to go astray, for the first contact with the enemy changes everything.

Even now, no prudent observer expects the Ethiopians to win a dramatic victory. The odds of science and equipment are still cruelly one-sided—though the Ethiopian stock of modern firearms is reported to be increasing. But what is no longer in doubt is that Mussy's triumphant march has gone into the ditch; that he has spent already ten times as much as Italy would get out of triumph; and that colonizing with airplanes, gas bombs and tanks is a chancy game.

Peace on the Railroads

The first annual report of the National Mediation Board, printed last week, shows vividly what crazy folly is being preached and practiced by the U S. Chamber of Commerce and the National Association of Manufacturers. These organizations never weary of crying aloud that labor unions bring strife. But the Mediation Board reports:

> "Since the enactment in 1926 of the Railway Labor Act, there has been an almost unbroken record of peaceful settlements of labor disputes on the railroads. This is testimony to the soundness and effectiveness of the labor policies formulated by Congress in the Railway Labor Act."

It is testimony to the fact that fair play in labor disputes, where collective bargaining is accepted by both parties and supervised by a government board strong enough to enforce the law, is the only path to industrial peace. But how long will it take for Big Business to learn that lesson?

We are 100% for the Labor Movement, and for the improvement of working conditions.
We have been for, and growing with, the Labor Movement for 20 years.
Just ask your old time brother union man.

Guild Wins Demands Of Colored Newsmen

Three Months' Conflict Ends in Recognition, Wage Increase and Other Gains.

New York.—Another strike has been won by the American Guild. Last week reporters and other editorial department employes who walked out at the "Amsterdam News" three months ago returned to work with a signed contract providing for a 10 per cent wage increase, the five-day and 40-hour week and other concessions. All strikebreakers were discharged.

The controversy took on special significance because all of the strikers were negroes.

The Amsterdam News is a negro publication with an immense circulation in Harlem, New York's colored section. Prior to the strike it was a 28-page newspaper. Active picketing and a widespread boycott cut the size of the paper to 18 pages and even forced it to miss one issue.

When the strike began it was purely a struggle for recognition of the Guild. No questions of wages was involved. The publishers boasted that the paper would close down rather than deal with the union. The settlement, containing not only recognition but a 10 per cent pay boost, was negotiated by officers of the Guild.

'Frisco Newspapers Back on Short Week

Hearst Publications Are Among Those Which Yield to Guild's Determined Stand.

San Francisco.—A determined stand by the local union of the American Newspaper Guild has resulted in the return of the five-day week in the editorial departments of the Call-Bulletin and the Examiner here and the Post-Enquirer at Oakland, across the bay.

All three newspapers are owned by William Randolph Hearst. They reluctantly granted the five-day week during NRA days, but discarded it after the Blue Eagle had its neck wrung by the U. S. supreme court. The San Francisco Chronicle followed Hearst's example. The Scripps-Howard News remained on the five-day week.

The Passing Show

Note and Comment on Things Doing in the March of Events

Congress in session. The Liberty league congealing reactionary opinion. Labor looking at a surrounding ring of enemies. The courts taking pot shots at laws enacted in response to labor demand. Forces are moving toward tremendous decisions. Historians will know more about the great import of today's trends and doings than can be known today.

In a battle men move and some are mowed down and some march through to the conclusion. Afterwards the battle is given its value by those who can look back and see the whole picture. Today there seems to be a vast lining up for struggle. There is much fog in the air and it may be a long time before issues are clearly stated or line-ups fixed according to true interests. At bottom, the thing toward which we are moving has to do with whether human interests are to ride superior to property interests.

Here is a sample what helps to shape the thing called opinion. One of the two or three big solvent railroads of the west went to Wall Street for a huge 10-year loan. Wall Street wanted to cut the time in half and it wanted the traditional rate of interest. Here was a melon looming up. The railroad went to the RFC and the RFC made the loan at a rate about 1½% below the Wall Street bankers' rate and on a 10-year basis. The bankers howled and they still howl. This business of monkeying with interest rates is something terrible and it has to be condemned. All good bankers are supposed to join in a solid front of banking opinion. Looking back on what the banks did along about 1929 and what they did during 1930 and 1931, it wouldn't seem that bankers ought to be very loud in their protestations. They ought to be quiet. But they have forgotten and they are today very bellicose.

Similarly, many corporations that were in the red less than three years ago, that had thrown their employes on the scrap heap and that didn't know where to turn for business, are joining in the howl against labor. With labor's help they are doing business, because without labor's support the moves that they have made for better business never could have been made to stick. No sooner are they out of the woods than they begin to act like wild animals again, forgetting all social responsibilities, howling at the very developments that have saved them. Big business, though it doesn't know it, is by its current actions building up a reservoir of resentment that may get scalding hot before long. Big business is a political and social simpleton. It doesn't know that, either.

Congress probably will be afraid to do very much for the people in this session. It seems likely to be cowed by those big brave pirates who were on their knees weeping not so very long ago, but who, having once more got a dollar in their corporate jeans, are full of the kind of courage that usually marks the buccaneer—the courage that runs with the winds and that oozes in reversals.

Labor will need to talk strongly to this congress. Labor is the majority—the big majority. Labor, too, sometimes acts as if it were licked, but it never needs to be licked and it never actually is licked. Labor can command respect for its just and fair opinions and demands. That takes organized effort, but it can be done. Why not?

William Green Sees 1936 "Fateful Year for Labor"

Washington.—This year will be a "fateful one for labor," President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, said in a New Year message. Pointing out that the supreme court will decide the constitutionality of the Wagner labor relations act, Guffey coal act and other legislation of vital importance to the workers, Green said that the decisions of the court "will have a profound effect upon the future policies and procedure of organized labor."

"Then there is the problem of unemployment," President Green continued. Production has increased and business improved, but approximately eleven million are idle still. That will be the nation's chief economic problem calling for solution in 1936."

Green declared that labor will press for the acceptance and application of its remedy for unemployment, the shorter work day and shorter work week, with greater vigor than ever. "It is in the opinion of labor," he said, "the only plan which will provide for the absorption of the unemployed in private industry."

President Green said that the indications are that the economic and industrial improvement which begin in 1935 will continue in 1936.

Private concerns spend millions of dollars to advertise their labels and trade-marks. If organized labor should spend all its union-earned money for union-labelled goods, it would get better results.

Americans spend millions of dollars for imported goods. The best way to cut the taxes collected for those on relief is to buy union-made, American products.

Local Merchant "Done Him Dirt," Says Brush Smith

Brush Smith is mad—good and mad.

Every once in so often Brush comes over from Graysville to give the merchants of Chattanooga a periodical "brushing down?" (abject apologies for the pun) for not handling products which bear the union label. Until recently he has had no trouble locating merchants who do not carry union-labeled articles.

But Brush is feeling very badly this week. He stopped by The Labor World this week to expend some of his temper on anyone who would listen to his woes.

It seems that Brush had thought up a lot of new epithets to apply to those "renegade" merchants who had not been co-operating with labor by selling its products, and accordingly, he came to town again, marched blitherly down Market street into his pet brushing-down store, and asked for a pair of shoes with the union label. The stage was set for the new epithets, but the act went wrong. For the clerk merely said, "Yes, sir," and started bringing out shoes by the dozens and not content with that he took Brush back and showed him rows and rows of shoes bearing the label.

"And," says Brush, with a mournful sigh, "I had to buy a pair of those shoes before I could get out of there. What's the world coming to, when a fellow can walk into Chattanooga's leading store and find label goods?"

Workers will receive the full share of what they produce when they organize and buy their own union-made products.

Refreshing Relief

When You Need a Laxative

Because of the refreshing relief it has brought them, thousands of men and women, who could afford much more expensive laxatives, use Black-Draught when needed. It is very economical, purely vegetable, highly effective. . . Mr. J. Lester Roberson, well known hardware dealer at Martinsville, Va., writes: "I certainly can recommend Black-Draught as a splendid medicine. I have taken it for constipation and the dull feelings that follow, and have found it very satisfactory."

BLACK-DRAUGHT

MORE ABOUT KAGAWA

C. A., University of Chattanooga, Pastors' association, Christian Youth council and the City Missionary Federation.

Kagawa was born forty-six years ago, the son of a wealthy and politically prominent father and a geisha girl mother whose family had sold her to this life as a means of securing rice to eat. To secure his rights as a son the father legally adopted him. Left an orphan at an early age, his father's legal wife was compelled to care for him, but hated him as "the child of her enemy," and he grew up unloved, abused and introspective. His recourse was in nature, for which he still maintains a deep and poetic appreciation, and today dreams in which his longing for affection was uppermost.

Sent to a Buddhist school, taught to be a "gentleman and a saint," he found his ideal of a gentleman and a saint in Jesus when he became acquainted with His life and works. When he accepted Christ at the age of 15, his uncle, as his legal guardian, disinherited him. He then attended a mission school, decided to enter the ministry, and began to evangelize at the early age of 18 years.

Meditating deeply over the teaching of Jesus about "the least of these" he rented a hut, six by six feet square, in the Shinkawn slum of Kobe, and went there to live. Believing, in his mystical, poetic way, as did Tolstoi, that he should literally follow the Sermon on the Mount, he gave his cloak when the poor asked his coat, turned the other cheek when struck, and turned away none who asked aught of him. As a result he was literally stripped of his garments by those who took advantage of his generosity, shared his little hut with drunkards, thieves, dope addicts and even with a murderer. He was beaten, bruised, had his teeth knocked out but "resisted no evil one."

Finding that no difference what sacrifice he made to redeem the adults in the slum, their environment stole them away from him again, he turned to the children, only to have the slum steal them away as soon as they grew a little older. He then gave up the hopeless battle to save individuals in so bad an environment, moved out of the slum and began his crusade on poverty, ignorance and exploitation, by organizing his Kingdom of God movement.

Meditating deeply upon the principles of brotherhood as taught by Jesus, he came to believe that in co-operation was the way to the better life for the unfortunate and underprivileged. So he organized the poor wage-earners and was sent to prison for it, but so wrought in friendly persuasion and against all use of violence that the government sought his advice on labor questions. This helped to obtain laws allowing labor to organize. He fought the communists and all who advocated violence and was denounced as a betrayer of the labor movement. He started the organization of co-operatives among the poor farmers as a means of lifting their standards of living and saving them from exploitation. His family had been landlords for generations but he became a crusader for the poor tenants who pay one-half for rental on their pitiful little plots and are charged 30 per cent interest. Today millions have joined the co-operatives in Japan and the government there, just as our new deal government does here, fosters them.

Kagawa is thus found to be no mere dreamer, though he is first of all an idealist; he knows how to make his dreams come true in practical endeavor. His courage is unfaltering. When the Japanese militarists were shelling Shanghai he wrote a letter to the Chinese Christians asking forgiveness. While in jail for organizing labor he wrote a book which so put the aspiration of Japanese youth that queues formed to purchase it and it ran into scores of editions. He even won a communist led demonstration from violence. When the police sent a guard to accompany him as a "dangerous character" on a charge like unto that upon which Jesus was crucified, he used the time in an effort to convert the guard. He denounces militarism, but like unto Tolstoi, no one lays a hand upon him. He is loyal to his government and many of its rulers have come to look upon him as one who may have a wisdom they should seek.

He has written more than 100 books and pamphlets and drawn above $100,000 in royalties. His sociological novels have been best sellers; his income from royalties now averages $10,000 per year. All of it goes to his Christian work, as will every dollar contributed during his mission in America. He lives meanwhile in a small bungalow, the furniture in which was made at a cost of $80.00, largely with his own hands.

The press has persisted in headlining Kagawa as a "pacifist and socialist;" this is to misrepresent him to the American mind. He is a non-resistant just as Tolstoi, just as Gandhi is, and just as Jesus was. His social crusade is not for state socialism but for voluntary economic co-operation. He is as much of an evangelist as he is social reformer. He is a mystic as are all great religious leaders. He is a student of science and finds no conflict between science and religion. He is an apostle of Love as the Way of Life, but to him love is not just sentiment or a devotional emotion—it is good-will, expressed, in obedience to the Golden Rule and the Way of the Cross. He believes with John Ruskin that "in all things competition is anarchy and death; in all things co-operation is brotherhood and life. He has been called a "modern St. Francis d'Asissi," a "Japanese Tolstoi," a "Christian Gandhi;" he is in reality just Kagawa himself, one of the greatest and most Christ-like religious leaders in the world today.

Fear Trouble Over Salary Disclosure

American Can Appreciates Effect of Large Payments on Public and Workers.

Philadelphia.—Corporation officials who have resisted the disclosure of their salaries have given many reasons for not wishing the facts to be made known, but it is likely that the $200,000,000 American Can company has provided the correct answer.

In a suit filed here for an order restraining the Securities and Exchange commission from making salaries public, on the ground that the law creating it is unconstitutional, the court was told:

"This information will excite criticism, breed envy and perhaps foment serious labor trouble."

The can company has submitted its salary list, but insists that it be held confidential. The commission has taken the position that stockholders and the public have a right to know whether executives are being paid excessive sums.

FIRST ROUND TO THE TEACHERS

County administration's claims that the teachers' salary law is unconstitutional took a severe setback Wednesday. Chancellor Foust overruled all grounds in the demurrer filed by the county which challenged the constitutionality of the law. That's one big hurdle in the drive for legal salaries for teachers!

AT THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS' MEETING

High lights of the board of directors' meeting included the indorsement of a resolution favoring stringent neutrality measures by the present congress and a resolution commemorating the splendid devotion and self-effacing service to the federation of Miss Lassie Munsey. The latter was introduced by L. M. Swingley after Miss Munsey's letter of resignation from the Central Trades and Labor council and the board of directors had been read. The resolution, which spoke in the highest terms of Miss Munsey's work in the federation, professional standing and personal qualities, was received with warm approbation by the board.

The board elected J. B. Campbell delegate to the Central Trades and Labor council to fill out Miss Munsey's unexpired term.

NEW YORK GOVERNOR ASKS PASSING OF ADVANCED LABOR LEGISLATION

Program Urged in Annual Message Includes Ratification of Child Labor Amendment, Drastic Regulation of Strikebreaking Agencies and Close Co-operation in Federal Security Act Measures.

Albany, N. Y.—Gov. Herbert H. Lehman's annual message to the legislature is a great message, and particularly a great labor message. This is the all but unanimous judgment of labor throughout the state. As pointers in the governor's labor program, they note:

1. Call for the ratification of the child labor amendment to the U. S. constitution.

2. Regulation of labor agents and drastic regulation of so-called private detective agencies which make a business of supplying labor spies.

3. Regulation of hours and working conditions in hotels.

4. Regulation of fee-charging employment agencies.

5. Redefining of word "employe" in state labor laws. On this last point, the governor says:

"At present, the white collar worker is not protected by the labor law unless he performs some manual or physical act. Courts have made definitions which rule out many classes of wage-earners."

Child Labor Evil Growing.

In dealing with the child labor amendment, Gov. Lehman says that the call for working papers for children in this state has increased at an alarming pace. "Children are doing the work of adults at children's wages. For the sake of the children of America, I earnestly recommend that the amendment be ratified at this session."

Gov. Lehman pays caustic respects to those "industrial parasites," the private detective agencies which supply strike-breaking services.

"Such services have stirred up dissension, strife and violence in industry," he declares. "They have bored into labor organizations and hamstrung their effective functioning . . . Damage to property, loss of life and fantastic expense to employers have resulted.

"These detective agencies should be subject to the strictest regulation. Every concern should be made responsible for its acts. The preservation of order is properly a state function which should not be delegated to professional guards, privately paid, and under the discipline and control of private interests."

Social Security Co-operation.

The governor takes this occasion to remind the legislature that it has passed all but two of the measures which he urged a year ago, and calls on it to keep up the good record.

He points to the fact that the federal social security act began to function in New York state Jan. 1. He recommends close co-operation between the state and federal governments in this matter, and an increase in state taxes on liquor to pay a part of the cost.

Gov. Lehman pays very serious attention to many subjects not directly dealing with labor, though labor would get some indirect benefits out of almost every measure which he recommends. Reductions in utility rates are saving consumers about $23,000,000 a year; and he believes that with a few amendments to present utilities laws, the savings could be increased.

He tells of the progress made in liquidating mortgage companies, which have been one of the most expensive fads of high finance. He also urges reform of county and local governments.

SHOE REPAIRERS, NOTICE

There will be an open meeting at the Odd Fellows Temple Tuesday night at 7:30. All who are interested in the shoe repair industry are urged to be present.

Fight Resumed In Congress For Fair Tax On 10c Fags

Present Rate Is Grossly Inequitable, Standing in Way of Improvement in Condition of Union Tobacco Workers and Threatening Very Life of 10-Cent "Smoke."

Washington.—Modification of the murderous tax on cigarettes, which bear heaviest on the dime cigarette, will be sought again in the current session of congress.

OPPOSES UNFAIR TAX

Representative William P. Connery, Jr., of Massachusetts, chairman of the house labor committee and introducer of one of the bills for modification of the tax on cigarettes.

At least five bills for tax modification are pending. These bills are identical in purpose, and enactment of any one of them will bring about the relief needed to save the 10-cent cigarettes, generally regarded as the poor man's smoke.

Principal opposition to modification of the tax comes from the enormously wealthy and strongly intrenched big four non-union companies which have plowed and jammed their way through to financial success by the use of every method known to big business, crowding down hard upon the tobacco farmer on the one hand, exploiting the worker on the other, and taking the whole enormous jackpot out of the consumer.

Present Tax Inequitable.

The present tax on cigarettes is six cents per package of twenty, regardless of whether the package sells for 10, 15, 20 or more cents. Added to this tax are, of course, state taxes in several states. But the federal tax is the same regardless of price to the consumer, so that the consumer of a package of 10-cent cigarettes must pay as much in tax as is paid by the consumer of a package of 15-cent cigarettes.

It is pointed out that the meaning of this, to the manufacturer, is that the maker of dime cigarettes has but four cents left, out of which to carry on his entire manufacturing and distributing operation. Four cents is all there is for tobacco, for manufacturing, for selling and for shipping, including overhead, replacement and other federal, state and local taxes. It is all there is, out of which to pay a union scale of wages, after all other charges have been paid.

Tax Barrier to Higher Pay.

The blue revenue stamp of the six cents, stands as a practically insurmountable barrier to any future improvement in wage standards, no matter what may be the inclination of the manufacturer or the demands and necessities of the workers. That blue revenue stamp, representing the demands of the United States government, fixes a condition which is permanent, unless there can be modification of the tax.

The union itself has pointed out that failure to secure modification of the tax probably means the death of the dime cigarette and thus the abolishment of thousands of union jobs.

The Tobcco Workers' International union, with the Cigarmakers' International union and the union employers, are joined in an effort to bring about tax modification and they have called upon all organized labor and the labor press to help win the fight. It is one of the really acute fights before the present session of congress in which labor interest is in direct conflict with corporate greed. The labor interest spreads far beyond the interests of the union workers immediately employed in the manufacture of 10-cent cigarettes. It affects the whole cigarette consuming public and it affects labor in the important sense that every defeat for labor in a legislative struggle entrenches reaction in every other legislative struggle.

All labor is called upon to register support for cigarette tax modification, so that taxes shall be in proportion to the price of the cigarette. Labor believes such a tax fair in every respect.

Glass Workers Strike in Fight For Higher Pay

Workers Out in Four States Also Ask Union Shop — Walkout Called as One-Year Agreement Expires.

Columbus, O.—Flat glass workers in four states went on strike Jan. 1 for higher pay and a union shop. The walkout was called as a one-year agreement expired.

President Glen W. McCabe, of the Federation of Flat Glass Workers of America, said the union shop was necessary for the protection of between 5,000 and 6,000 workers who joined the strike movement.

The union asked a wage increase of 7½ per cent and elimination of geographical wage differences. The manufacturers ask a discontinuance of a sliding scale clause. McCabe said that he called the strike when it became evident that "there was no apparent chance for compromise" with independent manufacturers over a one-year contract renewal.

Strikes took place in plants at Arnold, Fairchance, Bell Vernon and Jeanette, Pa.; Clarksburg and Sisterville, W. Va.; Fort Smith, Ark., and Okmulgee, Okla.

Several plants, now closed for repairs, but intending to resume operations soon, would be unable to do so because of lack of workers, McCabe said, declaring the men laid off while repairs were being made would not return until the union's demands had been met.

The union president said that the average wage for the union workers was 58 cents an hour. The union, he said, rejected an offer made by the manufacturers for a 5 per cent advance in glass prices and a 2½ per cent increase in pay for the workers.

"BOB" TWINAM

(By T. R. Cuthbert)

The tragic death of Robert Fulton Twinam was a great shock to the many trades unionists who had learned to know him. While opportunities of association with that fine gentleman were not as frequent as we would have liked, the last two years opened up for us that feeling of admiration of friendship.

"Bob" was given the assignment of covering "labor" for his paper, and in this way we learned to appreciate his qualities. As a reporter we found he frequently discovered labor events sometimes before we became aware of their potentialities ourselves. We found that this reporter always kept confidences. We found that aside from digging up news items to which he was assigned he was studious in finding out "why" things happened.

In all the intensity of the textile strike there never was a time that Bob was not courteous and considerate in his efforts to get the story. The writer especially is proud of his friendship with Bob Twinam, and although our association had not been as lengthy as others more fortunate to call him "friend," his untimely death leaves us sincerely bereft.

He was a Christian gentleman, and his memory will ever remain with us.

TEACHER TALK

LOCAL 246, A. F. of T.

SIGNS OF LIFE IN STATE ASSOCIATION

Chattanooga and Hamilton county may well be proud of the part played by their representatives in Nashville last week-end. It is true that of the amendments proposed by them only one of importance was passed, but we feel it was a noteworthy one. This was the retirement fund for Tennessee teachers.

Of equal importance was the atmosphere of the meeting created by these teachers, who think and act in place of sitting idly by—the tool of some politician. One of the few times in the history of our state organization classroom teachers made valuable contributions to the discussions of proposed reforms of our educational set-up. We understand some teachers in our state were amazed to find that teachers can think, speak and vote. Our city and county may well be proud to lead the way to better education in our state. Also we're delighted to find that our state association shows unmistakable signs of life.

ITALY'S LABOR ORGANIZATION

Can you imagine the leaders of an organized labor movement being engaged in an educational campaign to get workers to accept a wage cut gracefully? Tullio Cianetti, president of the Italian Confederation of Labor, recently admitted to John Spivak, ace American reporter, that such educational activity is the main function of his office.

How the chamber of commerce would like to have such a labor movement here! Then if labor were not "cheap and tractable" enough, it could be educated to be so.

BEHIND THE FLYING PENCIL

Local 246 has no dictaphone, but it would take a very complex machine to take the place of our secretary, Mrs. Margaret Locker. It would take a machine that could fill in gaps, read minds a little, and straighten out illogicalities, inconsistencies and awkwardnesses of expression. Until the described machine is invented we'll take Mrs. Locker.

And let us add to this that Mrs. Locker is a real trade unionist, who can express herself for a cause when she is needed. A certain committee delegation of a recent date can testify to that.

RADIO PARTIES

J. W. Abel, of Third District school, wins some kind of record for getting children interested in extra-curricular activities. Last Monday Mr. Abel asked the children to hold radio parties to hear Commissioner McMillan speak. The next morning 104 parties were reported with an aggregate attendance of 674.

SHADES OF THE PAST!

Can it be possible that "the evil teachers do lives after them?" Don't tell me that the bench is using the age-old tactics of the school room! Yet it is related in school and society that Judge Joseph Call is making all drivers who do not stop at "through-street" intersections wear dunce caps—and, what is worse, they must write a thousand times, "I will stop at all boulevards." Be careful in the future lest we suffer our own punishment. Who can tell, there may be a judge in our classroom!

LAND OF THE FREE

No one knows better probably than labor that the freedom of speech, thought and action in this country is priceless. Time after time labor has been protected only by the forethought of the fathers of our constitution. Make no mistake, it was no accident on their part which granted to one and all freedom of speech. They knew better perhaps than any of us what persecution for opinion was. It was in their minds to make it impossible for any of the future generations to suffer for lack of freedom. Let us strive to keep that freedom for which they sacrificed so much. Let us as teachers not be misled by any fascist or nazi trends which will destroy our inherited rights. Let's keep America a land where "freedom rings!"

LEADERSHIP OR FELLOWSHIP?

In Chicago Katherine Knight is soon to open a government project to train one hundred thirty girls over 16 for leadership in the community. Some expert organizer would probably be welcomed by some of our demagogues to establish institutes for "fellowship." It would probably be a more lucrative pursuit than teaching leadership.

WHY LOYALTY OATHS FOR TEACHERS?

We read that the public school system will probably be the most lasting of all institutions set up by the United States government. We read also that the school is the background of democracy. Then isn't it strange to think that in twenty-two of our forty-eight states these "teachers of democracy" are being compelled by law to pledge their allegiance to the flag and constitution? Why the teachers only? Why not employes in all offices, stores, factories, etc.? We wonder why the teacher is singled out for this class legislation and other freak laws.

SNOOPERVISING THE TEACHER

Speaking of freak laws reminds us of the community where the teachers were forced to wear their galoshes fastened. In numbers of instances teachers have been forced to pledge themselves not to smoke, and in other ways teachers' liberties have been circumscribed off as well as on the campus.

Not so long ago in this county it was a grave misdemeanor (punishable by loss of job) for a teacher to marry.

Now it seems as if the teachers are being unruly, insubordinate, and in other ways frightfully naughty. They demand the social rights of other human beings and—worst of all—they are actually trying to get as much pay per year as office employes, firemen and policemen! Something really must be done at once or these once-lowly teachers will be getting the idea that they are as good as anybody.

YOUR JOB

Help build your school. Ask yourself these questions—then do something:

1. Does your community know the standing of this state in education?
2. Does your community know of the prevailing needs of your school?
3. Does your community know this state is sixth in natural wealth and almost the lowest in educational appropriation?
4. Do the parents know how to go about improving conditions?
5. Are you making yourself a vital link between your community and your profession?
6. Are you spreading the gospel that every tax-paying, voting citizen has a right to demand larger appropriations of state and county funds for schools to better the educational facilities of his community?

"Five Miles of Pennies" Drive Most Successful; Tag Day Saturday on City Streets

Citizens of Chattanooga are responding most generously on the five-mile penny drive sponsored by the women's hospital auxiliary, of which Mrs. Richard Kimball is president. Funds derived from this will purchase much needed and up-to-date equipment for the hospitals of Chattanooga. Thirty-eight organizations and many volunteer workers are canvassing the city and county, and the results are proving very satisfactory. Each person solicited is presented with a coin collector—a cardboard device to hold the copper coins—and he is privileged to give as many pennies, dimes or bills as he chooses. The drive began last week and is to end Feb. 13.

According to Dr. Elder, superintendent of Erlanger hospital, the equipment there is old and out of date and it is quite inexcusable and appalling to think that any person might lose his life for lack of necessary equipment.

Mrs. Herbert Haile, chairman of the drive, announced a tag day for next Saturday when all workers will solicit the shoppers on Market, Broad, Main and Rossville streets. The cause is most worthy and should merit a shower of pennies, quarters, bills and checks.

It is up to the citizens of Chattanooga to put this over and we believe they will do it.

Labor unionists can carry on a strike and a boycott at the same time by buying under the Union Label, Shop Card and Button.

HOUSE ACTION SOUGHT ON 30-HOUR WEEK BILL

Washington.—Chairman William P. Connery, Jr., of the house labor committee, threatens to introduce a petition to force consideration of his 30-hour work week bill if it does not come out of the rules committee soon.

"I intend to ask for an immediate hearing before the rules committee," Connery said. "If I cannot get it out of that body, I will put a petition on the speaker's desk to force its consideration. We must get action this session."

Cleveland Bakers Planning For Fiftieth Anniversary

Cleveland, O.—Cleveland Local No. 19 of the Bakery and Confectionery Workers' International Union of America is making extensive plans for celebrating on Feb. 22 the fiftieth anniversary of the union. The program includes a banquet in the Hollenden hotel punctuated with congratulatory addresses, followed by a grand ball.

During the last two years the local has increased its membership from about thirty to 1,300 and has established better wages and working hours coupled with liberal assistance to unemployed members in distress.

NLRB ORDERS COTTON MILL TO DISBAND COMPANY UNION

Washington.—The national labor relations board, in a cease and desist order against the Clinton Cotton mills, of Clinton, S. C., ordered the company to disband its company union known as the Clinton Friendship association, to stop requiring prospective employes to join the association and to forbid foremen from soliciting membership in the association.

The company was ordered to refrain from discriminating against mill workers because of their union activity and to reinstate ninety-six employes discharged because of such activity.

PROPOSES UNITED ACTION TO OPPOSE U. S. FASCISM

Indianapolis, Ind.—United action of farmers, workers and the church to preserve the United States from dictatorship and exploitation of the masses was proposed by John W. Edelman, research secretary of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers.

"Organized labor is ready for the co-operative movement but has been slow in organizing such a movement, because union labor is fighting desperately for the mere right to exist," Edelman said in addressing a consumers' co-operation forum in connection with the twelfth quadrennial convention of the Student Volunteer movement.

SHOE CUTTERS LEAVE INDEPENDENT UNION

Haverhill, Mass.—The United Shoe and Leather Workers' union, an independent organization, has suffered another setback in its battle for leadership of Haverhill's 5,000 shoe workers.

The cutters' local has voted to quit the ranks of the United. The companies refused to renew a work and wage agreement with the United, signing instead with the Boot and Shoe Workers' union, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

UNION GLASS WORKERS GRANTED WAGE INCREASE

Pittsburgh.—A 5-cent an hour wage increase will be granted Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass company workers under a new agreement reached in Toledo, Glen W. McCabe, president of the Federation of Flat Glass Workers of America, announced.

BREWERIES SIGN PACT; PROVIDES "CLOSED SHOP"

Galveston, Tex.—A closed shop agreement has just been signed by the Galveston-Houston Breweries, Inc., and the Galveston Metal Trades council.

The pact establishes a minimum 40-hour week with a guarantee of a minimum of 30 hours' work.

Wages for machinists and auto mechanics are set at $1 an hour. The helpers' rate will be 60 cents.

DEATH TAKES HENRY KOCH; WAS BAKERS' SECRETARY

Chicago.—Henry Koch, for many years international financial secretary of the Bakery and Confectionery Workers' International Union of America, died here on Dec. 28.

Mr. Koch was a prominent person in the organized labor movement. He had been a delegate to the conventions of the American Federation of Labor for twenty-five years.

Wichita Beacon Pressmen Strike for Union Pact

Wichita, Kan.—Eighteen members of the Printing Pressmen's union here declared a strike against the Wichita Daily Beacon after the failure of repeated attempts to persuade the management of the company to arbitrate the union's contract, which expired last July. The Pressmen's union announced that the Daily Beacon no longer carried the Allied Printing Trades council label.

In a statement regarding the controversy the union declared that the Beacon's wage scale for pressmen is only $24.70 for a 40-hour week. This wage, which amounts to $4.94 per day, is said to be approximately 44 per cent under the 1929 scale paid by the Beacon despite the fact that the paper ranks thirty-third in the United States "in lineage of advertising."

It is claimed that the wage scale imposed by the Beacon Publishing company is the lowest of any city under the jurisdiction of the International Typographical union. The union wage rate in a few similar cities is: Omaha, Neb., $45; Casper, Wyo., $37.50; St. Joseph, Mo., $37.50; Eldorado, Kan., $35; Dallas, Tex., $45.25; Kansas City, Mo., $36.88; Oklahoma City, Okla., $38.75; Topeka, Kan., $35; Denver, Colo., $45; Lincoln, Neb., $40.24.

The label triplets of American labor are the Union Label, Shop Card and Button.

Make your union wages work overtime by spending them for union-made merchandise.

Johnson City Notes

President R. S. McCann, of the Tennessee Federation of Labor, and Mr. Miller, of the Electrical Workers, both of Memphis, spent a short while in Johnson City Monday conferring with officials of the Johnson City Central Labor union.

A number of invitations have been extended the state "prexy" to visit this city and being in Knoxville with a few hours' time on his hands made the trip to this city. He has promised that he will visit this city again at an early date.

Major George L. Berry, of Rogersville and Washington, President Roosevelt's co-ordinator for labor and industry, will address federal employes of upper East Tennessee at Mountain Home Friday night.

The employes are members of the Federal Co-ordinating society, including government employes here and in the counties of Hawkins, Greene, Washington, Carter, Sullivan and Johnson. Bristol, Tenn.-Va., also are represented.

Major Berry was secured through the agencies of Col. Lee B. Harr, governor of Mountain Home.

Major Berry, who won fame as a labor mediator through his long association with the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants' union and later as an NRA executive, is a native of Hawkins county and one of those mentioned strongly for the next governorship. He is noted for his speaking abilities.

Last July through the efforts of the Johnson City barbers, both Local No. 491 and the unorganized shops of the city, petitioned the city council signed by 98 per cent of the barbers asking that an ordinance regulating opening and closing hours within the city limits. Immediately after this ordinance went into effect on July 19 it was contested by Finis Knowles, of the Star Barber shop, who was indicted for violation of opening and closing hours, the trial being called before Corporation Judge George Barnes, who immediately declared the law unconstitutional and the case was immediately thrown out of court. The local barbers appealed his decision to circuit court and when the case was called before Judge Allen, Mr. Knowles and his lawyer failed to appear. Judge Allen fined the defendant $25 and costs for violation of the law and has issued execution for its collection. This automatically places the law back into effect and local barber shops will begin at an early date enforcing the same. Besides specifying closing hours the ordinance also provides that all towels and linens must be changed for each customer.

Lady Took Cardui When Weak, Nervous

"I can't say enough for Cardui if I talked all day," enthusiastically writes Mrs. L. H. Caldwell, of Statesville, N. C. "I have used Cardui at intervals for twenty-five years," she adds. "My trouble in the beginning was weakness and nervousness. I read of Cardui in a newspaper and decided right then to try it. It seemed before I had taken half a bottle of Cardui I was stronger and was soon up and around."

Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

Wisconsin Labor Official Seeks Municipal Law to Prevent Strikebreaking Activities

Fred F. Smith, a member of the Municipal Council of Superior, Wis., and president of the Superior Trades and Labor assembly, is sponsor for a city ordinance designed to prevent strikebreaking activities in labor disputes.

According to the proposed municipal law, which is now before the Superior council, as soon as a strike occurs and picketing is established the mayor or council would decide whether the assemblage of pickets at the plant is a public menace.

The ordinance also empowers the mayor or council to serve notice on the employer to close his plant pending an investigation of the controversy by a committee of nine, consisting of three workers, three employers employing more than ten persons, and three clergymen. The committee would be appointed by the mayor or council, and the employer would be prohibited from bringing in outside labor pending negotiations for adjusting the controversy.

Under the ordinance the plant where a strike occurs would remain closed by order of the municipal authorities until the investigating committee settles the following three questions:

1. Whether or not the employer has refused to negotiate with his employes.
2. Does an assemblage of pickets numbering fifty or more persons at the plant constitute a public danger.
3. Whether the employer has denied the right of his employes to bargain collectively.

LABOR ACT WINS AND LOSES IN D. C. COURTS

Washington.—The national labor relations act both won and lost in the courts of the District of Columbia in the last few days.

Justice Jesse C. Adkins refused to enjoin the board from holding an election to determine whether Local Union 1938 should represent the workers of the Gate City Cotton mills of East Point, Ga. Two suits were brought on this count, one by the company and one by one of its workers, Mrs. Lola Echols. Justice Adkins turned down both.

Mrs. Echols is said to be getting $15 a week; but she was represented in court by a battery of high priced lawyers, the cheapest of whom probably is getting $15,000 a year.

Later, Chief Justice Alfred A. Wheat, of the district supreme court, said he would grant an injunction to keep the NLRB from holding an election among the employes of the Atlantic Coast Line railroad to determine units of collective bargaining.

Collective bargaining is now written into the law of the land. Collective buying is an inalienable right which requires no legislation but action!

The Claus Manufacturing company signed an agreement with the Metal Trades council, including our association.

Our association, acting jointly with a federal labor union, signed an agreement with the Square D Switch company.

Business Agent Jirikowic reports an agreement with the Phoenix Hosiery company, and advises that in addition to the Hosiery Workers' union, all crafts in behalf of their members on maintenance work now enjoy contractural relations with the Phoenix Hosiery company.

UNION MEN ARE REINSTATED BY HERNDON SILK COMPANY

Herndon, Pa.—Through the intervention of the national labor relations board the Herndon Silk Throwing company, manufacturers of silk and rayon yarn, reinstated two employes belonging to the United Textile Workers of America.

In a complaint filed with the labor board the union claimed the two employes had been discharged because of their union membership, and that during last August and September officials of the company threatened to discharge other employes and close the plant if the workers persisted in joining the union.

The reinstatement of the two union men was made effective Jan. 6, 1936.

Court Upholds Legality of Radio Broadcast That Illinois Concern Is Unfair to Lab

Chicago.—A radio broadcast that a concern is unfair to labor and urging the public not to patronize it is legal and not subject to injunction for libel.

This is the substance of a strong opinion handed down by the Illinois superior court affirming the refusal of the Cook county circuit court to grant an injunction restrainiig radio broadcasting station WCFL, the Chicago Federation of Labor; John Fitzpatrick, president of the federation; E. N. Nockels, general manager of the broadcasting station, and Dental Laboratory Workers' Union No. 19358 from declaring in broadcasts that Boston Dentists, an Illinois corporation, is non-union, will not permit collective bargaining, and should not be patronized. Boston Dentists claimed that these statements were libelous and charged that the broadcast sought to intimidate patrons.

Judge Daniel F. Trude granted the petition for a temporary injunction on Sept. 11, 1934. Judge Klarkowski, of the Cook county circuit court, dissolved the injunction on Oct. 16, 1934, on the ground that an equity court does not have authority to enjoin a libel. Boston Dentists appealed the case. The opinion of the court was read by Justice John Sullivan.

On the question of alleged intimidation Justice Sullivan said:

"The public, including the friends of labor to which the appeals were made, may have been deceived by the false statements, if such they were, but it was left free to form its own judgment and make its own choice. Neither the public generally nor the members or friends of organized labor were coerced, intimidated or frightened by anything contained in the broadcasts. No threats of violence were made against either plaintiff, its business or property."

"We are compelled to hold," Justice Sullivan's decision concluded, "that it is not unlawful for a labor organization in a labor broadcast to express freely its honest opinion as to the fairness or unfairness of the attitude of an employer toward organized labor and that it is not unlawful that such broadcasts contain advice to the public and friends of union labor not to patronize such employer.

"For the reasons indicated we are of the opinion that a court of equity has no jurisdiction to restrain the radio broadcasting of the statements set forth in the complaint. Therefore, the decree or order of the circuit court dismissing the complaint for want of equity is affirmed."

Justices P. J. Scanlan and J. Friend concurred in Justice Sullivan's decision.

Factory Employment Fails to Keep Pace With Business Ga

Albany, N. Y.—State Indust Commissioner Elmer F. Andrews preliminary summary of the annu report for the state department of bor for 1935, states that the mon average number of workers employ in New York state factories was m than 4 per cent larger in 1935 tha 19934 and that the average amount weekly wages paid out at the tories was over 9 per cent great

"It is interesting to note," Comm sioner Andrews commented, "that cording to authentic figures, busin activity has increased in 1935 at much greater rate than factory e ployment." He added:

"It is noteworthy that, while e ployment and payrolls have increa in the state in 1935, those increa have not kept pace with the incre in industrial activity and product Similarly, increases in employm and payrolls, instead of being acc panied or followed by correspond decrease in figures on unemployme and relief, have been shadowed continuing unemployment.

"Particularly in the latter mon of 1935, appplications for relief h tended to increase. Allowing probability that a certain propor of relief applications were for purpose of obtaining relief jobs, must face the fact that continued employment, destitution and need relief remain a difficult problem."

30-HOUR BILL HELD MOST VITAL STEP IN SOLVING UNEMPLOYMENT

Passage of Black Bill in 1930 Would Have Been Big Help in Putting Idle to Work, Declares I. M. Ornburn, in Vigorous Championship of Measure.

Washington. "If, in 1930, Senator Black's 30-hour week bill had been passed by congress and signed by the president, it would have done more to solve the problem of getting jobs for the eleven million workers still out of work than all the other legislation passed."

This was the keynote in an address by I. M. Ornburn, secretary-treasurer Union Label Trades Department of the A. F. of L. Mr. Ornburn spoke over the Columbia Broadcasting system from Washington.

"We are now passing into the seventh year of an economic depression which has never had its equal in all history," said Mr. Ornburn. "While there has been a large degree of recovery in certain business lines, and profits are generally on the upgrade, the upturn has not been reflected in permanent employment of workers. It is true that through governmental projects and other federal activities many men and women are temporarily employed, but there are still over seven million workers who are waiting for steady work at a wage which will keep their families in comfort according to the American standard of living.

Regular Jobs Imperative.

"Regular employment means increased purchasing power and only through work at decent wages for all can America pull itself out of this disastrous economic situation which still confronts over forty million souls when we include the entire family with eleven million jobless workers who are willing to work.

"Senator Black's 30-hour week bill is the most constructive measure that has been advanced for the solution of unemployment. It will mean a six-hour day and a five-day week. It is the paramount issue of the American Federation of Labor.

"It is hoped that everyone who is interested in a shorter work week program will write to both their United States senators and also their representatives and ask them to vote for the Black-Connery 30-hour week bill. Do not delay. Write today.

Only One Solution.

"What is the solution of this gigantic problem of the man who wants a job? Are we going to continue gambling with fate for another seven years and just trust to luck as the dice-thrower who mumbles 'seven-or-eleven,' hoping that it will be only four more years instead of seven? No, we can't and Americans won't wait! We must solve this unemployment problem and the only practical solution is the one which is offered by the American Federation of Labor. It is shorter hours with no reduction in pay. By reducing hours, more workers can obtain jobs. By maintaining the prevailing weekly wage scale, and with more men at work, we shall be able to increase purchasing power. It is simple arithmetic.

"The only certain way in which the workers of America can meet technological progress, that is the use of machinery and new inventions, is to join a labor union and when they have joined in sufficient numbers, they will be able, through collective bargaining, to shorten the hours of work and maintain the American wage standard.

"When hours are shortened machinery will be a blessing instead of a curse. There will be more time for education and self-development — more time for spending the increased purchasing power which will accrue from shorter hours with the same pay. This is the path and the only path on which America will work its way back to better times for the average citizen.

Strike Foreseen If Textile Bill Is Not Made Law

Bad Conditions in Industry, Unless Remedied, Will Force Another General Walkout, Union Vice-President Warns.

Washington, D. C.—If the proposed National Textile Act for regulation of the textile industry should fail of passage in Congress "conditions will demand another national strike," Francis J. Gorman, first vice-president of the United Textile Workers of America, warned in Washington on his return from a southern trip.

Gorman charged that the employers are taking every advantage of conditions that followed the breakdown of the NRA and that the tendency to destroy code standards is increasing. This will place the industry in a more serious condition than it was prior to the NRA, Gorman said, when the employers came to Washington and appealed to the government for help. He expressed the belief that to avoid a similar catastrophe the administration will support the proposed textile act, which is known as the Ellenbogen bill, after its sponsor, Representative Henry Ellenbogen of Pennsylvania.

Opposition Expected

Opposition from employers is anticipated, Gorman said, regardless of the fact that the bill would regulate their competitive conditions and place all of them on a fair and equal basis. He added that his union expected the employers to maintain a powerful lobby to fight the bill and that the union would depend on the influence of the rank and file of workers in the United States to convince Congress of the necessity of the bill's passage.

Public hearings on the Ellenbogen bill are scheduled to open before the house labor committee on January 27. Governors of all textile industry states have been invited to testify.

For Uniform Labor Standards

The bill proposes to regulate wages, hours, machine load and other labor conditions. The measure is based on the establishment of uniform labor standards, thereby balancing competitive conditions throughout the textile industry. It has the support of workers in all branches of the industry.

In his trip through the South, Vice-President Gorman discussed the bill with union leaders in many textile centers. He will continue conferences with labor executives in eastern states.

Contracts Presented By Meatcutters

It was announced by Mack Ball, business agent for Local 600, that the big butchers are responding exceedingly well this year to the contracts. The following merchants have signed the 1936 contract and we ask you to favor these merchants with your purchases: Buehler Bros., Grimes Market, Frank Kelly, City Meat Market, Henry Horton Grocery Co., John Phillips, Herman Hall and Son, Wilson Rogers Sanitary Market, Shop Easy, W. S. Robinson, Sharp Bros, McDonald Stores.

Edwin Beuhler Bros are first to sign the contract. They were first to sign in previous years and first this year. Local No. 600 wishes to take this opportunity to express their gratitude and thanks to Mack Ball for the faithful part he has played for the local and the boss butchers the past year. The local feels indebted to Mr. Ball for its success.

BOILERMAKERS MEET.

The Boilermakers' local had an open meeting Saturday night and had a big "get-together" at the Junior Mechanics hall on Main street. Plenty of good refreshments were served and much interest was shown in the organization by those who do not belong to the local.

Among those who made the talks for the evening were: President Joe Dobbs, of the Central Body; Matt Robinson, state factory inspector; W. R. Barney, of Machinists' Local No. 56, and Sam Godfrey, of Knoxville, organizer for the Boilermakers.

"Taxpayers Not Drained by FHA Plan," Yancey

Private Money Is Used by Federal Agency.

WORK IS OUTSTANDING

"Like Morning Sunburst Through the Fog."

By R. H. YANCEY

Field Representative of the Federal Housing Administration.

Among all the alphabetical measures for relief and recovery, the federal housing act is outstanding. It gives all the promise of the morning sun burst through a five-year fog.

It is the only one of the remedial measures which used private money and adds nothing to the manifold burdens of the taxpayers. As a preliminary the guaranty of bank deposits inspired so much confidence that skittish money came out of hiding and scurried into the bank vaults for safety. In a very short space of time the banks, which a short time previously had been practically insolvent because of frozen assets, were not making loans. They had harrowing memories of the depression period and were taking no chances.

At this junction came the federal housing act. It entered the picture with all the energy and resource of Uncle Sam, making an agreement with the financial institutions that if they would loan their idle money, the federal government would insure payment, thus making loans absolutely safe for the first time in history and taking all chance out of the transaction.

Mortgage Loans Insured.

Title II. deals wholly with mortgage security given for the construction of homes in urban communities up to 80 per cent of the value of building and lot to the limit of $16,000. While Title I. loans are insured only for the limit of five years, Title II. loans are taken for as long as twenty years, with safeguards of various kinds as protection to both the lending institution and the policy of mutual insurance, to the end that depreciation shall not materially affect the quality of the loan. Under this title recently national ground-breaking ceremonies occurred on one day involving over 3,800 new homes. Over $6,000,000 has been loaned in Los Angeles area under Title II.

Title II. loans are insured to the lending institutions' full value, and if foreclosed the government pays the mortgage in bonds, taking over the property and disposing of it to the best advantage possible, preserving, the first time, the equity of the borrower.

Real Estate Stabilized.

But it has done more—much more. It has made it possible to stabilize the value of real estate. Owners of real estate have found during the depression that instead of an asset they had a liability on their hands. Taxes and assessments must be met, with no income and no chance for sale. No

Cotton Mill Strike Settled As Union Man Is Reinstated

Birmingham, Ala.—Settlement of a month-old strike at the Profile Cotton Mill, Jacksonville, Ala., was announced by M. C. Hughes, conciliator of the state department of labor. More than 300 workers returned to work under an agreement whereby a union man, allegedly discharged for a fight with a non-union man, will be re-employed. Hours and wages were not involved.

NEW SWIFT PLANT PICKETED

New Orleans.—Pickets are patrolling the new $350,000 building now being erected by Swift & Company. Union officials assert non-union carpenters are employed on the job at 60 cents an hour instead of 75 cents, the established scale. It will be a fight to the finish.

FHA Mortgage Clinic Is Set For January 29 To February 1--Labor Endorses Objectives

Labor officials of Chattanooga are shown with Federal Housing directors, indorsing the insured mortgage clinic to be held here January 29 through February 1 at 904 Market street.

Those presenting formal endorsement of the efforts of FHA are: Left to right, Joe Dobbs, president of Central Body; R. M. Cooke, city commissioner; T. R. Cuthbert, secretary of Central Body; J. L. Carpenter, vice-president Central Body; Richard Holliday, from the legal department for the state, and J. E. Woodruff, special financial representative from Washington.

During the clinic Chattanoogans will be given an opportunity to air their problems as home owners, and apply for FHA long-term loans to buy, build, refinance and remodel homes.

Executive Board Approves Plans in Resolution.

Government Agency to Help Small Home Owners Remodel Dwellings.

Chattanooga has been chosen for the federal housing administration's insured mortgage clinic, and Mayor Bass has proclaimed "Better Housing Days" for the period the clinic is to be held Jan. 29 to Feb. 1.

The clinic will be located at 904 Market street, where Washington financial experts will help Chattanoogans work out their housing problems.

J. E. Woodruff, special financial representative from Washington, at the Hotel Patten, urges building and supply contractors and all others interested to take advantage of the FHA in pushing the sale of their material both for new houses and for repairing old houses. "Even the housing refunding of mortgages calls for repairing materials," he said, in pointing out that electrical appliance firms are cashing in by selling their goods under the FHA plan.

Mr. Woodruff showed that a working couple with $700 in cash or a $700 lot could borrow $2,800 to build their home. On the 20-year repayment plan the wage-earners could also pay insurance and taxes and interest on a monthly scale of $26.70.

The promotion program will end with a banquet and mass meeting the night before the clinic begins. The mass meeting in Memorial auditorium will be taken up with addresses by Washington experts as well as local housing officials.

Already reservations are pouring in for the banquet at the hotel, which will precede the mass meeting.

Realizing that in addition to would-be home-owners being benefited by this project, the skilled craftsmen of the city will be afforded much needed employment, the executive committee of Chattanooga Central Body talked the whole plan over with Richard Holliday, from the legal department of Tennessee, and extended to the officials of the FHA formal indorsement of the project, expressed as follows:

"Whereas, the federal housing administration is directing a nationwide program for the purpose of assisting the citizens of this nation to build, buy, modernize and repair their homes; and,

"Whereas, such a program of assistance to the home owners and to prospective builders or buyers of homes will be of great benefit to the trades connected with the building geld; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That the national housing act is of vital importance to organized labor and we heartily indorse said act and the activities now under its provisions. A vote of thanks is hereby tendered to the federal housing administrator for his selection of our city in which to hold an 'Insured Mortgage Clinic.'"

LABOR PROBLEMS AND FASCISM ARE SUBJECTS

L. I. D. Series Starts Here January 29.

Bishop McConnell and Norman Thomas on Program.

Current problems of interest to labor will be discussed in the League for Industrial Democracy lectures, which are to be presented at Chattanooga High school on consecutive Wednesday evenings from Jan. 29 to March 4.

Bishop Francis J. McConnell will open the series next Wednesday evening on the subject "The Church and Social Justice." Bishop McConnell is best known to labor for his investigation of Pittsburgh newspapers during the great steel strike of 1920. His report showed that the press had without exception falsified the accounts of strike activities in order to discredit the strikers. Rev. C. W. Sullivan will introduce Bishop McConnell.

"Fascism, the Black International," will be the subject of the lecture on Feb. 5. The speaker will be Miss Tony Sender, formerly a prominent trade-unionist, labor editor, and member of the Reichstag in Germany. She now lives in Belgium, since Hitler forced her to leave Germany when he came into power. She will be introduced by L. J. Wilhoite.

"Education in a Changing Social Order" will be the subject on Feb. 12. The lecturer will be E. C. Lindeman, of the New York School of Social Research. Commissioner McMillan will preside.

"Labor's New Problems" will be discussed by Tucker Smith, director of Brookwood Labor college, on Feb. 19. Mr. Smith will discuss such issues as industrial and craft unions, non-partisan and labor party policies, and ways of achieving full organization. Judge W. B. Swaney will introduce Mr. Smith.

On Feb. 26 trends toward fascism in America will be discussed when Roy Burt speaks on "The Grave Diggers of Democracy." Mr. Burt will explode some of the demagogy of false prophets like Huey Long, Father Coughlan and William Randolph Hearst. Big business organizations, such as the Liberty league, the U. S. Chamber of Commerce and the National Manufacturers' association will be analyzed for definitely fascist ideas and tendencies. Rev. T. B. Cowan will introduce Mr. Burt.

Norman Thomas will be the concluding speaker on March 4, when he prophesies "Which Way America 1936-40?" George Fort Milton will introduce Mr. Thomas.

Season tickets are $1 and may be obtained at Contor Bros., Payne's, Miller's library, Loveman's library, Vogue, Arcade Book Shop and Read House Book company. Single admission tickets are 35 cents.

Big 4 Profits Soar While Low Wages Drive Half of Employes to Relief

Workers Employed by Wealthy Tobacco Corporations in Great Virginia and North Carolina Plants in Desperate Financial Plight, FERA Investigators Reveal.

By GEORGE L. KNAPP

Washington.—The Big Four tobacco companies are making increased profits while a large and apparently increasing percentage of their workers are drawing relief because they cannot live on the starvation wages paid by the tobacco monopoly.

Only one company of the Big Four has as yet made public its profits for 1935. That is the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco company, which probably has paid larger dividends on smaller wages than any other corporation in America. Its net earnings in 1935 were $23,896,398; more than $2,000,000 above the earnings of 1934. It has paid $30,000,000 of dividends each year for the past six years.

Shortly before the Reynolds company reported its Croesus-like intake of profits, investigators for FERA made a study of tobacco wages and workers in the North Carolina and Virginia tobacco districts. They covered the cities of Winston-Salem, dominated by the Reynolds company: Durham, where Liggett & Myers are the big shots; and Richmond, where the American Tobacco company pays bonuses to its officials that make the loot of old-time pirates look like takings of a mission church contribution box.

FERA Report Startling.

Here is part of the summary of the FERA report:

"This study," says the report, "shows the situation of the tobacco workers on relief in the Virginia and North Carolina regions. NEARLY HALF OF THEM WERE RECEIVING RELIEF AT THE SAME TIME THEY WERE RECEIVING WAGES.

"Most of them had been on relief for considerable periods—more than half for three months or more. Three-fourths of them came on relief in less than eight weeks after the loss of jobs."

There are really two reports; one from the study made in 1934, and one made last year. But there was hardly a perceptible change in the situation between the dates of survey.

Yearly Earnings Very Low.

"The factor most significant in bringing tobacco workers on relief is under-employment," says the latest report. "Workers in the families studied averaged only ninety-one days' work out of the normal work period of 200 days in the year. Low wages are also an important factor. Average annual earnings were $144, only 12 per cent of the single worker households made as much as $300.

"Perhaps the most striking fact disclosed was that the average weekly income from earnings for the 477 families in the 'sample' studied was $3.02. For households containing only one wage-earner, the weekly average was $2.35; and for households with City Teachers Win!

Chattanooga - Hamilton County Teachers' Union won the next step in their fight for decent salaries yesterday when Chancellor J. L. Foust turned down the city's plea that the teachers' minimum pay law be declared unconstitutional.

Several weeks ago the county teachers were upheld in similar circumstances.

The next step contemplated by the teachers is to defend their case if the law is taken to the state supreme court.

Label League to Meet

C. of C. Does Two Good Things in Succession!

(By T. R. Cuthbert.)

When labor finds occasion to approve of official acts of the Chamber of Commerce, that's news! When that happens twice in a row, it's unbelievable.

Election of Mr. Harry Miller to the presidency of the chamber, we believe, will be received by labor with good cheer. We are well acquainted with Mr. Miller and we feel that he will supply the Chamber of Commerce with a spirit of progressiveness and fairness toward the city as a whole that has in the past been lacking.

The naming of N. R. ("Pat") Patterson as the "Young Man of the Year" is also received in labor ranks with a feeling of indorsement. Mr. Patterson has evidenced a desire to enter the political arena solely for the good that he feels a good, clean and conscientious citizen can and should contribute to his community. If Mr. Patterson rises higher in political duties, he will serve as a statesman rather than as what is generally termed "politician."

Keep On, You Teachers

By T. R. CUTHBERT

Teachers yesterday made one more step toward their dramatic and history-making fight to better their conditions through collective action. Three years ago not one teacher would have dared raise their voices against the injustices imposed upon them.

Teacher unions have one of two ways only to better themselves, and only two ways. They must secure legislation to improve their jobs and they must elect officials to carry out and enforce the legislation secured.

Forge on, you teachers. You have been fighting slowly and grimly to succeed. The progress has been slow—but it has been sure and inevitable. Strengthen your local by keeping your dues paid up to date in order to carry on necessary court costs. Those teachers who have not yet cast their support to your rank surely, in gratitude alone, will soon recognize their obligation to help pay for the benefits they now and will receive through your efforts. Every teacher by now should realize that they owe a debt to the union and therefore should not ride the wagon and drag their feet on the ground.

What Next!

The Hershey Chocolate corporation has occupied a new windowless, draftless and almost noiseless office building at Hershey, Pa. No daylight enters the building, the rooms being flooded with light from fixtures that combine mercury vapor and Mazda light. An air conditioning system gives year-round automatic control of temperature and humidity. Special acoustic treatment largely prevents noise. The building is entirely woodless, even the furniture being of metal.

LABOR QUERIES

Q.—What was the famous Taff Vale decision?

A.—A decision in the British house of lords in 1902 declaring trade unions funds to be liable for breach of contract and other offenses committed by members. It was practically reversed by the trade dispute act passed in 1906.

Q.—Is the Federation of Flat Glass Workers of America a new organization?

A.—It was chartered by the American Federation of Labor in 1934. It was organized in less than ten months by Glen W. McCabe, who is now its president.

Q.—Who said: "The trade unions reflect, in organized form, the best thought, activity and hopes of the wage workers?"

A.—Frank Morrison, secretary of the American Federation of Labor.

Do not simply "resolve" to buy union-made merchandise, but always buy it.

TEACHER TALK

LOCAL 246, A. F. of T.

KEEP BEARING DOWN, BOARD MEMBERS!

Dues are still coming in from delinquents regularly, thanks to the splendid work of district secretaries and other board members. However, several who have promised to pay in January have not yet remitted. Perhaps the matter has slipped their minds. Remind them again, board members, and if that doesn't work, re-remind them.

ANOTHER SUIT, ANOTHER VICTORY

The city salary suit caught up with its county colleague Wednesday when Chancellor Foust overruled a decurrer attacking its constitutionality. Now both suits are ready for the final hurdle, the state supreme court.

TEACHERS' ATTORNEYS SHINE

Upward of 50 teachers were spectators at the hearing in Judge Foust's court Friday to hear Attorneys Swaney and Ballard present their case with convincing logic and an eloquence born of confidence in their cause. Authority after authority was cited to bring out the following points: (1) Municipalities as well as counties are held to be arms of the legislature. (2) Maintenance and control of the schools is a legislative function. (3) The courts should uphold the constitutionality of an act wherever possible to do so with a reasonable regard for constitutional provisions, and if a doubt exists it must be resolved in favor of the act. (4) It was the object of the legislature in this act to improve the teaching force of Chattanooga, in accordance with the policy set out in Article 11, Section 12, Constitution of Tennessee. (5) The public school system is the basis of our free government, and democracy rises or falls with it.

In a brilliant peroration Judge Swaney pointed out that the founders of our country and state looked to an adequate educational system to create an enlightened citizenry capable of making true democracy workable. The salary and tenure acts, he said, are designed to promote this ideal, which has been so sadly neglected in Tennessee and in Chattanooga. The foundation of the school is the teacher and only through the teacher can it be fundamental improved. Hence, the way to have good schools is to make the teaching profession one of dignity by providing adequate compensation and security of position.

TEACHERS' BEHAVIOR EXEMPLARY

Teachers who attended the hearing exhibited a commendable restraint during the proceedings. Not once did they boo at the atrocious arguments of the enemy, nor did stamp their feet—or even clap their hands—when our attorneys made pungent points. The only evidence of malicious conspiracy was the disconcerting way one teacher, then another, and then another would come traipsing in while the opposition was speaking.

FOUND ON THE DOORSTEP

Mr. O. C. Kirkman enters the company of the characters of the tabloid sheets by reason of a certain happening last week. Mr. Kirkman arose one morning and stepped out on the porch to get The Times. Imagine his surprise to find there a baby girl, apparently about three days old. After the requisite bustle and confusion attendant on such little occasions, calm reigned again and a bottle of milk was produced for the hungry babe.

Now Mr. Kirkman is preparing to make the bathroom that he made out of the nursery back into a nursery again. So it looks as if little Annabelle (as he has named her) has found a home.

Asked if he intends to adopt little Annabelle, Mr. Kirkman wore a thoughtful look. He is proud of his Anglo-Saxon heritage, he told the reporter, and wouldn't take a member of an alien race into his family. "And you know," he said, "much as I love little Annabelle, I strongly suspect that she has bovine antecedents."

GET YOUR TICKETS EARLY

The sponsoring committee for the League for Industrial Democracy lectures asks this column to warn teachers to get tickets early if they wish seats. Chattanooga High School Auditorium seats only 1,500, and holders of season tickets will be given preference. A capacity crowd is expected to hear the great liberal churchman, Bishop Francis J. McConnell, when he speaks next Wednesday night on "The Church and Social Justice."

MORE ABOUT 30-HOUR BILL

"As hours are adjusted to absorb the idle workers, we must continue to buy our own products. First, we must buy all the American-made goods that we can to keep the purchasing power at home. Then we must buy union-made goods and union services to maintain the high standards of wages, hours and working conditions which have been established by and only by the American labor movement.

"The American Federation of Labor, and especially those labor unions affiliated with the Union Label Trades Department, are also deeply interested in the measure before congress known as the Walsh bill which provides that all persons who sell to the U. S. government or enter into any contractural relations with it shall conform to the conditions contained in certain specifications, the purpose of which will be to maintain fair labor standards in connection with purchases, loans or grants where federal funds are involved directly or indirectly. This measure seeks to confirm in law the principle that the first charge on any industry is the performance of its duty to society by paying adequate wages and maintaining decent working conditions. It will prevent the purchase by federal officials of foreign-made and other unfair products to be used by the government.

"The bill has passed the U. S. senate and is now before the house of representatives. In behalf of the Union Label Trades Department, I urge all members of labor unions and their friends to write to their congressman and ask him to support the Walsh bill."

Union Label Support Urged.

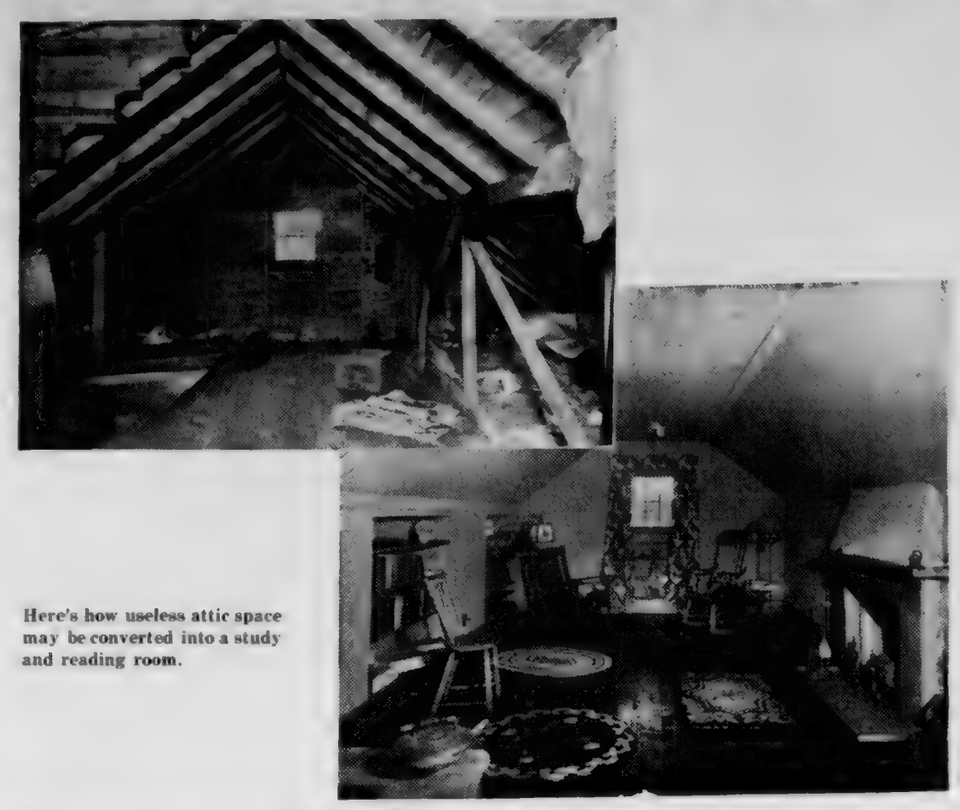
Stressing the benefits of supporting union label goods, Mr. Ornburn said:

"If you desire to buy only American-made goods, made under American standards, always ask for union labeled products.

"If you want to obtain immediate results in securing greater purchasing power, try collective bargaining through a labor union and collective buying under the unionl abel.

"The labor movement is the only organized effort to place more money in a worker's pocketbook, and that problem surely concerns most of us. Results are what count and they can not be obtained by acting alone. The big business interests may preach 'rugged individualism' for the rest of us, but when it comes to action, they join their own organizations and through them they have obtained at least 80 per cent of the nation's wealth."

HERE'S HOW TO UTILIZE ATTIC SPACE



Here's how useless attic space may be converted into a study and reading room.

Use Attics For Studio Quarters

Useless Space May Be Made Valuable.

When a child has reached the age to be interested in painting, sculpture and other arts, a special studio for this work will do much toward developing his talents.

A portion of the attic can be remodeled into an attractive studio room. If there is insufficient light, a dormer may be added, or the window in the gable end may be enlarged. In some cases glass shingles or a skylight may be used.

A space large enough to hold a good-sized work table, cases for materials and books, a comfortable chair or two, and perhaps a small couch should be partitioned from the remaining unfinished attic space. If the studio is left open, it will lack a feeling of intimacy and seclusion. The child needs a room it can close off from the rest of the household.

The floor should be durable, bright and attractive. Linoleum or some other composition floor covering in colors is appropriate. Many interesting title inserts are available. A pattern of brightly colored animals placed on a dark blue or green base may interest the child. Such floors are also easy to clean.

The walls should be a restful color—soft green or blues are attractive. Cut-out paper murals applied to the finished surface and shellacked will create definite areas of interest and at the same time maintain a restful effect.

The furnishings can be very gay—clear yellows or oranges, bright blue greens contrasted with white, and many other combinations dependent on the colors in floor and walls. Most of the furniture can be built-in, and the cabinetmaker can build the work table while he is there for the built-in pieces. This table should stand free in the center of the room or nearest the best light and should have a washable surface.

With proper planning, an attractive attic studio room can be added for quite a small cost. Modernization credit loans insured by the federal housing administration are available for this type of work.

N., C. & St. L. to Meet Truck Competition With Free Pick-Up

Pioneering in an innovation to meet the competition from truck deliveries, the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis railroad has announced that it will offer free pick-up and delivery service to and from the store door on less than carload lots.

This means that the small shipper will be able to call the freight office and they will come to his place of business to get the shipment and in addition will deliver the shipment right to the door of the person to receive it with no additional charge.

Wisdom

To lend money to a belligerent abounding in everything requisite for war but money is to relinquish our neutrality and take part in the war.—John Marshall.

Buying union-made goods and union services will drive Ol' Man Depression off the map!

Surely, other friends of labor unions will demand the Union Label, when they see the farmers doing it.

Johnson City Notes

Elizabethton.—At the meeting of Watauga Local No. 405, American Federation of Teachers, last Saturday at the Gov. Taylor hotel in this city, several new members were added to the rolls, and a number of applications are in the hands of officials and this number will receive the obligation at the next meeting.

The meeting Saturday was attended by W. H. Lacey and W. G. Hart, members of the organizing committee of the Johnson City Central Labor union.

This organization, one of the youngest in East Tennessee, is in very able hands in President Wiley Hardin and Secretary-Treasurer Arthur Crumley, and is headed in the direction of a 100 per cent membership in Carter county.

At the recent meeting of the Johnson City Central Labor union, President D. C. Long appointed a committee to investigate the possibilities of the Central Labor union sponsoring its own newspaper in East Tennessee. The committee is composed of W. G. Hart, chairman; W. R. Hughes, C. J. White, C. R. Jackson and H. Engleman. It is to be hoped that ways and means can be found whereby this can be accomplished and it will mean much to the labor movement in this section. The committee will make its report at the meeting of the Central Labor union Friday, Jan. 24.

Electrical workers of the Tennessee Eastern corporation, meeting with the organizing committee of the Johnson City Central Labor union last Friday night, plans were made for the completion of the organizing of the local. Officials of the Brotherhood of Electrical Workers are expected to visit this city at an early date and assist the new workers in their plans for the organization.

At the recent meeting of Johnson City local organization of the Pressmen's union, No. 253, the following officers were elected for the current year: C. J. White, president; [illegible] Glover, vice-president, and C. [illegible]ing, secretary and treasurer.

At the regular meeting of the Johnson City Central Labor union, to be held Friday night, Jan. 24, a large group of teachers of Local No. 403, Carter county are expected to attend, as will a delegation from C. C. & O. System Federation No. 44, of Erwin, Tenn. Special invitations were extended these two organizations, not at present affiliated with the Central Labor union, to send a delegation to visit our meeting. Letters have already gone out from the secretary's office to all affiliated locals to have their full quota of delegates at this meeting.

You can't pry a chiseler off of your back until you put Union Label buying pressure under him.

Union-mined coal, Union label shirts, hats, shoes, tobacco, cigarettes, printing and other goods are easily obtained simply because the demand for them has been so great dealers have realized the wisdom of handling them.

The average merchant has slight regard for sentiment in business. He wants to handle goods that move. Move the first consignment of union-made products for him and he will order the second at once.

MORE ABOUT BIG FOUR

wo or more wofkers, the average was $4.97."

When these pitiful earnings are set beside the profits and dividends of the Reynolds company, which controls the great Winston-Salem tobacco region, the contrast is sickening. As said before, the company has paid $30,000,000 a year for six years. The net earnings of the company since 1904 have been less than $1,000,000 in only one year—1906; and for the last few years have ranged between twenty and thirty-four times that sum. Yet it has workers getting $2.35 a week—without steady employment; workers who help to pile up these gigantic profits for the company while they are living in large part on relief.

The profits of Reynolds are even more astounding when the actual investment is set forth. R. J. Reynolds & Co. was formed in 1899. Its par value of outstanding stock was $3,100,000—these figures are from the reports of Poor & Moody. In the same year, the Continental Tobacco Company acquired $1,399,000 of Reynolds stock at par.

Huge Dividend Rates.

There is no record available of any other actual investment, which doubtless was puffed up more or less to make the original $2,100,000. Of course, a part of the excess profits—paid by the public—has been "plowed back" but of real investment since the origin of the company there does not seem to be a trace. The annual dividends of $30,000,000 a year paid for the years come, therefore, to a rate of more than 1,400 per cent a year on the original investment; and the current assets at the end of 1935 were $126,921,914.

Little wonder that this company, together with its cohorts of the Big Four, are set against the proposed reduction in the internal revenue tax on 10-cent cigarettes. No 10-cent cigarettes are manufactured by this group, and to maintain their monopolistic position they try to crush, by one means or another, the independent companies, which, as it happens, are for the most part 100 per cent union shops.

You Can Help Union.

The Tobacco Workers' International union has exerted every ounce of its strength to bring about a reduction in the tax on 10-cent cigarettes, both in order to save the 10-cent cigarette and to maintain what competition there is in the tobacco industry. All friends of labor are urged to get behind the efforts of the Tobacco Workers' union and help them in their fight against one of the most arrigant industrial combinations in the country. You can help by writing your congressmen and senators, asking them to support this legislation.

T. J. Smith Takes Issue With John W. Davis

Say, it's wonderful how $50,000 fees or larger will develop the penetrative power of a man's mind. I have just been reading how John W. Davis, in riding in his limousine from his residence to his office, or to a conference with some of the magnates of big business and glancing at the man in the street reads his mind and finds out what the constitution means to the man in the street. So he proceeds to give the rest of us the benefits of the knowledge he has obtained by this process.

He says there are five cardinal rules which the constitution lays down for the American government.

First, he quotes a paragraph of the Declaration of Independence, "All governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed." He says, "This consent is expressed as to its nature and as to its limits in the terms of the constitution, and is known as the rule of popular sovereignty.

I wonder if it would be asking too much of Mr. Davis to have him consult the man in the street, and find out why, where and when the supreme court or courts obtained the consent of the governed to say what should and should not be the law of the land? If this power is part of the constitution, why has it never been printed? If it was granted by congress, will he recite the act?

Second, he says "The government of the United States can exercise no powers except those expressly given it by the constitution which the people have adopted. This is known as the rule of constitutional limitations." I have always understood that the judicial powers of the United States (the supreme and all inferior courts established by congress) was part of the government not above or outside of the limitations of the constitution, and when they assume or usurp the legislative powers and presume to say what shall and what shall not be law, they make a farce of Section 1 of Article 1 of the constitution. "All legislative powers herein granted shall be vested in a congress of the United States consisting of a senate and a house of representatives." By usurping the legislative power of congress, they go outside of the limitations of the constitution, and if this is exemplifying good behavior, I will have to acknowledge that I never had any comprehension of what good behavior was, and by the way, these courts are only appointed during good behavior.

Third. No man or set of men shall ever enjoy the despotic power of being able at one and the same time to make the law, to decide whether it has been violated and then to exercise judgment on the violator, that is, the same persons shall never exercise the legislative, judicial and executive powers simultaneously. Well, I am of the opinion that if the judicial branch of the government would recognize this rule and be governed by it, it would purify the situation, thereby removing the confusion that has brought on the chaotic muddle we find ourselves in today.

Fifth. He calls the rule of the supremacy of the constitution and claims "The courts have the right to protect and enforce the rules set forth in the constitution, to declare any act of congress, or legislative, or president, or governor, or other persons whomsoever contravenes the constitution null and void." In all the copies of our national constitution that I have read I cannot find any such power delegated to the courts or any other persons whomsoever. I am afraid Mr. Davis has confused the constitution of the manufacturers' association with the constitution of the United States.

Congress could remove all this confusion by adding a welfare clause to its acts: that this act shall not be amended or repealed except by an act of congress of the United States. That would be an incentive for good behavior.

Methodist Bishop To Speak Here

Leader in Social Movements of the Church.

Bishop Francis J. McConnell, bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church, will speak here on "The Church and Social Justice," opening the League for Industrial Democracy discussion lecture series on Wednesday, Jan. 29, at the Chattanooga High school auditorium at 8 o'clock. The chairman of the meeting will be Rev. C. W. Sullivan, and Bishop McConnell will be introduced by him.

Bishop McConnell is outstanding for the fearless and uncompromising attitude he has always taken in the church and outside on questions of social justice and opposition to war. He is one of those most directly responsible for the progressive social program of the Methodist Episcopal church of which he has been a bishop for twenty-four years, and was influential in the positive stand which its conventions have taken in favor of industrial democracy, and in refusal to support war.

Outside of the church Bishop McConnell has always devoted a great deal of his time to movements which he believed would lead to greater social justice, and a genuine realization of the ideals of religious thought. He has been for many years a vice-president of the League for Industrial Democracy. During the great steel strike of 1920, Bishop McConnell was the chairman of the interchurch committee, which did much to focus attention on the injustices done to steel workers. He has served on the emergency committee for strikers' relief, and in every case where individuals are wronged by society, Bishop McConnell's voice can be heard in the interests of a saner, more humane society.

Before he was made bishop in 1912, Bishop McConnell was president of De Pauw university. During the eight years from 1912 to 1920, while he was in charge of Methodist work in Mexico, Bishop McConnell voiced his disapproval of American capitalist intervention in Mexico. Bishop McConnell has spent a good deal of time in the Far East, as a member of a religious committee to China in 1921, and later as Barrows lecturer to universities of India in 1930.

Among Bishop McConnell's many significant books on social and religious problems the most widely known are: "Democratic Christianity," "The Preacher and the People," and "The Christian Ideal and Social Control."

Subsequent speakers in this series are: Miss Tony Sender, Roy Burt, Tucker Smith and Norman Thomas.

Season tickets for the entire course are priced at $1.00, which includes a free copy of "Looking Forward," a discussion outline on the otpics to be discussed. Student season tickets are 50 cents.

Bishop McConnell will speak over WDOD at 5 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 29.

MASS MEETING OF LABORERS SET FOR FRIDAY

There will be a mass meeting in the Community hall of the Memorial auditorium next Friday, Jan. 24, at 7:30 p.m., to which all WPA and unemployed workers, all common laborers and helpers, white or colored, are urged to attend. Wages and conditions on the TVA and WPA for this class of workers will be discussed by competent speakers. Those who will speak will be N. R. Patterson, WPA director; Joe Dobbs, president Central Body; John B. Huff, president Local 846, Common Laborers' union; E. E. McDaniel, southern organizer for Common Laborers' union, and Frank M. Lynch, vice-president Local 846.

Everyone is welcome to attend.

BILOXI WPA WORKERS STRIKE

Biloxi, Miss.—Biloxi's WPA activities came to a standstill, as 250 workers walked off four projects. The strikers insisted that a number of men not on the work relief rolls be put to work, and that there should be no reduction in wages and no discrimination shown by the officials in charge.

MORE ABOUT FHA PLAN

one will invest in real estate on a falling market. Now the policy of mutual insurance maintains for twenty years the stability of value, and as the insuring will remain constant with the years, a just and equable standard of value will be established and maintained. This will put an end to the fluctuations which inflate values during prosperity and deflate during depression. Real estate will become, what it is in fact, the basis of all values.

Interest Rates Reduced.

Under both titles the interest rates are the lowest ever made on that class of loans. Under Title I the rate may be less, but cannot be more than a five dollar discount on each hundred dollars of loan per year, while under Title II. the maximum rate is a flat 5 per cent on all classifications, new construction, refinance or purchase. This reduction of interest rate is a marvelous service rendered the people by a benevolent administration. The lending institutions are glad to acquiesce because the risk is assumed by the government, making realty loans better than government bonds. It is infinitely better to loan money at 5 per cent and be sure of both principal and interest than to loan at 7 or 8 per cent and lose both. The borrower has a chance to pay 5 per cent, while the higher interest rate confiscated his earnings and made it impossible for him to meet his obligations. If the federal housing act did nothing more for the nation than to reduce permanently the rates of interest it would fully justify our highest praise.

Other Benefits Noted.

Aside from the foregoing, among the many beneficial effects of the federal housing act are:

1. The thawing out of bank credit and the increased circulation of money and buying power without resort to inflation of the currency.

2. The restoration of the building industry to its former prominence as an economic factor, with millions of jobs for labor and its artisans connected with housing.

3. The increase of real patriotism and civic pride through better homes, increased home ownership, and the awakening of morale on the part of the dispossessed at the prospect of a hearthstone they can call their own.

4. Enjoyment of more of the comforts and luxuries of living, with particular emphasis on the housewife, whose yoke will be made easier and her burdens lighter.

5. The influence of better housing on the youth of our country, inspired to more ethical conduct, a greater sense of responsibility and appreciation of home influences reflected in a pronounced diminishing of crime.

6. The federal housing survey has given to hundreds of thousands of the white collar class an employment for which they were fitted.

Require Judgment.

"Our systems of valuation and mortgage risk," Mr. Yancey said, "require repeated and constant use of careful judgment. The general approval with which financial institutions have greeted these systems is evidenced by the number of such institutions which are conducting conferences of their own appraisers and employes at which federal housing administration procedure is being explained."

The underwriting manual of the federal housing administration, giving a detailed explanation of the valuation and risk rating techniques, is now in its second printing and is available to the general public.

Try CARDUI For Functional Monthly Pains

Women from the 'teen age to the change of life have found Cardui genuinely helpful for the relief of functional monthly pains due to lack of just the right strength from the food they eat. Mrs. Crit Haynes, of Essex, Mo., writes: "I used Cardui when a girl for cramps and found it very beneficial. I have recently taken Cardui during the change of life. I was very nervous, had head and back pains and was in a generally run-down condition. Cardui has helped me greatly."

Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

"LATEST WRINKLE" IN KITCHENS

The drudgery of the kitchen has been eliminated for the housewife of 1936. The top photograph shows an improved kitchen. Below is shown the same kitchen before the improvements were made by a citizen who obtained a Federal Housing Loan to finance the needed improvements.

Craftsmen Aided By FHA Program

Reports Made by Carpenters, Painters.

Property owners are using the facilities of the federal housing administration to prepare for winter. A steadily increasing amount of credit advanced under the terms of the modernization credit plan reveals that thousands of homes will be put in shape for winter storms; and a growing number of mortgages for new construction give evidence of the hundreds of homes that will be built during the late summer and early fall months.

Reports of building activity, business improvement and employment are pouring into the offices of the federal housing administration from every section of the country. A few are given below.

More than $196,000 worth of mortgages selected for appraisal from Birmingham, Ala., out of a total of $262,500, have been for new construction. Interest in the Mutual Mortgage Insurance plan of the federal housing administration is tremendous.

The American National Bank of Nashville, Tenn., which has approved more than 200 applications for modernization credit, amounting to approximately $90,000, has reported that only one of the borrowers is behind on his payments at the present time.

The twenty-two painters registered at better housing headquarters in Fort Collins, Colo., have done 264 jobs since June 1. The value of these jobs is approximately $26,400.

COMPANY UNION SQUELCHED BY MOBILE LONGSHOREMEN

Mobile, Ala.—The longshoremen here knocked the company union maintained by Mobile Steamship association into smithereens when by a vote of 961 to 19 they favored the International Longshoremen's association, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, as their agent to bargain collectively with the steamship operators. The election was supervised by a special federal commission appointed to settle the strike of members of the Longshoremen's association declared on October 31 following refusal of the operators to sign a union agreement covering wages, hours and work conditions.

Confronted with the fact that the dummy company union had received only 19 out of 961 votes, the Steamship association signed an agreement with the Longshoremen's International association.

Wall Streeters Seek to Enlist Patriotic Societies in War on Amendment Barring Child Labor

Washington.—Wall Street interests are roping in patriotic societies in this country to fight the program of the new deal and block the child labor amendment to the U. S. constitution.

The "American Coalition" is a grouping of societies which make it their business to work for what they consider "adequate national defense," and against communists and pacifists. John B. Trevor is the president of this coalition. John B. Trevor is also chairman of the immigration and naturalization committee of the New York Stock Exchange.

Amendment Is Condemned.

At a recent meeting of the coalition in Washington, a resolution was offered, condemning the child labor amendment. Rexford Holmes, secretary of the National Patriotic council and a strong opponent of both communism and pacifisism, ventured to object to this resolution, holding that the child lbor amendment has nothing whatever to do with the things which patriotic societies are organized to fight.

General Amos Alfred Fries rose to support the resolution. He declared that this amendment would give the government complete control of the youth of the nation, up to 18 years, to do with them what it pleased.

The resolution passed, and the only vote against it was the one cast by Holmes.

Holmes Makes Protest.

In a written protest, Holmes declared that the coalition is sending out political propaganda, attacking savagely almost everything which the Roosevelt regime stands for. It recently sent out a broadside, printing in three parallel columns what purports to be the socialist, communist and new deal platforms. It lists as abolition of injunctions in labor disputes, the social security act, the taxation of large incomes as bad, all new deal and all communistic.

"From a coalition of societies pledged to certain definite non-political objects," says Holmes, "it would seem that the coalition has descended from its high original purpose of opposing radicalism and advocating adequate national defense, into some sort of republican club whose main purpose is to discredit the present administration."

Further inquiry brings out the apparent fact that the coalition collects no dues from its member societies; yet is spending something like $11,000 a year on a few salaries, besides the expense of its publication. Remembering that the president of the coalition is also chairman of an important stock exchange committee it is not hard to guess where the money comes from, but definite information on this point is lacking.

Dairy Workers Notes

At the recent election of officers of Dairy Workers' Local Union No. 428, the following members were elected to guide the destiny of the local during the ensuing year:

President—J. E. Gill, of Cream Top Creamery.

Vice-President—T. B. Elliott, of Koons Dairy.

Recording Secretary—W. H. Cox, of Cream Top Creamery.

Corresponding Secretary and Treasurer—B. Z. Cooley, of Koons Dairy.

The retiring officers were honored at an impromptu lunch on Jan. 14, at the labor hall. President Joe Dobbs, the new president of the Chattanooga Central Body, was present at the luncheon and delivered an able address on "Unionism" and also praised the attitude of our members regarding our difficulties in securing the signature of our employers to the new contract. Mr. Dobbs promised the whole-hearted support of the Central Body if it should be needed.

Our retiring president insists that those sandwiches he got at that luncheon are the best he ever ate.

Monopoly Grip on Tobacco Business Depends on Defeat of Fair Tax Bills

No Action Taken on Seven Measures Aiming at Justice Now Before House Ways and Means Committee, Yet Proposals Are of Vital Importance to Both Labor and Agriculture.

By GEORGE L. KNAPP

Seven bills to equalize the taxation of cigarettes are hanging fire in a subcommittee of the ways and means committee of the house. Nothing is being done about any of them. They are not even marked down for hearings.

Yet these bills have a deep and special interest for both labor and agriculture. Very probably, one or more of these bills will determine whether the cigarette business of the United States shall become the monopoly of the Big Four tobacco companies, or whether the independent companies that make 10-cent cigarettes shall have something like an equal chance to maintain and increase their business.

At present, they have nothing approaching an equal chance. The federal tax on cigarettes is 6 cents per package, no matter what the selling price — almost the only tax which does not take some account of prices. The 15-cent cigarette has 9 cents left for the industry after taxes; the 10-cent cigarette has only 4 cents left.

Bills Seek Fair Tax.

The object of most of the tax bills on this subject is to make the tax on cigarettes bear some reasonable relation to the price. For many reasons, it is extremely important to do this. The independent companies making 5-cent cigarettes have contracts with the Tobacco Workers' union and pay the union scale. The Big Four have no such contracts, and are among the worst labor gougers in industry.

The independent companies, according to the United States department of agriculture, have helped materially to raise the farm prices of tobacco till they are more than double those of 1932. But if the 10-cent cigarette can be driven out of business by taxation, the Big Four can be trusted to gouge farm prices for tobacco to the old levels.

What those levels are may be shown by a few illustrations.

Tobacco Farmers Gouged.

"Bright" tobaccos in 1932 brought the farmer around 8 cents a pound—hardly enough to pay his fertilizer bills. The entire tobacco crop of the country brought farmers that year $107,821,000, according to the department of agriculture. But that same year, according to their own reports, printed in Moody's Manual of Industrials, the net profits of the Big Four were $104,573,000.

All the tobacco farmers of the United States receive as gross payment for their crop less than three per cent more than the net profits of four tobacco companies!

Wages Miserably Low.

The wages paid to workers by the Big Four are much like the prices they paid for tobacco when they had their own way.

Only 2 per cent of the receipts of the big tobacco companies went in wages. The women's bureau of the department of labor has found women working in the stemming plants of these companies for as low as 9 cents an hour and $3 a week; and the average wage in those factories is under $6 a week.

Labor believes it is bad statesmanship to levy a crushing burden on a section of the tobacco industry which treats both workers and farmers fairly, to tighten the monopoly of the Big Four, the most ruthless and successful gougers of both farmers and workers.

Troops Rule Two Indiana Counties In Shirt Strike

Guardsmen Aid Bosses by Stopping Picketing in Fight of Jeffersonville and New Albany Workers Against Pay Cut.

Jeffersonville, Ind.—National Guardsmen who removed 130 strike-breakers from a picket-besieged shirt factory enforced military rule in two southern Indiana counties.

With bayonets fixed, the troopers dispersed pickets from plants of M. Fine & Sons, shirt manufacturers here, and at New Albany, six miles away.

Martial law was proclaimed on Jan. 20 in Floyd and Clark counties by Gov. Paul V. McNutt after pickets clashed with strikebreakers at the New Albany plant.

The strike started fourteen weeks ago with union workers protesting wage cuts which they said would total 40 per cent.

Efforts to settle the strike were made at conferences which included Davis Fine, company executive; Frank E. Walsh, organizer for the United Garment Workers of America, and Col. Paul Fetchman, of the national guard.

Walsh said the strikers' demands included return to a 40-hour week, union recognition and jobs for all strikers.

Fine said he would take back the strikers if they accepted the wage cuts.

Two other Indiana counties are under martial law. Sullivan county has been under military rule since October, 1933, as the result of coal mine disturbances.

Vigo county was placed under martial law in July, 1935, during a general strike. Only skeleton troop units remain on duty in these two counties.

DAYTON OWNERS SEEK TO THROW MINERS IN SNOW

Tennessee River Coal Company Mines on Strike Since Nov. 13.

WORKERS FIGHT TO KEEP SHELTER FOR FAMILIES

Eviction Suits Defended by Attorney H. G. B. King—Miners Made $1.00 a Day—Conditions Terrible.

The owners of the Tennessee River Coal company seem to look on the terribly cold weather as a blessing to them because they hope to break the strike of their employes with it. The mine has been closed down since Nov. 13 when the miners struck against intolerable conditions. Taking advantage of the cold weather, the coal barons have started eviction suits to throw the strikers out of their homes, such as they are. The fact that women and children would probably die because of lack of shelter means nothing to the stony-hearted union-haters.

However, Attorney H. G. B. King, labor legal advisor, declares that before these workers are thrown out their cases will be taken up to the supreme court first.

G. W. Nixon, Jr., coal operator, has stated that before he has a union in his mine he will flood the mine and shut it down forever. A graphic picture of the struggle is drawn by an interview with the union committee, composed of S. B. Knight, Bill Hill and Oscar Rodgers:

"The Dayton coal miners are on strike and have been since the 13th

High Wages Urged By Senator Holt

Increased Buying Power or Masses Held Essential for Recovery—Progress of Organized Labor in West Virginia Cited.

A strong condemnation of low wages as a major element in causing business depressions and retarding recovery and an equally strong tribute to the influence of organized labor in bettering the economic conditions of working men and women featured the address delivered by United States Senator Rush D. Holt before the recent annual convention of the American Federation of Labor.

Declaring that the indorsement of his candidacy for the senate by the A. F. of L. was largely responsible for his election, Senator Holt siad:

"I have attended a number of conventions in the last nine months, since going to Washington, but I want to say that I really enjoy being here at this convention more than any other convention that I have attended, because I believe in organized labor.

"All my short life, and it is very short, because most of you know my age is only 30, I have seen many politicians who love organized labor just before they are elected and forget them soon after the election.

Labor Conditions in West Virginia.

"I am proud to say that in the four years I served as a member of the West Virginia legislature I had a 100 per cent labor record. I never missed a roll call nor did I ever vote against union labor. And may I say in anticipation that when I finish my six years in the United States senate you will find that I have a 100 per cent labor record there, too.

"I come from a state where a few years ago it was not very good policy to be connected with the labor movement if you were in politics, because we felt the effect of those who were out to destroy organized labor.

"In the coalfields of West Virginia as well as in the factories and other places where men are employed we could see the people getting the benefit of protection at the hands of those elected, no matter what party it might be, who would beat down organized labor.

"But West Virginia has seen a new light and West Virginia believes in organized labor more today than it has ever believed in it before, and it is going to continue along that pathway.

"Down in the coal fields of southern West Virginia we have seen coal miners forced to work, ten, twelve, fourteen hours a day and receiving

Former German Reichstag Member And Victim of Fascism to Speak Here

Tony Sender, who will speak in Chattanooga on "Fascism, the Black International," was one of the colorful figures in European political life to the German reichstag, a consistent and courageous fighter against fascism, and a prominent newspaper writer. Miss Sender's subject will be "Fascism, the Black International," and she knows fascism intimately from her own experience as a leader of the social democratic party persecuted by the Nazis. The meeting will be held at Chattanooga High at 8 o'clock on Feb. 5, 1936. The speaker will be introduced by L. J. Wilhoite.

Born in Rhineland, Miss Sender was extremely active even during her early youth in the industrial life of both Germany and France. Her strong convictions against the evils of war made her an outstanding participant in the first international anti-war congress held March, 1915, in Bern, Switzerland. Although herself a German, she was one of the most insistent protestors against Germany's invasion of Belgium in 1914.

Miss Sender served as a member of the German reichstag from its foundation by the first German republic—elected first from Frankfort and later from Dresden, capital of highly industrialized Saxony. In 1918 she was a member of the executive body of the Workmen's and Soldiers' council of Frankfort, and in 1920 was named editor-in-chief of the Frankfort daily paper "Volksrecht" (People's Right).

Shortly before the last legal elections to the reichstag on March 5, 1933, the German Nazis began to seek revenge against Miss Sender for her anti-fascist activities through open persecution and threat of murder. Although she was actually re-elected to the reichstag, Hitler and his Brown Shirt followers forced her to leave Germany, and finally revoked her German citizenship. After a thrilling and almost miraculous escape across the German border into Belgium, Miss Sender took up her residence in Antwerp, where she is at present a member of the editorial staff of the newspaper "Volksgazet."

Miss Sender is active on the international alignment against fascism and serves as a member of the important interparliamentary group for the defense of the people and their elected representatives. Leading statesmen associated with Miss Sender on this committee include Senator Costigan, of Colorado; Senator Pope, of Idaho; Congressman Maverick, of Texas; L. Meysmans, vice-president of the Belgium parliament, and Lord Listowel, of the British house of lords.

Miss Sender spoke before forums and colleges throughout the United States during a lecture tour in 1934 and 1935 that took her from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast.

LADIES' GARMENT WORKERS IN NEW YORK AREA PLAN BIG STRIKE FOR FEB. 1

105,000 Will Walk Out to Secure Better Wage and Work Standards—Union Has Million Dollar Strike Fund.

New York.—Final preparations for a strike of around 105,000 dressmakers in New York City and nearby cities were completed here by officials of the Dressmakers' union and the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union scheduled for Feb. 1 unless negotiations for a settlement of the controversy take a favorable turn.

Over 500 union representatives attended the meeting and received final instructions for the walkout. David Dubinsky, president of the I. L. G. W. U., who returned to New York from Miami, Fla., where he attended a meeting of the American Federation of Labor Executive Council, declared that "there was little chance of avoiding the strike in the dress industry." The strike, which union officials say will be the biggest one in the history of the garment industry, will affect around 75,000 workers in New York city and 30,000 in shops in the immediate vicinity and in New Jersey, Connecticut and Pennsylvania.

Lined up in opposition to the unions are three large employer associations. The Affiliated Dress Manufacturers, Inc., represents the so-called "inside manufacturers." The National Dress Manufacturers' association represents the jobbers, and the United Association of Dress Manufacturers represents contractors. The three groups employ about 78,000 of the workers involved.

Higher Labor Standards Sought.

According to union officials, the main issue is the jobbing contracting system. The unions demand that the jobbers shall be responsible for wage and work standards and for limiting the number of contractors the jobbers and inside manufacturers may employ. It is charged that there are six times as many contractors as the jobbers need, the result being overexpansion, overproduction and underselling in the industry. In addition to jobbers responsibility and limitation of contractors, the unions demand the unit price system of settlement, which is designed to establish a uniform method of calculating payment for piece work.

In commenting on the proposed strike, Mr. Dubinsky said it would be waged effectively. He declared the out-of-town concerns are "runaways" who have left New York in an effort to escape union standards. He warned employers that the union was determined to enforce union standards everywhere. He said the union is prepared to spend $1,000,000 to win the strike. He blamed the abolition of the NRA for the present opposition of employers to decent wage standards and for the chaos in their industry.

1,000 TEXTILE WORKERS STRIKE FOR PAY BOOST

Northbridge, Mass.—Persistent in their demand for a 10 per cent wage increase and a union shop contract, about 1,000 employes of the Whitin Manufacturing company here walked out after the management had refused to meet the union terms. The mill produces rayon and cotton cloth, much of which is used for curtain material. The strikers also demanded a reduction in the work load in the spinning department.

PWA PROJECTS CREATE MANY JOBS FOR NASHVILLE LABOR

Nashville, Tenn.—Public works administration projects calling for the expenditure of a number of million dollars during 1936 promise a lot of work for Nashville labor. Heading the list of big PWA projects are the slum clearance program costing $3,200,000, for which demolition and foundation contracts have been let, and the $2,000,000 city-county building, for which bids will be opened on Jan. 21.

The slum clearance program includes a $1,700,000 project for white families and a $1,500,000 project for negroes. The work will last through 1937.

In addition, about three-fourths of Nashville's $2,000,000 PWA school building program is yet to be completed.

Local officials of the federal housing administration predict that at least $1,500,000 will be spent for residential construction here during the year due to the advantages of FHA loans.

FILM PRODUCTION DIVISION SIGNS UP FOR UNION SHOP

Miami, Fla.—A union shop in the production division of the motion picture industry has been agreed to by producers, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, announced at the conclusion of one of the meetings of the A. F. of L. Executive Council which is holding its winter session here.

Inter-union conferences, he added, had adjusted all but one of the jurisdictional disputes. The agreement was made by officials of the unions representing the carpenters, stage hands, motion picture operators, electricians and teamsters.

The unsettled dispute is the one between the electricians and stage hands relative to jurisdiction over sound-recording equipment in the motion picture studios. Each of the two unions claiming this class of work will name one man for an adjustment committee. An impartial chairman will be added. It is believed this committee will be able to adjust the matter satisfactorily to both groups.

Murfreesboro Mill Case Set for Monday Under Wagner Bill Violations

H. G. B. King, labor attorney, will represent the union next Monday in Murfreesboro when charges before the labor board will be aired, in which the sock mill will be charged with discharging employes for joining a union.

Mr. King says that many of the witnesses have been threatened with reprisals by the company if they dared to testify in their own behalf, but that the hearing will go on just the same.

ATTENTION, MEMBERS MEAT CUTTERS' LOCAL No. 600

There will be a special meeting at the lodge hall Tuesday night, Feb. 4, at which all members are urged to be present.

A message by Attorney Herbert G. B. King will be delivered at this meeting which is of vital importance to each member.

In next week's edition will appear the names of those who have not yet signed up the 1936 contract. We are hoping, however, these few will have signed before that time and we can announce them as being 100 per cent for the union.

Union Machinist Named Marshal of Canal Zone

Washington.—The senate on Jan. 22 confirmed the nomination of John E. (Red) Hushing as United States marshal of the Panama canal zone. The nomination was made by President Roosevelt on Jan. 16.

Mr. Hushing has been employed as a toolmaker in the government shops of the Panama canal at Balboa, Canal Zone, for the past fifteen years. He has been a member of the International Machinists' union in continuous good standing for thirty years.

Prior to his canal service Hushing worked at his trade in Canada, Mexico and in every state in the Union. For several years he was the representative of the employes on the hospital board of the Missouri Pacific railway and also general shop chairman for the Federated Shop Crafts in the large shops of the Missouri Pacific railway at Sedalia, Mo.

He is a brother of W. C. Hushing, national legislative representative and general organizer of the American Federation of Labor.

Miss Perkins Urges Labor Department in Every State

Columbia, S. C.—Secretary of Labor Perkins told South Carolina lawmakers every state should have a labor department empowered to enforce labor laws, conduct investigations and to require employers to keep adequate records.

She interrupted the Regional Labor conference, a meeting called to discuss state labor and social security legislation, to make a direct appeal to legislators.

"The time has come for every state to have a basic department headed by an officer whose duty is to investigate problems of working people and enforce the safeguards which have been provided by the legislature," she said.

Bosses to Eke Out Living On Mere $39,000 Per Year Is Report.

The "company union" in the Signa Knitting mills last Friday won a glorious victory. They kept "peace and harmony" with the company by voting to accept a 6 per cent cut for one year, employes have reported to The Labor World.

Reasons for the cut was given as a necessity in order to give employes "more work." Employes were allowed to vote on the proposition by written ballot, each BALLOT TO BE SIGNED by the employe. The ballot read as follows:

"Are you willing to have a 6 per cent reduction in rates made, starting Feb. 3, and thereby get a better chance for regular work? This reduction to be reinstated as soon as conditions authorize it?"

A place was printed to mark "yes" or "no" and a space left for the employes to sign their names.

Seventy-two had the nerve to vote against it, but 189 voted to accept. It is said that many refused to vote at all.

Shortly after a local union of Textile Workers of America was formed two years ago, an "inside union" was hatched up by the Signal "bosses." Immediately superintendents got busy, and such drastic threats and intimidations were practiced that federal authorities stepped in and for a while the strong-arm methods were toned down. Not for long, however. Members of the real union found that the sledding was very rough. Many were "laid off" and many of the most active leaders of the real union were offered promotion, better machines and jobs, etc., if they would "behave themselves." Some did "behave themselves" and others who did not were eliminated in various ways. The result was many were

Stuck by His Word

(By T. R. Cuthbert)

One cannot refrain from giving President Roosevelt a salute in admiration of his splendid courage in vetoing the soldier bonus bill. Although the powerful influence of the American Legion had succeeded in finally jamming the bill through both houses of congress with an overwhelming majority, our president took no cognizance of the political penalty he might have to pay in the impending elections if he carried out his opposition to the bonus by vetoing the bill.

Even the president's most ardent democratic senators and congressmen who have been upholding him in his attempts to pull this country out of the depression had not the courage to face the soldiers' outthrust jaws and grim determination to secure the bonus. They folded up and deserted Roosevelt. Roosevelt believed he was right and stayed by his guns.

That's courage. Al Smith would have changed his mind with the senators and congressmen after a summary of soldier votes was scanned, but not Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

The Lost Leader

"Just for a handful of silver he left us," so Browning mourned the defection of Wordsworth to the tories, and so may we mourn the base betrayal of the democratic party by Alfred E. Smith. It is hard for one to believe that the man whom he trusted, believed in, and loved could turn out to be a turncoat, a traitor who has gone over to the camp of the enemy. In 1928 Al Smith was regarded as a sort of modern St. George fighting the dragon of greed and special privilege, and his strange behavior in 1932 was excused on the grounds of disappointed ambition—but who can explain his behavior in 1936?

The Liberty league dinner may be regarded as a sort of last supper before the death of confidence in one whom the people had come to regard as their leader and spokesman. The fourteen du Ponts of war profit fame were there with their blood-stained hands; John J. Raskob, of the Wall Street sheep-shearers, who not only took the wool but the hide as well; John Davis, and the rest of the reactionaries and traitors who have sabotaged all efforts of our leader to help the masses of the people and to keep starvation from the twelve million unemployed resulting from the Coolidge-Hoover-Mellon "prosperity" era.

The best advice that could be offered our modern Judas is to follow the example of his prototype. What can he hope for? Has there ever been a case of a traitor being given any better treatment by those to whom he has sold his friends than he himself has afforded those whom he has betrayed? Consider Benedict Arnold—at his deathbed he put on his old uniform and said, "Would to God I had never worn another."

Mr. Smith refers to taking a walk at Philadelphia, but he failed to announce his destination. Since he voiced his objections in his speech to Moscow, as a point of arrival, we must assume from his attitude and action that he is on his way to Tarrytown. Let us hope that he is as fortunate as that other character of American history whom he is seeking to emulate.

No, Al, the best thing to do is to put away the top hat, white tie and tails, put on the old derby and baggy pants, and crawl away to some place of solitude and pray that you may be forgiven. You can never be forgiven.

"Blot out his Name, then, record one lost soul more,
One task more declined, one more footpath untrod,
One more devil's triumph and sorrow for angels;
One wrong more to man, one more insult to God!
Life's night begins: let him never come back to us!
There would be doubt, hesitation and pain,
Forced praise on our part—the glimmer of twilight,
Never glad confident morning again!"

"The Lost Leader.)

TEACHER TALK
LOCAL 246, A. F. of T.

BOARD MEETING MONDAY

There will be a meeting of the board of directors next Monday, Feb. 3, at the Y. M. C. A. Directors are urged to make reports on delinquents whom they have interviewed and turn them in at the federation office Saturday, Feb. 1.

GENERAL MEETING FEB. 15

A meeting of the membership of Local 246 will be held on Saturday, at the university. Salary matters and the permanent labor conference for political action will be discussed.

AL SMITH, "MAN OF THE PEOPLE"

Al Smith, the boy up from the "Sidewalks of New York," talked loudly about being of, by, and for the common peepul last Saturday night. But who is the "man of the people" today, and to whom was he talking? Al is president of the $55,000,000 Empire State Building corporation; trustee of Postal Telegraph company and director of a half dozen other corporations. Anyway, the patriotic Liberty leaguers who cheered him on at the Saturday night dinner were John J. Raskob, of General Motors; E. T. Weir, anti-labor steel magnate; a row of twelve du Ponts of the armament business; Winthrop Aldrich, president of the Rockefeller-Morgan controlled Chase National bank, nad Robert V. Fleming, president of the American Bankers' association.

Wasn't it a great night for the common people?

LABOR PLAY

Several teachers have discussed the desirability of organizing a workers' theater here. But Local 1785, Textile Workers, have beaten the teachers to the starting line. They are presenting a play, "Moving On," at East Side Junior High, Saturday, Feb. 8, at 8 p.m. "Moving On" is a play of, by, and for labor. The presentation of it is a move in the right direction, and it should be supported by teachers and all other loyal trades-unionists.

BELIEVE IT OR NOT

"We received from the state last year $26,000 more than we anticipated for education." These words were spoken in Atlanta some two weeks ago in the teachers' meeting by the county superintendent of schools. To a Chattanooga-Hamilton teacher these words had the effect of a bomb. Before the teachers fully recovered the superintendent continued, saying that he saw no reason why teachers should not be given the money as a bonus check. "Of course," he continued, "it would amount to only about five days' salary," nor was he sure the board would sanction the expenditure in this fashion, but they could rest assured he would do all in his power to see that they received it.

One might conjecture with the effect such an announcement might produce in our teachers' meetings. What kind of atmosphere would prevail where the teachers knew those in authority were interested in treating them fairly? What might happen if, for once, we knew "the bosses" were trying to obtain all the benefits possible for us?

WHERE ARE WE?

The people around Mauna Loa have nothing on the Hamilton county school teacher. Neither one knows what the next day will bring forth. We read:

Sept.—Eight Months' School Term for County Schools.

Nov.—P. T. A. Assured of Nine Months' School Term for County.

Jan.—Bank Refuses to Lend Money—Eight Months' Term Probable.

WHY?

1. Teachers are, in most instances, leaders in our communities,—

YET

Teachers are forced to live on less than any other professional workers.

2. Teachers spend more money on professional magazines and more years in educational preparation than any office worker—

YET

Teachers receive less than office girls, firemen and policemen.

3. Business Prospects Bright for 1936—

YET

Teachers' salary schedule ignored.

4. Teachers during the worst of the depression gave two weeks' service for three years—times are better now—

YET

County teachers are faced with an eight months' term or prospects of donating a month!

5. Minimum salaries have been fixed by legislature and in our city people are receiving that salary—

YET

The county court and city commission are trying to prove this law unconstitutional.

Yea, verily, justice is blind!

Harper—Do you see that man through the window? He hasn't moved for twenty-four hours. He can't be asleep; he must be dead. I am going to call the police.

Kenneth—Oh, it's all right. There's a chess tournament going on in there.

U. S. COURT UPHOLDS LABOR RELATIONS ACT

Federal Judge Martin Rules Wagner-Connery Law "Is Consistent With the Declared Policy of Congress"—Refuses Stay Asked by Bag Company.

Memphis, Tenn.—Judge John D. Martin, of the federal district court here, gave a written opinion upholding the constitutionality of the Wagner-Connery labor relations act passed by the 1935 session of congress. He declared that every provision of the act "is consistent with the declared policy of congress," adding:

"With the policy of the acts of congress the courts have no concern."

The labor relations act prohibits employers from interfering with, restraining or coercing employes in the exercise of the rights of self-organization and collective bargaining, from promoting or supporting financially any labor organization, from discriminating against trade union members in hire or tenure of employment, and from refusing to bargain collectively with the representatives of their employes. These anti-labor schemes are banned as "unfair labor practices."

The labor act, came before Judge Martin in the case of the Bemis Brothers Bag company, of Bemis, Tenn. The firm asked for a stay order to prevent the national labor relations board from holding an inquiry at Jackson, Tenn., on a complaint filed by the Bemis local of the United Textile Workers of America charging the company with interfering with the rights of its employes to bargain collectively as set forth in the labor act. Judge Martin refused to grant the stay order.

"It would be utterly inconsistent," he said, "with the firm principle held by this court to invade the powers of the legislative and executive departments of the national government by staying the proceedings of an important executive board established by act of congress except upon a conclusion reached by the court that such act is unconstitutional beyond the shadow of doubt."

Federal Judge Otis, of Kansas C... recently held the labor act unconsti... tional, claiming that it dealt with ... individual employe as "an incom... tent." Judge Martin disagreed w... this conception of the act, which ... essence declares the workers have ... legal right to organize in bona ... trade unions and carry on ordin... trade union activities and makes it ... legal for employers to prevent or ... tempt to prevent workers from en... ing these rights freely and fully.

"This court," he said, "prefers ... concede the clear right of the congr... of the United States, within its ... stitutional authority, to declare ... legislative policy in its own words."

MORE ABOUT DAYTON MINES

...of November, 1935, and will continue to strike until such a time that the Tennessee River Coal company or some other company sees fit to give the men a decent living wage and be treated like men and not like slaves.

"The company men's wages run from $0.75 to $2.00 per day, working from eight to twelve hours. The miners were paid 40 cents a car or $1.60 a ton for digging coal and it was not weighed. The cars held from 1,800 to 2,000 pounds and they got 40 cents flat a car for them, then the men were required to go to the woods and cut their timber and ties, also go to an old mine about three miles distant and get their rails and pull all cars to use and got no pay for such work.

"One section of the mines the coal diggers had to ride their own rope and lug the coal themselves while in the other section they had to gather the coal and make up the trips for the rope rider. The company did not have a company mule or a company man working inside, except one rope rider, and the coal diggers took the place of mules. His time was taken up loading coal and pushing the cars around that most of the men were forced to go back at night and shoot coal for the next day and move rock for nothing.

"G. W. Nixon, Jr., signed the operators' agreement, or the Guffey coal agreement, and told that he was willing for his men to join the union or that he would do anything he could to help his men. The day we joined, he told us he would let the water run out the mouth of the mines before he would sign a union contract. In a letter to the union board he stated that he was forced to shut the mines down on account of a break in the mountain that filled the mines with water, which was untrue. The break was caused from some robbing work done in one section of the mines, and the water could have been controlled.

"When the strike was called, or within a few days afterwards, they pulled their pumps out and said they would let them fill up with water before they would sign a contract with the union, but the truth is that they would have been running today if the men had not joined the union and would have worked for nothing.

"The union board wrote Mr. Nixon a letter and told him they would furnish the men and material to fix the break in the mountain, if they would sign a contract with the men, but up to date they have not answered the letter. They have never offered to meet our committee to see if they could come to a settlement of any kind.

"Their latest move was to throw the families out of their houses. They did not charge much house rent, just $2.00 per month, but they refused to keep the houses up and if the roof fell off the men had to put it on out of their own pockets. They would not let you fix up your house for the rent, if you spent anything on your house, that was your hard luck—you paid the $2.00 just the same.

"It has often been expressed by our mine foreman that if you can keep a man hungry you can make him work, but let him get a dollar ahead and he gets out of control. Here is a bunch of men that is hungry and have never got a dollar ahead, but are out of the Tennessee River Coal company control for once."

Hattie, the colored maid, was deeply interested in the efforts of one of the neighbors to prepare a pedigreed dog for the dog show. After much combing, brushing and other careful grooming, the dog was duly entered in the canine show, and received the first award in his class at the show. Naturally, Hattie was told immediately.

MORE ABOUT RUSH HOLT

$1.50 and $2 a day for doing it. Today those same men are working seven hours a day and receiving $5.10.

"That has not hurt the coal operators because the coal operators of southern West Virginia are better off today than they have ever been at any time in their history, outside of the World war.

"In other words, when you give the benefit to organized labor, everyone reaps that benefit.

Larger Mass Purchasing Power.

"You must restore the purchasing power to the laboring man if you want to restore prosperity to this country.

"Prosperity comes when labor is employed, whether it be in the mill, mine, or factory, or on the farm.

"It is the American farmer and the American laboring man who spends the money; it is not these coupon clippers who spend the money and bring prosperity. It is the people who spend, and the American working man must spend, because he must live.

"As I have said in other speeches, and I want to repeat it here, the American working man will buy more meat in a day than these coupon clippers will buy in a week, and the American working man will wear out more clothes, except the seat of his pants, in a day than they will in a month.

Jobs for All Jobless.

"If you want the mills to sell the products of industry, put the American laboring men to work and they will sell those products.

"These false profiteers and short-sighted industrialists do not realize that you cannot have dividends if the American people cannot buy their products, and when ten or fifteen million American working men are walking the streets, begging for employment, how can you expect to have prosperity? We must put them to work at a wage on which they can live.

"This idea of starvation wages is a relic of the dark ages and must go in this country. We must give people a living wage, not a wage of $50 and $60 a month, but a wage that they can spend in order to continue to live in this country.

Defies Coal Barons.

"It has been said that I was elected by the labor movement. I say that, too, and I am proud of it. There is no industrial boss, there is no yellow dog coal operator in West Virginia who can tell me what to do when I vote there.

"Those men have issued yellog dog injunctions against the poor miners of our state for years and years. They have issued the same kind of yellow dog injunctions to those that they send to congress and to the legislature, but the day of the yellow dog injunction on miners and politicians is past.

"We are on the road to a brighter day, for a brighter new deal for those who labor in our state.

"Not only that, but those people have fought and fought bitterly against so-called labor running our country. We have tried these 'old dealers' and we have seen the effect. We have seen fifteen million people walking the streets, we have seen the banks close, we have seen the constable tacking notices on the doors of the merchants back in the good old days of the old deal.

"I have listened to these industrialists talk about the danger of labor controlling the government. If one must choose between the industrialists controlling the government and labor controlling the government, I will take my side with labor."

What Next!

Arc-welding is playing an increasing part in steel construction. The electric arc was used largely in the putting up of the framework of a palatial Georgian-style house recently at Ottawa Hills, O. Both shop and field welding were used, a portable welding generator driven by a gas engine being used in the field. The largest wall panels weighed 500 pounds and four workmen handled the job of erection. The three floors of steel frame were put up in ten days, Business Week reports.

Union label buying is a capital investment which pays its dividends in higher wages.

either starved or frightened out of the union, and in many instances were forced to turn in their union books to the bosses personally. And now the union is in a great minority.

Of course the company union made great promises. They did not need "outsiders" to come into the plant. They were sure that the boss knew what was best for them and would do the right thing.

It is said that now many of the formerly staunch company union advocates are getting sick of the "protection" they get. Having no way to turn now, because they have seriously crippled the real union, they take the cut and "like it."

The cut also provides for longer hours, which offers a strange contradiction. The management is said to have told the employes that they did not have enough orders to work full time, but it immediately suggests and puts into operation a longer work week.

Employes in the Signal Knitting mill work on a piece basis. It is reported that a majority are able to earn as high as seven and eight dollars a week, but many others receive two or three dollars weekly. Some few make more, but it is believed that the highest paid worker in the plant receives $16.00. Estimates show that the probable median of wage earnings for the entire plant will run around $6.00.

Out of these princely wages, entire families must be fed and clothed. Off of this miserable pay, of course, the stockholders and officials collect their reward.

In his talk to the employes Friday, as reported, General Manager William Murphy told his "sheeps" that those making too much would have to be cut so the lower paid people could make more. Mr. Murphy did not state if the vice-president of the company, said to have turned in an income report of $39,000 last year, would take a cut on his earnings also. Neither did he say whether his own personal reputed $18,000 earnings last year would be reduced.

Yes, all is well in the Signal Knitting Mill company union plant. Yes, like hell it is.

Lady's Painful Trouble Helped By Cardui

Why do so many women take Cardui for the relief of functional pains at monthly times? The answer is that they want results such as Mrs. Herbert W. Hunt, of Hallsville, Texas, describes. She writes: "My health wasn't good. I suffered from cramping. My pain would be so intense it would nauseate me. I would just drag around, so sluggish and 'doless.' My mother decided to give me Cardui. I began to mend. That tired, sluggish feeling was gone and the pains disappeared. I can't praise Cardui too highly because I know it helped me." . . . If Cardui does not help YOU, consult a physician.

Better Housing Day Should Spur Greater Interest in the FHA Plan

With "Better Housing day" to be observed in Chattanooga, interest continues to grow in the FHA program and applications for loans at the local offices of the federal housing administration.

The new requirements, just announced, provide that the borrower own or have other legal interest in the property be eliminated, and any specific requirement as to the income of the borrower has been eliminated. In other words, he is no longer required that his gross income be five times the annual payment.

Under the plan of the FHA new home construction and repairs to old homes is being pushed to give employment to people connected with the building trades and to stimulate business in general. It is pointed out that with a few hundred new homes under construction business in all lines will show a decided improvement, and many men who have been without work will be given an opportunity to earn a living.

A survey shows that many families have doubled up during the depression, and since a great many people have gone back too work they desire to get out of cramped quarters, and to own their homes. This plan of the new deal is giving them the opportunity.

Attention is again called to the fact that the FHA has no money to loan. It merely passes on applications and lending agencies furnish the money. Repayment is guaranteed by the FHA.

The coming of "Better Housing day" should give further impetus to the FHA program here. The plan should encourage much new building and remodeling and repairs in this locality, which, besides furnishing these improvements, will mean a distinct benefit to the dealers and workers of Chattanooga.

Pace, of the state highway patrol of this district sent this week, the Johnson City Central Labor union has offered its services and the services of its affiliated crafts in the safety campaign that will get under way shortly in East Tennessee to eliminate automobile accidents and deaths in this section of the state.

Southern Educator and Christian Leader Is to Speak Here

Mr. Claud Nelson, southern secretary of the Fellowship of Reconciliation and former Rhodes scholar, will speak here on "Education in a Changing Social Order" as one of the speakers in the League for Industrial Democracy discussion lecture series. Mr. Nelson will speak on "Education in a Changing Social Order" at the Chattanooga High school at 8 o'clock.

Mr. Nelson as a teacher, as a Y. M. C. A. worker and more recently as a leader in social movements, has been engaged in vital educational work. His has been the job of making students and others aware of their responsibility to their social environment, and emphasizing the need of being guided by a philosophy of social justice and social progress.

In 1910 Mr. Nelson, then a student at Hendrix college in Arkansas, was chosen as one of the group of American Rhodes scholars to study at Oxford university. After completing his work at Oxford he returned to teach for four years in southern schools and colleges. Following the war, Mr. Nelson was sent to Europe, and for six years carried on the work of the International Y. M. C. A. in universities in Italy and Switzerland. On his return to this country he worked with the Y. M. C. A. in southern colleges and universities, and for several years has been southern secretary for the Fellowship of Reconciliation.

Mr. Nelson's philosophy of social justice and his knowledge of foreign countries has led him to be an internationalist and a pacifist. In his work in the south Mr. Nelson has seen that one of the greatest contradictions to Christian education lies in the existence of blind and unreasonable race prejudice and the consequent economic oppression of the negro people. He has taken the leadership in promoting understanding between the negro and white races in the south.

Meatcutters' Local Honored by Visitor From the International

MR. WOLFINGTON SPEAKS

Mr. Wolfington, a member of the International Trades and Labor Council, delivered a very inspirational address on "The Good and Welfare of Our Local" at the February 4th meeting. He especially stressed the importance of each member attending the meetings of the local regularly.

In conjunction with these suggestions, our business agent, Mr. Mack Ball, suggested a drive for new members, the drive to start February 5th and continue through March 3rd. During this month the initiation fee will be reduced to $10. This should be a great inducement, as the regular fee is $25. On February 18th and March 3rd there will be mass meetings, to which all members and prospective members are invited. We want to have the largest membership and attendance this year the union has ever had. This means that each member will have to do his part to put this over in a big way.

We are pleased to announce three additional signers of the 1936 contract. They are: M. A. Turner, 525 Market street; Cline's Market, Market House, and Chattanooga Cash Market, 505 Market street.

Every time you buy non-union products you help the chiselers to "gang up" on you.

POLITICAL MEET CALLED SUNDAY TO ORGANIZE

Majority of Local Unions Have Ratified Temporary Set-Up.

ONLY TWO LOCALS TURN THUMBS DOWN

Several Unions Have Not Yet Considered Adoption—Non-Partisan Labor Bloc to Be Goal at Election Time.

According to instructions received from the two conferences several months ago, in which thirty-nine Hamilton county organizations were represented, and which drew up constitution and by-laws, ways and means and platform to be submitted for ratification, the temporary secretary, T. R. Cuthbert, announced Thursday that over a majority of local unions have formally indorsed the project and a meeting has been set for Sunday, Feb. 10, for the purpose of electing officers and formulating a permanent organization.

As provided in the constitution, the name of the new group will be known as "The Permanent Labor Conference for Political Action." It is not the purpose of the sponsors of the new political bloc to form a labor party, but rather a non-partisan machine for labor in order to enable labor to select from a field of candidates a slate of officeseekers that will be for the best interests of the city and county. It is believed by many unionists that in this manner the labor organizations will be able, after careful thought and study, to place a bloc of thousands of labor votes for the candidates which they may indorse.

While return of ratifications from the local unions has been necessarily slow, due to desire to give careful thought to the question, in only two instances has the set-up been rejected, and one of the unfavorable actions was temporary at least.

On the other hand, enthusiasm for a united labor action at the polls was evident in every meeting. If the machinery is successfully inaugurated, it is the intention, as expressed by those actively interested, to perfect a powerful ward and precinct group of workers to get all the workers registered and see that they go to the polls to vote for the ticket selected.

It is the plan that such a ticket will be composed of candidates regardless of republican or democratic politics, but with the sole thought in mind to support principles rather than parties.

CITY EMPLOYES OF NEWARK WIN PAY-CUT RESTORATION

Newark, N. Y.—Eight thousand city employes of Newark won their long fight for justice in the decision of the city commission at its first budget conference that salary reductions would be restored July 1.

The pay slashes were imposed three years ago in response to economy demands made by bankers who insisted that the city government should operate on a pay-as-you-go basis, without borrowing for current expenses. The reductions made to fit this economy program ranged from 1 to 25 per cent according to salaries.

AFL COUNCIL ASKS SENATOR NORRIS TO STAY IN SENATE

The Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor at its winter meeting held in Miami, Fla., adopted a resolution urgently requesting Senator George W. Norris, of Nebraska, not to retire from the United States senate at the expiration of his present term.

The resolution expressed the hope that he would "indicate his willingness to continue his career as senator from Nebraska so that the masses of the people of this country wil be the continuing beneficiaries of his broad and sympathetic statesmanship."

Union Butchers Press Fight On Unfair Packer

Executive Board Maps Program in Campaign Against Morrell Firm, Whose War on Labor Cuts Heavily Into Profits.

Chicago.—The executive board of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of North America, meeting here, mapped out an extensive program in its eleven months' old battle with John Morrell & Company, packers, of Sioux Falls, S. D.

Represented on the executive board are the various international vice-presidents of the Amalgamated. General organizers of the union were also present. Each of these representatives pledged themselves to take the "Message to Garcia," as it were, about the importance of keeping up a solidified front in the Morrell fight.

Morrell has three plants—the one at which the strike of butcher workmen is in progress, Sioux Falls, S. D.; one at Ottumwa, Iowa, and the third at Topeka, Kan. Morrell is the packer-manufacturer of Morrell's Pride products.

Bitter War on Union

Since the strike began in March, 1935, several outstanding events have marked its progress. Strikers by the score have lost their homes. Food kitchens were established so the strikers and their families would not go hungry, and, added to their burden, many of the strikers were brutally slugged and beaten. The South Dakota state militia was ordered out by Gov. Tom Berry. International Vice-President Joseph McCoy, who was in charge of the strike, was waylaid and slugged. For a time his injury indicated it would prove fatal, but McCoy recovered and is back on his feet.

Through the intercession of International Secretary-Treasurer Dennis Lane, who was one of the American fraternal delegates to the 1935 British Trades Union Congress, the aid and support of the several millions of British trade unionists has been enlisted in behalf of the Morrell strikers.

Company Profits Cut

The American Federation of Labor, at its Atlantic City convention last year, went on record in support of the Amalgamated. The fight today is just as intense as the day it was called by the Sioux Falls local of Butcher Workmen against discrimination by Morrell toward union executives.

A peek behind the scenes reveals the fact that the strike is costing the Morrell company money aplenty. It would appear the American Institute of Meat Packers is in the fight and in an off-stage manner helping to direct the Morrell battle.

Here is the monetary reaction to Morrell: The unfairness of the company towafd organized labor caused its profits to drop from $2,091,002 in 1934 to $338,595.38 in 1935.

Stock Earnings Drop

Common stock in 1934 drew $5.42 per share, compared to 88 cents in 1935. Mr. T. Henry Foster, president of the packing company, stated in his annual report to stockholders that the firm earned less than one-half of 1 per cent on total sales.

Mr. Foster, in trying to placate his stockholders, blames the huge drop in profits to the shortage of live stock and consumer resistance which developed with higher meat prices. He failed to mention to the stockholders the real reason of the company's failure to produce the high profits of the past.

"We intend to carry on until some adjustment is made," said Secretary Lane, a veteran of packing house strikes.

ELECTRICAL UNION GIVEN RADIO LABOR JURISDICTION

The International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers was granted jurisdiction over radio workers by the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor at its recent meeting in Miami, Fla.

It was reported that the Brotherhood had amended its charter so as to receive the radio workers as a separate division under a newly formed membership class, with dues and benefits varying from those of journeymen electricians.

CHATTANOOGA LABEL LEAGUE

The Chattanooga Label league held its regular bi-monthly meeting in Roosevelt hall Friday, Jan. 25. The regular order of business was followed and the newly-elected officers filled their respective offices kith Miss Ina Green, president; W. R. Hipp, vice-president; Miss Virginia Munsey, recording secretary; Mrs. C. T. Smith, financial secretary-treasurer, and M. M. Beavers, E. E. Crosby, Mrs. Milton McCafferty, trustees.

The following committees and members were named by the president, Miss Ina Green:

Program committee, Mrs. M. M. Beavers, Misses Louise Marcrum and Edna Brown.

Credentials committee, Miss Virginia Munsey, Mrs. C. T. Smith and Vernon Whatley.

Publicity, Mrs. Milton McCafferty.

During the course of the meeting it was noted that interest in the purpose and effectiveness of this league was growing. Delegate members have been active in convincing their respective organizations that results can be had in obtaining union labeled goods for union people if persistent requests are made for them.

Chattanooga merchants can't afford to ignore these constant demands. They are at last becoming aware that a large per cent of their buying public is union members and will patronize the merchant handling union-made and union-labeled goods. No worthy member of a union can fail in his duty to demand union-made goods, and still be loyal to his obligation pledge.

The sentiment of the delegates and visitors present at this meeting were enthusiastic. It is encouraging to know that a label league is now established in Chattanooga, and that it represents a progressive, wideawake group of citizens interested in the welfare of all unions.

The Label league voted to take an active part in the entertainment of the ladies attending the state convention of labor to be held in Chattanooga May 14, 15 and 16. Tentative plans for a sightseeing trip and a luncheon were made by the specially appointed convention committee.

In order to meet the financial end of this obligation, arrangements are under way to sponsor a dance and entertainment. Watch the Label league news in The Labor World for definite date and details.

Support a league that is working for your interests. All union members are urged to attend the next meeting of the Chattanooga Label league Friday evening, Feb. 14, at 7:30 o'clock.

In union there is strength! In strength there is pride. We are proud of the strength of the Chattanooga Label league!

All local unions affiliated with the Label league are requested to send the name and address of their delegates to Miss Virginia Munsey, 35 Hogshead apartments, before the next meeting of the league.

* * *

All delegates, trades unionists and their families are invited to attend the next meeting of the league, which will be held Friday, Februnry 14th. After the business meeting a musical program and party will be given. Six pairs of union-labeled sox will be given away.

Newspaper Guild Making Progress In Middle West

Aggressive Organization Campaign Getting Results in Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Other Cities.

By JOSEPH A. WISE.

Chicago.—Bill Davy, national organizer of the American Newspaper Guild, who opened an office in Chicago when he took charge of organizing work in the middle western territory last August, reports definite results despite many obstacles.

In some cities, notably at Milwaukee, St. Paul and Minneapolis, the editorial and reportorial workers gave almost immediate response, with the result that thriving local guilds have been organized in those cities and are functioning.

Representatives from Rockford, Ill., Indianapolis, Chicago, the Twin Cities and Milwaukee attended a midwestern conference held in Chicago recently and set up a council to embrace this territory.

Chicago Writers Organize.

A provisional local guild has been set up in Chicago and the following temporary officers elected: Martin Kane, United Press, president; J. Roy Hunt, Daily Times, vice-president; Albert Haut, World Wide Press, secretary, and Paul Pueschel, Abend Post, treasurer.

"We are pleased with the support we are receiving from labor press staff men," said Organizer Davy. "From what I have been able to ascertain thus far, it semes to me that many of these men would derive great benefit from an effective organization. One of the first to become a member of the Chicago Guild is E. A. H. Stevenson, editor of the Train Dispatcher. He has been very helpful."

Commenting on plans for the future, Mr. Davy said:

"We have appointed an organizing committee and a publications committee for Chicago. We intend to contact every editorial and reportorial worker through the medium of a questionnaire and obtain a definite yes or no answer.

To Seek Union Men's Aid.

"We also intend to make contact with all chapel chairmen in the unionized mechanical departments of the daily newspapers," Mr. Davy said. "The union printers, pressmen, stereotypers, mailers and photo-engravers, I am sure, will show a sympathetic interest in our endeavors and assist in carrying on the necessary educational work.

"Please convey my fraternal greetings to the labor editors of America and to the labor movement in general," Mr. Davy concluded.

Headquarters for the middle western territory are at 155 North Clark street, Chicago, with Bill Davy in charge.

MACHINISTS' LOCALS INSTALL JOINTLY

Machinists Locals 56 and 1450, on January 23, held joint installation of officers at the labor hall. At the same time the annual custom of awarding service pins saw six machinists receive gold buttons representing 35 years' membership, one silver button for 25 years, and eight bronze buttons for 15 years.

Commissioner R. M. Cooke and Assistant Postmaster George Forbes, honorary members of the Machinists, addressed the nut splitters.

Matt Robinson, member of Lodge 1459, delivered an address.

E. W. Beddow, president of Lodge 56, acted as chairman for both lodges.

Refreshments were served after the speeches.

Unionization of Steel Workers to Launch Campaign.

Executive Council to Direct Drive in Other Big Mass Production Industries.

RECORD CONCLAVE ENDS

Tribute Paid to Norris; Lewis Movement Scored; Constitutional Issue Deferred.

Miami, Fla., Jan. 30.—On the basis of the number and importance of the problems dealt with, the A. F. of L. Executive council probably broke all records at its mid-winter meeting, which closed here yesterday after a two-week session.

Momentous national issues, perplexing administrative matters and volatile internal questions, in addition to a large volume of routine business, were handled during the fourteen days. Each question was thoroughly discussed, carefully studied and then disposed of in a manner which the council decided was best suited to advance the interests of America's wage earners.

Shortly before adjournment it was announced that the council had mapped a plan for a determined campaign to unionize several of the large and traditionally anti-union industries.

Drive on Steel Mills

The steel mills, employing about 300,000 workers, are at the top of the Federation's list of industries where the drive will be made.

Other industries where the campaign will be vigorously pressed are cement, aluminum, gas, coke and by-products and gasoline filling stations.

In addition, the council agreed to give all possible support and co-operation to the new International Union of Automobile Workers in any organization effort it launches.

The council paid an impressive tribute to Senator George W. Norris when it drafted a formal request for him not to carry out his "distressing and disconcerting" intention to retire from Congress.

Memphis Labor Pays

Memphis labor is paying the penalty of allowing itself to become a puppet for political bosses rather than confining its operations to trades-union activities. For the past twenty years it has been a well established fact that labor and Boss Crump in Shelby county "co-operated" with each other. That is to say, labor practically en mass would go to the polls and vote for Boss Crump, in return for which the amiable boss handed out some dozen or more lucrative jobs to certain labor leaders—of the machine's choosing, of course.

This arrangement has been clicking for many years. Powers that be in Memphis were all for labor as long as they did not get out of line. They did not mind having good union organizations in the old-line trade union crafts, such as carpenters, printers, plumbers, etc. No attention has been paid to the mass production workers, however. As long as the labor leaders stuck to their old-time knitting and voted right, all was well in Memphis, and Crump's favorites were very fortunate indeed.

This situation has for years been noted with apprehension by many unionists in the state federation of labor. On numerous instances it has been felt that Boss Crump was attempting to install his rule in the state federation, thus enlarging his labor control from Shelby county to the entire state.

Every time the rest of the labor movement in Tennessee has succeeded in keeping such influence out of our federation. However, last May, when R. S. McCann, from Memphis, was nominated for president of the state federation, those who knew him were convinced that he believed in practicing trades unionism and not political boss rule in labor organizations, and he was elected.

Mr. McCann, it has been said, was immediately given certain orders on his return to Memphis. He disobeyed them. Boss Crump threw him out and had McCann beaten up, Memphis labor men say.

To make matters worse, McCann had the "peculiar" idea that to organize the unorganized was the duty of a federation official. He organized several hundred employes in the Plough company. They won the strike that was necessary and got better conditions. He is organizing the thousands of grocery clerks there and is meeting with success. The most heinous crime of all, however, is the fact that he was helping firefighters secure an organization which might better themselves and remove from them the thumb of political bosses. Some fifteen have been "discovered" and fired, and the hunt goes on for the rest. The kid Commissioner of Police Davis, just 35 years of age, a Crump child, is said to be after the "agitator" McCann. So is Mayor Overton, who, it is suggested, never changes his shirt until advising with Boss Crump. So are certain manufacturers and merchants of Memphis who are frantic with anxiety lest McCann should organize their clerks and underpaid factory employes.

The most despicable of all, however, is the action taken against McCann while he was out of the city by his own local union. The politicians swooped down and jammed a surprise motion through to secede from the Central Body. Imagine the absurdity of a labor union voting to secede from its own parent body because a political boss is offended.

Such developments are hard to imagine in Chattanooga. We have several political bosses, but not one of them at this time has the faintest hallucination that he can in the slightest degree influence our Central Body in its deliberations.

It is a bitter price to pay. It is hoped that Memphis will be able to purge itself and in the end be able to call its soul its own.

TEACHER TALK

LOCAL 246, A. F. of T.

GENERAL MEETING FEB. 15

Status of the salary suits, proposed constitutional amendments and the federation's position on the nine-month school term will be discussed at the next general meeting on Saturday, Feb. 15, 10 a.m., at the university. All members are urged to be present.

LET'S GET LABEL CONSCIOUS

Teachers, do you recall that your obligation pledged you to purchase union-made goods when they are available? The Chattanooga Label league lists the following articles which carry the union label: Phoenix hose at the Vogue, Gold Stripe and McCallum at Lovemans, and Onyx Propper at Miller's, Annie Jacquelin shoes at Vogue, men's suits at Loveman's, men's suits and other clothing at Contor Brothers.

Through continued requests for union-made goods we can help greatly in having such articles advertised and sold here. The request of 1,000 teachers can't be ignored.

CO-ORDINATING COMMITTEE

A subcommittee of the executive committee has been appointed to represent Local 246 in a committee for the co-ordination of the programs of our local and Local 428.

SAVING ON SICKNESS

County employes in the high brackets often go to Florida to recuperate from an illness and receive full pay for the time. However, the lowly teacher not only doesn't get full pay when sick, but he loses the difference between his pay and that of the substitute. Thus, the county exchequer saves money when a teacher gets sick.

We believe in saving money for the county, but it seems to us that other ways might be found than at the expense of the sick teacher.

SPEAKER ON EDUCATION

"Education in a Changing Social Order" will be the subject of Claud Nelson, of Atlanta, in the third L. I. D. lecture next Wednesday evening. Mr. Nelson is a former Rhodes scholar and Y. M. C. A. leader. At present he is southern secretary of the Fellowship of Reconciliation.

BRING ON CRITICISM

Teacher Talk belongs to all members of Local 246. The publicity committee wishes to make it representative of all members. To do this we need your help. Criticize freely—adversely, constructive, any way you want to. This column believes all criticism is valuable. And it can take it as well as give it.

Also, phone or write in items as often as possible. Phone 6-6361.

NON-UNION MADE

She bought the dress
Because it was
Cheap and pretty,
Little knowing
She was wearing
A fabric woven

With
Tired muscles of old people,
Destroyed hopes of youth,
Lost opportunities of manhood,
Forgotten regard of truth.

She Cannot See
The broken dreams of mothers,
Nor hear children's cries;
They do not show on the trimming,
Nor mar the shade of dyes.

Cheap?
Yes,
If
Our human blood is cheap.
She has not paid for the tired eyes
That made her garment overtime
Through tears that were not cried.

Pretty?
Yes, but
If
It were stained red with the workman's blood,
Or would stink with the sweatshop's din
And the hopeless longing for a right to live,
Its beauty might fade to the color of sin. —M. R. C.

RAMSAY MacDONALD ELECTED.

London.—Ramsay MacDonald, former leader of the British labor party and now lord president of the council, was elected to the house of commons on Feb. 3 from the Scottish universities district of Scotland. MacDonald, who has been bitterly fought by the labor party since he deserted its cause, lost his own seat for the Seahem district in the November general election.

The Uncommercial Healing Art

L. L. Hartman, dentist and professor in the Columbia University School of Dental and Oral Surgery, has invented a compound which, for 20 minutes to an hour, makes it impossible to feel pain in a tooth. The dentist may work with his drill, but the patient does not flinch, because he does not feel it. Three thousand dentists to whom the demonstration was made cheered the announcement; and 3,000,000 patients will cheer it when they find it true.

Dr. Hartman and the university have given this discovery to the world "free, gratis, and for nothing," as the saying goes. There is a patent on it—to keep quacks and grafters from levying toll on suffering mankind; but there is no charge or royalty for its use.

Which is carrying out the long tradition of the professions of healing. Drs. Banting and Best, the Canadian physicians who discovered insulin, told the world all about it, probably without even thinking about profits. Dr. Alexis Carrel, who early in the World War worked out the treatment for infected wounds, didn't try to make even the Germans pay royalty. He went on curing French wounds, knowing well that on the other side of the lines, German surgeons were using this French discovery to cure German wounds. It is the unwritten law, handed down nearly or quite from the days of Aesculapius; and it is pretty well observed.

If the same rule should ever be adopted and obeyed in business, especially Big Business—however, what's the use of speculating about miracles?

Vital Need of Labor Press

The freedom of the press, guaranteed to us by the Constitution, must depend after all upon the support which the readers of the press give to it. We need scarcely more than mention the fact that the usual daily newspaper, to say nothing of the magazines, do not feel called upon to espouse the cause of organized labor. Such fair play as is given this cause by these publications is based upon the unanswerable strength of the position of the labor movement.

But we wish to emphasize the fact, that if there were no great section of the national publications known as the Labor Press, which gives its first and last loyalty to the workers of the nation, and especially to those who are members of the organizations of labor, the other sections of the nation's publicity organs would probably pay much more scant attention to the rights of labor.

Circulation is the life of any publication. Given readers, any publication is in a position of power, in proportion to its friends who show their loyalty to their own cause by their subscriptions to their own press, and by their activity in helping to enlarge its circulation.

The rights of labor will always depend, to a great extent, upon the freedom of the labor press. A labor paper which circulates freely in its own community is not only an index of the power of labor in that locality. It is a very definite part of the organization itself, and its functions are so vital that neglect of the labor press is ure to reflect upon the qualities of the labor movement itself.

SENATOR WAGNER URGES HUGE HOUSING PROGRAM

New York City.—A huge housing program similar to that which he said had lifted England on the road to recovery was advocated before the New York Building congress by Senator Robert F. Wagner, of New York.

He suggested $40,000,000,000 be spent over a 10-year period with the object of supplying 10,000,000 American families with modern sanitary homes.

Under Wagner's plan, the government would finance 25 per cent of the program in low-rent housing developments while private industry, aided by federal subsidies, would account for the other 75 per cent.

The Passing Show

Note and Comment on Things Doing in the March of Events

George V, King of Great Britain, Emperor of India, head of the British Commonwealth of Nations, is dead in his 71st year. He was born June, 1865.

There is one paragraph in the king's last Christmas speech to his empire over the radio which the briefest sketch of him must quote or be incomplete. He is speaking for the moment of his silver jubilee, the 25th anniversary of his coming to the throne. Here are his words:

"How could I fail to note in all the rejoicing, not merely respect for the throne, but a warm and generous remembrance of the man himself who, may God help him! has been placed upon it? It is this personal link between me and my people which I value more than I can say."

"The King of England," wrote Theodore Roosevelt, "is really a hereditary vice-president." So far as this relates to royal power, it is correct to the letter; indeed, the vice-president can at least break a tie vote, and the king of England cannot do even that. But the position obviously gives the right kind of man and gentleman a chance to become the friend of all his vast empire; and King George V did that.

He was absolutely loyal to the obligations of his position. "The king reigns but does not govern," is the English maxim. He knew that the supreme power in Britain rests with the British people, and is exercised through parliament. The king, indeed, might well be called the head of the British civil service, who carries over from government to government the headship of the routine work of the nation; but never interferes with the shaping of its policy.

So scrupulous was he on his duty in this matter that when he had a severe illness a few years ago, and a parliamentary election was coming, he ordered that all news of his sickness be kept from the public until the election was over, lest the excitement and concern might affect the voting. When the house of lords threatened to fight the proposed loss of its power to hold up an act of parliament, George V told Lloyd George that he, the king, would create as many new lords as were needed to outvote the recalcitrants, and carry out the well understood wishes of the people. The word was quietly passed along, and their lordships surrendered.

Under his reign, the British empire completed its change to the British Commonwealth of Nations. No other name quite expresses this union of Britain, Ireland, Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa in a loose federation, where each part has complete independence, but all act together if a crisis becomes severe enough. While this growth was going on long before, the tact and unfailing loyalty of George made the transition easier.

He was a king who was friends with his people; and perhaps that is his best epitaph. There has been little competition for that description among earlier monarchs; and though some have tried to be friends to their people, the sense of companionship was lacking. George V goes to his rest with genuine and well earned affection of his people. May Edward VIII enjoy the same affection when his turn comes.

Martial Law Is Lifted In Two Indiana Counties

Indianapolis.—Martial law, ordered in Floyd and Clark counties Jan. 20 after labor disturbances, was lifted by Gov. Paul V. McNutt.

The order caused withdrawal of a skeleton corps of troops enforcing military law in the area of the Jeffersonville and New Albany plants of M. Fine & Sons, shirt manufacturers. Gov. McNutt ordered approximately 450 troops to suppress alleged violent picketing.

charge of the policemen. Eight plant guards participated in the assault.

Employes of the company struck on Jan. 22 in a controversy over seniority rights and other equitable demands.

Following use of tear gas by the police of Pekin, Ill., against strikers of the American Distilling company, the Pekin Trades and Labor assembly passed a resolution asking all trades to walk out in protest against such strike-breaking. As a result the entire city has been paralyzed for several days.

Peace negotiations are being held in Peoria, several miles away, but so far nothing has been accomplished.

Adjournment of the Peoria conference, began this morning in an attempt to settle the strike at the distilling company, was followed by a new ultimatum from the general strike committee of the Pekin Trades and Labor assembly.

Frank Mahoney, chairman of the committee, announced that even if the distillery strike were ended the general strike would continue until Chief of Police Harry Donahue was removed from office.

Six hundred employes of the Corn Products Refining company voted tonight to join the strike. They agreed to walk out at 10 p.m. tomorrow.

Their walkout would swell the corps of striking workmen to approximately 2,100 and lend influence to the already powerful rule of the trades and labor assembly.

Mahoney said workmen held the chief responsible for the order to use tear gas against pickets at the distillery plant Monday, when two pitched battles brought six arrests.

Martin Durkin, director of the state department of labor, and Gov. Henry Horner's representative in the peace negotiations, hurried from Peoria to the empty streets and closed business houses in Pekin.

Here it was believed he would confer with Mayor W. E. Schurman on the latest ultimatum of the laboring forces.

Only Drugs and Gasoline Sold.

Only a few drug stores and filling stations remained open tonight in the face of the strike orders, and the drug stores were meeting only medical needs.

What activities continued had the sanction of the trades and labor assembly, which called out 1,500 workmen yesterday. Milk deliveries were allowed, and restricted deliveries of fuel.

Few pickets were abroad in the biting cold and these outnumbered officers more than 10 to 1.

Tension tightened hourly after the ultimatum of the strikers—for shop owners to close—found 100 per cent compliance.

Sheriff Ralph Goar issued a request for national guard aid—the first direct call for help the local authorities had made since the general strike flared. But there was no indication when the five companies of militiamen at Peoria, seven miles away, would move on the city. They were mobilized there yesterday in anticipation of disorders.

Action on Constitution Deferred

Further study must be given to the question of sponsoring a constitutional amendment clarifying the right of Congress to pass social justice legislation, the council decided.

President William Green pointed out that this issue is so important and has so many potentialities that labor must go into the matter carefully, to insure that such an amendment cannot be used againt the common people.

Local unions of radio workers, now affiliated directly with the A. F. of L., can, without any initiation fees, become part of the powerful International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, the council announced.

Concessions Offered

According to an offer made by President Dan W. Tracy, of the I. B. E. W., these radio locals would become a distinct division within the Electrical Workers and would pay a much lower rate of dues than regular journeymen electricians pay.

The radio workers had asked for an international union charter. The Electrical Workers' offer was telegraphed to them and they will vote on it within the next two weeks.

The question of jurisdiction between the Automobile Workers and the International Association of Machinists was settled by the council affirming the right of the Machinists to all maintenance men of that craft, as well as to tool and die makers in the automobile industry proper and to all employes of accessory or parts factories owned outside of the motor car industry.

An international union charter was granted to the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters and Maids. This is the 111th international union to be chartered by the A. F. of L. It is the first to have all-negro membership.

Laxative combination folks know is trustworthy

The confidence thousands of parents have in good, old reliable, powdered Thedford's Black-Draught has prompted them to get the new Syrup of Black-Draught for their children. The grown folks stick to the powdered Black-Draught; the youngsters probably will prefer it when they outgrow their childish love of sweets. Mrs. C. W. Adams, of Murray, Ky., writes: "I have used Thedford's Black-Draught (powder) about thirteen years, taking it for biliousness. Black-Draught acts well and I am always pleased with the results. I wanted a good, reliable laxative for my children. I have found Syrup of Black-Draught to be just that."

pal bonds in this state. Nashville, Memphis, Knoxville and Chattanooga are some of the cities whose bonds are owned by I. T. U. Chattanooga's bonds in the amount of $30,800 are held.

Most of this money is held in funds for the benefit of members in their declining years, although there is a substantial amount always available in the defense fund in case of labor trouble wherein I. T. U. members are involved. In case of strike or lockout every member is paid a sufficient amount to prevent any want for the necessities of life. However, it may be said here that the printers have been extremely fortunate in the past in avoiding strikes and lockouts which might drain the treasury. Two nationwide strikes in the past have been cleanly won. The last, the 44-hour strike, cost the printers in excess of $17,000,000, which was raised by special assessment, thus keeping the funds of the international intact.

Sound business policies have prevailed in the conduct of all contr[o]versies of the past and it is today [a] established fact that the great majo[r]ity of publishers of the country co[n]sider I. T. Johnson City Notes

At the meeting of the Johnson City Typographical union, No. 763, held on last Sunday afternoon, the principal business of the organization was a discussion pending contracts with two of the largest commercial plants in the city. It is believed that contracts will be signed with the two proprietors before the next meeting of this organization.

Other than reports from the delegates to the Central Labor union no other business was transacted other than to pass a resolution requesting that Senator Norris, of Nebraska, be a candidate for United States senator in the coming election.

The meeting was presided over by President G. G. Graham.

Master Jack Long, 12, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Long, of Locust street, and Dan Lockett were injured last Saturday afternoon when their sled crashed into a telephone pole on Sevier street.

Young Long suffered a broken right shoulder. He is the son of President Long, of the Central Labor union. Young Lockett suffered a broken right arm.

VOLUNTEER LIFE SAYS BUSINESS IS MUCH BETTER

The annual stockholders' meeting of the Volunteer State Life Insurance company was held at 10:00 a.m., Thursday, at the home office, followed by the regular meeting of the directors.

The president of the company, Richard H. Kimball, in his annual report, stated that not since 1931 had the progress of the company so clearly reflected improvement in general business as it had in the preceding year. There was evidence, he stated, that business throughout the states in which the company operates had begun to move forward under its own power.

He reported that a good volume of business had been placed on the books. The average size of policies was larger than for several years preceding. Assets had increased and had steadily improved in quality. Over $1,000,000 of high grade bonds had been added to the bond account. Mortgage loans had increased over the volume held at the end of the preceding year. He also stated that the company had approved and accepted a number of F. H. A. government guaranteed mortgages. He called attention to the diversified character of the investments of the company. The mortality rate for 1935 was better than for several preceding years. He stated that the free health service available to the policyholders of the Volunteer had been utilized by a great number and that the company had received expressions of appreciation of the benefits derived from it. During the year $2,495,000 was paid to policyholders and beneficiaries.

FEDERAL ACTION HELD ONLY WAY TO STOP CHILD LABOR

New Orleans.—Child labor that "went out like a flash" for a brief period under the NRA is now widespread throughout the country, members of the Young Women's Christian association were told by C. C. Henson, who added that only federal legislation can prevent the use of children in sweatshops.

"Those who object to removing children from industry talk of state rights," he said. "Child labor can never be called a state problem as long as one state using child labor can export into another state 'goods made cheaper than those made where child labor is prohibited."

Labor's Political Conference Gets Started on Plans

All But Three Delegates From Unions Present in Meeting Last Sunday Show Solidarity of Sentiment for Program Proposed — Central Committee of Seven Named to Chart Path.

NEXT SESSION WILL BE SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 16

Exceeding the most optimistic hopes of those interested, delegates from a good majority of local A. F. of L. unions and the railroad brotherhoods in Hamilton county met together in a called meeting at the labor hall Sunday, Feb. 9, to formulate a definite organization for political action in labor's behalf. Although every local union has not yet ratified the constitution drawn up for the new organization to be known as Labor's Political Conference, reports indicate that in a few weeks practically every unit will avail itself of the opportunity to join up.

Indicating a unanimity of purpose and indulging in a good bit of intelligent debate, the Central Committee of Seven was elected to serve as the steering committee for the conference, and will be composed of S. E. Smith, of the Teachers' union; A. C. Kamin, of the Movie Operators; W. T. McKenna, of the Textile Workers; Joe Dobbs, of the Plumbers; T. R. Cuthbert, of the Typos, and F. A. Carr, of the Railroad Trainmen.

The seventh member of the committee is J. C. Cox, of the railroad brotherhoods, who serves by virtue of being named as president of the conference. The Central Committee of Seven has been clothed with a wide range of power, the extent of which will be enumerated from time to time.

C. C. Burgner, of the teachers, was given the money bags to hold as treasurer, R. C. Reynolds will be vice-president, and Erskine Mabee, of the Painters, is to serve as recording secretary.

W. R. Barney, of Machinists 56, was named to the official board as sergeant-at-arms.

Reiterating its intention not to form at the present time a strictly labor party, the conference did express itself as determined to protect labor's interests at the polls.

The next meeting will be held next Sunday at 2 o'clock to further the organization.

M'CANN GIVEN CONFIDENCE VOTE BY LABOR

Admiration Expressed in Central Body for Valiant Fight.

Federation President Given Encouragement by Letter Offering Best Wishes.

Reviewing the political and labor situation in Memphis which has occupied the attention of most of the Tennessee labor movement for the past few months, Central Body Monday night bitterly condemned the persecution waged by the Crump machine in Shelby county against R. S. McCann.

Expressing itself of the opinion that the duty of officials of organized labor is to organize the unorganized and not to heed personal or political experiences, Chattanooga labor was put on record as approving of McCann's brave fight in the form of a letter to him, offering "enthusiastic felicitations and best wishes."

In the letter, bearing the official seal of the Central Body, Brother McCann was told:

"Organized labor of Chattanooga has been observing with keen interest your valiant fight to uphold trades union principles rather than political expediency.

"In regular session this council formally commends you and sends to you its enthusiastic felicitations and best wishes.

"Fraternally,
"T. R. CUTHBERT,
"Secretary."

Label League To Give Party Friday Night

Sturdy Youngster of Labor Movement Growing Fast.

Chattanooga Label league, composed of active unionists who are waging a campaign to make labor members union-label conscious, will give another one of its ever-growing popular parties this Friday evening at the labor hall, 114 West Seventh street.

It will be in the nature of a Valentine party and an even larger attendance than the last affair of several weeks ago is expected. Some sixty unionists and friends enjoyed the last frolic.

The league also announces that plans are being made to give a real square-enough dance very soon.

One of the league members grew poetic last week and submitted the following verses:

Hear ye! Hear ye! Help ye—all!
"Our Infant Union" is growing tall;
Its legs are strong, its mind is able
And believe me truly, it demands the label.

Now if you don't know what all this means
Come out Friday night and grow more keen.
You will realize then the force of this cable—
Our progressive league—the League for the Label.

In case you are skeptical, and have your doubts,
Attend the Label League, and you'll find out.
Then you will know that this is no fable,
But a real live wide-awake league that demands the label.

Its growth depends on your best support,
Send out your delegates and help hold the fort.
Get all our unions, combined and capable,
Decide fearlesaly out and insist on the label.

It isn't a fancy nor just a passing "fad,"
But a powerful league demanding the best to be had.
A union of unions and one quite staple
That will assure your goods with a union label.
This child is no sickly, simpering brat
And complacently satisfied to be merely that,
But a child quite sturdy, with strength to yell,
"Give me union-labeled goods, if you expect to sell!"

Tin Can Beer Slipping Fast, Central Body Told

Glass Bottle Blower Official, Meatcutter and TVA Representative Also Speak.

At Central Body's Monday night meeting the delegates were treated to some very good oratory and a bit of snappy repartee when three visitors were given the floor.

William Warren, representing the Glass Bottle Blowers' association, spoke against the use of tin cans as containers for beer, and reiterated that such cans were in every instance non-union made. Stating that the bottle blowers were continuing their intensive educational campaign on a national scale, Mr. Warren gleefully asserted that the tin can was slipping fast, and would soon be buried in the same grave with flagpole sitting and miniature golf. He asked continued co-operation from the labor movement.

Mr. Wolfington, of the Meatcutters' International union, having been in Chattanooga for a week assisting the two locals here, told the body that he was well pleased with the progress he has found.

Mr. Fulton, TVA personnel representative, extended greetings to the delegates assembled, and recounted briefly his duties in regards to the dam.

O. A. Walker, international representative from the Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, was given the floor, not as a visitor, but as old friend who was just back in town again.

One of the speakers surprised the delegates with the assertion that the number present was as large as Central Body meetings in cities of a million population, in many instances.

Shell Oil Renews Pact With Unions

Big Concern Continues Contractural Relations With 13 International Organizations.

St. Louis.—An agreement between thirteen A. F. of L. international organizations and the Shell Petroleum corporation, one of the nation's largest oil companies, has just been extended to May 1, 1937.

Extension of this pact is regarded in management and labor circles as highly significant, in view of the fact that one year ago the Shell corporation entered into relations with the A. F. of L. unions for the first time in its history. Now, after a test of twelve months, the agreement is renewed.

J. N. Davis, assistant international president of the Boilermakers, was chairman of the committee that negotiated the renewal.

Organizations Represented.

Other organizations represented are the Bricklayers, Painters, Railway Carmen, Asbestos Workers, Machinists, Blacksmiths, Teamsters and Chauffeurs, Building and Common Laborers, Sheet Metal Workers, Plumbers and Steamfitters, and the Carpenters.

Next month the management and representatives of the international unions and the various shop committees will meet "for the purpose of reviewing the agreement so as to bring about its proper application and better understanding between the committees and the local management," Davis said.

Milwaukee Orders Vote On Public Light Plant

Milwaukee, Wis.—The Milwaukee common council by a 22 to 4 vote ordered a referendum ballot on April 7 to determine whether the city shall acquire the light and power facilities of the electric company. Promoters of the municipal ownership plan declare the cost of light and power to the consumers will be much less under public operation.

POSTAL MESSENGER UNIFORMS WILL BE MADE BY UNION FIRM

Du Bois, Long Time Union Company, Gets Over $80,000 Contract, Label Trades Executive Board Is Informed — Commercial Telegraphers' Union Joins Department.

Miami, Fla.—Announcement was made at the meeting of the Union Label Trades Department executive board that all Postal Telegraph messengers' uniforms hereafter will be made by A. DuBois & Son, of New York City, a completely union firm with a long record of union operation.

It was learned that the contract for Postal messenger uniforms calls for the manufacture of uniforms which will involve payment over $80,000. It is understood that each garment will bear the union label. The uniforms are to be of wool.

Labor officials received the announcement as another indication of the friendly attitude of the Postal company toward organized labor.

It was announced also that the Commercial Telegraphers' Union of North America has been accepted by the Union Label Trades Department as an affiliate, the application for affiliation having been made by the union some weeks ago. Union telegraphers are entitled to wear a union button and patrons are entitled to ask that messages be transmitted by operators wearing the union button.

A representative of the Commercial Telegraphers' union informed the board that the Postal Telegraph company does not discriminate against union employes and that its attitude is regarded as friendly by the union.

A friend spent the night with a farmer. The next morning he appeared downstairs with a black eye.

Farmer (in surprise)—Oh! How did you get that?

Guest—I just happened to fall in the guest chamber, that's all.

Farmer (anxiously) — Gee! You didn't break it, did you?

Laborers' Union Go To Washington To Protest Wage Scale

Sets Up Local Office in Chamberlain Building — Announces Meeting Dates.

The delegates elected by the mass meeting to go to Washington to press the fight for a raise from the fourth wage category to the second for this WPA district will leave on the 20th of February. Delegates Huff, Lynch and Anderson have been instructed to visit the various congressmen and senators from this area, as well as Federal Administrator Harry L. Hopkins. The present wage for common labor on WPA is $33 for 140 hours of work a month, and $53.90 for semi-skilled labor. A raise to the second wage classification would bring it up to $45 for common labor and $58 for semi-skilled work. The local union is determined it will do its utmost to abolish this discrimination against southern workers.

The auxiliary of Hod Carriers and Common Laborers No. 846, the Relief Workers' Association of Chattanooga, intends to enter into a campaign to urge authorities to provide more adequate relief in the form of food, fuel and clothing for the totally unemployed. Recent disclosures in the press show widespread suffering and sickness due to insufficient food and means to withstand the cold. The

TENN. COMPANY FAILS SO FAR VS. WAGNER ACT

Bemis Bros. Bag Co. Set Back Twice in Federal Court.

LABOR BOARD TO RESUME HEARINGS ON FEB. 20

Judge Martin Declares Act Is Constitutional in Every Way; Refuses Injunction Pleas.

So far the Wagner labor relations act has successfully held its own in federal courts when efforts by the Bemis Bros. Bag company, of Bemis, Tenn., to declare it unconstitutional met with no success. The case arose out of union discriminations on the part of the Bemis company. Textile Union 1838 filed complaints with the national labor board and the case was set for a hearing on Jan. 23.

The company applied to Federal Judge Martin for a restraining order against the board which would prohibit them from hearing the case until the supreme court passed on the validity of the bill. In a sweeping decision Judge Martin declared that the Wagner act was constitutional and did not take away any of the employer's rights. The attorney for the company immediately went to the appellate court in Cincinnati and asked for an injunction.

On Feb. 6 the Cincinnati district court turned down the plea and upheld Judge Martin. In the meantime the labor board started hearing the complaint of the union and continued until Jan. 31, at which time they postponed the case until the Cincinnati court passed on the appeal.

As soon as the appellate court upheld Judge Martin's ruling, the labor board set Feb. 20 to reopen the complaints and finish hearing of it.

C. D. Puckett, United Textile Worker of America representative, expressed himself as being of the opinion that the union has presented more than sufficient evidence to prove that the bag company has violated the Wagner bill.

Kingsport Strikers Given Food, Money To Carry On Fight

Johnson City, Erwin and Elizabethton Unionists, Cheer Up and Congratulate Silk Mill Victims.

Johnson City.—A large delegation of trade unionists of Johnson City, Erwin and Elizabethton visited Local No. 2466 of the United Textile Workers at Kingsport Sunday afternoon. All members of this organization have been locked out of the plant of the Kingsport Silk mill since Nov. 23. The workers are still out 100 per cent, and the visit of the unionists Sunday was to take a large supply of foodstuffs to the workers, and the Pottery Workers of Erwin presented officials of the local with a substantial check in addition to a supply of groceries.

Talks were made by officials of the local organization explaining their situation and what they have accomplished in the time they have been out. Officials of the Johnson City Central Labor union, President D. C. Long, Secretary W. G. Hart and W. H. Lacey, accompanied by H. Engleman and J. A. Hinkley, of the Painters' organization, extended to the workers congratulations for their wonderful fight they are putting forward and offered their assistance in any manner possible, and an effort was made to show the workers the progress that organized labor has made in East Tennessee in the past year.

Workers from the pottery organization, headed by President S. W. Johnston, of Erwin, all made interesting talks, as well as other members of the delegations.

Another visit to this organization in Kingsport is being planned at an early date when even a larger delegation will attend.

Any organizations wishing to help the Kingsport workers can communicate directly with President Jack Shelley, 1535 Fuller street, Highland Park, or M. C. Coward, secretary, Box 82, Kingsport, Tenn., or to any official of the Johnson City Central Labor union. They are deserving of the support of every trade unionist in East Tennessee.

Farmers' Union Secures Union Label in Factory

Mobilization of Members' Buying Power Persuades Birmingham Overall Plant to Recognize Organized Labor — Reciprocal Buying Agreement With Union Label Trades Department Works Fine.

The practical results of an alliance between organized workers and organized farmers to patronize each other is well illustrated by the recent organization of a Birmingham overall factory as a result of the reciprocal agreement between the National Farmers' union and the Union Label Trades department of the American Federation of Labor.

The agreement provides that members of the Farmers' union will buy goods and services only from merchants that display the union label, shop card and button and that members of labor unions will buy only from merchants that likewise display the Farmers' union shop card and label.

An account of the agreement in action is given in the following report of the Farmers' union:

Farmers' Buying Power Wins.

"In Birmingham an overall factory refused to recognize the union workers. The union officials of other crafts urged the management to recognize the union, stating that if they did not recognize the union, all organized workers numbering about 100,000 men and women would refuse to buy overalls. The officers of the company laughed at them, saying that it would not affect them, as more than 75 per cent of their overalls were purchased by farmers.

"About that time all the members of the Farmers' union began to demand union-made goods of their merchants. These merchants, in turn, notified salesmen of this overall factory that they could no longer sell their overalls to farmer customers without the union label.

"With the farmers refusing to buy and industrial labor refusing to buy, there was no one to whom to sell and this overall factory, that had been holding out for months, immediately called in the union committee and signed a contract agreeable to the union."

I. M. Ornburn, secretary-treasurer of the Union Label Trades Department, said "this illustration given by the Birmingham overall factory case is proof of the results that can be obtained through united action of farmers and workers," adding: "The importance and possibilities for good to be accomplished by the agreement between the Farmers' union and the department are beyond the power of our imagination."

MEMPHIS PAPER TAKES UP FOR UNION FIREMEN

Press Scimitar Writer Hits at Big-Shot Politicians.

Local Unionists Recall Fate of Firefighters Organization Years Ago.

The fifteen firefighters in Memphis who were summarily discharged by Boss Crump's Commissioner of Police Davis because they joined a union have been receiving the editorial defense from the Memphis Press-Scimitar, as well as the very fine news stories concerning the attempt to break the union down.

It will be recalled that Memphis politicians have been moving heaven and earth to destroy R. S. McCann, president of the Tennessee Federation of Labor and also president of Memphis Central Body, according to reports received. With Mr. McCann's assistance an organization of firefighters was started in that city, and the city officials' answer to that step was instant discharge of every fireman found guilty of joining the union.

Chattanooga unionists recall that many years ago the firefighters here perfected an organization and succeeded in passing legislation which provided a double platoon system and a minimum pay rate of $160 per month. After labor had secured these benefits for them the fire laddies dropped out of the union.

About two years ago an attempt was started to revive interest in an organization but, according to those close to it, the idea was dropped overnight after certain officials "indicated" that it was not desirable.

The Memphis paper has this to say concerning big-shot city officials who choke off organization of the units of their political machine:

"IT'S DIFFERENT

"When big-shot city officials join an organization of their kind, we praise them for being up-to-date and progressive.

"And when they get elected to office in their respective organizations, we pat them on the back and put their pictures in the paper and everybody shouts 'Hooray!'

"But when the more humble firemen join an organization of their fellows, those same big-shot officials go into tantrums and almost have a stroke. And then they boot the firemen in the pants."

TEACHER TALK
LOCAL 246, A. F. of T.

GENERAL MEETING SATURDAY

The February general meeting of Local 246 will be held at the university Saturday morning, Feb. 15, at 10 a.m. The agenda includes a report on the progress of salary suits, consideration of several proposed amendments to the constitution, a report on the labor political conference, and discussion of the federation's attitude on the county's situation with regard to the nine months of school.

LABOR POLITICAL CONFERENCE

In a meeting last Sunday the new labor political bloc advanced another notch by adopting a constitution, electing officers and shortening its name from Permanent Labor Conference for Political Action to Labor Political Conference. Teachers were well represented among the newly-elected officials, C. C. Burger being treasurer and Stanton E. Smith on the important Committee of Seven.

IMPORTANT LABEL LEAGUE MEETING

The Chattanooga Label league will hold an important business meeting followed by a valentine social tonight (Friday, Feb. 14) at the labor hall. The league is doing an effective job of getting union-made products placed on the shelves of local stores. It deserves the support of every loyal union teacher. Everyone is invited to the meeting tonight. An admission charge of 15 cents will be collected for the valentine party, the proceeds to go for the entertainment of Tennessee Federation of Labor convention delegates and their wives here May 4-7.

EDUCATION FOR DEMOCRACY

"Education for Democracy" will be the theme of a series of talks before civic associations, P. T. A.'s and community gatherings by prominent federation members during March and April. The series is being sponsored by the publicity committee. An attempt will be made through these talks to clarify the objectives and ideals of modern education in the lay mind and to show that trade-unionism for teachers is one of the most effective steps toward achieving these objectives.

Arrange with the publicity committee for speakers.

Interstate Board Gets Good Report

FHA and Chickamauga Dam Are Termed Benefits to Insurance Firms.

The Interstate Life and Accident company's business in 1935 was "very satisfactory," with more than $1,800,000 premium income collected in the industrial department in weekly payments of 5 and 10 cents, and "even better" business is anticipated this year, Dr. Joseph W. Johnson, president, reported at the annual meeting recently.

Dr. Johnson predicted that the construction of Chickamauga dam, for which ground breaking has already started, will stimulate business all through the Chattanooga section and will add business to Interstate, especially in the industrial department.

"The improvement in business has been reflected in our industrial department, the income from which exceeded $1,800,000 collected in weekly premiums of 5 and 10 cents. We anticipate that 1936 will be even better," Dr. Johnson said in his annual report.

"The company paid through all departments to living stockholders, $463,274, and paid to beneficiaries, $400,409 during 1935.

"The great problem before the insurance executive today is the investment of funds in securities of a satisfactory type that will produce an adequate interest yield. Mortgage loans guaranteed by the FHA probably offer the most satisfactory investment at this time.

"The building of the Chickamauga dam will be of great benefit to the entire Chattanooga section, and we anticipate a reflection of this, especially in our industrial department."

Mayor Wilson of Philadelphia Outlaws Police Protection for Strikebreakers

Philadelphia, Pa.—Approval of mass picketing and abolishing police protection for strikebreakers are outstanding features of the labor policy announced by S. D. Wilson, Philadelphia's new mayor.

Under the municipal governments which preceded Mayor Wilson mass picketing was proscribed. Several times in recent years the police were ordered to break up picket lines, and frequently the number of strikers allowed to picket a struck plant was arbitrarily limited.

Following a conference with his labor committee, consisting of ten trade union officials, relative to plans for mediating a threatened strike of 800 window cleaners, Mayor Wilson made the following announcement:

"In accordance with my labor policy, the superintendent of police was notified that hereafter during strikes no permits will be required by the strikers for peaceful picketing.

"Mass picketing will be permitted and there will be no interference by police so long as there is no violation of the law by disturbance or other means.

"We hope to anticipate strikes in the future so they will not reach the stage where they will be difficult to adjust.

"From now on no police protection will be given strikebreakers brought into Philadelphia from New Jersey or any other place. We have a big enough labor supply, and good enough, to take care of our needs. Neither will police interfere in any peaceful strike, either on behalf of labor or employer.

"The practice of providing police guards to ride on trucks with strikebreakers is abolished."

Anti-Communist Speaker to Be Brought Here by Am. Legion

Homer L. Chaillaux, director national Americanism commission of the American Legion's national headquarters at Indianapolis, Ind., will be brought to Chattanooga by the American Legion posts of the Third congressional district for a mass meeting to be held in the Memorial auditorium on the night of Feb. 21.

Mr. Chaillaux is probably the best informed person in the United States today on the activities of the communist party and its many branches that are very active in this country at this time.

Russia today is advocating a speed-up system called "Stakhavoism," which in the coal mines of Russia has produced five times as much coal as under normal conditions. This new system seems to be failing, according to official communist reports, because the human body can only stand so much. Dictator Stalin has launched an investigation to find out what is the trouble, Mr. Chaillaux says.

The American Legion invites trades unionists to be present. There will be no charge.

Union-made goods are the best munitions to use against wage-cutters.

The Three "S's" of Beer Bottles, "Stubby," "Standard," "Steinie"

"Steinie" is Name Given to Newest Member of Beer Bottle Family.

JUST as dress manufacturers create new styles for milady's wear, so we discover that bottle manufacturers are alert to modern trends in the designs for beer containers. The latest contribution of one of the country's leading glass manufacturers, who only a few months ago introduced a new non-refillt, non-returnable beer bottle called "Stubby", is a new lightweight bottle named "Steinie".

The new bottle is 36.3 per cent shorter than the standard beer bottle, but has the regulation 12 ounce capacity.

The attractive bar maid above, is filling Miss Gretchen Stein's stein with beer from the new "Steinie" bottle.

LABORERS WPA

present attempt by private charities to temporarily alleviate the situation, no matter how praiseworthy, can by no means be considered as a substitute for planned and adequate relief administered by city, county, state and national governments, which is where the burden belongs.

Wage scales adopted for common labor and semi-skilled labor and helpers by the local union are 45 cents an hour for common labor and 60 cents for helpers and semi-skilled. It is expected that within a very short time conferences will be sought with contractors to mark the beginning of a campaign to apply these scales and to win recognition of the union. Up to now there has been no union scale for these types of workers, nor any permanent organization, with the resulting low wages. Co-operation and assistance in unionizing these workers is being sought from the old and established craft unions, who can do much by insisting that the unorganized helpers and common laborers on their jobs be organized. The local Union of Hod Carriers and Common Laborers in turn pledges faithfully to at all times insist that all skilled labor on any jobs its members work at shall be done by union men from the proper union.

The forward step by the local union has been the securing of an office in the Chamberlain building, 827 Chestnut street. For the time being office hours will be from 4 to 6 p.m. on week days and from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturdays. Workers may join at those hours, or pay their dues. Grievances on the jobs may be brought in for the consideration of the grievance committee. Common laborers and helpers on PWA and private construction jobs are especially urged to come down to the office to get information on joining the union.

Open meetings held jointly by the Hod Carriers and Common Laborers' No. 846 and the Relief Workers' association are still being held at the courthouse every Wednesday night at 7 p.m. All unemployed people, WPA workers, and workers in private industry are welcome. Negro workers are invited to attend all meetings and are being urged to join the union.

HAT WORKERS STRIKE.

Danbury, Conn.—Employes of the Hoyt-Messenger Hat company here continued their strike against the action of the company in discharging workers following the installation of new machinery which made the service of the victimized employes unnecessary. Although with the machinery the employes increased their individual output per unit of time, the hours of labor were not reduced. The workers struck against this injustice and insisted that the dismissed employes be reinstated.

RUPTURE

SHIELD EXPERT HERE

E. J. Meinhardi, well known Expert of Chicago, will personally be at the Read Hotel, Chattanooga, Tenn., on Friday only, February 21st, from 10:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. and 6:00 p.m. to 8:00 p.m.

Ask the Hotel Clerk for the numbers of Mr. Meinhardi's rooms. Only men are invited.

The Meinhardi Rupture Shield retains the rupture on the average case regardless of size or location—no matter how much you exercise, lift, or strain. The Meinhardi Rupture Shield is skillfully molded to each individual as a Dentist makes false teeth. (No leg straps and no cumbersome arrangements).

It is waterproof, sanitary, practically indestructible, and may be worn while bathing or sleeping (continuously day and night) until no longer desired.

CAUTION—Beware of imitators who copy this notice. Remember the name MEINHARDI. He has been coming here regularly for fifteen years. Do not neglect to see him on the above date. No charge for demonstration. This visit is for white people only.

Refreshing Relief

When You Need a Laxative

Because of the refreshing relief it has brought them, thousands of men and women, who could afford much more expensive laxatives, use Black-Draught when needed. It is very economical, purely vegetable, highly effective. . . Mr. J. Lester Roberson, well known hardware dealer at Martinsville, Va., writes: "I certainly can recommend Black-Draught as a splendid medicine. I have taken it for constipation and the dull feelings that follow, and have found it very satisfactory."

Johnson City Notes

The meeting of the Johnson City Central Labor union next Friday night is expected to be largely attended. At this meeting a report will be made by the committee recently appointed by President D. C. Long to investigate the possibilities of publishing our own newspaper in East Tennessee.

The principal speaker of the evening will be Miss Allie Mann, vice-president of the American Federation of Teachers, of Atlanta, Ga., who is on a visit to East Tennessee in the interest of her organization.

Large delegations are expected from Elizabethton composed of delegates from the teachers' organization and the United Textile Workers. The Pottery organization of Erwin will have their customary large delegation present. An effort will also be made to have a representative group of Clinchfield lodge of Railway Clerks, No. 559, and C. C. & O. System Federation No. 44 represented at this meeting. Letters from the office of the secretary of the Central Labor union have gone forward extending them such an invitation.

A special invitation has been extended by President S. W. Johnson, of the National Brotherhood of Operative Potteries, to all delegates of the Johnson City Central Labor union to attend their next meeting, Wednesday, Feb. 19. It is hoped that a large delegation will be present from the Central Labor union. The pottery organization is one of East Tennessee's most progressive and are always willing to lend a helping hand to their fellow-man.

Officials of the Johnson City Central Labor union hope at an early date to start on a visit of all the organizations in East Tennessee. It has been customary in the past to make the visit near and after the first of the year, but so far so much bad weather has held up their plans. As soon as weather conditions improve they hope to make these visits and have interesting reports to make to the Central Labor union at the meetings following.

Elizabethton, Tenn.—United Textile Workers' Local No. 2207 has the past week been moving its offices from 500 Elk avenue to a building west of their former location. This location, it is hoped, will be better suited for the needs of the organization.

The Carter County Teachers' association will hold an all-day meeting Saturday, Feb. 15, it has been announced by officials of that organization.

The principal speaker at this meeting will be Miss Allie Mann, of Atlanta, Ga., international vice-president of the American Federation of Teachers, who was requested by Secretary George Davis, of the organization, to attend this meeting. Other speaker on the program will be Prof. J. H. Price, who will use as his subject "Administration and Supervision of Schools."

The committee in charge of arrangements is composed of B. R. Howard, J. R. Ritchie, Ruby Burton, Dayton Isaacs and Arthur Crumley.

Transparent bathing suits have made their appearance on the Pacific coast. Now if they will allow the girls to go in without any bathing suits in Florida this winter that's where the crowds will be found.

UNFAIR TAX ON CIGARETTES ENCOURAGES STOCK WATERING POLICY OF TOBACCO BIG FOUR

By GEORGE L. KNAPP

Washington.—Does Congress really mean to use its taxing power to promote the sale and profits of watered stock?

No sane man believes so for a moment. Yet that is precisely what Congress is doing, by sticking to a flat tax rate of 6 cents a package on cigarettes, with no regard to the price of those cigarettes.

The Big Four tobacco companies are probably the busiest and most skilful stock-watering experts on earth. In the little matter of "write-up" of capitalizing wind and water and paying dividends on both, the tobacco trust has the power trust hitched to the mast.

Full details of tobacco Big Four write-ups cannot be given. They are too cleverly done, and they have been going on so long that many of the records must be lost.

Some Facts on Record.

But the U. S. commissioner of corporations has put some facts on record that cannot be disputed. Here are a few:

The American Tobacco company was formed in January, 1890, by a merger of five companies: W. Duke Sons & Co., Allen & Ginter, W. S. Kimball & Co., Kinney Tobacco company and Goodwin & Co.

The tangible assets of these five companies were $3,545,108.02.

The American Tobacco company, formed from these five companies, with no additions to investment, issued $25,000,000 of stock. You can figure out the proportions for yourself, but to save bother, take this:

Of every $100 of that American tobacco stock, $14.20 had tangible assets back of it, and the other $85.80 rested on wind, water and "good will."

Aiming at a tobacco monopoly—and the aim was good—the American Tobacco company in 1898 organized the Continental Tobacco; and, next year, Continental took over Liggett & Myers.

Huge Write-Up Revealed.

The tangible assets when this double merger was finished were $35,370,275.63.

The capitalization — stock issues, all common and half preferred—was $64,429,852.27.

The write-up, therefore, was a staggering matter of $73,859,577.90.

Or, each $100 share of this Continental stock had $25.57 of tangible assets behind it, and the rest of it "didn't have nothin'."

Further details come later. Here, please note:

That the independent companies which make 10-cent cigarettes will be driven out of business unless their case is given some reasonable relation to their selling price.

That every independent company forced out means a tighter monopoly for the Big Four, and another chance to inflate their stock and unload it on the public.

MERGER OF INTERNATIONALS.

Paris.—Plans for the amalgamation of the Factory Workers' International and the Glassworkers' International have been agreed by the two organizations, and submitted to the various national unions. It is hoped that the Pottery Workers' International, which took part in the conference, will ultimately come into the merger.

Forum Speaker Says New Deal Against Labor, for Business

Predicts National Labor Party by 1940—Wants 24-Hour Work-Week and $25 Weekly Minimum.

"Prosperity is returning—for the employer," declared Tucker Smith, director of the Brookwood Labor college, to a Chattanooga Forum audience at City High school last night.

Citing National City bank reports, Smith showed that 1,900 leading corporations increased profits 78 per cent in 1935 over 1933, while during this same period a 6 per cent wage increase was accompanied by a 5½ per cent advance in the cost of living and a work week lengthened by 1¼ hours per worker, the net result amounting to a decrease in wages.

Speaking on "Labor's New Problems" Smith, former Northwestern and New York university lecturer, and at present director of the country's leading labor college, attracted an attentive audience of several hundred Chattanoogans.

"Prosperity is measured in terms of wages, not profits," declared the speaker, "and large profits, which are not used for consumer goods are a sure road to depression." A 40 per cent increase in profits from 1923 to 1929, with only a 20 per cent advance in wages, made the depression inevitable.

Smith drew a graphic picture of the distressing conditions which face the 1936 worker in his eternal struggle to make a living. Seventy per cent of American families must exist on less than $750 a year, while the federal bureau of statistics sets $1,900 as the minimum for maintaining a decent standard of living. Employment increased only 4 per cent during the past year, and there are now 12,000,000 unemployed. The stretch-out system, the longer week and increased efficiency leave small hope for improved conditions. In 1935, according to the New York Times, "most companies raised volume and profits without adding workers."

Pleading for working class organization, the labor leader insisted that "if you want the economic order to be stable then you must put the power to control it in the hands of the workers." Out of 40,000,000 eligible workers, less than 7,000,000 are organized, while an organization of 20,000,000 is considered necessary to prevent abuses of the past and present. Insisting that the unemployed must be included in this organization, it was recalled that Hitler started with 300,000 hopelessly discouraged sons of the unemployed middle class.

Smith predicted that by 1940 a strong labor party will enter the field of national politics. He advocated placing in the platform of this party the 24-hour week; minimum "decency" income for every family, including the unemployed; government guarantee of collective bargaining; better housing for workers; and full social insurance.

Declaring that Roosevelt has worked for the interests of business against labor, and that his plan was the best yet devised for the preservation of capitalism, Smith declared that "capitalism committed suicide when it rejected the new deal."

GAS COMPANY WORKERS GRANTED PAY INCREASE

St. Louis.—Union employes of the Laclede Gas Light company have been granted a 7 per cent wage increase by the arbitration board appointed at the end of a strike last July. Terms of the contract will continue in effect until Jan. 1, 1937.

LABOR'S BLOC HAS PROGRAM FOR REFORMS

Tentative Platform Adopted Looks Far Into Future for Completion.

MAY BE AMENDED WHEN NECESSARY

Reforms in County Government to Include Simplification and Centralization of Many Departments.

At its meeting last Sunday, Labor's Political Conference placed its stamp of approval on a proposed long-range program for legislative reforms that include state, city and county objectives. Although many of the planks drawn up would take many years to achieve, some of which would require a constitutional revision, some of the projects will be pushed immediately, such as simplification of county government and payment to teachers and other municipal employes of fair wage standards.

The general tone of the several conferences held by labor's political group has been one of quiet determination to work out a militant ward and precinct organization and a way to present to the public its program of reforms. Rather than diminishing in interest, each successive session sees one or more of the few remaining local unions falling into line by ratifying the conference program and sending its two delegates to the meetings to deliberate.

In so ratifying the political conference, each local union waives its old policy of indorsing candidates and measures, and gives to Labor's Political conference the right to speak for them.

There are twenty-four specific planks in the lengthy and construc-

Culinary Workers Make Good Gains

New Charter Issued and Big Organization Drive Begins in March. Aimed to Swell Union's membership to More than 100,000.

Cincinnati.—Several new charters were issued during January by the Hotel and Restaurant Employers' International Alliance and Bartenders' International League of America, headquarters of the organization here reports.

More than a score of international organizers are in the field in Canada and the United States, and the union is making splendid progress. With over 75,000 members in their ranks, a special organization campaign is under way, programed for March, April and May, and it is anticipated the officers will report to their international convention to be held at Rochester, N. Y., in August.

International Secretary "Bob" Hesketh credits the labor press and labor councils for most of the union's remarkable success.

What Next!

Automatic governor to limit the speed of automobiles, long talked about, are beginning to be used. All new type cars of New York City department of sanitation are to be equipped with governors permitting them to be driven at no more than 25 miles an hour. The installation of the device is expected to promote safety and lengthen the life of the vehicles. A governor has recently been installed on the car of a New Jersey resident, as a condition of restoring to him his driving permit, revoked for speeding.

It is rumored that school authorities in Chattanooga, Tenn., have evolved a plan for placing 200-foot school buildings on 150-foot lots.

"Bolshy" Hunter To Speak Here This Friday Eve

Sponsored by American Legion, Well-Known "Red Terror" to Reveal All.

An expose of alleged red activities now in operation in the United States to undermine American government and American institutions is promised by Homer Chaillaux, national Americanization officer of the American Legion at mass meeting to be held at the Memorial auditorium Friday night at 8 o'clock.

The meeting is being held under the joint auspices of the American Legion, the American Legion Auxiliary and the Daughters of the American Revolution, with other patriotic societies co-operating. Maurice Poss, commander of the local Davis King Summers post of the Legion, will preside, and James Cooke, of Athens, state Americanization officer of the Legion, will introduce the speaker. The preliminary program will be brief in order to give full time to the speaker of the evening, who comes here from Legion headquarters in Indianapolis especially for this meeting.

Inasmuch as organized labor is also engaged in fighting the subversive activities of the reds in America, a special invitation is extended to all local union members by the sponsors of the Friday night meeting, and they are urged to be represented there in force, according to Lyle Stovall, chairman of the local Legion's joint Americanization committee.

In his address, Mr. Chaillaux proposes to give facts and figures as to who the reds are, where they may be found and how they may be recognized so that patriotic Americans may know how to deal with the communistic movement.

The meeting will be free.

CERAMIC PLANT IS ALL UNION IN ERWIN, TENN.

Thirty Thousand Pieces of Pottery Turned Out Daily by Southern Potteries.

'CLINCHFIELD CHINAWARE' IS NAME OF THE BRAND

Pottery Workers' Local Union 103 Is Affiliated With Johnson City Central Labor Union.

Erwin, Tenn.—Thirty thousand pieces of pottery are turned out daily by the Southern Potteries, manufacturers of "Clinchfield Chinaware," according to announcement made this week by G. F. Brandt, vice-president and general manager of the company. C. W. Foreman, of Canton, Ohio, is president of the potteries.

However, a week and a half of developing is required for a dish, a cup, a case or any other piece of pottery. The explanation of the huge daily production is that the pieces are made in lots, Brandt said.

Outstanding because it turns out more hand-painted, underglazed pottery than any other ceramic plant in the United States, this plant employs 325 men and women, is operated twenty-four hours a day, seven days a week and is manned by a 100 per cent union crew on all shifts, who are all members of the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters, Local No. 103, of this city.

Ninety-five per cent of the raw materials required in production of the pieces is purchased in the south. Clay comes from North Carolina, South Carolina, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky and Tennessee.

Only recently a new unit was completed at a cost of $100,000. It will be instrumental in labor saving, as well as tending to improve working conditions for employes. The unit consists of a new and modernized clay department and two kilns measuring 48 feet in diameter. These kilns will do the work of nine old ones, and although it reduces the number of workers in its department, more will be required in other parts of the plant to care for the larger production. The new kilns are heated with oil burners.

One, the Bisque kiln, is used for the "first-firing;" the Glost kiln is used for the "second-firing," or finisher.

The Bisque has a capacity of 5,000 dozens of pieces per day, and the Glost will finish 2,500 dozens per day. Both are of the continued circular motion type.

Visitors are received and permitted to inspect the new machinery and see pottery in the making process.

The Pottery Workers of Local No. 103 are affiliated with the Johnson City Central Labor union.

"BOB" COOKE GIVEN HONOR FOR GOOD WORK

Labor's Own Commissioner of Parks and Playgrounds Has Created Southwide Attention in Development of Department.

R. M. COOKE

R. M. Cooke, elected to the department of parks and playgrounds of Chattanooga last spring, coming directly from the ranks of organized labor, was given recognition by the Midsouth Amateur Athletic association this week in that body's meeting in Birmingham, when he was named as "Honorary President."

Taking over the duties of his office, "Bob" took his job seriously, and the new ideas which he has instituted in spite of an inadequate budget has made his department one of the best in the city. One feature of Commissioner Cooke's program that has proven to be most popular has been the night softball games. These games have made it possible for many thousand of citizens to use the city's parks in a way that has not been possible heretofore.

Gradually getting into his stride, Commissioner Cooke has drawn plans for the 1936 season which will probably eclipse last year.

The Midsouth swimming and golf meets went to Chattanooga at the gathering. With the basketball tournament to be held here March 6-7 and the inaugural baseball tourney staged here the past summer, Chattanooga, one of the top leaders in the organization, has been awarded four association tournaments already.

The dates have not been set for the swimming and golf frays yet, but the swimming frays will be held at Warner park and the golf tourney at Brainerd.

Millinery Workers Win Victory In Strike That Ties Up Big N.Y. Shops

Employers Rush to Surrender, Signing New Agreements Containing Provisions Demanded by Union to Insure Effective Enforcement of Pact Terms.

By MARX LEWIS

New York City.—In a demonstration of solidarity which confirmed the complete control which the Millinery Workers' Union of this city have in the millinery industry, and also the devotion which the membership has toward the organization, close to 20,000 millinery workers brought to a complete and speedly conclusion a general strike ordered by the union to compel employers to submit to a more effective enforcement of the agreement between the manufacturers and the union.

and the union announced that it would begin ordering the return of the workers the following day.

Constructive Step Taken.

The creation of the commission was regarded by both sides as the most constructive step taken since the abolition of the NRA to curb the tendencies in the industry which have been responsible for greater irregularity of employment and diminished annual earnings of the workers. With 800 manufacturers in New York City alone, and about 1,500 in the nation, engaged in a mad scramble for survival, unfair trade practices have played havoc with the legitimate manufacturers.

The commission will have no jurisdiction over the relations between the employers and the union. Those relations are governed by the agreements. Where the agreement is with an organized association, impartial machinery for the arbitration of disputes has been established. The hour and wage provisions of the agreement will be the same as in the former agreement, but violations of those provisions have been made harder.

New Jersey Pact Renewed.

At the same time President Zaritsky announced that negotiations had been concluded for a renewal of collective agreement in the New Jersey market, affecting about fifty shops, and about 2,000 members of the union. In former years employers seeking to escape union standards in the New York market sought refuge in New Jersey. Two years ago the union succeeded in organizing the New Jersey market. The terms of the agreement are in many respects similar to New York, except that wage rates are based on the standards of production in New Jersey.

The stoppage was declared by union officials to have removed any doubt which any of the manufacturers may have had as to the union's control of the market. In the future, they said employers will not make the show of resistance which developed in New York City several months ago, when the employers threatened a lockout unless a readjustment in wages was made.

Four hours after the general stoppage brought the industry to a standstill, the Eastern Women's Headwear association, an employers' association having as its members 400 of the 800 manufacturers operating in this city, announced that it would sign a new collective agreement, succeeding the one which expired on Jan. 31, and containing provisions which the union insisted were necessary to insure the observance of the agreement, the elimination of sub-standard conditions which were found to exist in some parts of the industry, and the setting up of machinery that would undertake the rehabilitation of the industry.

The National Association of Ladies' Hatters, an employers' group having about 150 members, and about 250 manufacturers unaffiliated with either association, with their plants completely deserted at a time when the season was about to begin, also signified their willingness to adopt the terms which the union announced it would require all manufacturers to accept.

Workers Crowd Halls.

While hundreds of manufacturers were clamoring to enter into an agreement without delay in order to resume operations, more than 7,000 of the 20,000 workers who had been ordered to stop work on February 4, filled two large halls to listen to Max Zaritsky, president of the Cap and millinery department, and the local leaders of the millinery union, who discussed the efforts the union had made to reach a settlement, and the rejection by the employers' association of the union's demand that the payroll records and books of each employer should be subject to examination by union accountants whenever the union had reason to believe the agreement was not being observed.

When conferences were resumed later in the day, the association agreed that such examination of employers' records should be one of the powers of a millinery stabilization commission which the union had proposed for the regulation of the industry. The acceptance of this proposition removed the cause of the dispute,

USE OF ARMY TO BREAK STRIKES IS DENOUNCED IN HOUSE DEBATE

Representative Marcantonio Declares Workers Have Legal Right to Quit Work Without Being Shot Down by Troops — Labor Committee Head Charges Mill Owners Use Militia to Defeat Strikers.

Washington, D. C.—Debate over the right to use the army in suppressing mobs and strikes broke out in House discussion of the War Department Supply bill.

Brandishing copies of army manuals sent to officers and enlisted men, Representative Vito Marcantonio of New York assailed orders to "shoot low" in breaking up mobs and charged that it advocated obtaining information regarding strikers from "strike-breaking" agencies.

Representative McCormack, author of a bill to suppress "sedition" in the armed forces, contended that the manual was aimed to disclose how the Communists operate "in seeking to overthrow the government" and contended that the National Guard, not the regular army, is used in strike-breaking.

"Shoot Low" Orders Cited

Marcantonio said the manual between 1928-32 defined democracy as "a rule of the masses" and said that it further defined it as "leading to anarchy."

"That was removed but in the 1933 and current manuals there is a section dealing with domestic disturbances," he said.

He read from the manual citing orders to "shoot low" so as not to "go over the heads" and strike innocent bystanders. He said that it cautioned never to use blank cartridges in dealing with mobs.

He read other portions telling how

Labor's Political Conference

Members of organized labor are hailing the formation of a political body to weld labor's vote into a compact and pliant bloc as a powerful threat to political boss rule. There are many who regard the action of the democratic primary board in setting prohibitive entrance fees for candidates in the primary as definite recognition of a fear that the labor conference would endanger the erstwhile bosses' grip on things political.

If it is true that the $1,000 entrance fees for the major offices and the fees charged for lesser offices were designed for the purpose of "freezing out" opposition, we wish to call attention to the fact that Labor's Political Conference is non-partisan in nature. Since the intention of the conference is merely to support actively a ticket selected from candidates running, rather than to enter its own candidates, it should not occasion alarm because entrance fees are prohibitive.

The election in August will be the time for the conference to exercise its power. At that time no entrance fee will be necessary. By that time all who are intending to run for the respective offices will be known and from that field a complete ticket can be selected that will merit the support of all working people and public-minded citizens.

"Form Letters" Season Announced by Vox Pop Writer

The editor's mail this week had the following letter from one of The Labor World readers and delegate to Central Labor union:

"Dear Mr. Editor:

"I see the season has started for the usual form letters from our congressman and senators in reply to our requests for legislative action. At the last session of Central Body a reply was read to our request that our two senators and congressman act favorably on two very important measures in which they said they would give 'careful consideration' to those bills.

"What does 'careful consideration' mean? I always thought that they were supposed to give everything 'careful consideration.' Instead of 'careful consideration' they must mean they will give us the run-around.

"A DELEGATE."

LABOR QUERIES

Q.—Has the American Federation of Labor opposed currency inflation?

A.—The federation, at its Washington convention in 1933, went on record as opposed to inflation, as deleterious to the welfare of the workers. Opposition to inflation has since been reiterated by President William Green and the A. F. of L. Executive Council.

Q.—What was the first international union in Canada?

The vocation of every man and woman is to serve other people—Count Leo Tolstoi.

My first wish is to see this plague to mankind (war) banished from the earth and the sons and daughters of this world employed in more pleasing and innocent amusements than in preparing implements and exercising them for the destruction of mankind.—George Washington.

We heard a woman say while peeved the other day that another lady had a wheel missing. That't another way of calling one a nut and it sounds much more refined.

The coats of tan will soon be replacing the winter coats we see.

Navy Yard Construction Pays

Labor executives are pleased over the point made by Senator Nye in hearings before the Senate Munitions Committee. Senator Vandenberg appeared alarmed to learn that Navy Yard workers get 20 per cent higher pay than workers in private yards and a 30-day leave which adds $550,000 more to the cost of a war vessel.

A question from Senator Nye brought the expert admission that despite the leave and the higher pay the Navy Yards are building a comparable ship for nearly a million dollars less than the government pays the private yards. Evidently labor is on the right track when it advocates government construction of naval vessels and military equipment.

How Will Nation Answer Question?

President Green of the American Federation of Labor again emphasizes that there is still no prospect of work for more than a mere handful of the 11,400,000 unemployed.

"If we count on improving business alone to put the unemployed to work, we may expect little improvement in this situation," he says. "In December, 1935, business activity was 21 per cent above December, 1934, but employment was only 4 per cent higher. Clearly re-employment is not keeping pace with the rise in business activity."

Mr. Green says that gains the last half of 1935 are of small significance, however, when compared with the magnitude of the problem we face. "No solution is in sight," he adds. "America faces the stubborn fact that unemployment will always be with us unless we insist on finding jobs for these millions in industry, where they can create the wealth for their support."

Then Mr. Green asks: "Are we willing to accept permanent unemployment?"

On the answer to this question depends perhaps more than anything else the future of this nation.

Five-Day Week's Great Progress

The National Industrial Conference Board, an employers' organization, reports that the five-day week has become widely prevalent in American business establishments. It applies somewhat more frequently to factory workers than to clerical employes, the board finds.

Union labor has been a tremendous factor in this spread of the short week, a fact that the National Industrial Conference Board neglects to mention. The labor movement, from its very beginning, has fought for the shortening of work periods and was a pioneer in advocating and establishing the five-day week, particularly in the building trades and other strongly unionized industries.

It is significant that the Conference Board found that on a geographical basis the largest proportion of reporting companies with a five-day week for both wage earners and "white collar" workers is in New England, followed in order by the Middle Atlantic states and the East North Central states. Workers in these parts of the nationar more strongly organized than in most of the South and West, where the five-day week was reported less prevalent.

That the five-day week will continue to make progress is certain. The trend is all in its favor. Labor's educational work in behalf of the five-day week has been largely instrumental in convincing the nation of the short week's benefits, until today it has support that will insure even more rapid advancement in the future.

TEACHER TALK
LOCAL 246, A. F. of T.

COLLECTIVE BARGAINING

Teachers are urged to make absolutely no agreement concerning salaries or length of term except through federation representatives. No papers or agreements should be signed unless they have the approval of the federation. Violation of this policy is a violation of our obligation. We organized for the purpose of bargaining collectively and any individual bargaining weakens our collective force.

THAT OLD FEDERATION SPIRIT

A spirit of solidarity among the teachers was very evident at last Saturday's general meeting. Everyone applauded a speech setting forth our rightful position. There was no real disagreement on any point. If there were any stool pigeons' or politicians' lackeys there, they kept their heads discreetly ducked.

As a teacher was heard to remark, "We surely have learned a lot in the last year or so." Before we became enlightened and emancipated we would have fallen easy prey to schemes for dividing our ranks. Now it's different. Practically every teacher recognizes the fact that there is no agency other than the federation that can and will serve teachers' interests wholeheartedly and effectively.

"IT CAN HAPPEN HERE"

"It can happen here" will be the implication of Roy Burt's speech on "The Gravediggers of Democracy" at Chattanoofa High auditorium next Wednesday evening.

Mr. Burt will discuss trends toward fascism in America. Rev. T. B. Cowan will introduce the speaker. Teachers interested in preserving America democratic traditions would do well to hear this discussion of the elements that constitute a threat to them.

UNPLEASANT BUT NEEDFUL

J. W. Abel, Mrs. Fortson, his secretary, and Miss Nellie Kenyon, of the News, are to be commended for bringing to public attention the deplorable conditions existing among a section of our citizenry. When there is such appalling human suffering existent it should be known in order that steps may be taken to alleviate it. Already a considerable amount of money and clothing have been donated as a result of Monday's News story.

Private and local charities, however, will not be able to care for the poor here indefinitely. It is hard to avoid the conclusion that there should be a more adequate provision by federal relief agencies, if cold and starvation are not to be allowed a heavy toll in the lives and health of our poor.

Fascist Tendencies To Be Discussed By Forum Speaker

Roy Burt, Minister and Lecturer, to Present the "Gravediggers of Democracy" Next Wednesday.

Roy Burt, minister and well-known lecturer, will speak here on "Gravediggers of Democracy" as one of the lecturers in the League for Industrial Democracy discussion lectures series. Mr. Burt will speak at the Chattanooga High auditorium on Wednesday at 8 o'clock.

From his extensive knowledge of America, Mr. Burt will analyze the programs and personalities of the demagogic leaders in America who following in the footsteps of Huey Long are already threatening the individual liberties of Americans. He will speak particularly about Gov. Talmadge, who recently called a "grass roots convention" in Georgia to mobilize forces against "Karl Marx, the new deal and the negroes," as well as everything that stands for progress in our civilization. Mr. Burt will also speak about the threats to democracy and civil liberties offered by vigilants, repressive legislation and the Ku-Klux Klan

Mr. Burt was brought up on a farm in Kansas and worked as a farmhand until he went to study at the University of Kansas. Following his graduation he continued his studies at Northwestern universaity and the Garrett Biblical Institute in Evanston, Illinois.

As a minister in the Methodist Episcopal church and later as field worker for the board of education of the Methodist church Mr. Burt traveled extensively throughout the country. His special field was social and economic problems and his study and investigation in this connection has given him firsthand contact with social and industrial problems in all parts of the United States.

The last speaker on this series will be Norman Thomas, speaking on "Which Way America, 1936-40?"

Another thing hurting this country is that too many persons are spending more time worrying about government debts than about their own.

tanks could be used effectively in dispersing mobs.

"They also tell us how information on these mobs can be obtained," he said. "It recommends that the army officials go to the local police department and then supplement its advice with that of private detective agencies."

Congress Action Urged

"I submit it is high time that Congress takes action to prevent the use of troops against strikers," Marcantonio shouted. "Labor has the legal right to strike without being shot down by troops getting information from strike-breaking agencies."

McCormack asserted that mobs have no right to advocate overthrow of government by violence since "that is not freedom of speech but license."

"That is inconsistent with our laws of freedom of speech," he said.

McCormack drew yells and cheers when he concluded, saying:

"We in this country recognize the rights of groups to advocate changes within the law, not outside the law."

TEXTILE WORKERS OUT IN BIG ALABAMA MILL

Huntsville, Ala.—Pickets patroled the entrances of the Lincoln Cotton mill, the city's largest textile plant, following a walkout of approximately 1,600 workers. The plant is operated by a Boston firm headed by C. D. McDuffey.

Union leaders announced they were asking a written contract guaranteeing, among other things, continuance of NRA code wages and hours, recognition of the United Textile Workers of America and a union shop.

About 95 per cent of the workers in the mill are union members, U. T. W. A. leaders said. Since the invalidation of the NRA, they said, work has continued under a verbal agreement similar to that under the NRA.

Machinists Score Pay and Hour Gains In 18 Agreements

Local Unions in All Sections Tell of Successful Negotiations With Employers.

Eighteen more agreements, practically all of them providing for substantial wage increases, have just been negotiated between the Machinists' union and companies in various parts of the country, it was announced this week at the organization's national headquarters in Washington.

At Seattle, Business Agent I. A. Sandvigen secured an agreement with the Atlas Engine company providing for a union shop, the 40-hour week and an increase of 20 cents an hour for machinists and 25 cents for helpers. Minimum rates of $1 an hour are established for machinists and 75 cents for helpers, with double time for all overtime.

Grand Lodge Representative William Heath signed a pact with the Rapid Chevvy company, Cedar Rapids, Ia., granting wage increases ranging from $1.50 to $2 a day.

Six contract shops in Washington, D. C., raised wages 8 cents an hour in a pact negotiated by Business Agent Oliver N. Garrison. Minimum rates are set at $1.23 cents an hour for machinists and 63 cents for helpers.

The Pittsburgh Drop Forgings company, of Coraopolis, Pa., agreed to the 40-hour week and wage increases of 18 to 20 cents an hour, it was reported by Grand Lodge Representative John V. Pessamato.

Machinists in the construction industry in Chicago have had their pay boosted $1 a day by an agreement negotiated by Business Agent Charles Fry.

Business Agents D. M. Burrows and William H. Jones, also of Chicago, notified the grand lodge of substantial gains for machinists in other branches of the industry.

Burrows negotiated a pact with the Trans-American Freight Lines, Inc., for an eight-hour day, time and one-half for overtime, and minimum wages of $36.50 a week. Prior to this agreement the hours ranged from 10 to 16 a day and the wage was a flat $125 a month.

Other Victories.

Jones reported agreements signed with the Chicago Die Cutting company, the Lonergan Die company, and Eckman, Handy & Eckman. All are in the tool and die manufacturing business.

At Port Washington, Wis., the Simplicity Manufacturing company signed a pact, negotiated by Grand Lodge Representative A. J. Hayes, establishing the 40-hour week and granting a substantial wage increase.

Grand Lodge Representative V. A. Gauthier reported an agreement with the Wehrle Stove company, Newark, Ohio, raising wages 5 per cent.

The Logan Gear company and the Bingham Stamping and Tool company, both of Toledo, Ohio, have just signed new agreements. Business Agent A. M. Jurrus, of that city, notified the grand lodge.

TROUSERS SHORTAGE.

The low living standards imposed upon millions of American workers by prolonged unemployment and upon millions of employer workers by low wages and depleted purchasing power were pointedly emphasized recently in a lecture on underproduction by Dr. G. W. Allison, of the Edison Electrical institute.

In discussing the clothing supply, he said: "Only one pair of trousers for every three men and one overcoat for every eleven men were manufactured in the United States last year."

Inasmuch as the members of the "leisure class," recently emphasized by John P. Morgan as being the safeguards of civilization, are usually blessed with a superfluity of clothing, it is quite evident that those below the leisure class are getting along with the vintage of previous years.

Human Nature!

They say the world is round, and yet
I often think it square;
So many little hours we get from corners here and there;
But there's one truth in life I've found while journeying east and west,
The only folks we really wound are those we love the best;
We flatter those we scarcely know, we
please the fleeting guest,
And deal full many a thoughtless blow to those we love the best.

Nervous, Weak Woman Soon All Right

"I had regular shaking spells from nervousness," writes Mrs. Cora Sanders, of Paragould, Ark. "I was all run-down and cramped at my time until I would have to go to bed. After my first bottle of Cardui, I was better. I kept taking Cardui and soon I was all right. The shaking quit and I did not cramp. I felt worlds better. I gave Cardui to my daughter who was in about the same condition and she was soon all right."

CARDUI

Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

CALLS UPON WORKERS TO BEGIN SPEEDY FIGHT FOR BETTER PAY

A. F. of L. Head Declares Policy of Currency Inflation Will Be Harmful to Wage-Earners, Unless Mass Purchasing Power Is Raised Before Prices Increase.

Washington.—The harmful effect of currency inflation on the wage-earners can only be offset by an increase in mass purchasing power, President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, said in vigorously assailing inflation and calling on the workers to fight for immediate wage increases.

As a matter of sound public policy, as well as of justice, wage increases should come before increases in living costs, President Green declared.

"The Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor is fully appreciative of the fact that the policy of currency inflation being advanced by certain public men is a matter of moment and of grave importance to labor," the A. F. of L. chief said. He continued:

Inflation to Harm Masses.

"In operation inflation will seriously affect the economic and social welfare of the masses of the people. An increase in the price of articles which enter into living costs is bound to follow the inauguration of currency inflation. In fact, the primary purpose of inflation is to elevate price levels and to increase commodity prices.

"Obviously, labor will be at a decided disadvantage if commodity prices increase and wages remain stationary at the depressed level to which they have been forced through the pursuit of a wage deflation policy. The buying power of the masses of the people has been greatly reduced through the imposition of reductions in wages. It has already reached the point where the workers are unable to buy either in quantity or in frequency.

"If prices are to be driven upward through currency inflation the very limited buying power of the masses of the people will be further curtailed. This is especially true because it is reasonable to conclude that the price of the necessities of life will increase under the inspiration and influence of currency inflation.

Pay Raises Should Come First.

"As a matter of sound public policy, as well as of justice, an increase in wages should precede an increase in commodity prices. Unless this is done the consuming power of the people will be lowered rather than increased through the adoption of a policy of currency inflation.

"The members of the Executive Council are determined to safeguard the interests of the wage-earners by insisting upon increases in wages immediately. The deleterious effect of currency inflation upon the social and economic life of working people can only be offset through increases in wages and through an increase in mass purchasing power throughout the nation.

"We propose to call upon labor to begin the fight immediately for wage increases and to use such legitimate influence and power as may be at their command to bring about the restoration of the buying power of the masses of the people."

Fisher Flour Mill Strike Adjusted by Labor Board

Seattle, Wash.—Charles W. Hope, regional director here of the national labor relations board, announced the settlement of the strike against the Fisher Flouring Mills company which was called last October by Federal Labor Union 19169, representing the production employes, and the Weighers, Warehousemen and Cereal Workers' local of the International Longshoremen's association. The unions filed a complaint against the company with the labor board charging the concern with violating the national labor relations act, alleging discrimination against union members and refusal to recognize the two locals as representing a majority of the employes. It was also charged that the company dominated an organization known as the Plant Employes' association, which also intervened in the hearing held by the labor board.

Under the strike settlement agreement the company promised to reinstate eleven discharged workers and grant seniority rights. A union recognition satisfactory to the two unions involved was included in the agreement. It was stated that the claim of the Plant Employes' association to represent the workers was disallowed in the settlement.

Trial Examiner Harry Hazel, who conducted the hearing on the charges for the labor board, submitted an intermediate report finding the company guilty of violating the labor act and made recommendations for affirmative action in which the company might bring itself into conformity with the law. The strike settlement agreement was made three days after the issuance of the report.

Pekin Distillery Workers Win Most Strike Demands

Pekin, Ill.—Representatives of organized labor and the American Distilling company here agreed on a plan to settle the distillery workers' strike shortly after union officials ended the two-lay labor holiday declared in protest against the action of Police Chief Harry Donahue in crashing through the picket line at the company's plant with a bus load of strikebreakers under a barrage of tear and stench gas bombs. Organized labor demanded the removal of Donahue.

Practically all of the workers in Pekin participated in the labor holiday. Every kind of business was brought to a standstill with the exception of public utilities, which were permitted to operate. Light, gas and water were not interfered with. Milk and other necessaries were distributed to hospitals and to families in need of them.

It was stated that the company agreed to practically all of the strikers' demands, including the observance of seniority rights, pay adjustments and the rehiring of discharged employes.

BREWERY WORKERS ELECT OFFICERS

The Brewery Workers' local held their semi-annual election of officers recently, and announce the following roster for the next six months:

O. B. Kelso, president; Al Perkinson, vice-president; E. D. Fischer, acting secretary during the absence of R. R. Lee; Bob Reich, financial secretary; R. L. Lee, treasurer, and Bob Parks, sergeant-at-arms.

Trustees named were Ed Steiner, Tom Ellis and W. D. Boddy.

Johnson City Notes

The meeting of the Johnson City Central Labor union last Friday night was one of the largest attended for the winter months. The quarters were filled to overflow and a large number of the visitors were from the local of textile workers at Kingston who are locked out of the Kingsport Silk mill.

The meeting was presided over by President D. C. Long, who greeted the visitors and extended to them a cordial invitation at the close of the meeting to visit the organization again at an early date. President Jack Shelley, of Kingsport, of the United Textile Workers, made an interesting report on their troubles with the mill owners.

Other reports made of interest to all members of the organization was the newspaper committee appointed by President Long some time ago. The committee reported and recommended that the organization form a publicity council to be composed of one member from each craft represented and incorporate under the laws of the state of Tennessee and issue stock to the amount of $1,000 to be purchased by members of organized labor to carry out the plans of the proposed newspaper. The committee's recommendation was adopted and instructed to carry out the plans as proposed. The labor newspaper will make its first appearance in the early fall, possibly the week previous to Labor day.

The Central Labor union also went on record by instructing the resolutions committee to draft suitable resolutions to be sent to Senator Norris, of Nebraska, urging that he be a candidate to succeed himself as United States senator from that state.

Meeting last week at the chamber of commerce in the John Sevier hotel, representatives of the various civic clubs and representatives of the Johnson City Central Labor union met and unanimously approved the formation of a civic central council.

The meeting was called by J. E. Coad, secretary-manager of the chamber of commerce, who explained the citywide council as designed to handle matters that frequently come to the attention of all civic organizations.

A committee was appointed to meet again this week and formulate by-laws for the council and to outline the plan of procedure. The committee consists of President D. C. Long, of the Johnson City Central Labor union; George Oldham, president of the Rotary club; Mrs. Tom Harris, of the Parent-Teachers' association; H. W. Edmonds, secretary of the Merchants' Credit association; Harry W. Lyle, secretary of the Kiwanis club; R. O. Jenkins, of the Optimist club, and Miss Carrie Perkins, of the Business and Professional Women's club.

Elizabethton.—Miss Allie Mann, vice-president of the American Federation of Teachers, of Atlanta, Ga., was the principal speaker at the meeting of the Carter County Teachers' association last Saturday and also the meeting of Watauga Local No. 103, of the American Federation of Teachers in this county. Music was furnished at the morning session at Senior High school building by the Milligan College Glee club.

A delightful luncheon was served at the Governor Taylor hotel at noon for visitors, which included Miss Mann, Prof. J. H. Pierce, K. P. Banks, superintendent of schools, members of the teachers' organization and officials of the Johnson City Central Labor union.

Filosophee.

Don't undo others as you have been undone by them . . . Blessed are the meek, for they shall inherit what is left of the earth after everybody else gets through . . . The reason people don't vote as they used to is that voting presupposes an opinion, and we are taught not to have any opinions . . . The big ideas are not conceived by the time-clock system. They are the spiritual efflorescence of humble minds. (This was true last week, but not today) . . . There are too many people in the business. Let's you and I get together and save some of the other points closed up . . . If you can't say No, you can't expect to live within your income . . . "I don't buy my liquor from him becaus he doesn't agree with me about God" . . . If you weren't speedy, employers used to be satisfied if you were accurate, but now you must be both . . . Loneliness is universal—No human soul ever finds a perfect match.

TEXTILE WORKERS UNION BACKS ELLENBOGEN BIL

Vice-President Gorman Visions National Strike Unl Congress Enacts Measure Regulating Maximum Hours and Minimum Wages in Textile Industry.

Washington.—Vice-President Francis Gorman, of the United Textile workers of America, told the Keller subcommittee of the house of representatives labor committee that a national textile strike more comprehensive than the one in 1934 was sure to take place unless congress enacted the Ellenbogen bill designed to stabilize labor conditions in the industry.

Mr. Gorman made the prediction at the last of the two weeks' hearings held by the subcommittee on the bill, which fixes minimum wages for unskilled labor in the industry at $15 per week of 35 hours, minimum wages for clerical labor at $15 for a week of 40 hours, leaves wages for skilled workers to the determination of collective bargaining between union representatives and the management, and guarantees the right of the workers to organize in genuine trade unions without interference from employers.

The following five grounds were presented by Mr. Gorman as the underlying reasons for labor's support of the measure:

1. The labor standards established by the NRA code for the textile industry have largely broken down and are scheduled for a complete collapse that will inevitably re-establish the low wages and long hours which prevailed in 1932, prior to the code.

2. Mill managers are speeding up mill operations and thus creating an increasing army of jobless textile workers.

3. Employes in the textile industry are paid the lowest wages of those in any industry.

4. More and more employers are intimidating and persecuting employes for their trade union membership.

5. Mill owners are constantly increasing the hours of work, in some instances as much as 60 per cent.

Mr. Gorman declared that organized labor has indisputably demonstrated the need for federal legislation to control the textile industry. He charged that the figures on working conditions and mill operations presented by the manufacturers to show that NRA labor standards are being maintained are not only "unsound," but "biased" in their presentation.

"The Ellenbogen bill is not dictatorial," he said. "It is designed to bring about happiness in the industry. It will act as an entering wedge of emancipation for a large body of oppressed workers."

POLICY OF TOBACCO BIG FOUR FROM BEGINNING HAS BEEN TO PILE UP PROFITS FOR INSIDERS

By GEORGE L. KNAPP

Washington.—The consistent policy of the Big Four tobacco companies has been, first, to gouge its workers; second, to gouge the farmers; third, to charge the public all the traffic will bear; and fourth, to cozen, euchre, short-change, gyp and hornswoggle their own minor stockholders.

For example, the report of the commissioner of corporations on the American Tobacco company, its officers and chief stockholders, and what they did to the outsiders.

The Spanish-American war ran its course in 1898, but the taxes which it was to make live after them—for a time. The insiders of the American Tobacco company decided that the war tobacco tax would be repealed shortly. Prices, of course, could be kept up a while longer. The insiders decided to get that "gravy" for themselves.

Organized Holding Company.

They organized the Consolidated Tobacco company on June 5, 1901. This was purely a holding company, and virtually all the stock—first $30,000,000, then raised to $40,000,000—was held by the insiders. The Consolidated issued a vast quantity of bonds, bearing 4 per cent interest, and insiders used all their influence, position and power as officials and as holders of the big blocks of stock, to unload these bonds for the common stocks of the American and Continental Tobacco companies.

The extra tobacco tax was repealed, and the insiders cut one of the biggest and juiciest melons ever served. In 1902 they cleared $5,451,829 in dividends on this stock over the bond interest which they paid to those who were hornswoggled into trading it. In 1903 the insiders cleared $7,984,000 over and above that interest. In less than ten months of 1904 their profit was $4,078,093.

Tax Equalization Needed.

The Big Four cashed in a war tax boom, and they are trying to cash in on a "level tax" now.

The 10-cent cigarette, made by union labor, of tobacco bought at fair prices from farmers, is taxed as heavily as the 15-cent cigaretto made by the Big Four.

Congress knows this. The U. S. treasury understands that a lower tax on the 10-cent cigarette would produce a higher income for the government. But the Big Four are moving heaven and earth to keep congress from acting.

It is high time for union workers to tell their congressmen that the bill which lowers the tax on 10-cent cigarettes 10 per cent is needed now.

Sunday Closing Pledge Won By San Jose Clerks Union

San Jose, Cal.—As a result of an extensive campaign carried on by Retail Clerks' Union No. 428 a large proportion of the retail stores here have agreed to close Sundays and on six holidays during the year. The movement was supported by the Retail Grocers' association. Union officials reported that all important stores had signed the agreement which became effective on Feb. 16. On week days the stores will remain open from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Stamping Plant Ordered To Reinstate Employes

Discharge of Union Workers Led to Terre Haute General Strike—All Indiana Counties Now Free of Martial Law for First Time in 2 Years.

Indianapolis. — Reinstatement of union employes who walked out of the Columbian Enameling and Stamping company plant, Terre Haute, last March 23, has been ordered by the national labor relations board, Robert Cowdrill, regional director, announced.

The walkout precipitated a paralyzing general strike in Vigo county July 22. Martial law was declared in the area.

Following continued agitation by organized labor and the labor and socialist defense committee, Gov. Paul V. McNutt has lifted martial law in Vigo and Sullivan counties. This marks the first time in more than two years that there has not been at least one county in Indiana under martial law.

Gov. McNutt has gained the reputation of the "Hoosier Hitler" by his willingness to break strikes by declaration of martial law.

PENSION ACT NOW EFFECTIVE.

Austin, Tex.—The Texas old-age pension law, providing for payments up to $15 monthly to persons over 65, became effective on Feb. 13. State liquor taxes will furnish the funds. Payments are expected to begin by July 1. Orville S. Carpenter, executive director of pensions, said he anticipated between 200,000 and 300,000 applications, but that only about 50,000 would be eligible.

EDITORIAL WORKERS STRIKE ON HEARST MILWAUKEE NEWS

Milwaukee.—Editorial employes of William Randolph Hearst's Wisconsin News went on strike on Feb. 17.

Strikers, picketing the plant and displaying banners in front of the paper's advertisers, bore signs which read, "We are not rugged individualists."

Local officials of the American Newspaper Guild said an arbitration board of the News met with John Black, publisher, and was denied a contract calling for a five-day, 37½-hour week and a minimum wage scale.

Employes are asking a $30 a week minimum for reporters on a scale graded to $70 a week. They demand also that the publisher give either dismissal notices or a bonus for discharge. Workers also want an arbitration board.

Guild members announced the strike had full approval of the national executive board of the American Newspaper Guild and the board of the Milwaukee chapter.

Chattanooga Label League Meets Friday Night.

Chattanooga Label league will meet in regular session Friday night at 7:30 at the labor hall. Interest in the label league is growing rapidly now and President Ina Green especially urges all delegates and members to be present at our next meeting. We expect to have Tom Mahan, manager of the men's department of Lovemans, present at this meeting to make a short talk.

The meeting will be called to order promptly at 7:30. All locals are asked to have their delegates present and to give special invitations at their meetings to the members and their wives.

Lincoln Mills Strikers Need Labor's Help

Huntsville Bosses' Tactics Forced Workers to Walk Out.

Committeeman Tells Local Central Body of Conditions—Asks Locals to Contribute to Buy Food.

W. T. Adcock, one of the striking employes of the Lincoln mills in Huntsville, Ala., visited Central Body last Monday evening and laid the last Monday evening and laid the plight of his fellow unionists before it. Giving a complete resume of the tactics which the management of the mill had adopted in order to break up the union, Mr. Adcock said the textile unionists, 1,500 of them, decided that they either had to strike or give up their organization.

Workers making up to $17.00 per week under the code were reduced to $12.00 and less after NRA was declared out, and the management even went so far during county elections to herd their employes together and force them to vote according to instruction from the superintendents.

A very fine voluntary collection was taken up among the delegates to Central Body to help buy food for the women and children of the strikers, and a plea was made to the delegates to ask their locals to send a small contribution.

Mr. Adcock will be at the labor hall at 114 West Seventh street all day until Saturday, when he will return home. Contributions can be mailed Local Textile Union No. 1978, Huntsville, Ala., care of W. T. Adcock.

Plan for Labor Ticket Throughout Idaho Urged

Coeur D'Alene, Idaho.—A plan to put a complete labor ticket in the field in Idaho when the fall elections roll around was explained here in a recent talk by Robert Gore, president of the newly created General Laborers' union.

"We must have a labor candidate for every public office in state, county and city governments," Gore said.

Labor needs to become organized for both industrial and political purposes, said Gore, who is known throughout labor circles in the northwest for his vigorous attacks upon politicians whose policies are anti-union.

STRETCH-OUT PLAN CAUSES STRIKE OF MILL WORKERS

Gaffney, S. C.—Four hundred employes of the Alma mill here struck against an extension of the stretch-out plan by the mill management. The president of the mill said the plan merely provided a "few minor changes, made partly to enable us to meet competitive manufacturing costs and present market conditions." The workers objected to having more work imposed upon them in the interests of increased profits for the mill owners.

ROY BURT SAYS CIVIL LIBERTY IS IN DANGER

"No Disgrace to Be on Relief;" Flays System Causing Unemployment.

American Institutions Not to Be Saved by Loud Profession of Loyalty, But by Active Defense of Them.

The past four or five years has witnessed the greatest denial of civil liberties ever seen in America in peacetime, according to Roy Burt in a lecture to the Chattanooga Forum Wednesday night.

Drawing on his experiences as a coal miner, Methodist churchman and labor organizer, the speaker insisted that the constitutional guarantees of freedom of speech, freedom of press and freedom of assembly are being flagrantly violated and stand in danger of being totally lost to the masses.

Referring to the audience as a "cross section of the thinking people of Chattanooga, Dr. T. B. Cowan, pastor of the Third Presbyterian church, introduced Mr. Burt as "a man qualified by long experience and study to speak authoritatively on labor problems."

"American institutions and ideals will not be saved by any loud profession of loyalty to them," declared Mr. Burt. "Our liberties will not be taken from us—they will be surrendered, and indifference to coercion and abuse in any part of the country is the first step in that surrender."

Analyzing the forces he views as a menace to democracy, he defined democracy as "a goal—a condition toward which we are striving; a condition in which men shall be free, with restrictions imposed upon them only after their own mature deliberation and consent."

As among these forces, Mr. Burt reviewed a contemplated legislative program which "threatens the great basic rights of people." In this program is the Kramer sedition bill and the McCormick-Tydings act, which would open the way to dictatorship by forbidding any criticism of the army.

For his un-American activities in using militia to break lawful strikes, Gov. McNutt, of Indiana, was dubbed "the outstanding American example of Hitlerism." "Last May Gov. McNutt sat on a South Bend platform and heard President Roosevelt in an address on freedom of speech; on that date a labor union organizer spent his sixteenth day of illegal imprisonment without being allowed his constitutional right of advice by counsel, a right guaranteed even to murderers."

"We find violence practiced by the very groups which profess fear of a change by violence," asserted Mr. Burt. "During the 1934 general strike in California, the destructive vigilante committees were recruited from an organization which talks loudly of 'Americanism.' In the field of individual conflict liberty is being destroyed. Of the forty-three men killed in labor disturbances last year, forty-two were workers. Farmers and workers seeking a larger share of what they produce are forced by an array of violence."

Huey Long's "Share the Wealth" movement and Father Coughlan's "Union of Social Justice" were listed among the more dangerous threats to democracy. These movements are the result of social and economic conditions of insecurity, according to the speaker, and gain their following from people grown desperate from privation and unemployment. "It is

Norman Thomas, Socialist Leader, To Speak Here

Last Speaker on Forum Program Here Wednesday.

Norman Thomas, twice socialist candidate for president, will speak here on "Which Way America 1936-40?" as the final speaker in the League for Industrial Democracy discussion lecture series. Mr. Thomas will speak at the Chattanooga High auditorium on Wednesday, March 4, at 8 o'clock.

Mr. Thomas will analyze the needs of the American people and the prospects offered in the programs of the various political parties and leaders seeking election in 1936. In a recent radio speech over the Columbia Broadcasting system Mr. Thomas denied Al Smith's allegation that Roosevelt had adopted the socialist party platform. According to Mr. Thomas, "Mr. Roosevelt has taken pains to explain that he was not a socialist and that he was trying to support the capitalist system." Mr. Thomas said further that the new deal has involved none of the fundamental changes in our society in the form of social ownership, adequate security legislation and foreign policy insuring peace which socialists recognize as essential to a society guaranteeing social justice and security for all people. Mr. Thomas said that only the worst for the masses of Americans could be expected from the Liberty league, high priests of big business, or from the prejudiced reactionaries led by Gov. Talmadge, of Georgia. Nor did he see anything hopeful in the programs of the state's rights Senator Borah, or the republicanism of Gov. Landon.

Mr. Thomas knows economic, political and social conditions better than almost anyone in America. He has traveled in every section of the country, is intimately acquainted with the problems of the oppressed sharecroppers and agricultural workers in the south, whose cause he has repeatedly championed, and has personally investigated conditions among industrial workers and unemployed in most of the urban centers. He recently spoke at the memorial meeting held for Joseph Shoemaker, Florida socialist and unemployed leader who was brutally beaten and killed by the Ku Klux Klan in conjunction with police and political gangsters of Tampa, and has been instrumental in seeing the criminals brought to justice.

Mr. Thomas was born in Marion, O., received his education at Princeton university and the Union Theological seminary. In 1918 he left the ministry in order to carry on the fight against war. He was one of the founders of the American Civil Liberties union and has been for many years executive director of the League for Industrial Democracy.

WORKERS LOCKED OUT FOR JOINING UNION

Indiana, Pa.—One hundred workers in the Indiana Textile Mills company have been locked out of their jobs for joining the American Federation of Hosiery Workers, Herbert W. Payne, state representative of the federation, reports. He said 97 per cent of the mill employes are union members.

Payne characterized the mills as the No. 1 sweatshop of the country. He said wages were 50 per cent below the union scale, which is the standard scale even in non-union mills. No mill in the country pays lower wages, Payne said. He also declared the firm operated forty-eight hours a week in contrast with the forty hours prevalent in the rest of the industry.

Charges of violating the labor disputes act by interfering with the employes' right to organize have been filed against the company with the national labor relations board.

SUPREME COURT RULING POINT FOR NEW DEAL, BUT WHOLE TVA PROJECT REMAINS UNDER FIRE

Decision Upholding U. S. Right to Sell Power But Not Passing on Act's Validity Leads Administration Supporters to Say Attack Has Been Repulsed But No Advance Made.

Washington.—The decision of the supreme court in the TVA case is already much misunderstood in some quarters, and needs the most careful statement.

The supreme court in the TVA case ruled that the federal government had the constitutional authority to build the Wilson dam, to generate electric power at that dam. to sell the power thus generated, and to buy transmission lines over which the power could be carried to market.

But the Wilson dam is only a minor part of the TVA project; and all the rest remains in exactly the same position that it was before the court spoke. The court did not pass upon the constitutionality of the TVA act.

Decision Limited.

"We limit our decision to the case before us," says the opinion of the court, delivered by Chief Justice Hughes, on the last page of the document.

"The question of the constitutional right of the government to acquire or operate local or urban distribution systems is not involved. We express no opinion as to the validity of such an effort, as to the status of any other dam or power development in the Tennessee valley, whether connected with or apart from the Wilson dam, or as to the validity of the Tennessee Valley Authority act."

No New Deal Advance.

These are almost the last words of the opinion, and they make it entirely clear that, except for Wilson dam and perhaps some connected matters, the whole TVA project is left still under corporation fire.

"The new deal has repelled an attack on its position in the court's ruling," said a stanuch champion of the administration, "but it has not made any advance."

The decision was made by a majority of 8 to 1, Justice McReynolds dissenting. McReynolds is notoriously the most rigidly hostile to the new deal and all its works, and his dissent caused no surprise.

Four Back Concurring Opinion.

Four of the justices — Brandeis, Stone, Roberts and Cardozo—joined in a concurring opinion written by Mr. Justice Brandeis, which, while agreeing with the pronouncement of the court, hold that the case ought to have been dismissed without any reference to the constitutional question, as the parties who brought the suit had no right to bring it.

The facts back of this view are these: The Alabama Power company, through its officers and with the approval of its board of directors, agreed to sell to the TVA a part of its lines around Wilson dam. A handful of preferred stockholders brought suit to enjoin the sale, attacking the authority of the TVA in the suit.

Suit Held Unjustified.

"The plaintiffs who object," says Mr. Justice Brandeis, "own about one-three hundred and fortieth of the preferred stock . . . less than one-forty-fifth (1/45) in amount of the securities outstanding."

Mr. Justice Brandeis and the three other justices named take the ground that the suit should have been thrown out of court without going into the constitutionality of any part of the act. He quotes a long line of supreme court decisions to back up this oponion, closing with a decision given by Mr. Chief Justice White:

"One branch of the government cannot encroach on the domain of another without danger. The safety of our institutions depends in no small degree on a strict obeervance of this salutary rule."

Racine Auto Workers Win Union Shop, 40-Hour Week

Racine, Wis.—A good example of what a strong union and sensible management can do in establishing progressive labor relations is found in the agreement secured by Local 74, International Union of United Automobile Workers of America, with the Hexcel Radiator company here. The agreement starts off by naming the union committee as the sole bargaining agent for all employes in the plant with the provision that the company shall notify all new employes to this effect and that such employes "shall become members of the union within four weeks."

The agreement also provides for an eight-hour day and 40-hour week with a 7 per cent bonus for steady night work and time and one-half for all overtime prior to 10 o'clock p.m. Double time is paid for all overtime after 10 o'clock and for work on legal holidays and Sundays.

A binding arbitration agreement is included in the contract.

ADMINISTRATION PLANS BIG NORTHWEST PROJECT

Washington.—As if spurred by the partial victory in the supreme court on the TVA, the administration has made public a plan for a comprehensive development in the Pacific northwest. This plan is outlined in a report by the Pacific northwest regional planning commission, which includes representatives of Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana.

The plan proposes joint operation of the Bonneville and Grand Coulee projects of the federal government with the Seattle Skagia development; and provides for co-operation between states and the government.

It is pointed out that while the administration called for the reports, it has not yet adopted them; and considerable changes are expected.

CHARGES FILED WITH NLRB AGAINST TRACTION SYSTEM

Washington.—Charlton Ogburn, attorney for the Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes, has announced filing of charges against the Indianapolis Railways with the national labor relations board.

The charges, filed in Indianapolis, contended the railways system had fostered a company union and interfered with and discouraged membership of workers in the union.

GLASS PLANT STRIKE ENDS.

Bloomington, Ind.—Employes returned to work at the J. M. Nurre Glass company plant after settlement of a strike which began Feb. 10. The workers walked out in protest against installation of a new silvering machine which they charged caused dismissal of seven employes. R. M. Pilkington, conciliator of the U. S. department of labor, announced the company had acted within its contract with the glass workers.

Two negroes had not seen each other in five years discovered each had been married during this time.

The Way to Fight Communism

Mr. Chaillaux, sponsored by the American Legion, painted a terrifying picture last Friday evening at the auditorium when he recited the evils and activities of communism in America. The American Federation of Labor, being one of the objects for destruction by the communist party, and believing in our essential form of American government, is as much opposed to communism as is the legion, although we use better methods of opposition than does the legion.

The A. F. of L. says that to forever destroy communism conditions of life among the working masses must be improved. If the legion, instead of, or in addition to, organizing baseball teams, debating teams, or track teams, among the children of the working people, would use its powerful influence against the greedy and heartless industrialist, communism would vanish almost instantly.

Speaking of outside agitators coming into a community to foment communism, it would be well to remember that practically the entire foreign or alien element in this country was imported into the United States by the steel barons, who violated emigration laws of their country in order to man their mills with low-wage labor. Had they been content to employ American citizens at decent wages, there would not have been the necessity of the hue and cry now to deport those same aliens who are preaching overthrow of our government.

The truth of the matter is, the capitalist and industrialist is not loathe to see communism flourish to a certain extent. They hope that in their efforts to stamp out communism, using those efforts as a cloak, they can, in a sweeping gesture, brand the legitimate labor movement as communistic and eliminate it also, thus freeing the industrialist of every vestige of restraint against their nefarious wealth-gathering schemes.

We are not concerned about communism. The industrialist has plenty of room to be alarmed. We say to them, "You are reaping what you have been sowing. Stop fighting our efforts to make living conditions bearable for the worker and communism will perish for lack of fertile soil in which to plant its seeds of discontent."

Will It Be Done?

Labor has an opportunity to make itself respected in political circles in a constructive way. It has been general knowledge in the past that the labor vote could be very dangerous to candidates who had incurred labor's hatred, but we have never, or rarely ever, stuck together solidly enough to elect a friend.

As a result, most politicians have been careful to see that they do not openly antagonize labor by acts of their own, but at the same time they knew that this was as far as they needed to go.

Now that labor is attempting an experiment in forming labor's political conference to see if it can create an organization which labor will support by its allegiance, it is hoped that former dividing loyalties will be superseded.

It is admittedly an experiment. It will be a hard job. The political conference at first will not have the advantage of giving out political appointments to build a machine. Workers in the conference will be buoyed up with a faith that they are building up for better government and not personal gains. This is as it should be.

The conference cannot rely on the work of the officers of the new organization for success. Success must come from the wards and precincts in which each laboring man lives. Each worker is expected to get busy immediately in his own ward, report to his ward captain or lieutenant, and contact every union man and friend in his ward, seeing that they are registered, qualified to vote and do vote.

Building itself upon principles rather than boodle is a terrifying task, but surely the labor movement is honest enough with itself to do that very thing by uniting itself at the polls as earnestly as it has done in the past at the picket lines in the face of starvation, guns, deputy sheriffs and injunctions.

What Next!

A new process for fireproofing wood has just been announced. In approving it, Underwriters' Laboratories, Inc., reports that lumber treated by the new process can be worked easily, takes paint and varnish and seems equal to untreated wood but is so fire-resistant that it stands as a barrier against fire and prevents its passage.

TEACHER TALK

LOCAL 246, A. F. of T.

BOARD MEETING MONDAY

The regular meeting of the board of directors will be held at Room 301, Y. M. C. A., Monday at 7 o'clock.

TEACHERS MUST REGISTER

It is the duty of every federation teacher to qualify himself to vote in the forthcoming election by registering. If you have not done so, do so this very minute!

PRESIDENT AND WIFE TO JASPER

Our president, Stanton E. Smith, and his worthy consort, Mrs. Nancy Lea Smith, have been invited to address Marion county teachers on Friday evening of this week. Mr. and Mrs. Smith have accepted. Their subject will be "The Role of the American Federation of Teachers in the Promotion of Better Schools."

LABOR QUESTIONNAIRE OUT

Labor's Political conference sent out questionnaires on Wednesday of this week to the various candidates for justices of the peace. Some of the questions of particular interest to teachers included positions of the candidates on the salary schedule bill, teacher tenure, nine months' school term, free textbooks for all city and county schools, modern transportation facilities, a retirement plan for teachers, and adequate, up-to-date supervision.

Questions of more general interest to labor included positions on a constitutional convention, the sales tax, adequate hospitalization facilities and union wages for all city and county employes.

Replies will be coming in shortly, it is expected.

SUPPORT THE UNION LABEL

Union teachers ought to demand the union label. We should become more union-label conscious. It is not possible perhaps to get union-made goods in all cases, but wherever possible that should be an important consideration. The union label indicates that the article was made by a firm that maintained reasonably decent working conditions and paid fairly adequate wages at least.

COUNTS ON LABOR AFFILIATION

Professor George S. Counts, of Columbia university, told the N. E. A. convention, "The schools, beyond any doubt, must represent the mass of the people, and in the conflict between labor and capital—between the people and the privileged interests—they must align themselves with the cause of labor."

A STIMULATING PERIODICAL

Every union teacher should read "The Social Frontier." The editorials are always timely and stimulating, especially at a time with teachers' oaths in the air, fascism at the threshold, and so many controversial questions concerning the content of courses and the methods of instruction.

The John Dewey page is always worthwhile, and the aforementioned Professor Counts is no mean editorializer.

NO HUMDRUM AFFAIR

The present N. E. A. convention is no suitable place for a bored educator to take a nice, restful snooze. Significant, challenging addresses have been the order of the day. Professors Newlons, Counts and Beard have met contemporary issues with forthright courage and frankness. They are doing a highly commendable piece of work in awakening teachers to the threats to democracy offered by the forces of ignorance, fanaticism and reaction.

Wisdom

It must be remembered that legislators are the ultimate guardians of the liberties and welfare of the people in quite as great a degree as the court.—Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes.

(With more apologies)

There was a man in our town,
And he was wondrous wise,
He said, "If you would get the best
You'd better organize."

There was another fellow there
Who said, "You'd better wait
For if you join a union now
You're sure to get the gate."

So in this town we sat and stayed
And waited day by day,
We did not join the union, but
We got fired anyway.

Johnson City Notes

R. B. Williams and J. C. Campbell, of Greenville, Tex., plan to open a bottling plant in this city at an early date. They will serve as distributors for the nationally-known "Dr. Pepper" beverages. The plant will be located at the corner of King and Boone streets and will serve upper East Tennessee and southwest Virginia.

"We were favorably impressed with Johnson City and this section when we visited it several months ago," Mr. Williams said in commenting on their plans, "and we picked Johnson City in preference to several other Tennessee cities." Mr. Williams is a former member of the barbers' union and was a visitor at a recent meeting of the Johnson City Central Labor union and has always been a friend of organized labor.

Members of Johnson City's "clearing house" of all civic clubs at a meeting last week adopted by-laws and the organization will be known as the "Community Civic Council." The meeting was held in the chamber of commerce in the John Sevier hotel building.

Officers elected at the mass meeting were: George Oldham, of the Rotary club, president; Rev. W. F. Blackard, of the ministerial association, as vice-president, and James Coad, secretary of the chamber of commerce, as secretary. Miss Alice Whitson, president of the Business and Professional Woman's club, with Dr. J. T. McFadden, Optimist club president, were chosen with the three above on the board of directors.

Various committees of the council to carry on the work will be appointed at the regular meeting of the organization March 10.

Organized labor is represented on the council by President D. C. Long and Secretary W. G. Hart, of the Central Labor union.

Members of the committees appointed by E. A. Coleman to handle affairs of the Washington County Safety council was announced last week. The meeting was opened by Miss Mae Ross, reading the minutes of the previous meeting, which included a resolution adopted by the council at a previous meeting favoring automobile inspection and licensing of drivers as a means of curbing motor fatalities in this city and county.

President D. C. Long, of the Johnson City Central Labor union, is representing organized labor in the council and is serving on the exhibit committee with Harry Smith, James Coad, W. G. Allison and Lawrence Nave.

Serg. N. Y. Pace, of the highway patrol, and other state highway patrolmen have been instrumental in launching this movement and report that a large number of safety posters will be on display at an early date, and that a sound truck will be used to aid in the campaign to make the streets and highways safer.

A letter was read in the meeting from W. G. Hart, secretary of the Johnson City Central Labor union, saying that all organizations in Washington county would aid in the campaign to make the drive successful.

Erwin.—The meeting and banquet of the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters, No. 103, in this city last Wednesday night was a big success, with over 100 attending the banquet served in the Y. M. C. A. building by the ladies of the organization. The meeting was in charge of President Shell Johnson. The committee on arrangements for the banquet was headed by John Reynolds.

Prayer was offered by Edward Thompson.

A musical program and recitations were given by the following: Miss Charlotte Fortune, aged 9; Miss Jeanette Norton, aged 6, and Miss Irene Mosser, aged 10.

Officials of the Johnson City Central Labor union attending the meeting were: D. C. Long, W. H. Lacey and W. G. Hart.

no disgrace to be unemployed and on relief," the speaker insisted. "The disgrace lies in being content with a system which makes unemployment inevitable."

Expressing distrust for members of the "upper class" who would "take care of" the working man, Mr. Burt avered that any forfeiture of power to an individual or a group constitutes a threat to democracy.

"Coughlin offers security without coming to grips with conditions which cause the lack of it. He paradoxically believes in production for use and production for profit. He is against usury but for interest. His program is a hodge-podge of vague and indefinite promises.

"Any program which asks for a blind following is dangerous. The masses of the people pay with want and suffering for whatever mistakes are made, so let them have the privilege of making a few of them."

"If we could get rid of the Liberty league, Father Coughlin and the rest, we have not removed the threats to democracy. We must remove the conditions out of which these movements naturally grow or democracy must yield."

Lady Took Cardui When Weak, Nervous

"I can't say enough for Cardui if I talked all day," enthusiastically writes Mrs. L. H. Caldwell, of Statesville, N. C. "I have used Cardui at intervals for twenty-five years," she adds. "My trouble in the beginning was weakness and nervousness. I read of Cardui in a newspaper and decided right then to try it. It seemed before I had taken half a bottle of Cardui I was stronger and was soon up and around."

Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

ORGANIZED LABOR'S PLAN FOR $500,000,000 FEDERAL HOUSING GETS SUPPORT

Washington Conference Urges U. S. Housing Authority to Take Charge of Nation-wide Construction Program for Low-Income Groups.

Washington, D. C.—A large-scale national housing program, including the establishment of a new federal housing authority, government subsidies for low-cost housing designed to meet the needs of persons with relatively small incomes, and a two-year appropriation of $500,000,000 to finance the plan, was unanimously adopted at a conference here consisting of representatives of nineteen building trades organizations, the American Federation of Labor Housing Committee, and a number of members of Congress.

M. J. McDonough was chairman of the meeting. Others present included William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor; Senator Robert F. Wagner, who is sponsoring a housing bill; Representatives Henry Ellenbogen of Pennsylvania, Reuben T. Wood of Missouri, and Edward R. Curley of New York, and Miss Catherine Bauer, representing the National Housing Conference.

The plan which the conference unanimously adopted was proposed by the American Federation of Labor Housing Committee, consisting of Harry C. Bates, president of the Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers' International Union; John Coefield, president of the United Association of Plumbers and Steam Fitters, and M. J. Colleran, president of the Plasterers' International Association. The committee was instructed to submit the program to President Roosevelt and members of Congress.

Houses for Low-Income Families

The conference emphasized the paramount importance of developing a "clear-cut, permanent national public housing program designed to improve workers' living conditions, re-employ building workers at fair wages in productive work, and broaden and stabilize the potential market of the building industry."

"The housing problem, as we see it," the conference said, "comes down to one simple question: How can an adequate supply of decent new housing be built for families with annual incomes of $1,500, $1,000 and less? This group comprises from half to two-thirds of the population today, and even in 1929 the vast majority of skilled industrial workers earned less. Bad living conditions will continue, the residential building industry will remain a speculative 'luxury trade,' and an extreme housing shortage will be unavoidable unless this question is answered in the near future."

Local Union 226 Passes Resolution of Sympathy for Bereaved Brother.

F. S. Thurston, respected member of Painters and Decorators' Union No. 226, and several times a delegate to Central Body, was bereaved last Friday afternoon when his wife, Mrs. Fred Thurston, passed away after a short illness. Mrs. Thurston is survived by her husband; a daughter, Mrs. Chester Fraley; one son, Edward Thurston; a sister, Mrs. Maude Beavers; two brothers, W. A. and J. B. Hunt; one grandchild, Billy Fraley, all of Chattanooga.

She was a member of Alton Park Baptist church for fourteen years.

Expressing sympathy for its stricken brother, Local 226 formally expressed itself as follows:

"Whereas, in His supreme wisdom, Almighty God has seen fit to summons the wife of Frank Thurston, one of our most respected and beloved brothers, taking her to her reward after a short illness; and,

"Whereas, in bowing to the will of our God in humble submission, every heart in this local fills with grief and sympathy with Brother Thurston; Therefore, be it

The Labor World joins with Local 226 and Brother Thurston in their moment of sorrow and expresses its sympathy to them.

VOTE FOR LABOR

PRESIDENT IS WINNER OVER BOB TILLMAN

Union Men to Call on City Officials.

MISS MURRAY ELECTED

Rosengren, Strong, Pitts Swept In.

Memphis, Tenn.—Rolling up a total of 204 votes to 48 for his opponent, R. S. McCann was returned to the presidency of the Memphis Trades and Labor council at its annual election held Thursday night at the Labor Temple on Beale avenue, defeating Robert Tillman, of the Typographical union, who aspired for the presidency.

McCann is president of the Tennessee Federation of Labor and is a member of the Bricklayers' union. McCann was given a rousing reception after his election, with hundreds gathering around the rostrum to shake his hand and wish him well. President McCann, in a brief statement, said he was gratified at his re-election, and said that it proved beyond a doubt that union labor in Memphis desired no outside interference in its affairs.

Tillman Pledges Support.

The defeated candidate, Bob Tillman, wished President McCann a successful administration, and pledged his support to the cause of harmony in the ranks of union labor in Memphis. Tillman was given a big cheer after his remarks.

Other candidates elected for the coming year were George (Jiggs) Rosengren, first vice-president; John Strong, second vice-president; George B. McNamara, third vice-president; D. A. Pitts, financial secretary-treasurer; A. D. Brown, corresponding secretary; Miss Helen Murray, assistant secretary, and J. L. Johnson, sergeant-at-arms. McNamara, Pitts, Brown and Johnson were unopposed.

The election of Miss Murray as assistant secretary marked the first time in the forty-nine years of the council's existence that a woman had been chosen for office. She is head of the Cosmetic Workers' union in Memphis, which was recently formed.

Following the election, many talks were made, one by First Vice-President Rosengren, who said the results of the election would leave no doubt in the minds of outsiders that organized labor in Memphis is thoroughly capable of carrying out its own elections.

Will Visit Officials.

The council voted to send a delegation Saturday morning to see Commissioner Cliff Davis and Mayor Watkins Overton, of the city of Memphis, on behalf of the fifteen discharged firemen in an effort to get them returned to their jobs. R. L. Kerr offered the motion, which was seconded by J. H. Devinney. Both are members of the Switchmen's union.

The delegates from the various unions have been called to meet at the Labor Temple at 9 o'clock Saturday morning and will go in a body from there to the city hall to call on the city officials.

Those who have been active in council affairs for a long time, said the attendance was the largest in the history of the council. The usual attendance at these elections is around seventy-five. Last night's affair brought out 252 delegates and equally as maiy visitors. There are over fifty unions affiliated with the trades and labor council, and each union is entitled to five delegates. The balloting is done secretly.

16 Strike Pickets Arrested

Boston.—Sixteen members of a "flying squadron" of pickets were arrested following a clash with operatives at a Cambridge plant. The clash occurred outside the Cosmopolitan Manufacturing company, where only about 75 of the 300 employes reported for work.

The pickets were arrested on loitering charges.

JOBLESS INCREASED 1,229,000 IN JANUARY, A. F. OF L. SAYS

Unemployed Now Number 12,626,000, President Green Declares—Lengthened Hours Have Deprived Workers of 1,000,000 Possible Jobs in Six Months.

Washington — Unemployment has recently struck 1,229,000 more workers, increasing the jobless army from 11,397,000 to 12,626,000, according to the statement on unemployment made public by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor.

As a major element entering into this large addition to America's out-of-works Mr. Green cited the lengthening of the work week in industry three hours during the last half of 1935.

"Unemployment increased more in January, 1936, than in any other January for the last five years, according to the estimate of the American Federation of Labor," Mr. Green said. "Between December, 1935, and January, 1936, unemployment rose from 11,397,000 to 12,626,000, an increase of 1,229,000. Unemployment always rises in January, but last year the increase was only 699,000 and the last time there has been an increase approaching that of this year was in January, 1931, when 1,328,000 were added to the unemployed."

"How much of this employment loss is due to lengthening of work hours is not yet possible to tell," Mr. Green continued. "It seems probable that longer hours have been an important factor, for records covering the months from July to December, 1935 show that the work-week in industry generally has been lengthened by three holrs and that as a consequence more than 1,000,000 possible jobs were lost. Undoubtedly this movement to lengthen hours instead of employing men, which followed termination of NRA, has continued into January and accounts in part for the present situation. This point is further discussed in the American Federationist for March.

Industry Shirks Responsibility.

"Another important factor was the slackening of manufacturing operations in January this year. When industry operates without control every decline in operations means a loss of thousands of jobs. Manufacturing industries this year laid off 130,000 while in January, 1935, they took on 13,000. In retail trade lay-offs following the Christmas season affected 50,000 more persons this year than last. In agriculture the fall layoffs appear to have cost 68,000 more jobs this year.

"The fact that we thus lost ground in a number of industries in January, following as it does the loss of over a million possible jobs in the last half of 1935, augurs ill for the future. It indicates that industry is making no determined effort to put the unemployed to work and is quite willing to shirk all responsibility for them. Under such conditions even the continuing production gains we hope for this spring will do little to restore the millions of jobs needed."

NLRB ORDERS EMPLOYES' VOTE IN BENDIX PLANT

Washington.—The national labor relations board on Jan. 29 directed an election to be held in the big South Bend, Ind., plant of the Bendix Products corporation. An injunction proceeding on petition of the Bendix corporation to Federal District Judge John P. Barnes, northern district of Illinois, has postponed the conduct of the election. Robert B. Watts, associate general counsel of the board, argued before Judge Barnes on Feb. 11 that the injunction proceedings should be dismissed. Judge Barnes has the case under advisement. In event that Judge Barnes should dismiss the proceedings, the board will set an early date for the election.

Union Head Raps Photo-Engraving Plant in Prison

Continuance of San Quentin Department in Which Counterfeit Money Was Made Is Indefensible, Edward J. Volz Declares.

New York City.—Continuance of the photo-engraving plant in California's San Quentin prison, following recent disclosure that counterfeit money was made in the plant, is denounced as "indefensible" by Edward J. Volz, president of the International Photo-Engravers Union of North America.

Investigation revealed that the spurious money was smuggled out of the prison and placed in circulation in several places. A cache in which the plates from which the false money was printed, as well as $9,500 in counterfeit bills was found in the ceiling of the prison engraving department.

"Repeated protest," President Volz said in a message to the membership of his union, "have been made in regard to the installation of the San Quentin plant and its continued operation by the inmates of the institution, while attention has time and time again been called to the danger of imparting knowledge of the photo-engraving process to those who, while insufficiently trained to secure employment in a photo-engraving establishment after release, would still craftily and clandestinely ply the knowledge secured in a manner detrimental insofar as counterfeiting is concerned."

President Volz declared those responsible for the installation and operation of the photo-engraving plant are to blame for what happened and declares they should be held to account. He added:

"If any additional reasons were necessary why penal institutions should be prohibited from dabbling in photo-engraving and permitting those with criminal tendencies to become familiar with this process, the experience at San Quentin should be sufficient for action. If proper steps are not taken to dismantle this and other photo-engraving plants similarly located, we must of necessity suspect those responsible of ulterior or selfish motives and be guided accordingly in our future efforts.

"The training of prisoners and those with criminal tendencies in the proper manipulation of a machine gun, the expert picking of a lock, the careful jimmying of a second story window, the proper way of building a fire in the hallway or attic, would be just as defensible as to provide them with opporeunity to become expert counterfeiters.

"It is time that those responsible realized that it is better to prevent crime than to detect and ferret out criminals."

EDUCATORS GO ON RECORD AGAINST 'LOYALTY OATHS'

Big St. Louis Parley Sounds Liberal Keynote; Reactionaries Hit by Delegates.

BEARD RAPS HEARST

Liberty League, D. A. R., Al Smith and Former Legion Head Are Under Fire.

St. Louis.—There was a time when the National Education association was regarded as an extremely conservative organization, but there is little in the proceedings of its national convention here to sustain that reputation.

The march of liberalism has never been better illustrated than in the delegates' fearless, frank and pungent handling of repressive, reactionary and anti-social elements.

Efforts to restrict academic freedom by requiring "loyalty oaths" and similar measures have aroused the teachers to a high degree of indignation and revolt. They have adopted with shouts resolutions denouncing William Randolph Hearst, Frank Belgrano, former head of the American Legion; Alfred E. Smith, the Daughters of the American Revolution and the American Liberty league.

These groups and individuals were charged with combining in an effort to destroy both American ideals and freedom in schools. More than a thousand teachers rose and cheered the indictment.

In the space available it is impossible to review all the speeches of distinguished educators warning against "subversive and notoriously dishonest" propaganda designed to deprive the people of the "rights granted them by the Declaration of Independence." Labor readers, however, will get a fairly accurate idea of the temper of this great gathering from the remarks of Dr. Charles A. Beard, eminent historian and author.

In a telegram to Gov. Alf M. Landon, of Kansas, a republican presidential possibility, Dr. Beard asked:

"Are you proud to be sponsored by William Randolph Hearst?"

Recalls T. R.'s Charge.

Commenting on the telegram, Dr. Beard recalled charges of Elihu Root and Theodore Roosevelt that Hearst's "reckless utterances inflamed the assassin of President McKinley."

"Every scoundred like Hearst and his satellites," Dr. Beard quoted Theodore Roosevelt as having said, "who for whatever purpose appeals to evil human passions, has made himself an accessory before the fact to crimes of this nature."

Dr. George S. Counts, of Teachers' college, Columbia university, contended that Hearst was trying to control the schools by "his dishonest attempt to libel the colleges of the country as communist," and added:

Fights Union Labor.

"This same Hearst has a salary larger than any other person in the country. He fights income taxes and prefers a sales tax which rests heavily upon the poor. As employer of thousands, he fights unions and union labor."

Dr. Counts said that Belgrano, former Legion commander, "would have Legion members used as strikebreakers in open violence against the laboring men." Of the Daughters of the American Revolution, the New York educator said "their patriotism is a combination of thinly-veiled snobbery and protection of privilege."

The American Liberty league, Dr. Counts said, "thinks the American revolution was fought to make Long Island safe for polo players."

With a single dissenting vote, the department of superintendents called for permanent federal aid of public schools and ordered the drafting of a bill for early presentation to congress asking $300,000,000 annually for the purpose.

All-Southern WPA and Relief Workers' Conference Set for March 22.

Congressman Lundeen and Other Prominent Speakers Slated to Appear—All Building Trades Invited.

Hod Carriers and Laborers' Union No. 846 has for some time conducted a campaign to raise the WPA wage scale from the fourth and lowest wage area to the second and much higher scale. This campaign finally resulted in a delegation from the local union, representing every organization of WPA workers in Tennessee, going to Washington to lay the case for higher southern wage schedule and against discrimination directly before the highest authorities in the WPA.

The delegation was informed that the WPA had considered the south as satisfied with the $19 and $30 monthly scale for common labor, and that the delegation was the first sign that they had directly received of dissatisfaction with present WPA wages. The group was made to feel that a southwide movement for higher scale alone could force a reclassification of the entire southern area, it is reported.

In agreement with the communication of the Building Trades Department of the A. F. of L. to all building trades councils of No. 14 it is claimed "Our patience has been exhausted and it is up to the membership throughout the country to act.

Setting Examples and Garnishments

News story in one of last week's dailies gives a statement from Commissioner T. H. McMillan, head of city schools, to the effect that he frowns on failure of some of his teachers in avoiding garnishments on their salaries for debts. Mr. McMillan said that teachers being garnisheed stood in danger of being relieved of their posts of duty, broadening his warning with the pronouncement that school teachers compose one group of citizenship that must set an example by meeting their obligations.

This paper agrees with Mr. McMillan that school teachers, as well as every self-respecting being, should not willfully evade obligation rightfully or legally imposed upon them. With the meager salaries that teachers receive, and the standards of living and other expenses incurred in that profession, we ofttimes wonder that all teachers are not in a perpetual state of garnishment.

While issuing his demand on the teachers that they meet their obligations and thereby set an example, we look with interest to see if the commissioner will set his teachers a good example for meeting obligations by paying these teachers the salaries imposed on his department by law.

The example set thus far has certainly not been encouraging to the teachers who have been enjoined to meet their obligations. We suggest that those teachers garnisheed meet with their commissioner and form a mutual reproach committee to search their respective souls, and then let the ones without guilt cast the first stone.

The Passing Show

Note and Comment on Things Doing in the March of Events

The senate munitions committee made a spectacular finish to its amazing investigation. It carried the inquiry straight into the sale by our own war department of discarded and superseded guns. It showed that the vultures of the munitions trade look to these sales as regular sources of supply.

For example, Jacob Parley, of New York, testified that in August, 1933, he bought from the war department at Schenectady, N. Y., machine guns for which he paid 12 cents each. He got for $1,500 guns which had cost the government more than $1,660,000. These guns were "mutilated" before being sold; but the evidence showed that they could be easily reassembled. And weapons singularly like these have appeared in South American uprisings.

It will pay to give a few details. Among the guns which Paley got were 3,334 Colt-Marlins and 500 Hotchkiss machine guns. There was nothing whatever wrong with them; They were not quite up-to-date in the matter of mass murder, and the war department wants the latest developments in this line. But there is not the slightest doubt that half these guns would have turned battle into route if used on either side of the international and domestic outbreaks which have occurred in South America since the sale.

Other tales were told before the committee. One involved our neighbor, Canada. The Canadian government sold a patrol boat for $18,000; and it was resold to Brazilian rebels for $50,000.

A hundred machine guns were sold to Brazilian insurrectoes in 1932 for $49,000. On this basis, the guns which Paley bought for $1,500 would have brought $2,940,000.

There is nothing new about this. In one of the last of our Indian wars, American soldiers were killed with American rifles which had been bought in this country—no one knows all the details—by speculators in slaughter, and sent to the Apaches by a double bit of smuggling over the Mexican line.

And of course, one must never forget that J. P. Morgan, the elder, belonged to a syndicate which bought discarded carbines at the opening of the Civil war, sold them to the government for several times their cost, though they were so defective that they blew off the thumbs of the soldiers who fired them.

There are no morals in the munitions business.

Take It or Leave It!

Items of More or Less Interest Picked Up From Various Sources

CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

No matter what any person may think is wrong, there is this great big truth: This newspaper, not a very big newspaper as American newspapers go, can say exactly and fully whatever it cares to say, so long as it does not transgress the libel laws. And even on the matter of libel, it can get a jury trial and perhaps get away with it.

This newspaper is free. And so is every newspaper in the United States, so far as government is concerned. Consider then, that not a single newspaper in Italy, in in Germany or in Russia is free, even in the least degree. That is something to think about.

This newspaper has a freedom not enjoyed by any newspaper, no matter how great, in three of the great nations of the world. And there is an equally complete lack of freedom in a dozen lesser nations. There is likewise freedom of speech. Any reader of this newspaper can hire a hall and say just about anything he likes about the government, local, state or national. And communists in New York's Union Square can call for its complete overthrow. For that nobody gets shot, or even arrested.

That could not be done in Italy, or in Russia, or in Germany, or in a dozen or more lesser countries, including Poland and Greece. Something to think about, that is. Something to remember.

More than that. There is an equal freedom of assembly—and it is certain there is freedom to petition. The right of habeas corpus still works—sometimes it seems to work overtime to "spring" racketeers. And there is plenty of freedom for judges, although for the moment that is beside the point. The point is that the great basic rights are still on duty in the United States. If you will stop a minute and think you will observe that these rights can exist only where there is stability of government resting upon popular sanction. Thus it turns out that the United States is sound politically. Red soap boxers forget that.

Remember these elements of freedom. This newspaper can print freely; you can speak freely; our neighbors can assembly; we can all tell government what we want, as the veterans did. We have jury trials—freedom against wanton jailing. Abuses? Yes, of course; some pretty bad ones. But that doesn't change the main fact. Sometimes engines go off the track, but the main fact is that trains run daily, pretty generally on time.

And so, these are things to keep in mind. We have these things that go to make up freedom—freedom even to be foolish, to make mistakes and to find our democratic, muddling way through to the highest goal we can envision. What stops us?

WPA CONTRACTORS TO GO DIRECT TO UNIONS FOR ORGANIZED LABOR

Washington, D. C.—Harry L. Hopkins, WPA administrator, has issued an order enabling WPA contractors to requisition organized workers direct from union ranks rather than go first to the United States Employment Service. The order, issued to end delays in getting WPA workers, is as follows:

"1. The term 'project' as used herein shall mean a project or portion of a project financed, in whole or in part, from funds allotted to the Federal Emergency Administration of Public Works from funds appropriated by the Emergency Relief Appropriation Act of 1935.

"2. When organized labor, skilled or unskilled, is desired by any contractor employed to handle all or any part of a project the contractor shall requisition such workers as may be required from the representative of each recognized union concerned.

"3. The representative of the union will select union members for work on the project giving preference, first to those members of the union who are on the local public relief rolls; second, upon exhaustion of union members on such rolls, to any other members of the union.

"4. Actual assignment of these workers to projects thereafter will be the responsibility of the Works Progress Administration."

GUILD ORGANIZER CONFIDENT OF MILWAUKEE STRIKE VICTORY

His optimism is based upon the spontaneous support given by the local labor movement and citizens generally of Milwaukee following the walkout.

The Wisconsin News is a Hearst daily newspaper, of which Herman Black is the managing editor. Black refused to negotiate a contract either written or verbal. His entire attitude indicated that he was acting on orders received from William Randolph Hearst.

Besides a daily picket line maintained in front of the plant, there were mass demonstrations on two occasions.

Telegrams of encouragement were received from United States Senator Benson of Minnesota, and from Congressmen Amlie of Wisconsin, Marcantonio of New York and Scott of California.

The charge was made in a letter sent to the NLBR, President Roosevelt, Secretary of Labor Perkins and Senator Robert F. Wagner.

Citing a long record of evasion of the law by the El Paso Electric company and unsatisfactory handling of the union complaint by the NLRB, President Tracy served notice that the international and local unions were withdrawing the case from the jurisdiction of the labor board. "We will undertake to protect our interests as best we can without the doubtful assistance of the board and its legal department," Tracy announced.

NRA PAY AND HOUR SCALES SCRAPPED BY 1,448 FIRMS

Federal Survey Finds 405,000 Employes of Concerns Holding Government Contracts Had Wages Reduced or Hours Increased After Supreme Court Held Recovery Act Unconstitutional.

A total of 1,448 firms holding government contracts and employing 405,000 workers did not maintain the wage and hour provisions of the NRA codes after the United States Supreme Court declared the National Industrial Recovery Act was unconstitutional, according to a survey by the Federal Contract Division of the NRA.

The figures were submitted to the Department of Labor and Representative Arthur D. Healy, chairman of the house judiciary subcommittee, which is planning to hold hearings on the Walsh bill authorizing the inclusion of provisions for maintaining specified wages and hour standards in

The investigation covered 3,507 firms holding contracts for government work. A total of 147 firms with 132,699 employes refused to make replies to the government's questionnaire. Maintenance of code wages and hour schedules was reported for 1,912 concerns employing about 977,000 persons.

With regard to wages the survey found that 1,480 companies reduced code rates and that 1,821 maintained them. Wage reductions of 10 per cent or more were imposed on their employes by 635 concerns, and cuts of less than 10 per cent were decreed by 845 concerns.

Code hours were increased by 1,309 companies and maintained by 2,127 companies. Increases of 15 per cent or more were made by 505 companies, while 804 companies limited the increase to less than 15 per cent.

The figures in the survey were arranged by industries. It was limited to companies with whom the government had contractural dealings under the NRA.

A preacher, as he looked over his large congregation last Easter Sunday morning, said: "I realize that there are many here who will not be with us again until next Eastertime. I take this opportunity of wishing them a very Merry Christmas."

LABOR'S POLITICAL CONFERENCE

All local unions take notice. These checks must be paid in by March 15, 1936.

MORE ABOUT WPA SCALE

Demonstrations should be made in whatever way you deem most effective. Meetings should be held and joint action taken—to convince the administration—that you mean what you say when you demand the prevailing scale of wages on these projects. Further delay will only be a waste of time."

Local Union 846, therefore, together with practically all organizations of WPA and relief workers in Tennessee, is sponsoring an all-southern WPA and relief workers' conference at Chattanooga, Tenn., on Sunday, March 22.

The purpose of this conference will be to discuss ways and means of developing a southwide movement against the discrimination shown by the position of the southern states in the third and fourth wage regions of WPA as against the placing of the other parts of the country in the highest first and second wage regions.

Together with this major question of raising the entire southern area into the second wage category, the conference proposes to discuss the ways of attaining trade union rates for all skilled work on WPA projects, and of preventing the closing down of the WPA program by the end of June.

They extend to every organization the most urgent invitation to select responsible delegates, empowered to speak for the membership in making what may well be some very far-reaching and important decisions concerning the best means of attaining just consideration.

A tentatively arranged mass meeting at Memorial auditorium Saturday night, March 21, is set to welcome the delegations. Speakers have been invited, among them Congressman Lundeen, together with a representative of the national offices of the Hod Carriers and Common Laborers' union, the national unemployment councils and the workers' alliance, as well as prominent local trade union leaders and incoming delegates.

The conference proper will be held at the Hamilton county court house in Chattanooga starting at 10 a.m. sharp Sunday, March 22, and will go through the entire day, ending by 6 p.m. The tentative demands are as follows:

1. Second wage rating for all southern states now in third and fourth WPA regions.

2. Trade union and prevailing rates of wages for all skilled work on WPA.

3. Against closing of WPA. For its continuation under above conditions.

4. For the passage of the Frazier-Lundeen "workers' social insurance bill," and the Mercantonio "relief and works project standards bill."

It is strongly urged that immediate reply indicating which organizations will participate in the conference.

Company Towns Foe of Labor's Freedom, Mrs. Roosevelt Says

Washington.—Opposition to company towns as sapping the worker's ability to think, plan and act for themselves is expressed by Mrs Franklin D. Roosevelt, in an article written expressly for the United Mine Workers' Journal, official organ of the United Mine Workers of America.

Mrs. Roosevelt says that she believes wives of working men should do all in their power to abolish company towns and company stores. "No matter how good the employers' intention may be, the ultimate result is bad when people are not free to develop themselves," she writes.

In her article, the president's wife said:

"After the Napoleonic wars, it was found that Europe was overrun with itinerant peddlers because soldiers who were discharged had spent so many years in the army under direction that they really could not organize themselves into any kind of existence where initiative and management were necessary.

"Much the same thing, it seems to me, occurs when human beings live for too long a time in company towns, whether they be mining towns or mill towns. The mere fact that they have no choice as to where and how they will live, that they have no real choice as to where they will buy, destroys initiative.

"If the employer is interested he may provide a certain amount of recreation, some extra educational facilities, but the mere fact that these are given and not planned for and arranged by the workers themselves does in the long run a harmful thing, until gradually this type of life saps the people's initiative.

"It seems to me that the wives of the working men should do all within their power to do away with what is ordinarily known as the company town and the company store. They should come together in a group and consult as to what they can do to help the community as a whole by realizing that their value as human beings is to develop their own personalities and make their own special contribution to society, and that children and grown people should be allowed to plan their own lives and do the things which give them satisfaction. They should try to get the school to help in doing this, not only for the children but for themselves. They should try to make the pattern of their own lives rather than to let it be made for them."

You know whose wife: Do you know that you haven't kissed me for six weeks?

Professor (who is very absent-minded)—Good heavens, whom have I been kissing then?

MORE ABOUT HOUSING

not reach the real problem "as long as its housing agencies are on a temporary, emergency work-relief basis," the conference insisted on the establishment of a new National Public Housing Authority, set up in corporate form with a three or five-man board on which both labor and consumers will be represented.

The authority would have control over all large-scale low-rent housing and would be empowered not only to engage in slum clearance, but to assist in building houses on vacant property.

Convenient Housing Locations

Housing for industrial workers, the conference declared, should in general be located "within easy reach of a variety of work opportunities, and projects must not be set up on the basis of 'part-time' industry and compulsory gardening. In isolated areas 'subsistence homesteads' merely extend the feudal conditions already existing in many one-industry and company towns. In the suburbs of larger cities they will only serve to keep the level of cash wages down."

"The National Public Housing Authority," the conference said, "should work through local public housing authorities and co-operative or other non-profit private agencies representing labor or consumers. Such local agencies should, wherever and whenever possible, initiate, construct, own and manage housing projects."

On the question of labor the conference declared that "prevailing union wage rates and union working conditions must be maintained in the design, construction and operation of all housing projects receiving public aid," and that "there must be bona fide labor and consumer representation on both the National Public Housing Authority and on all local public housing authorities eligible to receive federal aid."

The conference also insisted that all housing projects "must be so set up and operated that they will remain permanently within reach of the income groups for whom they were intended."

The $500,000,000 appropriation used for "capital and annual grants, urged by the conference would be used for "capital and annual grants, interest subsidies and running expenses" of the housing authority for two years.

THE LABOR WORLD

DEVOTED TO THE INTEREST OF ALL THE WAGE-EARNERS

Every Unionist Should Pledge Loyalty to Labor's Political Conference.

Beat Mulkey, Bayless, Fryar, Camp, Is Hope

ALL FOUR IGNORED WAGE LAW FOR TEACHERS, BUT RAISED TAX RATES 43c

After several weeks of exhaustive study of their records, Labor's Political conference last Sunday turned thumbs down on the present members of the county court who are now running for the democratic nomination, election to which will take place March 19. The conference, composed of delegates from most of the American Federation of Labor unions and the railroad brotherhoods in Hamilton county, has been formed for the purpose of consolidating the votes of working people into a compact unit to secure a better government for the entire county. Party loyalties are to be abandoned, and each local union has pledged its loyalty to the labor conference in all political action in Hamilton county.

Mulkey's Record Bad.

Discussing Squire Mulkey it was found that he has a Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde make-up. It will be recalled that Mr. Mulkey was one of that unanimous group of squires who not only voted against paying school teachers their salaries required by law, but also refused to allow the teachers, representatives of labor and parent-teachers to have the floor to make their pleas. Now that Mr. Mulkey is running for re-election, he has signed pledges that he is in favor of voting sufficient appropriations to pay the teachers their just pay—next time. He also favors the "right kind" of sales tax. The conference expressed a hope that Candidate Langley will beat Mulkey.

Squire Camp Also Reverses Record.

Squire Camp, running from the Second district, has a similar record. He voted to steamroller the teachers on their request for their pay, not even granting them a hearing. Now

CLEVELAND CHAIR MUST REINSTATE UNION EMPLOYES

Attorney King Prosecuted Case Before Labor Board.

ALSO WINS INJUNCTION VS. TENN. RIVER COAL CO.

To Prosecute Columbia Sheriff for Arresting and Threatening Organizer for Trying to Organize Hosiery Mill.

Attorney H. G. B. King, local labor defense attorney, chalked up another victory or two in the last two weeks against unscrupulous Tennessee employers. The Cleveland Chair company last July fired some fourteen union men because of their affiliation. Mr. King took the case before the regional labor board, which yesterday handed down a tentative decision which orders the management to reinstate all of the men but one, with back pay to be given the men since the time they were fired.

King also announces that he has secured a restraining order against the Tennessee River Coal company, whose union miners have been on strike for some four months aganist terrible conditions. Recently the mine company served eviction orders against the strikers in the midst of the bitter cold weather. As a result of Mr. King's efforts, the miners' families will have shelter and will not be forced from their homes.

Recently an organizer for the American Federation of Hosiery Workers went into Columbia, Tenn., to study the possibility of forming a union in the Massachusetts Hosiery mills, notorious for its union-baiting practices. The sheriff and other officials of the county arrested the organizer and told him to leave town, threatening dire consequences if he ever returned. The sheriff is said to have told him that he was a stockholder in the scab mill, and that he did not intend to let the union cut down their profits. The company makes Gordon "V" hosiery.

Mr. King says that he is preparing to enter suit against all and sundry in Columbia who are responsible for the violation of the Wagner bill.

Labor representatives and rank and file are expressing great satisfaction with the manner in which this attorney has consistently won all litigation entered into to defend union people. Mr. King is rapidly becoming known to all unionists as the man to give advice whenever they become entangled with litigation, and from his wonderful success his reputation is spreading in other states as an expert in labor law.

Another Brand of 'Rugged Individualist'

Just about the time Labor gets set to "Go Places" politically there will bob up some union man who says in a deep gruff voice that "Nobody can tell ME how to vote." Yet this same unionist believes in collective bargaining with his employer to get better conditions industrially. Why not have collective bargaining politically?

Label League Meets Friday Evening

Chattanooga Label league will hold its regular meeting this Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the labor hall. Every delegate is expected to attend to talk over plans for the Tennessee Federation of Labor convention. Anyone in the labor movement and their families are welcome and urged to visit the league.

(By Staff Poet)

I'm for the teachers' salary bill

I'll work so hard, NEXT TIME I will,
Just get me elected again.

Of course I did not help before,
But I had gained my office then;
I'll help you now, forever more,
So vote for the working man's friend.

Refrain

Please let me explain my position—
I'm using the same old line—
I'm quite a reformed politician—
Because it's election time.

Labor is Non-Partisan . . .

To those trades-unionists who will vote in the democratic primary on March 19, we say:

"This Conference will continue non-partisan but at the same time we wish to call to your attention that Squires Bayless, Mulkey, Fryar and Camp have on several occasions acted in such a way that they do not merit the support of working people, therefore we express the hope that in the democratic primary W. F. Langley will receive the nomination in the City-at-Large, J. W. Johnston, Hays Clark and Bruce Freeman from the First District, W. E. Cox and Eugene Turner in the Second District."

Langley, Johnston, Cox, Turner, Freeman, Clark, Should Get Nomination

Shipp, Milligan Plan to Equalize Tax Inequities

Both Candidates Sign Pledge to Instal Scientific System of Assessments.

Agree to Make Forced Assessments on Personalty Where Inadequate.

In personal interviews with the central committee of Labor's Political conference, the two candidates for tax assessor signed written pledges that if elected they will abolish present inefficient methods of making assessments, and will employ tax experts to install a scientific yardstick for valuing property.

Candidates Milligan and Shipp were equally emphatic in their belief that there is a great deal of gross inequities in assessments of properties in Hamilton county and promised that they intended to dig out the tax dodger and force true assessments wherever found.

Five questions were signed in the affirmative, as follows:

(1) Will you equalize assessments so as to eliminate, as far as possible, present inequities?
Answer: I will.

(2) Will you secure the advice and services of a competent assessment expert for the purpose of establishing a scientific assessment system based upon the best modern practice of such cities as Milwaukee, Detroit, Cleveland, Ohio, Baltimore and the District of Columbia?
Answer: I will.

(3) Will you install a modernized set of records and data, office system and routine, mechanical devices, etc., and employ trained and competent deputies and other employes in sufficient number to properly operate such a system?
Answer: I will.

(4) Will you demand of the county court and fight for sufficient appropriations to institute and carry on the work of the tax assessor's office in the manner described above?
Answer: I will.

(5) Will you make forced assessments against personalty where declarations are not made or are known to be inadequate?
Answer: I will.

Labor's Political conference expressed itself as being non-committal in the primary in regards to the race for tax assessor, and is leaving the choice of labor for the nomination solely with individual selection.

Term in Legislature Was Good, as Well as While Criminal Clerk.

Should Be Swept in Office by Large Majority — Teachers Can Rely on His Defense of Their Rights.

Hays Clark should be nominated to the county court. His reputation for being a scrapper for things that are just in the county government is well known, and many has been the times he has bucked up against powerful political bosses who sent word to him to behave.

The Labor Political conference, after questioning Mr. Clark and reviewing his past record in politics, believes if he is elected to the county court there will be no more "star chamber" sessions such as was presented a few months ago.

Cox and Turner Have Hard Scrap Against Machine

Second District WPA Foreman Under Control of Camp-Fryar Fee Officers.

Running a hard race in the Second district, W. E. Cox and Eugene Turner have been receiving the last few days the good wishes from Labor's Political conference to beat the incumbents, Camp and Fryar, for the nomination.

Mr. Cox is a member in good standing with the railroad brotherhoods and should receive the vote of all unionists who participate in the primary.

Mr. Turner has made a wonderful impression, along with Mr. Cox, and it is believed that if these two are nominated the general welfare of the community will be vastly improved.

The incumbents have a powerful advantage of Cox and Turner, it is said, due to the fact that foremen for the WPA are appointed by the county, and of course it is to their advantage, so they might believe, to continue in office the people who appoint them.

UNIONIST RUNS FOR CHAIRMANSHIP IN THIRTEENTH WARD

W. W. (Bill) Combs, a past president of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, Local 2038, now serving as trustee for his union, is asking all unionists in the Thirteenth ward, Second precinct, to support his candidacy for chairmanship in the democratic party on March 19.

To Trades-Unionists:

I Solicit Your Support for the County Court on This Platform:

I believe the Teachers' Tenure and Salary laws should be strictly upheld, and that schools should receive efficient supervision.

I shall endeavor to secure a good hospital for this county.

I will not open a fee office, nor will I be subject to political dictation.

"Remember the Alamo"

This country has just observed the anniversary of the massacre of a band of Texas patriots at the hands of an overwhelming force of Mexicans. As a result of that massacre the terrible slogan, "Remember the Alamo," came into existence, and when sufficient forces were raised, the Mexican army was totally defeated with the ringing cries, "Remember the Alamo," hounding them out of Texas.

In the democratic primary to be held March 19, there will be another battle cry ringing in the ears of those incumbents in the county court who massacred the school teachers who, with their backs to the wall, were fighting for a living wage secured by law. Those squires were just as ruthless in riding over all proponents of the teachers, and people who attempted to secure a hearing for them were massacred in a parliamentary way.

At that time they were in the saddle. They could have shown mercy—but they did not.

Now there is an army of indignant citizens who are on the warpath. They have a battle cry—"Remember Your Record!"

What Next!

Service on a commercial long-distance telephone and television line was begun between Berlin and Leipzig at the opening of the Leipzig fair on March 1. The start of communications followed extensive tests made by the federal postoffice over a cable about 247 miles long.

TEACHER TALK
LOCAL 246, A. F. of T.

SPECIAL CALL MEETING

There will be a call meeting of all federation members next Saturday, March 14, at 10 o'clock. The purpose of the meeting is to clarify the teachers' stand on the proposed arrangements for financing the ninth month of the school term. Every federation member should be present.

NO INDIVIDUAL AGREEMENTS

Enter no agreements on salary or any other issue as an individual when the matter is capable of being settled by the federation! We must remember our obligation and stand together. Anyone who negotiates individually when the matter is rightfully in the province of the federation is no loyal union member.

ORGANIZERS TO JASPER

Result of President and Mrs. S. E. Smith's recent visit to Jasper is: A phone call from Marion county teachers requesting that an organizing committee be sent to help them start a local on Saturday night, March 14. Mr. and Mrs. Smith, J. W. Abel and others will make the trip.

VOTE WITH L. P. C.

Regardless of personal opinion teachers' best interests will be served by going down the line for the candidates recommended by Labor's Political conference. This is the only way labor can show its strength.

Don't forget to vote next Thursday!

SOCIAL SCIENCE BASIS

Since curricula are based more and more around social science, it is imperative that teachers get a sound knowledge of the subject. Otherwise the whole social science unit may be perverted into a farce of misdirected energy.

Certainly we need a thorough knowledge of American history, a sober, factual knowledge—not the Parson Weems, cherry-tree-story, flag-waving, petty moralizing kind of knowledge. A step was taken in the direction of more truthful and more practical history teaching by Hamilton county when Harold Rugg's social science texts were adopted.

But the best thing any teacher can do to prepare himself for teaching social science—or co-ordinating subjects with social science—is to read Charles and Mary Beard's "The Rise of American Civilization." Every American teacher should read it if he hasn't done so already.

WAGNER FLAYS ATTACKS ON LABOR DISPUTES ACT

New York Senator Says Measure Is Charter of Workers' Rights and Hits Opponents as Enemies of American Economic Creed.

The rights of workers to a voice in determining their conditions of employment is "the American economic creed" and the national labor relations act is the "charter" of that creed. This apt statement was included in an address delivered before the Labor Institute in New York City by United States Senator Robert F. Wagner, who, with Representative William P. Connery, Jr., of Massachusetts, sponsored the labor relations act in congress. The address was also delivered over the national network of the Columbia Broadcasting system.

"None but the enemies of the creed are determined to flaunt the charter," the senator stated, "and even they find these simple principles so obviously just, so honored in the hearts and minds of the average American, that they are forced to resort to indirection, assuming the fantastic position of professing to agree with the objectives of the law, but disagreeing with any attempt by the government to make these objectives attainable.

"It is too bad," Senator Wagner continued, "that they could not discover a less transparent subterfuge. They might as well give three cheers for liberty of expression and then advocate repealing the constitutional guarantee of a free press, or come out for freedom of person and then suggest that we suspend the writ of habeas corpus.

"The country will not be deterred by such shallow objections," Senator Wagner insisted, adding: "In the eyes of the people, the national labor relations act . . . is an integral part of a national effort to reduce involuntary unemployment and destitute old age; to curb child labor and the sweatshop; to tear down the slums; to provide steady prosperity and fair profits for business; to diminish economic strife and to give a better chance to the talented and industrious."

PRESENT CIGARETTE TAX SYSTEM GIVES BIG ADVANTAGE TO WEALTHY ANTI-UNION TOBACCO COMPANIES

By GEORGE L. KNAPP

Washington.—The present system of tobacco taxes, a level tax on cigarettes without regard to value, gives big advantages to the Big Four tobacco companies, which make 85 per cent of the cigarettes in the country. It puts equally great burdens on the makers of 10-cent cigarettes. If the tax on a 10-cent article is the same as that one selling at 15 cents, it is clear that the percentage of taxation is more than twice as high on the cheaper article as on the more expensive one.

The Big Four doesn't need any government favors, such as this level tax. It is the biggest profit-taking industry in the country now. It is paying more dividends on worn-out shoestrings than ordinary business can collect on actual investment.

When the American Tobacco company was formed out of five cigarette companies, it was capitalized at $25,000,000. Government investigators showed that of this sum not more than $3,545,108 was actual investment. In other words, 85.8 per cent of the capital of this mother of the Big Four was wind and water.

"Assets" Largely Water.

By 1908, the tobacco monopoly was almost complete. The same government figures—report of the commission of corporations—gave the assets of the monopoly in the tobacco business at $168,113,510.72. Of this, the government experts said, only $63,174,987.49 was actual, tangible investment. The rest was "good will," "brands"—which James B. Duke testified were not in themselves worth a dollar—and other forms of wind and water with which corporations pump up their securities.

That was the government account in 1908. It included all the properties which later went to make the Big Four. In 1911, the trust was dissolved, and the Big Four actually took control. To say that the actual investment in this part of the tobacco business had reached $100,000,000 by 1911 is a gross overstatement. But let us take it at that; and take it that the Big Four started with $100,000,000 of actual, tangible assets.

Huge Profits Since 1925.

Since 1925, the Big Four have made $883,356,000 in profits alone. This is on their own statements reported in Moody's Manual.

In 1930, the Big Four made profits of $105,168,000. This is the "balance available for dividends" after all kinds of costs and charges are paid. The figures are given in round numbers.

In 1931, the Big Four cleared $110,674,000 in profits.

In 1932, the Big Four cleared $104,577,000 in profits.

Or to put it another way. The four companies which control 85 per cent of the tobacco industry cleared more than 100 per cent a year on the highest estimate of their actual investment during the most disastrous three years in the nation's history.

DO THE BIG FOUR NEED ANY TAX FAVORS?

The union label, shop card and button are the picket signs of a perpetual strike against chiselers.

WRITE OUR SENATORS AND CONGRESSMAN NOW

By Charles Wesley Heard

At the hearings on the Ellenbogen bill in congress Francis J. Gorman, vice-president of the United Textile Workers, stated that 50 per cent of the industry has broken away from code standards established under NRA; while a report to the United States labor relations board shows the extent of industrial breakdowns since the supreme court decision.

The report states:

1,912 firms employing 977,000 persons have maintained code hours and wages.

1,488 firms employing 405,000 persons have not.

189 textile mills employing 106,747 are conforming.

48 textile mills employing 8,899 broke hours provisions.

30 textile mills employing 12,305 broke wage provisions.

109 textile mills employing 33,951 broke all provisions.

In the textile industry, therefore, 34 per cent of all workers are affected by non-conformance with code standards—and since there has been a great increase in cut-throat competition since the report was issued it is likely that Mr. Gorman is correct in saying that 50 per cent of the industry no longer observes the code.

And because of nationwide lack of purchasing power demand is not sufficient to enable all mills to operate at anywhere near capacity; yet through increase in hours and wage cuts a minority of the mills are rapidly piling up an unsaleable surplus with the inevitable result of further increase in hours, decrease in wages; decrease in employment and consequent reduction of purchasing power, strikes, lockouts and ultimate chaos in the indust

The Ellenbogen bill is designe correct this situation in the int of the employer, employes an public; yet a determined effort blind minority of mill owners i ing made to prevent its enactme congress. Should congress ad without enacting this bill, or s it be defeated, it will be a yea fore action can be had at the session. In the meantime, the i try will blow up; and every Ch nooga mill owner, and every frie labor and of business here, s write or wire Senators McKella Bachman and Congressman Mc nolds, urging them to actively and vote for immediate enactme the Ellenbogen bill.

Already, since the supreme decision, cut-throat competition where has resulted in increased l and thousands of dollars dec monthly in wages paid workers l cal mills—a fact that should a and induce every merchant in th to urge our representatives in gress to secure enactment of thi as many workers here are being only 75 cents to $1.25 per da know of workers in local mills are receiving about $9.00 per for the same kind and quanti work for which they received $ per week under Hoover back in It will be seen, therefore, that only are these workers the victi cut-throat competition, but our chants are being deprived of thousands of dollars benefits mo due to the loss of purchasing p of workers.

Write your congressman and tors now, urging them to suppor Ellenbogen bill.

GARMENT WORKERS STRIKE AGAINST PACT VIOLATION

Philadelphia, Pa.—Members of the Lit Goods Workers' union here walked out of the Fairplay Knitting mill. Officials of the union said the firm refused to abide by an agreement to settle differences with a shop committee or submit them to arbitration. It was also charged that two employes had been dismissed for union activity.

Housing Authorities Urge U. S. Aid in Fight on Slums

Washington.—A group of city and state housing authorities created to aid in the slum clearance program asked the supreme court to rule in favor of the government in the slum-clearance test case. Filing a brief as "friends of the court," the authorities said:

"We feel that from the experience we have had in the field of housing we might be able to present additional data and considerations.

"The experience of the boards of authorities has convinced them of the necessity for federal participation in any adequate attack upon present housing conditions. That bad housing, urban and rural, is productive of disease, delinquency, vice, crime and other social and economic ills is almost too obvious to require proof."

The brief argued that for this reason the acquiring of property for slum-clearance was a "public use" within the meaning of the federal constitution.

I have lived in Hamilton County since 1915, and have not heretofore asked for public office. I am a World War veteran, made seventeen trips overseas in transport service during the war. Am a member of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen.

If elected, I will represent all the people of my district, and not a favored few. What I do as a member of the County Court will be done in OPEN MEETING, and not behind CLOSED DOORS.

Laxative combination folks know is trustworthy

The confidence thousands of parents have in good, old reliable, powdered Thedford's Black-Draught has prompted them to get the new Syrup of Black-Draught for their children. The grown folks stick to the powdered Black-Draught; the youngsters probably will prefer it when they outgrow their childish love of sweets. Mrs. O. W. Adams, of Murray, Ky., writes: "I have used Thedford's Black-Draught (powder) about thirteen years, taking it for biliousness. Black-Draught acts well and I am always pleased with the results. I wanted a good, reliable laxative for my children. I have found Syrup of Black-Draught to be just that."

Our 47th Anniversary!

When you . . . our neighbors and our customers . . . remember our growth from the small store in which this business started, you cannot help feeling as we do: That the Miller Bros. Co. business must have been founded on, and clung to, principles of lasting merit.

And had we not, almost 48 years ago, foreseen that our value to you must depend upon a flexibility and youthfulness of outlook in anticipating and filling your needs, could our store have grown bigger, then bigger, and then bigger?

But, big as your patronage has made us, we have never grown away from the consideration for each individual customer that your fathers and grandfathers remember as always having characterized Miller Bros. Co.

LABOR BOARD WINS FEDERAL COURT RULE IN BLOOD CASE

Philadelphia, Pa.—The national labor relations board won an important decision here in the refusal of Federal Judge William H. Kirkpatrick to enjoin the board from holding a collective bargaining election of the employes of John Blood & Co., at its Boyerton plant. The company asked for the injunction against the board.

Judge Kirkpatrick refrained from ruling on the constitutionality of the Wagner-Connery labor disputes act, under which the board was established. He also ignored the board's motion to dismiss the suit as premature.

The company's contention was that the action of the board in holding the election would result in irreparable injury to the company's property, and consequently should be banned by judicial edict.

Judge Kirkpatrick ruled that the election of representatives through through which the employes would negotiate wages, hours and working conditions would not harm the company. He declared the firm is not in a position to seek an injunction until the government takes action in case of a refusal to obey an order of the board.

STATE REGULATION OF NEW YORK CITY TAXICABS URGED

New York.—Taxicab chauffeurs in New York City average $14 a week of ninety hours, and the industry is in a chaotic condition as to wages and hours of labor.

This is the highlight of a thorough investigation by a joint legislative commission, headed by Edward S. Moran, Jr., of Brooklyn.

Recommendation is made that regulation and control of the city's taxicab industry be placed with the transit commission and a bill designed to carry out this recommendation will be submitted to the 1936 legislature.

The commission's report declared that 48,916 persons were licensed to operate 12,379 cabs here on Dec. 28, 1935. The industry, it was found, was a dumping ground for occasional and part-time labor.

It was claimed by the commission that the interests of public safety were badly protected when more than 200 taxicabs in active operation were vehicles purchased for less than $50, many of which were being paid for at rates as low as 50 cents or $1 per day.

GLASS PLANT STRIKE ENDS; WOMEN WORKERS GAIN POINT

Toledo, O.—More than 1,500 employes of the Libby-Owen-Ford laminated glass plant here became involved in a controversy originating in alleged discourteous remarks made by two non-union girls to other employes. Twenty-four women refused to work with the non-unionists. The controversy spread until it clased the plant. The management offered to transfer the non-unionists to another shift. The 1,500 employes approved the proposel and returned to work.

W. E. Jacobs, commissioner of labor for Tennessee, spent several days in the Dynamo City on departmental business last week. Mr. Jacobs is a member of the railroad brotherhoods, being appointed to his present post when Gov. McAlister first took the governor's chair.

The fact that there will be a state election this fall added a certain spice to conversations between the commissioner and the numerous labor friends who greeted him during his brief sojourn.

Announcement of
E. H. (SKINNY) CORNES

For the Office of JUSTICE OF THE PEACE
For the First Civil District of Hamilton County, Tennessee

Realizing that the country is in a strenuous condition brought about by an extended depression, I am in favor of economy in the administration of the County government, and I will, if elected, support any and all movements or legislation that will lessen the burden of the taxpayers in any way.

I am for abandoning the White Oak workhouse, and enlarging the one at Silverdale, consolidating the two, bringing all County prisoners confined in the workhouse under one organization, thereby saving the County thousands of dollars in transferring and handling prisoners.

I do not think it is consistent with good government to economise in the administration of our public schools, so I am in favor of a full nine-month school term with full nine-month pay to the teachers. I am also in favor of the County furnishing free text books to all pupils in the public schools through the eighth grade.

Green Condemns Power of Courts To Void Congress

A. F. of L. President Visions Government by Judiciary As Result of Permitting Judges To Review Law for the Purpose of Nullification."

Keeping the Enactment of Statutes in the Hands of Congress Is Held "the Key to the Maintenance of Democratic Self-Government."

Washington.—A vigorous criticism of the power which the courts exercise to nullify laws enacted by congress by declaring them unconstitutional characterizes an editorial by William Green in the March issue of the American Federationist.

Discussing "The Key to Democratic Government," Mr. Green takes the position that judicial authority to void statutes tends to establish government by the judiciary, which is held to be at variance with the fundamental principles underlying democratic government. He emphasizes the paramount necessity of preserving complete legislative power for the representatives of the people in the United States congress.

The text of the editorial follows:

"No institution can go through years of existence and function upon changing conditions and forces without modifying its own procedure from time to time.

"Since the government of the United States has been operating under the constitution, the Union has grown from thirteen states of the states of colonies to forty-eight states with Alaska, Puerto Rico, Hawaii and the Virgin islands.

"We have changed from a dominantly agricultural country to an industrial one. Instead of largely self-dependent communities depending mainly upon water transportation, we now sell and buy in national markets geared to international conditions.

"From groups widely separated by distance and slow ways of communication, we can go from coast to coast in twenty-four hours and a single voice can speak to the whole nation. From being a small uninfluential nation, we have become a world power —a creditor nation instead of a nation that borrows.

"In the great political and social changes that have followed economic and technical progress, government has met new situations and has developed new functions.

"Our constitution formulates fundamental principles to be followed, but there must be power lodged in some division to allocate new functions and service.

"Naturally we turn to the body that represents those who hold ultimate sovereignty—the citizens of the nation. Congress is the representative branch of the federal government directly responsible to the citizens. From congress, the law-making body, we expect allocation of new power and regulation of its use under the spirit and fundamental principles of our constitution.

"Law is a method of adjusting human relations which are both dynamic and changing. Unless law serves as a social instrument it becomes an instrument of reactionary, group interests. To keep the enactment of law in the hands of the representatives of the people, is the key to the maintenance of democratic self-government.

"To allow courts to review law for the purpose of nullification, is to create an all-powerful judiciary and to establish government by the judiciary.

"The issue which we face and which we must decide by action or inaction is: Shall the law-making function be delegated to the congress of the United States?

"The functions of the judiciary are quite different from those of the law-making body and hence the personnel are selected in a different way. Lawmakers must be responsible directly to the citizenry. Shall we take steps to return it there?"

Six States Ask Highest Court to Uphold Coal Pact

Pennsylvania, Joining in Defense of Guffey Control Measure, Sees Adverse Ruling as Peril to Nation.

Washington.—Pennsylvania, largest of the coal-producing states, has joined with New Mexico, Indiana, Kentucky, Washington and Illinois in a strong defense of the Guffey coal control act before the supreme court.

A brief filed by Pennsylvania declaring that an adverse decision might bring ruin to labor, coal operators, many communities and citizens of the state.

The Pennsylvania brief, signed by Atty.-Gen. Charles J. Margiotti and Deputy Attorney Generals Ladner and Friedman, contended the Guffey act was the "only way out of a situation fraught with grave peril not only to the 23 states concerned but to the whole nation."

Case Held Vital.

"This proceeding is one of vital concern to the state of Pennsylvania," the brief said, "since upon its outcome will depend whether a great industry shall be rehabilitated, stabilized and put on a firm foundation or permitted to be destroyed to the ruination of not only the coal operators and labor but many communities and citizens of Pennsylvania as well."

The brief recalled that the court had taken judicial notice of the "deplorable" conditions in the bituminous industry when Chief Justice Hughes wrote his opinion in the Appalachian coal case. That opinion modified previous court interpretations of the anti-trust laws to permit a degree of combination by coal producers.

In addition to the briefs filed by Pennsylvania, New Mexico and Indiana, briefs were also filed by the United Mine Workers of America and the government.

Act's Provisions Championed.

The government brief pointed out that "denial of the right to organize and bargain collectively is a direct cause of repeated strikes."

"If federal power extends to the strikers themselves, as has been held," it added, "congress certainly may deal with their inciting cause."

The government petition asserted that, in event any provision of the act—such as the wage and hour and collective bargaining provisions—were held unconstitutional, the remainder of the law setting up a "little NRA" for the industry shall still stand.

Wage, hour and collective bargaining provisions were defended by the government on the ground that labor conditions in the bituminous industry are more directly connected with interstate commerce than in any other industry.

Agreement Ends Building Service Strike in Gotham

Terms Provide for Immediate Arbitration of Wage Question —Lockouts at Some Buildings Threaten New Clash.

New York City—The building service strike is over—provided the realty advisory board and some reactionary building owners do not try to weasel out of the agreement to arbitrate.

The terms of the agreement provide for immediate arbitration of the wage question, with Ferdinand A. Silcox, assistant secretary of agriculture, as arbitrator. All strikers are to be reinstated without discrimination. Where disputes arise between individual owner and strikers charged with violence or sabotage, they are to be arbitrated by Hugh S. Robertson, a member of Mayor LaGuardia's board of survey; and Robertson's decision is to be final.

Employers Still Hostile.

Word comes, however, that thousands of strikers are being refused their former jobs by the building owners. Quite as ominous is the fact that the realty advisory board is issuing statements which, if admitted or acted upon, would take all value out of the agreement. The realty advisory board is particularly weasel-like in trying to squirm out of the agreement to reinstate strikers.

James J. Bambrick, who led the fight, is not alarmed by these developments, though he is watching them closely.

Trying to "Save Faces."

"I'm afraid the boys of the realty advisory board are just trying to save their faces with the owners," he said. "I don't believe they are trying in a highly subtle manner to advise employers to fight to the last ditch to keep strikebreaking employes. The contract very plainly states that strikers must be returned to their jobs without discrimination, so far as participation in the strike is concerned."

Bambrick expresses the greatest confidence in Hugh S. Robertson, who will arbitrate the disputed cases.

Labor Board Orders Atlanta Mills to Reinstate Workers

Washington.—The national labor relations board reported that it had found the Atlanta Woolen mills, of Atlanta, Ga., guilty of unfair labor practices and ordered the concern ao reinstate with adjusted back pay seven mill workers against whom the board found the company had discriminated because of their membership in Local 2307 of the United Textile Workers of America or failure to join an organization known as the Good Will club.

The board also ordered the mills to cease and desist from requiring applicants to tell their union affiliation, and to end practices that would discourage membership in the United Textile Workers of America or encourage membership in the Good Will club.

Personal Questions Are Unnecessary In Social Security Act

Statement from Social Security Board Says Employer Questionnaires Need Not Be Answered.

In response to inquiries concerning the distribution by certain employers of questionnaires calling for personal information from employes, alleged to be necessary under the social security act, John G. Winant, chairman of the social security board, today issued the following statement:

"There has come to the attention of the board questionnaires circulated among employes by certain employers, calling for numerous (in one case thirty-two) items of personal information, which is either alleged to be required by, or creates the impression of being required by the social security act.

"The social security board has not asked employers for any information concerning individual employes.

"The social security act promotes the welfare of workers in wto direct ways: (1) It provides for the payment of old-age benefits, beginning in 1942, to workers 65 years and over, who have received wages of $2,000 or more during their working period beginning Jan. 1, 1937; and (2) it removes an obstacle to the enactment of state unemployment compensation laws, under which workers are paid benefits during periods of unemployment.

"The act does not create a national unemployment compensation system. It (1) levies a tax upon employers of eight or more persons in twenty different weeks; and (2) permits such employers to credit against that tax amounts which they are required to pay under state unemployment compensation laws which the social security board finds meet certain minimum standards. From the workers' point of view, one of the most important of such standards is that in Section 903 (a) (5) which requires that before the social security board may approve a state unemployment compensation law, that law must provide that under it, no unemployment compensation will be denied to an otherwise eligible unemployed person because he has refused to accept new work:

"(1) That is offered to him because of a vacancy directly due to a strike, lockout, or other labor dispute;

"(2) For which the wages, hours or other conditions of work are substantially less favorable than those prevailing for similar work in the locality;

"(3) In which, as a condition of being employed, the worker would be required to join a company union, or to resign from or refrain from joining any bona fide labor organization."

AUTO STRIKE ENDED; MACHINISTS VICTORS

Portland (Ore.) Workers Gain Recognition, 44-Hour Week and Wage Increase.

Portland, Ore.—The seven weeks' strike of auto mechanics in nine big truck repair shops here has ended in a splendid victory for the machinists' union.

A settlement just negotiated by Business Agent J. W. Reardon, provides for union recognition, the 44-hour week and a minimum wage of 80 cents an hour for mechanics. Prior to the strike, the average hourly rate was 60 cents.

The strike was a hard-fought controversy. Owners of the shops were members of the "Industrial association," a notorious organization whose avowed purpose is to put organized labor out of business.

Guards and strikebreakers were furnished by the association. The settlement provides for the re-employment, without prejudice, of all strikers.

"VERY LOW-PRICED LABOR" BOAST OF SOUTHERN TOWN

Girls on Piecework Earn 60 Cents Daily, Mount Airy Crows Via Post Card, Seeking to Attract Northern Mill Owners—Propaganda Strong Argument for Proposed National Textile Act, Hosiery Workers Say.

Washington.—How southern business interests attempt to lure manufacturers to the south by dangling the "bait" of low wages before them is illustrated by the following mimeograph post card received by Representative Thomas R. Amlie and other members of congress:

MOUNT AIRY, NORTH CAROLINA

Has a very low priced labor market.

Girls on piecework earn ..... $ .60 per day
Women on piecework earn ..... 1.00 per day
Men on piece-work earn ..... 1.25 per-day

Population, 8,500 people; 10,000 in surrounding few miles. Experienced hosiery and underwear operators available. Wonderful opportunity for any manufacturing business.

Copies of the post card were also received by a full-fashioned hosiery manufacturer in Philadelphia, who sent the card to Representative Henry Ellenbogen, of Pennsylvania, as evidence in support of the national textile act which Ellenbogen is sponsoring.

Such cards were also sent to other hosiery manufacturers in the Philadelphia area.

Argument for Textile Bill.

"No more convincing argument could possibly be developed for the passage of the Ellenbogen bill than this sort of low-wage propaganda sent out by southern 'business boosters,'" the national office of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers in Philadelphia said, continuing:

"The textile manufacturers attempt to say that the code minimum wage of $12 is being paid in southern textile mills, but the lie is given to these declarations by their own allies—the chamber of commerce.

"If the 40-hour, five-day week were also being maintained the employes in Mount Airy, N. C., would earn $7.25 per week, women would make $5 per week and girls $3.

"Legislation Imperative."

"Literature such as this card put out by Mount Airy is being received constantly by northern manufacturers from other sections in the south. Wages such as Mount Airy boasts are quoted by 'competitors' of the North Carolina community. Northern manufacturers therefore have conclusive evidence that code standards are not being adhered to in the south and despite this fact northern employers, as a group, are still holding out against national legislation to regulate the textile industry.

"The Mount Airy propaganda is one more bit of evidence that legislative action is absolutely imperative to save the textile industry from a destructive policy of 'dog eat dog' competitive wage cutting and speed-up which is bound to ruin all those engaged in this type of manufacturing.

"The trade unionists in the north do not oppose the location of industry in the south if the southern employers will pay the prevailing rate of wages in the industry for the particular operation that is to be performed. Northerners have no fight against the south, but are opposing those who seek to exploit southern labor while at the same time become established on a self-supporting and self-respecting basis."

Large Part of PWA Funds Paid Out for Materials

Ickes Says $1,223,000,000 Outlay for These Goods Is Big Factor in Heavy Industry Recovery.

Harold L. Ickes, secretary of the interior, who is also public works administrator, in an official statement says that over 60 per cent of the funds so far expended by the public works administration have gone for the purchase of materials.

The manufacture, transportation and other handling of these materials, it is pointed out, have served to stimulate private industry and to provide considerable employment indirectly, aside from the direct employment which PWA projects provide.

A total of $1,223,500,000 had been expended for materials on PWA projects, the report stated, up to Feb. 1 and an additional expenditure of $2,000,000,000 is contemplated.

These purchases are claimed to have been a major factor in sustaining the heavy industries at the present level of operations.

Labor's Housing Plan Offered to President

Committee Headed by William Green Submits Program at White House Conference — Roosevelt "Impressed."

Washington. — Labor's long-range-low-cost housing program was submitted to President Roosevelt on March 9 by a committee headed by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor. The committee included John Coefield, president of the United Association of Plumbers and Steam Fitters, and M. J. Colleran, president of the Operative Plasterers' International association. The conference with the president was attended by Senator Robert F. Wagner, of New York, who has been active in housing legislation.

Green presented the program recently adopted by the A. F. of L. and the housing conference, calling for creation of a separate federal housing authority on which labor and consumers would be represented. The program contemplates government expenditures of $500,000,000.

The labor executives said President Roosevelt did not commit himself but "seemed impressed."

Johnson City Notes

A new organization was formed last week and the charter installed last Saturday night for the Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers' International Union of America, Local No. 7, of Johnson City and Elizabethton.

At the installation Saturday night at the hall of the Johnson City Central Labor union G. B. Allen, of Elizabethton, was elected president; Wade Keglar, of Erwin, was elected vice-president, and Walter J. Vest, of Johnson City, was elected to the post of financial secretary and recorder, and Charles Fair to the office of treasurer.

Elmer Spahr, of Pittsburgh, Pa., was the installing officer. He is also president of the Pennsylvania state conference of the organization.

The new organization, one of the many that are under way in East Tennessee, was sponsored by the organizing committee of the Johnson City Central Labor union, and meetings will be held weekly for sometime enrolling the other of the crafts in this territory.

The regular semi-monthly meeting of the Johnson City Central Labor union was held last Friday night at the labor temple, and was largely attended by the delegates from all crafts. One new delegate from the Typographical union, No. 763, presented his credentials, D. E. Tilson, who is employed by the Dickson-Elliott Printing company.

Two visitors, both international representatives, C. D. Puckett, representing the United Textile Workers, and Elmer Spahr, representing the international organization of the Bricklayers, both made interesting talks which were enjoyed by the membership and visitors.

The meeting was also attended by a large delegation of the United Textile Workers, Local No. 2466, at Kingsport, who have been locked out of the Kingsport Silk mill since last November 23 and are still walking the streets. Representative Puckett was assigned to this territory to try and get the situation straightened out, and we are glad to report progress has been made.

Notice was also served on the membership that the next meeting of the Central Labor union was the annual nomination of officers and the following meeting on April 10 is the annual election of officers.

Time for Action

In the current issue of a leading business magazine there is a passing reference to "families that cannot afford either to buy houses at any price, or to pay an economic rent." Presumably an "economic rent" would be defined as a rental which would meet the capital charges of such housing for land, construction, maintenance, insurance and interest upon investment.

The same article seems to recognize the responsibility of the community, either national or local, to furnish such housing somehow, on terms which can be met by the "families that cannot afford" them, in the economic sense.

This nation, including all its possessions, has a total land area of about 3,685,000 square miles. We have approximately 25 million families in all. That seems to indicate somewhere between eight to ten families to the square mile; or between 40 to 60 persons to the square mile of area. That would seem to be land enough to make decent back yards, and some generous front lawns, for all the families included in the national family.

But our "families cannot afford . . . houses at any price . . ." Not that there is a scarcity of housing material. Not that we are lacking in people with skill to put together the material to make good enough housing for anybody. And always, when we begin to ask, "Why cannot these families afford . . . houses at any price . . . "? we are met with a sort of shushing movement of the hands, and a pursing of the lips, and an upward glancing of the eyes such as is given children when they ask awkward questions about the origins of babies.

Well, we are going to go right on asking these questions. If they are embarrassing questions to some people, the situation is a whole lot more embarrassing to the "families who cannot afford . . . houses at any price."

When decent, useful, skillful, patient, law-abiding people "cannot afford houses . . . at any price . . ." it is time somebody got up in meeting and demanded and retained the floor until something is done besides appointing a committee to "investigate the matter."

More Prison Good Laws on Way

A wave of state legislation barring open market sale of prison goods can be expected as a result of the U. S. Supreme Court validation of the Hawes-Cooper Act.

With their own states the only markets open to the dumping of prison goods from their own or other state prison industries, labor and business in those states can be expected to exert sufficient pressure upon legislatures and prison administrators to force acceptance of the state use system which the Federal government and many other states have adopted. Since the Hawes-Cooper Act was passed, 22 states have passed prohibitory or regulatory laws in conformance with it to protect themselves from the evil of the sale of convict-made goods in competition with the products of free labor.

The court's language lends support to an idea, considered by labor when the NRA was declared invalid, that states might similarly combine to close their markets to other than prison-made goods which did not conform to decent standards of labor. A state's own manufacturers would not then be subject to underpaid and overworked competition from backward states.

CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

Let American trade union leaders observe recent events in Europe. One nation makes a move; another nation makes one. One makes a feint; another a feint. One nation makes a veiled threat; another makes a veiled threat. One nation declares it will fight "if" . . . ; another assures the world it will fight "if" . . .

Like boys who yell, "yah dassent" and "I dare yah"—which leads to the great juvenile game of socko.

Nations seem like that—nations and other kinds of groups of human beings, thinking all the time that the past is not a guage or guide to the present and that somehow the chip today can be kept on the shoulder.

Observe the dictatorship of the world—the autocracies. That means principally Germany, with Hitler; Italy, with Mussolini; Russia with Stalin and bolshevism; Japan with the militarist clique. Those are the war-breeding spots.

Peoples are not itching to start wars, but dictators are. Folks ask, "if Italy wants raw materials why doesn't Italy buy them; if she wants land, why not buy it?" They ask the same about Japan. Merely land and materials will not satisfy dictators. There is no aggrandizement in going out to buy a load of hay, or a trainload of wheat.

There is no peace while dictators have armies. Don't expect it. Always the shadow of Mars is thrust across the landscape. The news from Europe every day is about wars, how soon they will come, who will fight them. Everyone knows who will fight them. The masses will fight them.

Defending human freedom is one thing; fighting for empire is another.

As for freedom, talk about that to those whose telegrams have been grabbed by Senator Black. Senator Black probably is very earnest. But a great deal of sympathy is going to those whose wires have been tapped, whose messages have been grabbed, just because Americans don't like to fight that way.

Labor has had much that is nice to say about Senator Hugo Black, because Senator Black has supported some labor measures. But there are many who say "if you have a good cause, then fight fairly," and for once some corporations are getting a lot of public support. This is not because folks believe the corporations are lily pure, but because they don't like to see foul means used in any fight.

It will be bad for the nation if it ever forsakes its ideals of fair play. Public officials ought not forget good public policy just because they get into a fight. Better to lose than to win by hitting a foul blow.

And the world so needs to concentrate on the one job—how to make life safe, happy, with a full measure of compensation. For us, how to abolish the army of the unemployed. Largely that seems to mean, how to make machines serve, not rule; or, how to make the benefits of machines generally available; not available to a few.

Depression brought us more efficient machinery. America is thinking about this more than any other nation; probably doing more about it, too. The whole world needs to think about it and do something about it. But rulers think of wars, of glory, as it is queerly called. And politicians think about how to carry the next election.

Ad infinitum; they all have lesser bugs to vite 'em. What the world needs is a good louse exterminator.

Do you like parties? This column isn't going to start giving recipes just yet, but here's a hint for perfect refreshments—how about some Grant-Petten ice cream? (They have fancy designs to fit in with any party plans.) And right by that ice cream, place a slice of Mother's Home Style Cake. Mr. Rhodes at the Union Baking Company says the special this week-end is a Lord Baltimore. That's a real all-union party for you!

L. P. C. (What, more initials?) has accomplished at least one thing—a lot of ladies have learned where they live. Oh no, the ladies aren't so dumb! They just aren't talking in terms of streets and house numbers now—they're speaking of wards and precincts.

Contor Bros. has in some new "springy" patterns in shirts. When Mr. Contor brought out a few of the checked ones the other day, he remarked: "Here are some gay ones the young fellows will like." But somebody around here must be approaching second childhood, because some of these men who have appeared in these checked shirts could scarcely be called "youngsters."

And while the men are under discussion, what about that Saturday Evening Post? The gentlemen seem to like it, and so-called "good union men" have been known to buy it—Ladies, remind your husbands that the Saturday Evening Post is just as non-union as the McCalls.

The secretaries of the various local unions received the convention call yesterday—and Secretary Arthur was good enough to have our request included in big black letters—everybody knows, now, that the Chattanooga Label League is going to entertain the visiting ladies at the Tennessee Federation of Labor convention which meets here May 4, 5 and 6.

STRIKING CARPENTERS REJECT EMPLOYERS' NEGOTIATION PLAN

Ione, Wash.—Recent advances made by officials of the Panhandle Lumber company, whose mill in Ione is being picketed by union workmen, have drawn scorn from members of Local No. 2632, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America.

John Dimeling, general manager of the company, proposed to the union that it send a representative to discuss the strike at the mill. Representing the company would be Mr. Dimeling, the company lawyer and seven foremen.

The inequality of having one man working against, or with, nine was so apparent that union members refused to sanction the proposal. They did, however, make a counter-proposal to send three representatives to talk things over with the company group. Dimeling would not agree to this, saying that he would not talk to any committee but that he would see them individually as individuals.

More than 100 men are out on strike. Grievances set forth by the strikers are that twenty men, key workers in the union, have been discharged because of union affiliations and that the company has failed to abide by agreements made following the strike last June.

Reading Labor Government Reorganizes Police Dept.

Reading, Pa.—"For the good of the service" was the explanation of a police shakeup here by Mayor J. Henry Stump, in which two veteran lieutenants were reduced to patrolmen. But it was recalled that the police officials, in former years, "displayed considerable personal enthusiasm for the task of hurling tear gas at strikers during labor troubles," these tactics and those who perpetrate them being strongly opposed by organized labor.

A statement issued by the socialist party, which regained power in this city last November, elaborates upon these activities as follows:

"It was that demonstration of force which convinced thousands of workers that it was necessary for them to place the police powers of the city in the hands of their own representatives. That conviction had much to do with the sharp rise of the socialist vote. The action of the socialist party in changing police heads was more than merely playing partisan politics. It was a mandate from the workers of Reading."

UNION LEADER IS RE-ELECTED MAYOR OF NOVA SCOTIA TOWN

Glace Bay, N. S.—One of the largest majorities ever given to a municipality candidate in Glace Bay was the margin by which D. W. Morrison, mayor of Glace Bay, was re-elected at the recent civic elections. Mr. Morrison is district president of the United Mine Workers of America and has been a leader in organized labor in eastern Canada for twenty years. He has been elected mayor of Glace Bay nine times, and defeated once in his long career in municipal politics.

MARION TEACHERS ORGANIZE

Following the visit of President and Miss Smith, the Marion County teachers organized last Friday night and have applied for a charter. Out of 175 teachers in the system 100 are coming into the new local immediately. F. A. Bird was chosen first president.

Among the members of Local 246 who went to Jasper to give the new local a send-off were Mr. and Mrs. Heath, J. Stegar Hunt and J. W. Abel.

LABEL LEAGUE SOCIAL

Teachers who miss the Label League social next Thursday at 8 p.m. will be passing up an occasion replete with entertainment, education and association with some of the best representatives of organized labor in this city. The leaders of the League and the ones in regular attendance are live wires and are true blue for the cause of labor. If you haven't been out to a meeting, come Thursday night, meet some real people, and have a grand time.

THE RED HERRING

Something must be done to call the bluff of these loud-mouthed, careless-tongued, false patriots who go about calling everyone "red" who has a progressive thought or advocates anything for the under-privileged. They have cast unwarranted reproach at schools, churches and labor halls in their frantic heresy hunts.

The latest to come to the attention of this column is the charge by the veterans'. Americanism Committee representatives of Atlanta that the Progressive Education Association, which recently met there, is an un-American organization sponsoring Communist speakers. Among the "Communist" speakers mentioned were Professor George S. Counts, leading educational authority and editor of the Social Frontier; and Professor Harold Rugg, author of the very splendid social science texts used in the junior high schools of this county.

Teachers must fight this tendency of ignoramuses in positions of power attempting to bulldoze advocates of intelligence and progress into silence. Otherwise, we shall find ourselves soon in the toils of that economic as well as adcademic slavery known as Fascism.

CARRYING ON THE WORK

During the past forty years a movement has been slowly but steadily growing to enable children to see a part of the places and things they read about in the classroom. Thus in a vivid and unforgettable way children of the future will learn from experience. This movement, along with other progressive steps, has been considerably delayed by the depression. It takes time, many and preparation to change radically teaching procedures.

It is a tribute to the far-sightedness, the unselfishness, and professional pride of our teachers that any progressive steps have been taken when funds for education have been so lacking. Yet the Hamilton County teachers have in the past two years undertaken the stupendous task of revising their curriculum. The city school educational department has also added, broadened and developed their teaching methods. It would seem that the teachers of our county and city have upheld their part of the responsibility of carrying on during the "lean years." How are they to be treated by the public in the years ahead when better days are opening in every other line of business?

WILL EDUCATION KEEP PACE?

The heritage of the future for boys and girls in the Tennessee Valley is to be a rich one. It is one which will require careful training and education to fit them to meet the needs arising here—here in the very laboratory of a new social project. These children will either be prepared and profit or they will miss the benefits and others will come in to inherit what is rightfully theirs. Upon the children equipped by our public schools rest the native Tennesseans hopes of ascendency, power in the future and wealth. Can schools equipped as our public schools are adequately meet the child's needs? What conditions actually exist? In the list of states the schools of our state ranks:

1. Third from the bottom in length of school term.
2. Fifth from the bottom in proportion of high school pupils.
3. Ninth from the bottom in payment per pupil for current expenses.
4. Eleventh from the bottom in the salaries of elementary and high school teachers, principals and supervisors.

In potential wealth we can afford to give these boys and girls more than the average. Can we afford to do otherwise? Dare we allow them to face the future if we do not?

LABOR HEADS DENOUNCE PRIVATE JOB AGENCIES

Albany, N. Y.—Private job agencies were denounced by labor executives as exploiters of the workers at hearings on the Howard bill providing state regulation for fee-charging employment agencies.

Representatives of the employment agencies painted their business as altruistic in nature and insisted the object of the bill was to eliminate private employing agencies and make the state employment service a monopoly.

Elmer F. Andrews, industrial commissioner, and George Meany, president of the State Federation of Labor, insisted that the measure was needed to prevent abuses in the employment field.

Meany pleaded for the bill, making fun of the employment agency representatives as presenting themselves in the guise of "public benefactors." He said that while the agencies represented by these spokesmen might be fairly operated, there were other agencies that "bleed the workers" and practice on them "a vicious kick-back racket."

Lillian Sire, head of the division of labor welfare in the labor department, read a list of case histories in which workers had been subjected to abuse by employment agencies. She cited one case in which workers were brought by bus from another state to a village in New York, only to find there were no jobs, and were dumped on the streets.

COAL ACT IS DEFENDED BEFORE SUPREME COURT

Assistant Attorney-General Dickinson Upholds Power of Congress to Authorize Price Fixing and Establishment of Minimum Wages and Maximum Hours.

Washington.—After exhaustive arguments for and against the constitutionality of the Guffey coal stabilization act, the United States supreme court took the case under advisement with the probability that the decision will not be handed down for a number of weeks.

In addition to guaranteeing the right of the coal miners to organize and select representatives for collective bargaining without interference by employers and their agents, the act provides that whenever maximum hours of labor are agreed upon in any contract or contracts between producers of more than two-thirds of the annual national tonnage and representatives of more than one-half of the employes, such maximum hours shall be accepted by all code members. There is a similar provision that wage agreements made in any district or group of districts by the same proportions of the producers and employes shall be accepted as the minimum wages by all code members in such district or group of districts.

The act includes the levy of a 15 per cent tax on the sale price of bituminous coal at the mine, with the provision that 90 per cent of it shall be returned to operators who abide by the provisions of the code.

Labor Conditions Affect Interstate Commerce.

The arguments on both sides related to the power of congress to regulate the bituminous coal mining industry under its power, conferred by the constitution, to regulate commerce among the states.

The government contended that events extending over a long period had demonstrated the interstate character of collective bargaining in the bituminous coal industry and its relation to interstate competition. The government also pointed out that disputes over wages, hours and the principle of collective bargaining have often engendered labor disturbances which seriously obstruct interstate commerce, and therefore constitutionally come under the control of congress.

From the abundance of facts in its possession the government declared it seemed proper to conclude "that in this industry the scale of pay and the hours of work, and refusal to recognize the right of collective bargaining, have a direct, immediate and substantial effect upon interstate commerce to a degree not found in industry generally."

Favors Rule by Orderly Processes.

In closing the argument for the government, Assistant Attorney-General John Dickinson said the legislation included in the Guffey bill "is of an experimental nature."

"Much may turn on the decision and the opinion of the court," he continued. "The issues are much more tremendous than those of the present act.

"The issue of federal power is at stake—whether there lurk interstices and crevices in the constitution through which required federal power may have sifted away.

"We think the fathers, in setting up the constitution, were wise enough to see that the perpetuation of the kind of government they desired depended on a constitution strong enough to meet every crisis as it arose, not by military power, but by the orderly processes of government.

"The time may come, if the Union is to be preserved and the federal government is to be competent to deal with subversive forces, it may have to use other powers which we, as American citizens, would not want to be used.

"We believe and submit that the government must be able to meet our national destiny by control over commerce. In our economic life we must have one rule and one law."

Seamen's Union Wins Wage Boost Agreement

Fourteen Atlantic Coast Lines Will Pay Deck Staffs $62.50 and Stewards $45.

New York.—The International Seamen's Union of America reached an agreement with fourteen ship lines operating from Atlantic coast ports under which deck and engineers' staffs will be paid $62.50 a month and the stewards $45. The agreement was made effective as of March 15 and will continue until Dec. 31, 1937. The wages paid under the last agreement which expired on Dec. 31 were $57.50 for deck and engineers' departments and $40 for stewards.

Originally representatives of the seamen demanded a straight 20 per cent wage increase. The shipowners replied with an offer to renew the 1935 contract, but the men rejected this offer in a referendum vote and suggested the adoption of the Pacific coast scale, which would mean an increase of $5 monthly for deck and engineer hands and $10 for stewards. The Pacific agreement, it was said, also included higher wages for overtime.

The conference which finalized the new contract agreed to the Pacific coast wage, with the exception that the increase to stewards would be $5. The special wage for overtime was excluded.

The union committee in the conference included Gustave H. Brown, David Grange and Oscar Carlson. The committee believed that the other lines operating from Atlantic coast ports would sign the new contract in the near future.

President Seeks Rail-Labor Pact On Economy Issue

Asks Both Sides to Settle Employment Question by Conference, not Legislation — Bills to Protect Workers Offered.

Washington.—President Roosevelt has appealed to railroad labor and management to agree on proposed railroad terminal consolidations in a letter which rail officials interpreted as indicating the administration believes that the controversy should be ended before congress intervenes to settle it by statute.

The president's letter disclosed that Railroad Co-ordinator Eastman had consented to delay his proposed order forcing terminal unifications in eleven cities. The consolidations would result in loss of employment and have been vigorously opposed by railroad labor.

The president, writing to J. J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads, and J. A. Phillips, Cedar Rapids, Ia., vice-chairman of the Railway Labor Executives' association, invited both to a joint conference if they do not agree June 16. The emergency railroad transportation act expires on that date.

Protection Bills Offered.

Protection of labor in consolidations is a matter "which can be better settled by negotiation than by legislation," the president wrote. "Given sufficient time, the managements and the men ought to be able to agree, in their common interests, upon a reasonable plan of protection."

Legislation to protect railroad employes against loss of their jobs without just compensation after mergers was provided in identical bills introduced by Senator Wheeler and Representative Robert Grosser.

The bill has the support of the Railway Labor Executives' association, comprising the standard railroad unions. The bills would give the interstate commerce commission full authority to approve or disapprove consolidations, trackage agreements, pooling arrangements and other forms of mergers.

Wants Inquiry Completed.

Cedar Rapids, Ia.—J. A. Phillips, vice-chairman of the Railway Executives' association, approved President Roosevelt's proposal for negotiating an agreement on the railroad consolidation employment problem, but said that surveys which rail labor is making in the eleven cities involved in Co-ordinator Eastman's consolidation order must be finished. The surveys are being made to determine the effect of such consolidations on railroad employes.

"That information was not gathered by Mr. Eastman and we want to have it when we return to Washington for further conferences this month," Phillips said.

"A million railroad men have been put out of work in the past few years and we don't want to see any more go. We hope to find out how many more men would be left without work so that we can talk intelligently when we confer again."

ELLENBOGEN DRAFTS NEW TEXTILE INDUSTRY BILL

Measure Includes 35-Hour Week and $15 Minimum Wage —Bans Pay Differentials and Child Labor.

Washington.—Representative Ellenbogen, of Pennsylvania, author of the bill to rehabilitate and stabilize labor conditions in the textile industry, announced the introduction of a modified measure on which it is expected the house labor committee, which recently held hearings on the original bill, will make a favorable report.

It was stated that the new bill provides a maximum 35-hour week, a minimum wage of $15, limits machine operations to two shifts, abolishes child labor, and calls for time-and-one-half for all work in excess of 35 hours a week. There is no provision for sectional wage differentials.

The national textile commission, created by the measure, is given authority to fix minimum wage rates for skilled and semi-skilled workers. The commission is empowered to issue cease and desist orders against violators of the proposed law.

The original bill provided for a system of licenses for textile manufacturers and provisions for compulsory vacations, dismissal wage, and the requirement of fifteen days' notice before any change in work assignment. It was said these controversial features would be eliminated in the new measure.

Representative Ellenbogen expressed the conviction that the modified bill would meet all constitutional tests which opponents of the plan brought against the first draft.

Thirty-Hour Week Law Urged by Congressmen

Washington.—The enactment of a 30-hour week law pending an investigation by the United States department of labor of the extent to which working men and women have been thrown into the unemployed army by the introduction of labor-saving machinery was recommended by a house labor subcommittee.

In approving a resolution offered by Representative Palmisano, of Maryland, authorizing a survey designed to ascertain how many labor-displacing devices have been installed since 1912, the subcommittee made the following statement in its report to William P. Connery, of Massachusetts, chairman of the labor committee:

"The question of technological unemployment is still controversial. Your subcommittee is of the opinion that the use of constantly improved mechanical and other labor-saving devices is the main cause of the ever-increasing army of unemployed and prematurely superannuated derelicts among laborers."

Labor's Strength Finally United At Ballot Boxes

All Four Candidates Recommended for Justice of the Peace Win.

Unfavorable Record Toward Labor Sends Bayless and Mulkey Into Retirement.

Giving a definite example of what organized labor can do on election day to reward its friends and defeat its enemies, four candidates for the county court who were recommended by Labor's Political conference above others running in the city received the democratic nomination. For the first time labor made an organized effort at the ballot box to elect people who were most friendly to the interests of working people, and they came out with flying colors.

Because of a weak membership in the Second district the political conference did not succeed in putting over W. E. Cox and Eugene Turner, who were opposing 'Squires Camp and Fryar. The last two incumbents had caused the ill-will of labor because of their antagonism to the teachers and other anti-labor records.

In the city, however, where union members resided in greatest numbers, it was demonstrated that notwithstanding the small amount of preparation that was given to the labor conference they were able to come out on top.

Delegates to Labor's Political conference call attention that between now and June 1 every member of organized labor should see to it that their poll tax is paid and that every member of their family of voting age should be qualified.

Pressmen Strike Against Nashville Paper Pay Cut

Nashville.—A strike of pressmen for restoration of a 10 per cent wage cut resulted in failure of the Nashville Tennessean to publish a scheduled editon, the first time in the 124 years of its existence.

The strikers agreed the same day to return to work pending further discussion of their grievances, following a conference between Federal Judge Gore, representatives of the Pressmn's Union and attorneys for the receiver and bondholders of the paper.

The walkout was voted shortly after the District Federal Court ordered that the Tennessean papers, morning and evening, be sold at public auction June 1.

PROTECT EVICTED NEGROES, TENANTS' UNION DEMANDS

Memphis.—The Southern Tenant Farmers' union has telegraphed Sheriff C. M. Stacy, of Cross county, Arkansas, that it would seek to prosecute him if harm came to a colony of evicted negroe shareholders near Parkin, Ark., "as a result of your failure to do your duty."

Three sticks of dynamite had been placed in the camp of the evicted sharecroppers to intimidate the negroes and drive them from the section. The negroes, 106 in all, were evicted from the C. H. Dibble plantation in January. They are living in tents; food is being supplied by the local council of churches.

WPA WORKERS START A FIGHT FOR PAY BOOST

All - Southern Conference Held Sunday Sponsored by Chattanooga Local.

ATTACKS HOPKINS AS "WISE-CRACKER"

Should Be in Same Class as Louisville, Which Is $27 Higher Than Tennessee.

A movement to get the wages of southern relief workers raised to the first class will be started immediately, delegates to the all-southern WPA and relief workers' conference announced Sunday at the conclusion of their all-day meeting in the central labor hall.

Before adjourning the delegates, representing labor organizations from a majority of the southern states, passed several resolutions, in one of which they declared themselves "unalterably opposed to any sectional discrimination and differentials on WPA rates," and demanded the immediate raising of WPA wages to a leval equal to rates now prevailing in northern states.

Continuing the attack they made on Harry L. Hopkins, in Memorial auditorium Saturday night, they made plans to hold mass meetings in all of the principal cities of the south.

In speeches at Memorial auditorium Saturday night the Chattanooga union was congratulated for sponsoring the conference, and it was declared that "Chattanooga is becoming the spearhead of the attack on differentiation in wages among relief workers over the nation."

Frequent references were made during both the meeting at the auditorium and at the labor hall about Mr. Hopkins' raising Louisville to the first wave level and leaving Chattanooga and all other southern cities in the fourth class.

Differential Cited.

John Huff, president of the Chattanooga union, said WPA workers in areas where the first wage rate is in effect receive $60 per month. Workers in the second wage class area receive $49 per month and those of the fourth wage class, which includes Chattanooga, receive $33 per month, he said.

"Wise-cracking Harry Hopkins raised Louisville to the first wage class," Frank M. Lynch, vice-president of the Chattanooga union, declared, "because he needed the votes there to elect Chandler governor. And he is going to raise the wages in other places where he needs votes."

Mr. Lynch said he went to Washington recently to ask Mr. Hopkins to raise the wages of hod carriers in Chattanooga.

"He told me he couldn't do it," Mr. Lynch told the delegates, "unless he raised the wages of workers in every other southern city."

HOPKINS ISSUES ORDER TO BAR POLITICAL "SHAKEDOWN" IN WPA

Washington.—WPA Administrator Harry L. Hopkins has issued a general letter to all state WPA directors ordering that "no person shall be employed or discharged on the ground of his support or nonsupport of any political organization."

Hopkins' order, sent out as a "notice to all WPA workers," read:

"No employe of WPA, either administrative or engaged on a project, is required to make any contribution to any political party.

"No WPA employe's job will be in jeopardy because of the failure of said employe to make contribution.

"No employe of WPA shall at any time solicit contributions for any political party and evidence of such solicitation will be the cause for immediate discharge. The question of whether or not to contribute to any political party is a matter entirely for the voluntary decision of said employe.

"No person shall be employed or discharged by WPA on the ground of his support or nonsupport of any candidate of any political organization."

Relief Rolls Used Against Striking Dayton Miners

Tennessee River Coal Company Trucks Go to Relief Officer for Scabs.

Relief Allowance Cut for Union Men to Starve Them Back to Work—Protest Entered.

The striking miners at Dayton, Tenn., who have been fighting against deplorable working conditions and for recognition of the United Mine Workers of America since the 12th day of November have had their state relief allowance cut so that the Tennessee River Coal company could get the State of Tennessee to feed scabs while they toil in the mines for $1 per day, says George T. Titler, International representative for United Mine Workers of America. Several of the men have gone scabbing in the last three weeks, and when they went to work the relief office at Dayton was furnished with the names of the men on relief who returned to work. The Tennessee River Coal company sends their truck to the relief office and collects the commodities for the scabs so that they might work for nothing in the mines, he says.

Attorney Swafford made a trip to Nashville in behalf of the Tennessee River Coal company to try to have the relief cut off the men on strike, so that his company might have more to feed their hungry scabs.

Two orders have been issued to some of these scabs since they went to work and drastic action must be taken to keep them from being fed while the Tennessee River Coal company produces cheap coal and puts it on the Chattanooga market in competition with free labor, Mr. Titler declares.

A letter of protest has been filed with the divisional office of the Tennessee Relief Administration against this practice by him. The following are the names of the men who were filed with the case worker in Dayton, who are working for less than one-quarter the scale rate and receiving state relief: Carl Shadrick, Leland Clark, Creed Hardin, George Milligan, Arthur Milar, Earnest Moris, William Morgan.

UNIFORM PAY AND HOURS URGED FOR ALL CANADA

Dominion Supreme Court Told It Is Against National Interests for One Province to Compete With Low Industrial Standards of Another.

Ottawa.—"Terrible wages are being paid in some parts of Canada, we know too well," said Atty.-Gen. Roebuck before the supreme court of Canada. He was telling the court that the Ontario government favored an amendment to the Canadian constitution which would permit the establishment of uniform labor and social conditions throughout the Dominion.

"It is not in the national interest that industrialists in one province province should be forced to compete against the 'excessively low wages and oppressively long hours imposed on working people by the industrialists of another province," said Mr. Roebuck. He connected low wages with high police costs; said it was better to pay good wages than to pay policemen.

On the question of working time, the best hope held out by the attorney-general was a 48-hour week which begins to look as obsolete as the 72-hour week looked a generation ago.

ONLY INDUSTRY CAN END NECESSITY OF WORK RELIEF, PRESIDENT SAYS

Chief Executive, Calling on Congress for Appropriation of $1,500,000,000 to Continue Job Program, Puts Ultimate Termination of Federal Aid Up to Industrial Leaders.

Washington.—President Roosevelt's relief message to congress puts the relief question squarely up to industrial leaders and the supreme court. He points out that the trend of reemployment is upward, but too slow to wait for. He believes that reemployment can be effected on a much larger scale if private employers will engage in a nationwide effort to increase employment.

"Under the national recovery administration," says the message, "the nation learned the value of shorter hours in their application to a whole industry. In almost every case, the shorter hours were approved by the great majority of individual operators within the industry. To the federal government was given the task of policing against the minority who came to be known as chiselers. . . .

"But the public authority to require the shorter hours agreed upon has been seriously curtailed by limitations recently imposed by the supreme court upon federal as well as state powers."

Urges "Common Effort."

After this flat statement, which makes the court history of the last few months official, the president says that the anti-trust laws will be and must be vigorously enforced; but that there is an opportunity for business to combine to increase employment.

"Such efforts would, indeed, be the direct opposite of a conspiracy in restraint of trade. . . . It is my belief that if the leaders in each industry will organize in a common effort to increase employment within that industry, employment will increase substantially."

"The ultimate cost of the federal works program will thus be determined by private enterprise. Federal assistance, which arose as a result of industrial disemployment, can be terminated if industry itself removes the underlying conditions. . . . Only if industry fails to reduce substantially the number of those now out of work will another appropriation and further plans and policies be necessary."

Labor's Position Backed.

It is noticeable that the president in this message takes the stand for shorter hours and the supreme need of employment as a means of recovery that organized labor has taken the first.

The president asked congress for a new appropriation of $1,500,000,000 with which to continue work relief for another year, beginning July 1.

He proposed to limit the federal government's aid to 3,800,000 families and unattached persons classed as "employables." About 1,500,000 other cases would be carried on local and state relief rolls, which, he declared, must henceforth assume full responsibility for "unemployables."

Miss Perkins for Bill Fixing Labor Standards for U. S. Work

Washington.—Secretary of Labor Perkins told a house judiciary subcommittee that she favors the Healy bill to permit the government to establish wage and labor standards for bidders on government contracts.

Miss Perkins said she could see no reason why the government cannot establish labor standards since it fixes quality and price conditions in its contracts.

She urged the committee, however, to make three modifications in the bill. One would put the responsibility of maintaining the standards on both contractors and sub-contractors to prevent the contractor from "passing the buck" to the sub-contractor.

Another would prohibit all kinds of homework in government contracts and another would establish a quasi-judicial board in the labor department for determination of the standards.

CENTRAL BODY PROTESTS ACT TO KILL UNION

Memphis Board Education Criticized for Forcing "Yellow Dog" on Teachers.

START CAMPAIGN FOR STATE TENURE LAW

Every Central Body in Tennessee Urged to Help Tennessee Teachers Get Security Guarantee.

Citing the action by the Memphis Board of Education in requiring teachers to sign a contract not to join or remain members of the teachers' union as "un-American interference with the liberties of citizens," Chattanooga Central Labor union in session Monday evening condemned the Shelby county dads. Issuing of such a "yellow dog" contract seemed to be one more step by the political boss of that county to destroy labor organizations after they refused to abide by his dictation.

The resolution says:

Be it resolved by the Chattanooga Central Labor Union, in regular session, March 23, 1936, that we respectfully but strongly protest the action of the Memphis Board of Education in outlawing the Memphis Teachers' Association which is a local union of the American Federation of Teachers affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. This action is one of the most outrageous interferences with the right of freeborn American citizens to join a voluntary organization of their own choosing that has come to our attention in recent times.

It is particularly repugnant in that it comes after eighteen years of honorable existence of that organization, and without any charge of misconduct or illegal activity being placed against it. It does not seem to occur to the Memphis Board of Education that teachers are not public servants elected by the people, but employes selling their skilled services to the public with all the inherent rights of employes to have a voice in determining the conditions under which they will sell

Pay Your Poll Tax

Labor's Political Conference last week demonstrated that working people of this city are ready and willing to act collectively in matters political just as soon as proper machinery is set up to enforce their desires. It is useless, however, to cause such a machine to be set into operation, only to discover that when the foot is pressed against the gas that the gasoline tank is empty.

In this instance, the gasoline (or motive force) is qualified voters. Working people must qualify themselves to vote. Politicians know at all times just how many people are qualified, in what wards they exist, and almost exactly what their political loyalties are.

If working people ever make up their minds to keep themselves qualified to vote at all times in very large numbers, they will soon discover that their slightest wish will be listened to with meticulous care by the political bosses. Loud barks without the ability to bite make the most ferocious-looking dog an object of ridicule.

Our people have until June 1 (or thereabouts) to go to the county trustee's office and pay their poll taxes. Pay those poll taxes! We venture to say that if by June 1 some 5,000 working people who have not yet paid those poll taxes do pay them that such tangible strength will create respect for us. Politicians are practical people, politically. Let us be practical also by arming ourselves with votes instead of filling the air with futile inveighing against status quo, unsupported by ability to change things for the best.

CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

Eleutherics Venizelos, probably the greatest statesman of modern Greece, is dead in exile in Paris at the age of 72 years. He is a man whom Americans can understand by thinking of him as a cross between Aaron Burr and Thomas Jefferson. But it should be Burr at his best, not at his worst.

Venizelos was born in the island of Crete, studied law in Athens, went back to Crete to practice, and helped to free that island from Turkish rule in 1897. In 1910, he became premier of Greece for the first time, and frequently held that office afterwards. He sided with the allies in the World war, and finally brought Greece into the conflict on the allied side. The queen of Greece at that time was sister to Kaiser Wilhelm: a true Hohenzollern, who held up Red Cross funds designed for the Venizelist Greeks who already were in the allied camp at Salonika.

He took part in the revolution that made Greece, for the time, a republic. He took part, against his will and better judgment, in the revolt which centered in the Greek navy in 1935; intended to make Greece a republic again. He escaped the vengeance of the royalists; but his health was shattered.

When the present writer saw Venizelos in Chicago, he was a remarkably handsome man, with white hair and beard, blonde skin, and piercing blue eyes—which last are not so common around the Mediterranean.

Whether the international court at The Hague settles or does not settle the question of German troops in the Rhineland, the incident shows clearly that Hitler wants war—but not just yet.

The whole power of Germany, so far as the Nazi regime can swing it, is concentrated on preparation for war. The technical apparatus of the German army is expected to reach the highest pitch this year, with airplanes, tanks and guns of the very best. Conscription has been resumed in Germany, but it will be some time before a sufficient number of men are trained to make successful war probable. The general belief is that the break will come in 1938 or 1939.

Meanwhile, prices have risen so that German wages have lost 25 per cent of their buying power since 1933. The standard of living has dropped from 30 to 35 per cent in the Hitler regime. The German trade unions have been destroyed; after first being robbed: It's a gay world.

President Roosevelt's proposal to tax the undistributed surpluses of corporations has not been answered successfully by any of his opponents.

There is no longer any serious doubt that we are having a depression now because for many years before 1929, too little of the national income went to labor and too much to capital. The share of capital has been hoarded in various ways; but the biggest single type of hoarding is in the surpluses of corporations.

The A. T. & T., the country has just been reminded, paid dividends out of surplus for several of the depression years — while turning loose almost one-third of its working force to starve or go on relief. And the A. T. & T. is no worse than plenty of other corporations.

The Passing Show

Note and Comment on Things Doing in the March of Events

Events move toward war in Europe—perhaps in Europe and Asia. Not this month, barring accident. Put the date down for about a year hence. England is just now the peace factor. Meanwhile the dictators move onward, gaining strength, having their way. Mussolini drives into Africa, laying the groundwork for what later conquests the future only can tell. Hitler, backed by national resentment at the Versailles treaty, picks the right moment to make his big dramatic move. Russia and Japan are a long ways from being in love with each other.

The fact seems to be that, behind the warlike moves, there is a general sparring for time. All are trying to hold back for a time more favorable. Which means that all of them keep on getting ready—and more ready.

Guns and more guns. What a slaughter is in the offing! No war can add an inch to the amount of land on this globe. Wars can carve up what there is, put parts of it under different flags. How funny that would look to an observer looking on from the moon, or from Mars. What's it all about and what is ever gained? Wars for freedom from tyranny? That's another matter. Revolutions against despots—those are another matter. What looms now is not in either of those categories. Although revolutions, some time hence, are not impossible, where dictators rule.

But let's look around home for a moment. We still have twelve millions who are unemployed. The line of unemployment weaves back and forth, but doesn't change basically. This is a serious matter. It is as if the nation had built a fence and put twelve millions outside the fence. The remainder are at work, doing more or less well; some doing very well.

In stark, cold truth it looks as if we could have a fair degree of prosperity if we could somehow cause twelve millions to disappear. But they won't disappear. They will, more likely, increase. Nothing seems to add up. There is no sense. But some day there has got to be an answer.

* * *

Either the nation must contrive to support twelve millions, by dole or otherwise, or else find a way to get back into the world of work and wages. Will twelve millions consent to remain permanently on a dole? What is the answer? By what process are they to be enabled to get work and wages? What is the answer? Well, it won't be done by wishing, or by "going back" to anything. Back of us lies the point at which all this maladjustment started. Somewhere ahead is the way out. Right now there is no agreement as to where it is or how to find it. But agreement must come. It isn't any more fun to be torn up from the inside than to be shot up from the outside. Any small boy who has ever eaten a green apple knows that.

VOTE FOR LABOR

Johnson City Notes

At the meeting of the Johnson City Central Labor union Friday night, March 27, will be the regular nomination of officers for the coming year. The election will follow the first meeting night in April, which will be April 10.

A special meeting was held of Local 1077 of the local Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers. Business of importance was before the organization and was well attended.

The second meeting of the new organization of Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers' Union No. 7 of Johnson City, Erwin and Elizabethton was held Saturday night with President G. B. Allen presiding.

The new organization has got off to a good start and at this meeting several new members were enrolled and more coming at the following meetings to be held each Saturday night for the next three weeks.

The workers are very enthusiastic over the outlook on things in East Tennessee and all are behind the organization 100 per cent and we bespeak great things for them in the future.

On to Chattanooga.

The Johnson City Central Labor union with a full quota of delegates will be on hand at the May meeting of the Tennessee Federation of Labor which convenes the first week in May. At the present time your correspondent is unable to say whether other locals in this section wil send delegates, but it is hoped that they will all be represented.

The second new organization has been completed within the space of less than ten days in East Tennessee. The most recent is a reorganization of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Local No. 934. The charter and other material is at present in the hands of the organizing committee of the Johnson City Central Labor union and by the time this is in print the charter will have been installed.

Representative Freeman, of the Electrical Brotherhood, has been assigned to this section to assist in the organization work of this craft.

The committee of the Central Labor union has several other crafts under the process of organization and it is hoped that by the time the meeting of the State Federation of Labor we will have an excellent report to make on the conditions of organized labor in East Tennessee.

Kingsport.—The large mass meeting of workers at Kingsport last Sunday was well attended by workers of the organization of Local No. 2466 of the United Textile Workers and visitors for this city and Johnson City.

Representative C. D. Puckett of the United Textile Workers of America is in charge of the situation in Kingsport at the present time. When the organization was first formed in the plant of the Kingsport Silk Mill some time ago, the mill owners promptly closed the mill and locked out all the workers and up to the present time they are still in that position. The mill has been reported to have been filling orders from another plant at Blackstone, Va. The workers have been assisted by all other organizations in East Tennessee and very ably assisted by the United Mine Workers of southwest Virginia.

Representative Puckett in his address before the meeting Sunday stressed the reasons why the workers of this city should be organized and much work is contemplated in this city, not only by the U. T. W. but by all crafts affected in this city.

The Johnson City Central Labor union was represented at the meeting Sunday by President D. C. Long, Secretary-Treasurer W. G. Hart and Recording Secretary W. H. Lacey, and Mr. Hugo G. Sheridan, Secretary-Treasurer of the Johnson City Typographical Union No. 763, and Mr. Ralph Perkins of Moving Picture Operators Local No. 699.

The Johnson City Central Labor union has promised their cooperation in any manner possible and will assist in the campaign that will be undertaken.

Public Printer Giegengack's Big Job In World's Largest Printing Office

A few recent achievements of the government printing office in Washington, said to be the largest printing establishment in the world, indicate the tremendous tasks which Public Printer Augustus E. Giegengack is required to execute.

Late one recent Friday afternoon the treasury department sent in an order for 100 copies of a brief for the board of tax appeals with the stipulation that delivery must be had by Monday morning. Although the brief made 539 pages, type was set, proofreading and corrections made, and the job printed and delivered on time.

Another recent order was for 2,230 nickel-faced, blocked electrotype plates for bonds and treasury notes. The copy reached the government printing office late in the afternoon of March 3 with the stipulation that sufficient plates must be ready by 8 o'clock in the morning of March 4 to start the presses in the bureau of printing and engraving. One hundred and five plates were delivered on schedule and the entire 2,230 were turned out in 26½ hours from the time the copy was received.

The bureau of the census sent in an order for 31,830,000 copies of a card 6 by 4 inches which were to be printed, punched with a hole at the top of the card, and tied in packages of 1,000, making 31,830 separate packages. The order was completed in approximately thirty days.

Then came the works progress administration with an order for 8,750,000 copies of a form 6 by 16 inches printed on seven different colors of paper, perforated, gathered and made into pads of 25 sets each. This rush order was received Feb. 3 and completed Feb. 20.

But perhaps the most outstanding illustration of Public Printer Giegengack's achievements is the work he did in connection with printing the applications for payment of adjusted-service certificates, commonly known as the soldiers' bonus. As soon as the law was passed the veterans' administration placed an order for 6,000,000 copies of the application. The next day 2,000,000 were delivered and the entire order was completed in less than forty-eight hours after it was received.

In addition to these rush jobs which the public printer is required to handle upon receipt, the regular work turned out is enormous. During the last fiscal year the government printing office printed 1,857,152,220 postal cards, 228,187,000 money order forms, turned out 4,847,444,000 copies of job work, and distributed 428,950,907 publications. The wages and salaries paid during the fiscal year amounted to $10,797,879.20.

One of the public printer's regular duties during sessions of congress is printing and distributing 37,000 copies daily of the Congressional Record. Regardless of the number of pages it contains, coupled with the handicap that frequently the copy is not available until midnight, the Record is printed and distributed by 7 o'clock in the morning.

SATURDAY EVENING POST IS UNFAIR

TEACHER TALK

LOCAL 246, A. F. of T.

ANTI-TEACHER PROPAGANDA

Various local sources are distributing propaganda designed to discredit the teachers, to create the false impression that teachers' salaries caused this year's 43 cents tax increase, and to exaggerate the amount of budgetary increase required to comply with the salary law next year. This propaganda should be spiked by facts and figures weilded by enlightened teachers.

The facts are that the teacher did not get a cent of the revenue from the 43 cents tax increase, but, on the contrary, saw the school term cut and the salary law ignored. As to the budget increase, the padded figure of $335,000 recently released includes high estimates of back salary increases for this year, added monies required for the ninth month (previously unprovided for) and a similarly high estimate of the increases due next year.

The fact that the county administration has allowed two years of school obligations to pile up on one year's budget is not the fault of the teachers. And the amounts required to pay legal salaries should not be exaggerated with a view to marshaling public opinion against the teachers.

REACTION RIDES IN MEMPHIS

Elementary rights of citizenship are denied Memphis teachers in a recent ruling of the Board of Education. The board declares that no teacher will be elected for next year who does not agree in writing to abstain from membership in an organization affiliated with labor. This will apply to the present membership of the Memphis teachers' local.

The Chattanooga Central Labor union passed a resolution denouncing this vicious, un-American, discriminatory action on the part of the Memphis board. Local teachers should write protests to the Memphis Board of Education and to Mayor Watkins Overton, Crump-controlled politician, who backs this autocratic action.

The Memphis situation throws the need for a statewide tenue bill into bold relief. Memphis has no tenure law.

DEMAND THE UNION LABEL

Hosiery White List Ready

Philadelphia.—The American Federation of Hosiery Workers this week released its "White List" itemizing the brands of hosiery manufactured in union shops, and containing a plea to consumers to purchase the products of such shops.

This year's list, although white in name is pink in color, with an attractive design on the cover.

All persons or organizations interested in securing the list are requested to contact the federation offices at 2319 North Broad street.

Purchasers of the hosiery named contained in the "White List" are assured that the products they wear have been manufactured under decent working conditions, proper sanitation and that a living wage is paid the employes of the said company.

They may further be assured that the workers are not subjugated to conditions of uncertainty and anti-unionism such as exist today in Nazi Germany and Fascist Italy.

The list of union made hosiery and brand marks follows:

Children's Hose

Rambo-Regar — Phoenix

Men's Half Hose

La-Bel — Weston's
Best Maid — Phoenix

Klingtop

Union Label Hosiery

The Best Maid Silk Hosiery company, of Quakerstown, Pa., sells full-fashioned hosiery bearing the union label. The Best Maid also sells men's full-fashioned half-hose with the union label.

The Phoenix Hosiery company, of Milwaukee, Wis., manufactures hosiery for the entire family and will stamp the union label on any style or kind of Phoenix hosiery made either for men, women or children.

It Pays to Deal With Real Unions

Big Industrial Concerns Report That Profits Soared After They Recognized Workers' Right to Bargain Collectively

The National Association of Manufacturers and other anti-labor propagandists have, through years of constant misrepresentation, convinced certain type of employer that signing a union agreement is tantamount to signing a death warrant for his own business.

No more effective debunking of this bogey-man can be found than in the official financial reports of firms which have been unionized within the last two years. Here are four typical instances selected from a long list:

In 1933, the Remington Rand company, which had never dealt with organized labor, had a deficit of $2,581,030. Early in 1934, after a strike the firm signed an agreement with the Machinists' union and several other A. F. of L. organizations.

When that year closed, not only had the deficit been wiped out but the firm showed a net profit of $1,264,941. Its net profit for 1935 was still greater—$1,750,591.

Underwood Elliott Fisher company made $1,517,943 in 1933—which had no relations with organized labor. A union agreement was negotiated in May, 1934. Profits during that year were $2,604,879. The 1935 report is not yet complete, but based on figures for the nine months the firm's profits are expected to hit close to the $3,000,000 mark.

A deficit of $1,353,901 was reported by the Shell Oil corporation in 1934. Union agreements were signed, for the first time, on May 1, 1935. Nine months later the company reported a $4,411,649 profit.

The Chicago Pneumatic Tool company earned $412,632 in 1934. But in 1935, the Machinists' union negotiated its first agreement with the firm. Preliminary reports indicate the company's profits have doubled since the pact was signed.

The firm's named are not having an unusual experience. They are merely learning what fair employers discovered long ago—it pays to deal with a responsible labor union.

BIG REFINERY IS ORDERED TO BARGAIN WITH UNION

Labor Board Rejects Defense of Company and Upholds Oil Workers in Dispute at Georgia Plant—Other Decisions of Importance to Organized Workers.

Washington.—The National Labor Relations Board has made in the last few days a series of rulings of unusual interest to labor.

First is the rebuke to the Atlantic Refining company, which has been ordered to cease its refusal to meet the local union of Oil Field, Gas Well and Refinery Workers to negotiate on wages and working conditions at the Brunswick, Ga., plant of the company. The company offered in defense the claim that it treated with its employes "individually."

"Collective bargaining means more than a discussion of individual problems and grievances with employes or a group of employes," said the Board. "It means that the employer is obligated to negotiate in good faith with his employes as a group, through their representatives, on matters of wages, hours and basic working conditions, and to endeavor to reach an agreement for a fixed period of time.

Group Problems Not Discussed

"It is evident that the grievances which the respondent (the company) discussed and was willing to discuss were the individual problems of its employes and matters of ordinary detail, and did not pertain to the employes as a group."

The company in this case admitted that more than 100 of its 123 employes were members of the union; but still refused to negotiate.

The Board has ordered an election to determine who shall represent the workers at the plant of the Belmont Stamping & Enameling company, at New Philadelphia, Ohio.

Order Against Boat Plant

The NLRB has ordered the Harbor Boatbuilding company, of Los Angeles, to cease and desist from refusing to bargain collectively with the Ship Carpenters, Caulkers and Joiners' union. This order was issued after hearings held at the request of the union.

In still another action, the Board certified Branch 69 of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers to act for production, employes of the John Blood & Co., Inc., plant at Boyerton, Pa. The workers had held a secret election.

In February the Labor Relations Board received 65 separate charges and petitions for elections involving 5,364 workers. It closed 56 cases covering 7,227 workers and mutual agreements were reached in 32 cases involving 3,564 employes. Since its establishment the Board and its regional offices have acted on 641 cases involving 146,245 workers.

LABOR BOARD LAWYER ASKED TO LEAVE TOWN

Action Follows Injunction Barring Hearing on Complaint Against Lumber Company.

Pine Bluff, Ark.—Town officials, judges and other leading citizens of Warren, Ark., do not intend to tolerate revealing the oppressive labor conditions allegedly imposed on the employes of the Bradley Lumber company here even though lifting the lid is authorized by the statute law of the United States.

This unique condition is shown by the attitude toward Col. Robert B. Watts and other representatives of the board after Chancellor E. G. Hammock, of Dermott, issued an injunction restraining the board from holding a hearing on a complaint charging the lumber concern with violating the Wagner-Connery labor relations act, which guarantees the rights of employes to organize and elect representatives for collective bargaining without interference from employers.

In an interview here Col. Watts said that after the chancery court blocked the hearing with an injunction he and other representatives of the labor board had been petitioned to leave Warren. He said the petition was signed by a number of prominent citizens, including the mayor, the chancellor who issued the injunction and the sheriff who served the writ. The petitioners declared they did not approve of the hearing. Because of the injunction Col. Watts said the hearing would probably be transferred to New Orleans, La.

Chancellor Hammock issued the injunction at the request of seven employes of the lumber company who claimed the hearing might unlawfully jeopardize their jobs. It was served by Sheriff T. B. Beard, of Bradley county, on C. H. Logan, New Orleans district representative of the national labor relations board, shortly after the hearing opened.

Roosevelt Signs Leave Bills for U. S. Workers

Washington.—The long uncertainty regarding the annual and sick leave to which government employes are entitled was settled when President Roosevelt signed the two measures on this subject recently enacted by congress.

The measures, which are retroactive from last Jan. 1, fix the annual leave at twenty-six days, exclusive of Sundays and holidays, and the sick leave at fifteen days.

It will be possible for employes to let their annual leave accumulate up to sixty days and sick leave up to ninety days.

The two bills apply to nearly all civilian federal employes, wherever stationed, and to District of Columbia employes except school teachers and librarians. In the postal service the bills apply to departmental employes and those in the mail bag equipment shops.

The bills also apply to the employes of corporations created by congress if they are either wholly owned or controlled by the government. This provision was included to cover the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation.

The question of compensation for overtime work was not settled. It was the wish of the house sponsors of the annual leave bill to include a provision for additional leave in direct proportion to overtime, but following an objection by the senate conferees it was agreed to make a further study of this problem.

Although the annual leave measure specifically limits permanent employes to their twenty-six days, exclusive of Sundays and holidays, a provision of the law allows temporary employes as much as thirty days. This technical advantage results from the stipulation that temporary employes except those working at hourly rates on construction jobs are allowed 2½ days leave for each month of actual service. Over a period of a year this would amount to thirty days.

Claude Babcock, president of the American Federation of Government Employes, made the following statement regarding the enactment of the leave bills:

"The American Federation of Government employes desires to publicly acknowledge the debt of gratitude of employes of the United States government, to the president and to the members of congress on the occasion of the final enactment of the Ramspeck leave bills.

"We also acknowledge deep debt to the American Federation of Labor and President Green for active support of the bills.

"These bills mean sick leave for all, which is so essential to social security. They mean vacations for all, which will result in the protection of health and better and more efficient work. They mean a definite advance toward the abolition of the inequitious practice of overtiming. They mark the first step in the reduction of hours of labor for thousands of government employes who are now working up to 84 hours a week."

Associated Press Probe Ordered

New York.—Mrs. Elinore Herrick, regional director of the National Labor Relations Board here, fixed April 7 as the date for the hearing on the complaint filed by the American Newspaper Guild charging the Associated Press with unfair labor practices prohibited by the National Labor Relations Act. The Guild contends that the Associated Press discharged Morris Watson, an editorial employe, because of his Guild membership and activities.

The hearing was originally adjourned pending the decision by Federal Judge William Bondy on the application made by the Associated Press, through its counsel, John W. Davis, for a preliminary injunction restraining the labor board from holding the hearing or taking any other administrative procedure on the ground that the Labor Act was unconstitutional and that even the hearing would result in "irreparable injury" to the Associated Press. The "irreparable injury" contention is about the only ground except unconstitutionality that warrants an equity court in resorting to the injunction process.

In denying the injunction Judge Bondy held that neither the hearing on the complaint nor even holding an election by employes under the direction of the Labor Board, as provided by the act, would inflict any injury on the Associated Press. He intimated that the appropriate time for that organization to challenge either the Labor Board or the Labor Act was following the issuance of a cease and desist order by the Board and that the appropriate tribunal in such case was the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals, as set forth in the Act itself.

their services and to join forces with other similar organizations for mutual protection and helpfulness.

It is strange that this sudden ban should come at a time when the political boss of Memphis and Shelby county is engaged in controversy with certain labor leaders of that city.

There is no room in America for such un-American interference with the liberties of citizens as is exemplified in this action of the Memphis Board of Education.

At a previous session of Central Body a request was ordered sent to every Central Body in the state to take immediate steps to secure a statewide tenure bill passed through the next session of the legislature similar to the one enacted at the last term for Hamilton county. This movement was inaugurated by the Chattanooga-Hamilton county teachers' union, which was endorsed by the Central Labor union.

The resolution reads:

Whereas, the insecurity of position of teachers prevalent in the State of Tennessee, due to the lack of sound protective legislation, is detrimental to the welfare of the public schools of the state, and

Whereas, the principle of teacher tenure has been endorsed as a basically sound and fundamental educational policy by the Chattanooga-Hamilton County Teachers' Federation, Local 246, and its International union, the American Federation of Teachers, and all other outstanding educational organizations, and

Whereas, the American Federation of Labor adopted the following resolution at its 1930 convention:

"Whereas, permanency of tenure for teachers is an important factor in the building of a teaching profession and the establishing of a system of schools that will function for the better training of our children into more competent citizens of the nation; and

"Whereas, tenure for teachers has been guaranteed by law in but few of the states of the states of the United States and in certain states where it has been guaranteed by law, teachers are regularly dismissed before the trial period of three years is finished in order that a staff of cheap teachers may always be employed; therefore be it

"Resolved, that the American Federation of Labor continue even more vigorously its efforts to secure permanency of tenure for teachers, and be it further

"Resolved, that the American Federation of Labor adopt as its policy permanent tenure of office for teachers after two years of temporary service with proved efficiency, with removal only for definite stated justified cause after investigation and trial, and that it endeavor to secure the adoption of such policy in the several states of the country." And

Whereas, the Council of Chattanooga Central Labor, Affiliated Federation of Teachers, has gone on record as favoring a law for statewide teacher tenure, therefore be it

Resolved, that the Chattanooga Central Labor union endorse the action of Local 246, and pledge full cooperation to a statewide movement to have enacted by the 1937 session of the state legislature, a tenure of office law for teachers, and be it further

Resolved, that the secretary of the Chattanooga Central Labor union communicate with all other central bodies, the Tennessee Federation of Labor and all other union units, as far as possible, to secure prompt endorsement of said resolution for a state tenure law.

Congress Knows Cigarette Tax Situation, Yet Takes No Action

Washington.—The department of agriculture recently presented to the ways and means committee of the house a schedule of possible process taxes which could be levied on agricultural products. The tobacco taxes covered every tobacco product but one. Cigars, large and small; large cigarettes, manufacturing tobacco and snuff, all were down on the list.

But when it came to small cigarettes, the price at which the proposed tax began was put high enough to exclude the 10-cent smoke.

The department of agriculture knows its business. A year ago, it recommended a cut in the tax on 10-cent cigarettes, and declared that such a cut would produce more revenue for the government. The more 10-cent cigarettes are made and sold, said the agriculture experts in substance, the fewer people will roll their own. And the tax on tobacco for the men who rolls his own is very much lighter than even the proposed cut rate for the 10-cent smoke.

It should be added that the department of agriculture gave another reason for lowering the tax on dime cigarettes, which are largely union-made. The makers of the 10-cent brands were a potent factor in keeping up the farm prices of tobacco.

At present, therefore, congress knows, from the testimony of two government departments, treasury and agriculture, that the dime cigarette deserves encouragement, not repression; and that the encouragement given by lower taxation will increase the total revenues from tobacco and be of decided benefit to tobacco farmers. Is it not about time for congress, with this knowledge in its possession, to lower the tax on the dime cigarette?

DANISH WAITERS OBJECT TO OUTLANDISH UNIFORMS

Officials of the waiters' union in Copenhagen, Denmark, are reported as having begun negotiations with the more important restaurant and hotel owners with regard to the adoption of a new uniform more comfortable and conservative than the ones they are now required to wear.

The waiters say they are definitely opposed to being trussed up in the stiff shirt and starched collar, which they claim is uncomfortable in any season and torturing on a hot day. They are equally opposed to costumes once associated only with fancy-dress balls and grand opera. It is claimed the proprietors have carried the grand opera costume idea to such an extent that almost any assemblage of Copenhagen waiters gives the appearance of a combined dress rehearsal for "Carmen," and several other operas. One manager recently insisted that his waiters should appear as monks, cowls, sandals and all. When this order was issued the waiters' union drew up its list of grievances and demanded more comfortable and sedate uniforms.

NEW PAY RATES ACCEPTED.

Manchester, N. H.—By a majority of 536, employes of th 105-year-old Amoskeag Manufacturing company—largest single textile mill in the United States—accepted new wage rates designed to bring reopening of the mill, closed sice last August because of conditions within the textile industry. The agreement provides for downward readjustment of pay rates in the cotton division, employing 7,500 workers. Pay in the woolen division, employing 2,500, is not affected.

MILWAUKEE CLEANERS WIN GOOD INCREASE IN WAGES

Milwaukee, Wis.—An increase in hourly pay of 5 per cent, with corresponding increases for salaried workers getting under $30 a week, has averted a strike here, which for a time threatened to shut down at least twenty plants.

The Cleaners' and Dyers' union, according to Fred Warfel, business representative, by a vote of acceptance of the 5 per cent offer ended strikes which were already in effect in two plants.

Time and a half will be paid for overtime and any additional employes hired during the life of the new contract will join the union. An arbitration board has been set up and most plants have agreed to the closed shop. It is reported that about 80 per cent of the employes are members of the union.

REAL ESTATE OWNERS SUE TO ENJOIN PWA HOUSING

Washington.—Because the project threatens to interfere with their profits, six residents of Cambridge, Mass., have filed suit in the District of Columbia supreme court to enjoin construction of PWA low-cost housing in Cambridge.

The suit asked an injunction to restrain Administrator Ickes from spending $2,750,000 for construction of 312 living units, consisting of houses, apartments and flats, in the Cambridge housing project known as "Main Street." The project is designed to provide decent housing for families of small incomes.

The plaintiffs charged that the housing units would be rented in competition with rental properties owned by them, and contended that there is only a limited number of tenants in the district to be served.

THE Westinghouse UNIT HAS ALWAYS BEEN Hermetically sealed

● The first Westinghouse Refrigerator ever sold had a Hermetically-sealed Mechanism. Twelve years of research, experiment, and testing went into its development. To these years of pre-testing have been added long years of actual operating proof. In thousands of homes daily experience shows that this forced-draft cooled, Hermetically-sealed, lifetime-oiled Mechanism is the key to unusually low-cost, trouble-free refrigeration. That is why owners, by thousands, say "If we were buying a new refrigerator today it would certainly be a Westinghouse." That's why Westinghouse can say, "With every sealed-in mechanism you get five years' protection against service expense at a cost of only $5 — a dollar a year — included in the price."

Fechner; C Camps

...er" Machinist ...ew Deal.

...vice-president of ...an order by Presi... conservation corps ...430,000 to 300,000 and to close out 700 camps by April 1.

So popular is the relief agency directed by the former "boomer" machinist that more than half the members of the house signed a "round-robin" against the reduction and demanded a caucus of d... before action was taken.

A delegation interviewed the president and told him that unless the order it would meet the stiffest kind of resistance and probably would be repudiated. Before he left on his vacation, the president capitulated and wrote a letter to Fechner directing him to continue the camps at present strength for at least a year.

Congressman Jack Nichols, Oklahoma democrat, one of the leaders in the fight for the CCC, voiced the sentiment of his colleagues when he declared that Fechner's organization has been the least criticized and perhaps the most successful agency of the new deal.

Nichols predicted that the country would be "up in arms" if thousands of boys were turned back into the streets, adding:

"The camps have been a haven of employment for young men and at the same time furnished some relief to a depression-stricken old mother or father at home. To these boys were furnished a bright day of hope and a new vision on life.

"I am sure that on reconsideration the president will not force these lads to shift for themselves. The great humanitarian in the White House will not forget the government's responsibility to the nation's growing manhood."

While the fight to save the camps was being successfully waged, the country was given a dramatic demonstration of the kind of work the boys have been performing when thousands were quickly recruited to build obstacles against threatening floods and to rescue and relieve the victims.

Untold millions of dollars of property damage was prevented and many lives were saved through the efforts of Fechner's "boys," Congressman Nichols declared.

Bakery Salesmen To Elect Officers Next Tuesday Eve

Prospects Bright for Healthy Future for "Staff of Life" Boys.

Showing a fine interest in improving their craft, the reorganized local union of bakery salesmen met last Tuesday evening in the labor hall and nominated officers for the next twelve-month period. Nominations were held open until the next meeting to be held Tuesday, April 7, at which time elections will be made.

Two members are in the race for president of the bread and cake sellers. H. L. McCrory, of Colonial, and C. R. Bales, of Union Bakery, will vote it out next week.

For vice-president W. B. Phillips, J. E. Miller and Clyde Russell will be voted on.

R. C. Dean, of Colonial, so far has no opposition for financial secretary, neither has C. L. Bradford for re-election.

Raymond Carroll and George Rogers were nominated for conductor.

Only one nomination so far, Herbert Scoggins, has been made for warden.

Trustees for the three-year term will be selected from Mack Jordan, J. C. Smith and Henry McGuffey.

J. R. Gugh and Earl Renegar have been nominated for the two-year term, while F. H. Morgan and Ed Day will run for the one-year stretch.

Next meeting will start promptly at 7:30. It is expected that practically every salesman in the city will be present.

The Label League's birthday party was a big success. There was a splendid crowd present to enjoy the nice program which Mrs. M. M. Beavers and her committee had prepared. One of the high spots of the evening was the giving away of a beautiful five-pound birthday cake with one little candle on it. This cake was made and donated by the Union Baking company. Machinists Gain Significant Rule

Right to Represent Craft in Mass Production Plant Is Upheld by NLRB.

In a significant decision handed down Wednesday, the national labor relations board ruled that the International Association of Machinists shall be the exclusive collective bargaining agency for men of that craft employed by the Canton Enameling and Stamping company, Canton, O.

The NLRB also ordered the company to "cease and desist" from refusing to bargain collectively with the local union of the machinists at Canton.

Labor officials said that the board's decision establishes a vital precedent regarding the right of skilled workers to have representation by unions of their particular craft.

Pact Follows Strike.

The company employs only thirteen machinists. Twelve of them are members of the I. A. of M. The main body of the firm's production workers, about 550, are under an agreement between the company and Stamping and Enameling Workers' Union No. 18506, a direct affiliate of the A. F. of L.

This agreement was negotiated following a strike in October, 1933. The Machinists had no part in calling the walkout or negotiating the settlement.

The Stamping and Enameling Workers' union has never claimed jurisdiction over machinists and does not admit them to membership. The company, however, took the position that the one agreement was sufficient and that it would make no additional pacts.

Need Bargaining Agency.

Under these circumstances, the NLRB pointed out in its decision, the small group of skilled machinists would lack an agency for collective bargaining unless it were designated as a separate unit.

"It is obvious," the NLRB declared, "that the various problems which confront the employes from day to day in respect of rates of pay, wages, hours and other conditions of employment may be totally different in the case of the machinists than in the case of the production employes."

Scabs Receive Shock In Mills' Shut-Down

Aftermath of Long Strike and Subsequent Lockout.

Wives of Firemen and Policemen Who Helped Fight Union Now Out of Work.

Chickamauga Knitting mills finally ceased operations last week, and former employes of the mill feel that their unceasing fight against the union-hating concern has been partly responsible for the shut-down. In January, 1935, Local 2309 struck the mill when their members were discriminated against, and pickets were around the mill for five months. In a trial in Atlanta before the labor board the company was ordered to reinstate their union employes, but a few weeks after the decision was rendered, NRA was knocked into a cocked hat, and the mill continued employing the scabs.

Closing of the mill occurred on March 20, one day after Reese Hatfield, a foreman and small-fry ward boss, had voted some sixty of the scabs in the democratic primary for the company ticket, citizens of the community allege.

Former employes say that in the Atlanta hearing T. N. ("Daddy") VanDyke, as he likes to be called, testified that he supplied beans, flour and free house rent when his plant was closed down. One lady who had worked for him for twenty years testified that during the six months she was out of work that she had received three pounds of beans and twenty-four pounds of flour.

Products of the Chickamauga Knitting mills have been placed on labor's "Unfair" list, and they are as follows: Underwear with tags on them by the names of Barrington, Dr. Ames, Wearite, Pilgrim, Dr. Herbert, Monarch, Chickamauga Mills, Royal Mills, National Bellas Hess, Morewear, Battleship, Wintex, Winel, North Star, Sulton, Phoenix, Nasco.

Local unionists recall that all during the strike the pickets were treated to the sight of firemen and policemen on active duty under Commissioner Bryan driving up to the mill gates and unloading their wives and members of the family, who went into the mill to work. Appeals to the commissioner, textile officials say, were of no avail, and although the firemen and policemen were receiving $160 per month by law which protected them, they allowed their wives to earn extra "pin money" as strike-breakers while the rightful owners of the jobs were starving fighting for their rights.

Whether these members of the firemen and police will be provided with other jobs is not yet known, especially since there is no other strike in effect at present.

Green Hits Sweatshop Buying by Government

Labor Head Champions Bill Setting Standards for U. S. Contracts, Declaring It Will Benefit All Industry.

Washington.—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, told a house judiciary subcommittee that he "shuddered to think of our government buying goods from sweatshops.

The committee is considering the Healey bill to empower the department of labor to fix wage and hour standards for bidders on government contracts.

"I am pleading not only for labor but for every fair-minded employer in this nation," Green said. "Help us protect them from the chiselers and sweatshops by approving this bill."

"There are 12,626,000 unemployed in this country now. This excludes, of course, the 3,672,570 employed in the WPA, CCC and similar emergency government projects.

"Enactment of this bill will be the biggest forward step the government could take. It will redound to the benefit of all industry."

Steel Companies Good Customers of Makers Of 'Tear Gas' Bombs

Bought Liberally Of Weapons Made To Stifle or Kill

Senate Investigation Record Reveals Federal Laboratories Sold Big Employers War Munitions for Fighting Strikes.

By GEORGE L. KNAPP

Washington.—The last exhibit put into the record of the senate munitions investigation is in some ways one of the most revealing. It deals with the activities of Federal Laboratories, a concern whose main business is making gas bombs and selling them to corporations whose employes have struck or are expected to strike. In a letter to the general manager of Bethlehem Steel, R. A. Lewis, the spokesman of Federal Laboratories, said:

"Mr. Dillingham advises that he tried to impress upon the officials of Bethlehem that a reasonable amount of gas protection should be regarded much the same as a reasonable amount of insurance."

Weirton Bought Revolvers.

That is, the safety of a corporation is increased by soaking its employes in tear gas, or vomiting gas. Whether Bethlehem accepted this theory at the time is not certain; but the steel companies generally fell for it. Here is a letter to Smith & Wesson, revolver manufacturers, from Federal Laboratories:

"Confirming my telephone call to you a few months ago, I hope you will let nothing prevent your shipping out to us for the Weirton Steel company, Weirton, W. Va., the 47-38 Military and Police, S. & W. 6-inch barrel, blued revolvers.

"Send it to us, rather than to Weirton Steel; on account of their desire that their employes be not familiar with what they are doing."

In other words, Weirton Steel regards its employes as probable enemies, to be taken by surprise.

Company Fighting Labor Board.

At the time this letter was written, on June 9, 1934, the Weirton Steel company was engaged in a bitter legal fight to prevent the national labor board from holding an election of its employes to ascertain their wishes as to collective bargaining representation.

Weirton Steel was far from being the only steel company to patronize Federal Laboratories. Carnegie Steel, Republic Steel, Illinois Steel, Youngstown Sheet and Tube company—all these and several other steel concerns bought from Federal Laboratories. Carnegie bought five times in one year, mostly gas. Republic Steel bought little gas, but plenty of Smith & Wesson revolvers, all of the heavy type and all bought through Federal.

Coke Company Big Buyer.

And of course, the steel people were not alone. The H. C. Frick Coke company was a fine customer. Here is one of its orders:

"12 Federal riot guns, $60 each	$720
12 DM gas masks, $27.50 each	330
108 long-range tear gas projectiles, $7.50 each	810
108 short-range tear gas projectiles, $4.50 each	486
72 Jumbo tear gas grenades, $10 each	720
12 Jumbo CN—DM gas grenades, $12 each	144

Less usual discount allowed to H. C. Frick Coke company, $43.20."

Frick Coke company seems always to have got its weapons at a discount. It paid for these; but they were sent to Duluth, doubtless to be used against strikers, or prospective strikers. They went in boxes marked "Merchandise from H. C. Frick Coke company," and an officer of Federal Laboratories went along to instruct the Duluth people in the gentle art of gas warfare on unarmed men.

Cities Also Customers.

Sometimes cities or county governments bought these vicious weapons. San Francisco bought $15,872.28 worth of this stuff to use on the longshoremen. That was just one order; the Frisco police bought $30,000 worth in the first six months of 1934.

John W. Young, president of the Federal, was particularly anxious that strikes should be suppressed with gas. Senator Bone, of Washington, cross-examined Young as follows:

Senator Bone: One of your very ornate catalogues here seems to be entirely taken up with labor troubles. You show what I take to be a graphic scene from the West Virginia coal strike, and then another one of the Weirton, W. Va., strike. Was that the steel strike?

Mr. Young: That was during the steel strike.

Gas Filled Streets Pictured.

Senator Bone: Then you show a scene at Steubenville, O., with gas filling the streets. Then you show a scene at the Clairton Steel strike. Where is Clairton?

Mr. Young: In the vicinity of Pittsburgh.

Senator Bone: There is a scene in Clarksburg, W. Va. What happened there?

Mr. Young: That was a coal strike.

Senator Bone: Then you show a scene marked New York State and a street filled with gas. What was that?

Mr. Young: That was a milk strike.

Effects of Bomb Terrible.

It was in this connection that Senator Bone read the advertising de-

Job Insurance Act Declared Invalid

Troy, N. Y.—Pierce H. Russell, judge of the state supreme court of this district, has declared New York's unemployment insurance law unconstitutional.

"The compulsory contribution by an employer to be paid as an unemployment insurance benefit to an employe of another, is invalid under our system of government and constitutes unwarranted, unreasonable and arbitrary transfer of the property of one to another, in violation of the due process clause of the constitution."

Justice Russell refused to grant an injunction restraining state officials from collecting contributions until the state court of appeals has had a chance to pass on the question. In New York, the court called "Supreme" is not supreme at all, but its decisions are subject to review by the court of appeals.

A state official said that enforcement would continue and indicated that the case would be taken to the United States supreme court, if necessary.

"We take the position," he remarked, "that final decision is not effected until determination of the questions involved by the highest court in the land."

The suit was brought by the Associated Industries of New York State, Inc.

LABOR LEGISLATION FOES HAVE SAME CONTRIBUTORS

Washington.—Data in the possession of the senate labor committee reveal that several of the groups most emphatic in their opposition to the labor and progressive legislation enacted by congress during the last three years have gotten their financial support from an almost identical list of large contributors.

Investigators said this was revealed by an extensive examination of the financial sources of 20 or 25 prominent anti-labor organizations, among them the American Liberty league, the Sentinels of the Republic, the Crusaders and the Southern Committee to Uphold the Constitution. These organizations have been especially violent in their attacks on such constructive legislation as the national industrial recovery act, the Guffey coal stabilization bill and the national labor relations act.

19 Building Trades Settle Long Dispute

Convention in Washington Elects Officers and Adopts Machinery to Decide Jurisdictional Controversies — Green Is Pleased With Settlement.

Washington.—The internal controversy between nineteen building trades unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor was settled at a convention of the two groups here on March 25, which elected officers of the Building Trades Department and adopted a plan to handle jurisdictional disputes without interruption of building operations. The new executive council consists of nine members. The president and secretary-treasurer are to be elected every three years and the members of the council annually.

The jurisdictional dispute settlement plan provides that mechanics remain at work where jurisdiction is in question, pending action by an arbiter, preferably a federal judge, who would receive cases only from international unions. Hearings would be held, with both sides given full opportunity to present their views and file briefs. Decisions would be made promptly and be binding on all unions.

President Green's Statement.

At the conclusion of the convention William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, made the following statement:

"The differences and division which existed in the building trades organizations of the American Federation of Labor have been finally settled. The

A. F. of Helps Labor In Milwaukee Campaign

Milwaukee, Wis.—Herman Seide, secretary of the Milwaukee Federated Trades Council, announced that President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, had assigned David Sigman, national organizer of the federation, to assist the trades council in its campaign to re-elect Mayor Daniel W. Hoan and elect a large number of labor candidates for other offices in the municipal election which takes place on April 7.

More than twenty candidates are members of labor unions. The trades council has set up "labor's committee for justice" to forward the interests of the workers in the campaign.

In a telegram to Mr. Green urging that Sigman be assigned to assist the central body, Seide said that "the opposition is supported by the open shop lawyers, utility companies, the Law and Order league and other reactionary forces which have always opposed labor and the progressive movement."

Seide also pointed out that as sheriff the man who is opposing Mayor Hoan is decidedly anti-labor, has lined up against trade unionists, using strikes and picketing in labor disputes, and has even said the workers should accept what was offered them by employers.

Following is Green's reply to Seide's telegram:

"I am instructing Brother Sigman to give his services at Milwaukee during next two weeks as you have requested. Because I am in thorough accord with aims and purposes of your central body, I am pleased to respond to your request for the assignment of Brother Sigman to work in Milwaukee.

MASCOT RANGE IS NONUNION

Girls still marry for the same good reason—to get a home—but nowadays they never stay in it.

Washington.—The militant struggle of the Wisconsin labor movement against the anti-union stand of the Koehler Manufacturing company, of Kohler, Wis., was given added vigor by a letter which William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, sent to state federations of labor, city central bodies and organizers asking them to give "the widest possible publicity" to the subversive tactics of the Koehler concern in opposition to union labor principles.

The controversy began on July 16, 1934, when employes of the Koehler company, members of Federal Labor Union No. 18545, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, walked out in protest against Koehler's anti-union rules.

Violence Used Against Strikers.

Union officials charged that the company began the use of violence against the strikers on July 27, 1934, when "special police of the village of Kohler, armed with tear gas bombs, riot guns, pistols, rifles, machine guns and armored trucks, under orders of village officials, who are also high officials of the Koehler company, fired into a mass of people who had gathered for the purpose of a demonstration before the company's plant, killing two union men and seriously wounding forty-three other men and children, besides gassing scores of men, women and children.

Text of Green's Letter.

Following is the text of President Green's letter:

"To Secretaries of State Federations of Labor, City Central Bodies and to Organizers:

"Dear Sirs and Brothers:

"The last annual convention of the American Federation of Labor, held in October, 1935, had under consideration a resolution dealing with the long-standing controversy between organized labor as represented by the Wisconsin State Federation of Labor and Federal Labor Union No. 18545, of Sheboygan, and the Koehler Manufacturing company. It is assumed that all affiliated organizations and organizers have had the situation brought to their attention from time to time.

"The controversy came before the San Francisco, 1934, convention by the introduction of a resolution giving the details of the controversy. The Koehler Manufacturing company manufactures plumbing fixtures, bathtubs, sinks, pottery ware, lavatories, heating plants, radiators, electric light plants and brass plumbing fittings.

Right to Organize Denied.

"The members of Federal Labor Union No. 18545 went on strike in July, 1934, to enforce their right for collective bargaining. At the San Francisco convention the representatives of the Wisconsin State Federation of Labor, the Federated Trades Council of Milwaukee, Wis., Federal Labor Union No. 18545 and others appeared before the committee on industrial relations, which had this resolution under consideration, and outlined in detail the importance of the controversy. This committee reported to the 1934 convention and the convention unanimously adopted the following:

"'Your committee calls attention to the fact that the officers of the Kohler Manufacturing company, Kohler, Wis., have disregarded and violated all the provisions of Section 7-A of the national industrial recovery act, denying to their employes the right to organize and elect their representatives without intimidation or coercion.

"'That the national labor relations board, upon investigation, not only proved that this company had violated the national recovery act, but in open defiance of the provisions of Section 7-A and the agencies of the government provided for the enforcement of this act, has openly created and supported in every possible manner the Kohler Workers' association, a company union.

Again We Say, "Pay Your Poll Tax"

Out of a possible sixty thousand citizens in Hamilton county who are of voting age, only a maximum of 14,000 exercise their right. In the election for power bonds about 20,000 did vote, but it must be remembered that the poll tax receipt was not necessary then.

Of the 45,000 who do not vote, year in and year out, an overwhelming majority are working people. The reason these people do not take their duty to vote seriously is because they have not paid their poll tax. Yet, these 45,000 could, and should, because of their right as American citizens, run this county to their advantage.

Because they do not take part in elections, it is possible for a small organized group of politicians, who naturally look out for their own interests, to form combinations among themselves and manage to mismanage our government.

Labor's Political conference wants to chance this practice of carelessness among working people. The conference believes that if the rank and file of Hamilton county's citizens would vote our government would be better. The conference does not hope nor expect to be able to dominate a mass of 60,000 voters for a selfish interest. It does believe that with 60,000 instead of 14,000 taking interest in its elections, that public welfare will be served best.

Since it can exert influence on its own people, labor will continue to reiterate that working people must realize their potentialities by paying poll taxes so that when issues are drawn they will be able to express themselves.

Pay your poll taxes, you working people, by June 1 of this year, and in so doing, remove yourselves from that voiceless mass who cannot voice its desires in the only tone that politicians recognize—VOTES.

Elsie, the new maid, seemed eminently satisfactory, but the mistress of the house thought a few words of advice would be just as well:

Mistress—Remember, that I expect you to be very reticent about what you hear when you are waiting on the table.

Why Not Real Flood Control?

Disastrous floods in the eastern states have again focused public attention on flood prevention and control.

A business publication, citing Mississippi floods from the time of De Sota to the present, asks why are great floods possible after centuries of experience. The question is heard after every big flood.

There is only one answer to the question. The people of the United States have not gone about the business of flood control and prevention on a scale sufficiently large. Army engineers say floods can be curbed, if not entirely prevented. Yet the nation, despite large sums of money spent on attempts to harness the Mississippi and other rivers, has tackled the flood problem in a half-hearted manner which has not done away with the flood danger.

Here is a national task that will give work to the unemployed for years to come and that will be of incalculable benefit as long as the nation endures. There is the money, the equipment, the ability and intelligence to successfully solve the problem. Nothing seems lacking but the will.

Slums do not breed more crime and immortality than wages which fall below decent standards. The two are twin evils that are always found together.—New York Times.

Items of More or Less Interest Picked Up From Various Sources

CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

Steel is stocking up with guns and gas masks and clubs and all the things with which war is made. War is Steel's idea of labor relations. Labor relations are the kind of relations you kick out, with the injunction, "don't ever come back." Steel has been that way ever since Andrew Carnegie set the pace. Since Homestead there has been no learning about labor in the great barony of Steel. And the state of Pennsylvania, by and large, has been the kind of state willing to abdicate sovereignty to Steel. Who doesn't remember the coal and iron police—and the rotten borough judges?

* * *

The Nye committee started out to get facts to bear on neutrality legislation and it is winding up in Steel. Neutrality is not exactly the function the state ought to play in the kind of war that is being planned by Steel. When guns are bought they are bought because somebody wants to have guns for use. The one purpose of guns is to shoot bullets that will kill men. Read elsewhere the figures about what Steel has been buying in the way of munitions. So many machine guns, so many revolvers, so many gas bombs, so many this, so many that, piling up a war supply that Emperor Haille Selassie might well envy. This is 1936 and that is the way of the emperors of Steel in 1936. Civilization—progress—modern times—it depends upon the point of view.

* * *

On its guns the Frick company gets "the usual discount," which means it is a steady customer. A discount on death. Frick gets his guns for cash, minus a discount. No waste there. Good sound business management. If there is irony in that, it is the irony of fact. Meanwhile it has to be admitted that labor isn't presenting so very much of a threat to Steel. It isn't breaking its neck to organize. Organization is what Steel fears. Steel doesn't want to shoot workers who go and come about their work, never talking to any other workers or joining with them. Steel fears it will be confronted with workers who are organized into a union and it is preparing to shoot at that! That is a very interesting fact, in 1936.

The situation might interest the national labor relations board, which is doing its best to keep from getting knocked out by the courts. Gentlemen just like those who are buying guns to shoot at unions are firing away in the courts to kill the labor relations board. Their idea is to let nothing come between the baron and his chattels.

It's a great idea. It has been in the world, in one form or another, for a long time. Napoleon had it. Mussolini has it; so has Hitler; so has Stalin. What is the essential difference between Steel and other dictators? Some will say, "This can't go on forever." And that is exactly right. It can't go on forever. But it can go on for a long time to come, unless workers do get together. The guns of Steel can impede progress; but labor has to win in unity or forever accept bondage. Of course labor will win in unity, for "it can't go on forever."

HOLYOKE MEETING ASKS PROSECUTION OF MILL

Holyoke, Mass.—At a mass meeting arranged by the United Textile Workers and the American Federation of Hosiery Workers here, resolutions were adopted urging WPA Administrator Harry Hopkins to prosecute "The Massachusetts Knitting mills of this state and of Columbia, Tenn., for having conspired with municipal officials and others of Philadelphia, Miss., to illegally and fraudulently obtain funds from the works progress administration for the erection of a manufacturing plant to be operated for private profit."

The Holyoke workers told Hopkins that "The Massachusetts Knitting mills is one of the most flagrant violators of the labor disputes act in the hosiery industry and is viciously destroying wage and hour standards in the north as well as in the south."

The meeting in Holyoke was held primarily to develop support for the Ellenbogen national textile act.

SATURDAY EVENING POST IS UNFAIR

Two Jewish business men were riding home from their stores, on the street car. Side by side they sat, both looking worried and both remaining silent. Finally one heaved a sigh. The other studied him for a moment and then said in an annoyed tone: "You're telling me?"

HOSIERY UNION WINS RULE IN BLOOD COMPANY CASE

Boyertown, Pa.—Branch 69 of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers won their long fight against the silk mill of John Blood & Co. here in the decision of the national labor relations board certifying that the branch had been selected by a majority of the production workers in the plant as their representative for the purpose of collective bargaining. About 135 workers are affected. The watchmen, shippers and supervisory employes were not considered as part of the bargaining unit.

In October, 1935, Branch 69 of the Hosiery Workers' union was designated by 94 out of 133 mill workers as their collective bargaining agency. Company officials refused to recognize the union as the representative of the employes. The labor board found the petition designating Branch 69 "was signed by a majority of the persons in the union appropriate for the purposes of collective bargaining," and was therefore authorized to represent all of the production workers.

TEACHER TALK

LOCAL 246, A. F. of T.

BOARD MEETING MONDAY

Regular April meeting of the board of directors will be held next Monday evening, April 6, in Room 301, Y. M. C. A., at 7 p.m.

ANNUAL ELECTION OF OFFICERS

A crowded agenda is in prospect for the general meeting to be held April 18. Some of the important items to be dealt with will be election of officers, delegates to the annual convention of the American Federation of Teachers, delegates to the Central Labor union, and delegates to the convention of the Tennessee Federation of Labor. Several constitutional amendments will be considered. These will be published in Teacher Talk in the next two issues of The Labor World.

Federation members should all be present and should be prepared through adequate pre-considering to enable them to choose officers and delegates wisely, and to decide the issues to the best advantage of the body.

QUALIFY TO VOTE!

It is the duty of every federation member as a citizen, a teacher and trade unionist to qualify himself to vote. In order to qualify poll tax must be paid by June 1. Let's pay that poll tax before June 1, and let's don't fail to perform our function in August!

A TIP TO THE POLITICIANS

This column is not accustomed to passing out hints to incumbent politicians on how to hold their jobs, but in order not to appear biased or unsympathetic we submit the following:

Many teachers in city and county had planned to attend summer school this summer by means of a careful saving of a part of their legal salaries. However, present officeholders failed to comply with the law, so most of us impecunious teachers will have to stay in or around Chattanooga and Hamilton county. Now this is unfortunate both from the standpoint of the cultural status of the teachers and from the standpoint of the present officeholders' chances of re-election. For we must say that we believe the teachers have been irrevocably alienated by the refusal to comply with the salary law.

Hence, the only chance is to get the teachers out of town. So we make this suggestion, free-gratis. Pay the teachers the rest of their legal salaries with interest at once. This will cause many of them to be away all summer when the fatal August comes around.

Then if the incumbents can explain why they used non-union labor and why they held star chamber sessions and a few other little puzzling points their chances of re-election may be slightly ameliorated. Otherwise there'll be a lot of teachers in this town and county next August!

QUESTIONNAIRE IMPORTANT

The legislative committee under the able leadership of Brother J. D. Bales has prepared a very excellent questionnaire designed to give a full picture of the economic status of local teachers. The results of this questionnaire will be of inestimable value to the federation, particularly for publicity purposes. Teachers are urgently requested to take the time to fill out this questionnaire. It is true that it is long and will require some time to fill out properly. But if Brother Bales can spend some months in constructing the questionnaire and tabulating the results, surely the rest of us can spend an hour or so filling out our copy.

Here's a chance for every member to do some work for the federation. Are we all willing?

THE WARNING OF MEMPHIS

As American citizens look at the situation in Nazi Germany as the condition most to be avoided, so Chattanooga teachers may look at Memphis in order to be reminded that "eternal vigilance is the price of freedom." We must be so alert that no one will have the chance to deny the elementary rights of citizenship to us as they have been denied to the teachers of Memphis.

SIGNS OF INTELLIGENT AMERICANISM

Hopeful signs for a return to sanity from a wave of hysterical red-baiting can be found in the following items:

(1) The American Legion of New Jersey recently denounced as "ridiculous and silly" a bill introduced in the state legislature to make saluting the flag compulsory for school children.

(2) The New York County Legion has issued a pamphlet entitled "Americanism," which defends free speech and academic freedom for teachers!

Employment of Orientals Opposed.

Ottawa.—The Canadian government was asked by a motion in parliament to limit subsidies to ships employing Canadian officers and seamen. The motion was supported by labor members and two or three members of the old parties. The speakers protested the employment of Orientals on Canadian ships in the Pacific. The motion was referred to the committee on industrial and international relations.

LABEL LEADERS

By BROWNIE HOPPER

What do women like to read about? I ask this question, because of a firm belief that if the women of the labor movement can be aroused about labor questions, the labor movement will advance far more rapidly. And because of this belief that it is the women who really DO things, this column has been started. I want the "fems" to read it and tell me what things interest them. If this column can do that, and, at the same time pass on a little information about the union-made goods our local merchants are handling, then it will have served its purpose. Help me out, ladies!

You learn a lot of things when you're just browsing around.

TAILORS' UNION MERGES WITH CLOTHING WORKERS

Chicago.—The national referendum of the Journeymen Tailors' Union of America for a merger with the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America was carried by an 8-to-1 vote, according to an announcement by the Tailors' executive board here.

The ballots were tabulated at a conference between Sidney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated; Samuel Levin, of the general executive board and joint board manager for the Tailors; Frank Rosenblum, general executive board member and organizer for the western district of the Amalgamated, and Albert Brilliant, Chicago national representative of the Tailors. The headquarters of the Tailors' union will be moved to New York City.

The Journeymen Tailors have the oldest union in the needle trades in the United States. It is claimed the union in Boston, Mass., was formed in 1812. The national organization was established in 1883. The merger movement began in 1903 following jurisdictional arguments between the Tailors and the Amalgamated Clothing Workers.

...ription of bombs loaded with white ...phorus.

"The burning phosphorus is ...ected in all directions for ranges ...of 50 to 75 feet. Burns from ...this are very painful and long ...healing."

...In 1932, when the patience of hun... people was reaching the breaking point, Mr. Young wrote to one ...of his agents:

"I am quite sure this present crisis, while it has brought a shortage of ...funds, has brought an acute demand ...for our products, which puts us in the preferred class, and we should impress upon the public officials that ...they should spend money for tear gas ...equipment, even when they cannot afford to pay salaries."

"The ethical standards of a community of sewer rats could hardly be lower than those which Mr. Young avowed in that sentence.

Sold Also to Cuba.

He did not confine his uplifting influence to his own country. A letter from Federal Labortories to all its export agents, dated July 26, 1934, reads in part as follows:

"You doubtless are familiar with the conditions existing in Cuba after the overthrow of the Machado government. Strike reigned. Many people were killed or seriously wounded in street fighting. Realizing the need for some systematic and effective way of restoring quiet and peace to the island, the new government, under the direction of President Mendieta, appointed Mr. John W. Young, our president, as technical adviser to the Cuban government on all police matters.

"The Cuban government already has purchased over $400,000 worth of equipment, with more to follow."

Federal Played No Favorites.

One wonders whether President Mendieta would have been so cordial if he had known that during the past ...ended revolution, Federal Laboratories had sold munitions, not only to him, but to the Grau government, which Mendieta was trying to overthrow.

But perhaps the crowning iniquity of this branch of the munitions trade was not perpetrated by officers or agents of the Federal. An agent of the Lake Erie Chemical company, named D. B. Richardson, has that bad eminence. Richardson was in South America, getting orders, and the Chilean authorities were rather skeptical. Richardson wrote home as follows:

"I gave a demonstration at the department of investigation on about 120 prisoners. It was a great success."

Proud of Exploit.

Richardson was so proud of this that he wrote three letters about it, and from one of them we learn that the prison was a military prison and the prisoners military prisoners.

But Mr. Young's office wrote the following advice to its agents:

"Be sure to advise your customers when they use gas to use plenty of it."

The senate munitions investigation was a peep into hell, and the devils were busy selling fas and phosphorous bombs.

Increased Use of Residence Electricity Makes Possible

Electric Rate Reductions

INCREASING TO $900,000 A YEAR AT END OF 3 YEARS

...and Cash Savings of $120,000 a Year Immediately!

Use of electricity by our residence customers now averages more than 1,000 kilowatt-hours a year per customer.

As the USE of electricity increases, the PRICE goes down. Since 1932 residence electric rates have been cut three times.

And householders are paying over 2½ million dollars a year less for the electricity they now use than it would have cost them 4 years ago.

Today increased use makes possible a FOURTH reduction.

Beginning with the bill which you receive May 1, your home electric rates will be, with very few exceptions, the lowest offered anywhere in the United States.

Examples of What These Various Reductions Mean to You

MILWAUKEE TAILORS WIN UNION SHOP CONDITIONS

Milwaukee, Wis. — Approximately 200 members of the Journeymen Tailors' Union of America won the union shop, the 36-hour week and wage increases from a number of largo and small merchant tailors here after a 24-hour strike.

The settlement terms include a basic week of 36 hours, wage rates of 83½ cents an hour for journeymen, union recognition, and an agreement on the principle that home work on vests, pants and other articles of male apparel be abolished. The new wage rate amounts to an increase of from five to ten cents an hour for most journeymen.

A number of the small shops signing the pact had not previously employed union men. Some of the larger establishments were surprised to find that their forces had been organized without the employers' knowledge.

Lady Took Cardui When Weak, Nervous

"I can't say enough for Cardui if I talked all day," enthusiastically writes Mrs. L. H. Caldwell, of Statesville, N. C. "I have used Cardui at intervals for twenty-five years," she adds. "My trouble in the beginning was weakness and nervousness. I read of Cardui in a newspaper and decided right then to try it. It seemed before I had taken half a bottle of Cardui I was stronger and was soon up and around."

Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

How Grandpa Proposed.

He always smiled and winked one eye
Any time he happened by,
He joined the village choir and said
He liked the way I baked my bread.
Sometimes he squeezed my hand a mite
A-sittin' in the candlelight;
He often helped me find a cow
That strayed off from the place somehow,
And once when I fell on the ice,
He picked me up and kissed me twice,
And that's how grandpa paved the way
For me to set the wedding day.

that this resolution be adopted by amending it and striking out the second resolve, the subject of which shall be referred to the officers and executive council for further consideration, and that the resolution as amended be approved and referred to the officers and the incoming executive council of the American Federation of Labor with instructions to follow up this case until every available resource has been utilized to bring about the recognition of the bona fide national and international organizations and the American Federation of Labor, representing employes employed by the Kohler Manufacturing company.'

Discharged for Union Activity.

"The committee of the 1935 convention having this matter under consideration reported:

"'Your committee calls attention to the fact that although it was proven that the company violated the provisions of the national recovery act guaranteeing the employes the right to organize without discrimination; that employes were discharged for union activities; that a company union was formed; and that a vote was taken illegally and unfairly denying employes on strike the right to vote because of their efforts to organize; that there were no governmental provisions strong enough to compel this company to live up to the provisions of the national industrial recovery act.

"'From those appearing before the committee it was intimated that full compliance with the report of the committee on industrial relations accepted by last year's convention was not fully complied with and requests were made that a report on this controversy should be requested from the executive council.

"'Your committee recommends that the resolution be referred to the officers and the executive council of the American Federation of Labor and that the action taken at the 1934 convention be reaffirmed.'

"An amendment was offered to the committee's report that the executive council consider giving publicity to this situation through circularization to all organized labor.

"The report of the committee as amended was unanimously adopted.

Wide Publicity Recommended.

"Therefore, it is in conformity with the action of the 1934 and the 1935 conventions of the American Federation of Labor and the action of the executive council that this communication is sent to you. It is hoped that you and those associated with you will do everything within your power to assist the officers and members of Local No. 18545 in giving the widest possible publicity to the above.

"It should be added that the American Federation of Labor has given every possible aid, co-operation and help to the officers and members of Local No. 18545, financially as well as morally, through the assistance and aid of our special organizers. We will continue to do everything within our power to be helpful in securing an ultimate settlement of the matter, a settlement that will be fair and just to the organization whose members have made and are making such a valiant struggle to maintain their rights as workers.

"Thanking you for anything that you can do in behalf of the above, and with kind regards, I am

MORE ABOUT BUILDING TRADES

building trades organizations chartered by the American Federation of Labor are now united in one building trades organization. They will act together and co-operate with each other through one Building Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor. Building mechanics throughout the entire country will give hearty approval to this action and will gladly embrace the opportunity accorded them to unite and work together for a common purpose to advance and promote the economic interests of those employed in the construction industry.

"The action of the representatives of the building trades organizations, which was taken at the convention held at the headquarters of the American Federation of Laobr, demonstrated the fact that the organized labor movement possesses the ability, the resourcefulness and the power of self-control to settle difficult, vexing problems by negotiations, through mutual agreement, within the family of organized labor. The plan for the settlement of jurisdictional disputes agreed upon and adopted at the convention is of great public interest. It marks a great forward step in the development of human relations in industry. The purpose and definite objective of the plan is to rationalize the settlement of jurisdictional disputes so that adjustments can be made without interruption in building construction.

"This procedure will be of great economic benefit to buiding mechanics, contractors and the general public. It is reasonable to conclude that it will be very helpful in the promotion of a housing and building construction program. The work done at the convention of the Building Trades Department will be of great value to the entire organized labor movement."

Officers Elected.

J. W. Williams, of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, was elected president of the department, and M. J. McDonough, vice-president of the Operative Plasterers' International Association of the United States and Canada, was elected secretary-treasurer.

The eight vice-presidents elected were J. J. Hynes, president of the Sheet Metal Workers' International association; John Possehl, president of the International Union of Operating Engineers; Lawrence P. Lindelof, president of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers of America; R. J. Gray, treasurer of the Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers' International Union of America; P. J. Morin, president of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers; D. W. Tracy, president of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers of America; William J. Employment Gains in February Insignificant Green Reports

Washington. — Employment gains in February were of little moment and industry as yet shows no signs of re-employing any significant portion of the unemployed, President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, said in making public the federation's monthly report on unemployment.

"Unless a determined effort is made to creat work," President Green declared, "we may expect that for many years millions will be denied the chance to produce wealth and the nation will be taxed to maintain them in poverty."

President Green said that trade union figures for March show the beginning of spring gains in business. Unemployment declined from 16.7 per cent to 16.1 per cent, weighted figures show. "This gain is of small consequence when compared to the need," Green commented.

Total unemployment stood at 12,550,000 in February this year, the federation's report said. This compares with 12,764,000 in February last year, a reduction of only 214,000 in the army of the unemployed. The works progress administration reported that 3,853,000 of these idle had been given emergency work by the end of February; and the PWA was employing 117,000 others, making a total of nearly 4,000,000 on emergency work of the federal government. In addition, the federation estimates there were about 1,500,000 cases on relief, most of them depending on state and local funds since the ending of federal relief in December.

"Remembering that the answer to unemployment is not relief but work in industry," President Green said: "It is significant to note that our relief rolls last year exceeded the payrolls of our five largest industries: Textiles and clothing, railroads, building, machinery, iron and steel and their products. These industries employed 4,737,000 (average) in 1935, while relief rolls averaged 4,798,000 cases. These employed workers earned $23 a week and created by their work a total buying power of $5,600,000,000, while those on relief were maintained on the poverty income of less than $6.50 a week, at a total cost of $1,987,000,000 government borrowings and taxes."

Says Price-Cutting Causes Unemployment

Not long ago a young married woman went in and asked her neighborhood store to extend her credit account for groceries a little longer. When asked what was wrong, she replied: "The mill failed to renew their contracts and had to close down." She said a mail order chain company first began to buy from the mill and each time they renewed their contract they would increase their order and demand a larger decrease in the price they were paying the mill, with the result the last contract called for such a reduction in price the mill couldn't fill the order and pay any wages near the union scale or a decent wage. So the employes objected, whereupon the mill company reported the matter to the mail order concern and asked if they couldn't get the price up to where they could pay a decent wage.

Then the mail order chain company replied: "Well, then, we will just cancel our order, as we can't or won't buy from a company that is having labor trouble." So the order was canceled and the employes thrown out of work.

Now those tactics, it seems, are practiced in general by those "big concerns," so I ask who is responsible for so much unemployment? Is it not plain enough? Of course it is those concerns who refuse to pay enough for what they buy so the wage-earner can be paid and the mill operators to realize a fair return on their investments, etc. So now the remedy is something like this: Labor should get down to the cause of the trouble. Now if only the employes of that mill had gone to this mail order company and told them, "You are not fair to labor. You cause us to be thrown out of work and then expect us to buy from you, and you are our enemy, so now we don't care to buy from our enemies, but will buy from our friends."

Many mill companies want to pay good wages, but if they must sell their product too cheap; then they must pay wages accordingly. The buying public is in most part made up of the wage-earner and by the proper co-operation conditions can be made to order.

When labor learns and practices co-operation it need not worry about employment. Merchants and dealers should learn that when a worker is laid off a customer is laid off. When we have the proper co-operation strikes won't be necessary, nor will any one have to work too cheap. No one should expect to be paid fair wages and only buy "sweat-shop" products; and when a mill or manufacturer says "We must cut wages and lay off help," then find out why!

Then back your employer up; go with him to see the prospective buyer, and tell that prospective buyer that if he expects you to be a customer he must not expect sweat-shop prices. That alone is what is causing unemployment. What difference should it make to a merchant or dealer what price he pays for an article so long as he can sell for a fair margin of profit?

Price-cutting leads to wage-cutting. We are taxed to feed and clothe people who are out of work. Let's get everybody back to work, then our taxes will be reduced and the cost of living reduced.

OIL WORKERS DEMAND BAR UPON FOREIGN PETROLEUM

reat Anti-Union Oil Companies Accused of Gouging U. S. Public nt Concerns Import Big Volume of Cheap Labor Oil From South America, Reaping Harvest of Profits and Resulting in Huge Wage Loss to American Workers.

Washington.—Demand for absolute embargo on imports of petroleum and petroleum products is to be made by International Association of Oil and Gas Well and Refinery Workers in a hearing promised shortly before the house ways and means committee.

The ways and means committee has before it the Disney bill for curtailment of imports, an excise measure. "If we cannot secure complete embargo we will accept the Disney bill as a beginning," said President Harvey Fremming, of the Oil Field Workers, "but we want to make it clear that we demand absolute embargo and nothing less will be satisfactory."

Two years ago the union first took up the challenge to congress. At that time President Fremming appeared to plead for embargo, presenting a statement in which he was joined by the American Federation of Labor, the Railroad Brotherhoods and other organizations. At that time Edward F. McGrady, now assistant secretary of labor, was A. F. of L. legislative representative.

Face Powerful Opposition.

"We know we are facing formidable opposition," said President Flemming. "Among the great companies that oppose embargo are the great Rockefeller-Mellon-Morgan companies, including Gulf Oil, American Oil, Continental, Atlantic, Standard, Sun and others. Here we have a group that typifies the whole oligarchy of wealth in opposition to human welfare and progress. This is made even clearer when we know that not one of these companies operates under union conditions in the United States.

"By and large the union-operated companies either favor embargo or they are not opposing the Disney bill for a minimum protection.

"While American wells, drilled for the most part under state permission, are being choked back, their underlying pools being polluted and lost forever, we are importing a volume of production equal to the output of the state of Kansas, losing about $11,500,000 annually in wages to Americans in oil fields and refineries, in addition to transportation work that is due to our own people.

Fat Profits Garnered.

"Paying pitiful wages in Venezuela and Columbia, these great oil companies are selling their imported products from American pumps at filling stations for the same price they get for domestic production, taking by that means another huge gouge out of the American public. The companies are winning from two directions, while the American people lose in every direction. Big business is simply up to its old game and we are asking congress to put a stop to it.

"Our information is that a house majority is friendly to our position. We intend to find out and we ask labor organizations throughout the United States to demand action by sending letters to congressmen, by wiring and forwarding resolutions and by asking other groups to do likewise. If congress refuses this action it will be helping no one but the Japanese and South American tyrants."

Unions Urge Law to Protect Labor In Rail Mergers

Congress Can't Desert Workers Whose Jobs Are Menaced by Consolidation, Labor's Spokesman Tells House Committee.

Washington.—Bitter battle between railroad workers and railroad managers is forecast by the testimony before a sub-committee of the Interstate Commerce Committee of the House; with the managers fighting for profits and the workers fighting for a living. The immediate stake of the struggle is the Wheeler-Crosser bill, which provides compensation for employes who lose their jobs as the result of railroad consolidation.

Strongly supporting this measure, George M. Harrison, president of the Railway Labor Executives' Association, piled facts before the sub-committee, showing that the railroads propose to take their economies out of labor, and that they have been doing this ever since the World War.

Big Job and Pay Losses.

In 1920, said Mr. Harrison, in substance, there were more than 2,000,000 railroad employes. In 1935, there were 970,000. In 1920, the total wages of railroad workers were $3,682,000,000. In 1933, the total wages of the railroad workers that were left were $1,404,000,000.

This means a drop in employment of more than 50 per cent, and a drop in wages of more than 60 per cent. But in the same time, the claimed investment of the railroads had increased more than $5,000,000,000.

Mr. Harrison pressed this discrepancy between labor and capital with much vigor. He declared that the top-heavy financial structure of the railroads was responsible for most of their troubles. And he insisted that Congress, which by introducing the principle of consolidation in the Transportation Act of 1920, could not now desert some 150,000 railroad workers who will lose their jobs by consolidation.

Rail Heads Attack iBll

On the other side, J. J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads, insisted that the Wheeler-Crosser bill would "tie the hands" of the railroads. He denied Harrison's charge that the railroads had paid out in dividends money that should have gone to reducing railroad debt. Railroad stockholders, he said, belonged in the "forgotten-man" class; and railroad dividends had dropped 59 per cent since 1916.

Ralph Budd, president of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, and J. L. Lancaster, head of the Texas & Pacific, both attacked the bill. Mr. Budd declared that under the measure, the men employed at peak seasons could not be laid off without the consent of the I. C. C. This round-about way of saying that fluctuations in traffic should come out of the pay roll did not seem to make a hit with the sub-committee.

Industrial Progress Council Urges U. S. Loans for Small Enterprises

Increased Unemployment Held Inevitable Unless Long-Term Government Credit Is Given — Provisions for Safeguarding Wage and Hour Standards Throughout Industry Deemed Essential for Competitive Equality.

Washington, D. C.—A simplified and broad program of long-term credit to small business concerns through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation was urged here by the Council for Industrial Progress in a report to President Roosevelt and made public by George L. Berry, Coordinator for Industrial Cooperation. The report was prepared by the council's committee on financial aid to small enterprises.

Based on evidence that small enterprises are responsible for slightly more than half of existing unemployment and cannot secure adequate financial aid from private sources, the council declared the proposed program would offer "a comparatively simple, practical and immediate means of increasing production and purchasing power."

Lack of Credit Blocks Recovery

Unless such provision for credit is made, the report said, "no appreciable trend in widespread recovery can be expected," because of the very important part played by small enterprise in the economic life of the nation.

Study of the subject began early in January of the council's committee on financial aid to small enterprises, headed by Miles Pennybacker, secretary, National Electric Sign association, Newark, N. J., for management, and M. J. McDonough, of the Building Trades department, American Federation of Labor, for labor.

The findings of the committee indicated that "lack of working capital has compelled small enterprises sharply to curtail expenditures on equipment and inventories of raw material" with the result that "continuation of the present conditions will increase the tendency toward monopoly, higher prices, with further reduction in employment and in purchasing power of wage earners."

Safeguards for Work Standards

The report was adopted by the council with but one dissenting vote and said that because assistance to small enterprises was necessary and "small enterprises do not, in a large measure, fall within the class of loans that are considered good banking practice," the Reconstruction Finance Corporation was suggested as best able to supply the immediate credit needs.

Emphasizing its belief in the principle that monies loaned should serve to increase both employment and wages, the council urged that "such wage and hour standards as might be enforced on borrowers should also be required throughout industry so that the borrower will not be at a competitive disadvantage," and recommended this problem for further study.

Council Recommendations

Recommendations of the council follow:

"1. That an immediate nation-wide publicity 'drive' be made by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, similar to the Home Owners Loan Corporation and Federal Housing Administration campaigns, to familiarize industry with respect to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation authority to make direct loans.

"2. That, in any event, the loans be made for the full term now permitted by Section 5-D of the Act, and at rates of interest commensurate with the prevailing rates of interest, namely, 4 per cent or less.

"3. That the Reconstruction Finance Corporation establish sub-agencies in each county, or in such subdivision of the states as will make such sub-agencies accessible to prospective borrowers.

"4. That, if a more simplified form of application is not practicable, the

Sunrise Service Easter Morning Impressive Rite

Stage Employes Union to Assist in Staging Tableaux.

Featured by eight elaborately costumed and lighted tableaux reproducing famous paintings and depicting scenes in the life and ministry of Jesus Christ, Chattanooga's annual Easter sunrise religious service will be held at the Memorial auditorium next Sunday morning at 6 o'clock. Doors of the auditorium will be opened at 5 o'clock.

The tableaux, which are to be presented, seven of them by seven different churches, and one by the Pastors' association, will carry the story of Jesus from the time of His boyhood appearance in the Temple, amazing the learned doctors by "His questions and his understanding," to the crucifixion, resurrection and appearance to His disciples in "the upper room." A narrator will introduce each picture by reading the Scriptural passages leading up to it. The narrator, Meador Lower, announcer for WDOD, will be concealed and his voice will come to the audience through loud speakers.

While the service does not start until 6 o'clock, the Chattanooga High School band, under the direction of Col. Ira A. Summers, will play a concert of sacred music while the crowd is gathering. This will start at 5:30 and continue to 6 o'clock.

The congregation will participate in the service by singing opening and closing hymns. These will be: "My Faith Looks Up to Thee," led by J. Oscar Miller, and "All Hail the Power of Jesus Name," led by J. Frank Cheek. Carl Scheibe will be at the organ.

The invocation will be by Dr. Tom S. McCallie and the benediction by the Rev. E. H. Ogle.

The annual Easter sunrise service was instituted many years ago by the Y. M. C. A. and has been carried on ever since under the leadership of that organization. Don C. Peglar, general chairman for this year, has been general chairman every year. H. G. Pruett, of the Tennessee Electric Power company, is stage director in charge of the tableax. Members of the stage employes union are contributing their services both for the Sunday morning sunrise service and for the dress rehearsal Friday night.

In order to make it possible for bus and street car riders to reach the auditorium in time for the service, the Tennessee Electric Power company has arranged special schedules leaving the ends of the lines in time to reach the nearest stops to the auditorium by 5:50.

The service is open to everybody with no reserve seats. No collection will be taken.

The opening of the auditorium doors at 5 o'clock will be announced by the blowing of factory and locomotive whistles all through the city.

Elevator Men Ask $20 Pay Rise in New York

Building Service Employes' Union Also Seeks Higher Wage for Charwomen

New York City.—The reasonableness of organized labor's demands for higher wages was illustrated in the wage increase schedule presented by the Building Service Employes' Union here to Ferdinand A. Silcox, head of the United States Forestry Service, who was chosen as arbitrator in the settlement of the recent building service strike.

James J. Bambrick, president of the union, said the objectives of the union included a flat increase of $20 a month for employes in the three classes of apartment houses in which the minimums are $70, $80 and $90 a month, with a 54-hour week for day men and a 66-hour week for night men. The union seeks a standard 48-hour week, with specifications that there shall be "no increase in hours or decrease in wages during the agreement."

Pleading for "a living wage, providing for health and modest comfort," Mr. Bambrick pointed out that the highest wages sought by the union would fall far below the $1,522 set by statistical surveys as the lowest possible annual wage on which a family of five could decently live.

For the three sizes of loft buildings, the union sought minimum weekly wages of $26, $24 and $22, with 50 cents an hour for charwomen. For office buildings a minimum increase of $2 a week was sought, raising minimums to $28, $26 and $24.

"This wage scale, compared with other cities, is low, and in that connection we must bear in mind that living costs are relatively higher in New York," said Mr. Bambrick, who went into some detail in statistics on living costs. He said that the $1,522 standard for a living wage made no allowance for saving, and that a living wage really should be $1,775 a year."

Walter Gordon Merritt, counsel for the Realty Advisory Board which controls 825 buildings included in the arbitration proceedings, fought the wage increases demanded by the union with the usual fallacies set forth by low-wage employers. One of his points was that, with an increasing number of realty foreclosures, how could apartment house owners be logically asked to pay more wages to the operating help? In addition, he stressed the idea that building service workers had "light, unskilled, unexacting and intermittent work," and therefore their living standards should be appreciably lower than the standards for other types of employes.

Miss Maud Swartz and Miss Mary Dreier were named vice-presidents and Mrs. Richard S. Childs was re-elected treasurer. Miss Schneidermann told the meeting an amendment to the federal constitution seemed to be necessary to give to the labor movements rights which recent court decisions have taken away. The Supreme Court decision nullifying the NRA was a severe blow to the American labor movement, she declared.

Miss Swartz reported that industry had been employing children in ever-increasing numbers in recent months. She said surveys indicated there has been a 58 per cent increase in the employment of children since the nullification of NRA.

Strikebreakers

Furnishing strikebreakers, often armed with deadly weapons, to anti-union employers for use in labor disputes is an old practice resorted to by racketeers, who have no scruples regarding the underworld denizens whom they mobilize against working men and women struggling to better their economic conditions.

Recently a large baking company in Philadelphia hired a group of these malodorous characters to "settle" a dispute with its employes regarding wages and hours. To the surprise of the company officials, the Philadelphia police department ordered the strikebreakers placed under arrest as a menace to industrial peace. This unusual method of handling strikebreakers was commended by the Philadelphia Record in an editorial entitled "To Preserve Order in a Strike."

Pointing out that "it is common enough for police to be called upon 'to preserve order' during a strike," but that they "rarely do that job as logically, as sensibly as Philadelphia detectives did" in the bakery strike when "they acted to prevent disorder by arresting 13 strikebreakers, apparently imported by a labor agency," the editorial continued:

"It takes two to make a fight, in a strike situation or any other. All too often one of the parties is a professional strikebreaker. Fomenting strike violence in an attempt to cause pickets to lose public sympathy is a well-understood angle of the strike-breaking game.

"Philadelphians who believe industrial disputes should be settled in an atmosphere of peace will not take kindly to the discovery reported by the police that these strikebreakers were men used in the recent New York City elevator strike, and that they have been shifted around from job to job, city to city, as needed.

"We don't want that element in this town and we are sure that the employers in this case did not know the past histories of the men supplied to them by the agencies. A council so worried about crime as to force every ex-convict to register, even though he be presently enjoying a clean record, has something to get its teeth into in this problem.

"Whether by city ordinance or state law, or both, the traffic in strikebreakers should be kept under strict official watch. Employment agencies dealing in strikebreakers should be held accountable for the acts of every man they supply, and should be subject to fine every time they supply a man with a criminal record. Safeguards of this order are under consideration in New York. They are needed here.

"The registration requirements and supervision should be strictest in the case of the notorious New York City strikebreaking agencies, which are now ploughing the Philadelphia field."

Take It or Leave It!

Items of More or Less Interest Picked Up From Various Sources

CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

A great many persons think labor is tearing itself apart and so isn't making any headway.

Such persons ought to pay more attention to newspapers and periodicals.

Labor is commanding more and more attention.

For this month, as an example, the Magazine of Wall Street and the Atlantic Monthly are two outstanding magazines devoting much space to labor. Labor men will not agree with what they say, but they are talking about labor.

The Wall Street Journal runs a labor column, not daily, but two or three times a week.

Labor is important and its importance is growing.

* * *

Of course, this means a wider opportunity for labor papers. Labor papers that tell about labor intelligently, as this one seeks to do, are the best authorities on labor news.

Those that want the best and freshest news about labor will turn to labor papers, as they ought to.

When old line publications go overboard in the effort to print labor news it means that readers want to know about labor.

That is exactly the situation. Readers want to know about labor.

In the national field International Labor News Service gathers and distributes authentic labor news, furnished to many papers, including this one. Just as press associations serve daily papers.

Labor news is on the road to being recognized as of first grade importance.

Those that don't know about labor will shortly be regarded as too ignorant to be bothered with, too backward to have important responsibilities.

Labor editors have a real sense of news, too. That's because so many of them really are newspapermen.

Witness the sensational scoop by the Trenton Labor News in the arrest of a new Lindbergh case figure. When a labor paper can be on the street with such a story before daily newspapers even suspect it, it means a highly developed news sense. Labor papers have plenty of it.

Regularly they scoop daily papers on big labor news.

"Read your local labor paper" ought to be a national slogan.

Trade papers and magazines have immense circulations. Women's Wear, dealing exclusively with garments, is a daily.

Labor papers serve a far wider field, interest millions more, ought to circulate in almost fabulous numbers.

Why not?

* * *

Well, why not? One reason: Too many labor men don't care, don't see the vital importance.

Another reason: Too many outside the labor movement don't know they can buy labor papers and learn first hand about labor.

Another reason: The labor press itself too often doesn't take advantage of its opportunities.

Self advertising has not been well done, on the whole.

It's time for all of us to wake up.

92 MUSIC PUBLISHERS HIT BY WALKOUT OF MUSICIANS

New York Union Demands Higher Pay, 35-Hour Week and Piece Work Minimum.

New York, N. Y.—Local No. 102 of the American Federation of Musicians called a strike of arrangers, copyists, proofreaders and pianists employed by 36 New York City music firms, members of the Music Publishers' Protective Association, and 56 independent music publishing houses in an endeavor to secure union recognition along with higher wages and shorter hours.

Jacob Rosenberg, secretary of the union, said the walkout, which had the cooperation of the Autographers' Union, Local 17993, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, had tied up the music publishing industry here.

The union seeks the following wage scale for its members employed on a full-time basis: Arrangers, $75 a week; supervisors, $100; copyists, $50, and proofreaders, $75. A standard 35-hour week is demanded as well as a basic minimum price for men doing piece work. Use of the union's identifying stamp on manuscripts is also asked.

The drive to unionize arrangers and copyists, Mr. Rosenberg said, was started last November. Three radio stations, he added, had recently signed contract setting scales of $115 and $100 a week for arrangers and $65 for copyists on a 35-hour week basis.

The union announced that it negotiated settlements with five publishing houses within two days after the strike was declared.

LABEL LEADERS

By BROWNIE HOPPER

ADVICE TO THE WIFE OF A UNION MAN.

If you need a pair of shoes
And are afraid to break the news
Because you know there'll be a squawk,
Together with a lot of talk
About high bills.

Here's a bit of good advice
To make your husband be right nice.
Just go ahead and get the shoes
Then try this simple little ruse:

When you take them home to show
Point out the label in the toe,
Then watch him look and start to smile
About that bill.

PRACTICALLY all leading brands of hilk hose are union-made—for instance, those Vanettes that Lovemans is advertising this week for 85 cents.

IT'T BEING RUMORED AROUND and about that the convention committee is planning to take the Tennessee Federation of Labor delegates and visitors on the Scenic Loop trip around Lookout mountain. And, also, that there'll be union TAXI DRIVERS behind the wheels of all the limousines.

JUST TO SHOW YOU that it pays to browse around a bit in your shopping, one lady reports that there's a dime store in town that has some of the pottery made at Erwin, Tenn., the plant that is 100 per cent union. And another lady telephoned a few days ago that she has found one more place that carried ladies' shoes with the union label!

FINANCIALLY, this column is about to wreck the family. Because, in wandering through the Vogue just about every day to see what there is to write about, I can't help but see all the cute new things and the first thing you know out comes this so-called "columnist" with another package.

Bad Taste, Worse Manners

Alfred P. Sloan, president of General Motors, took the occasion of his company's annual report to air his views on political and social questions. Mainly, they are the orthodox views of Big Business, which regards profits as the primal purpose of existence. He speaks of the "deadening hand of straitjacket government regulation. He complains of the volume of taxes which G. M. has been required to pay. And he declares that New Deal methods and experiments "have definitely postponed recovery."

It would be interesting to know how Mr. Sloan gets such positive information. Not, certainly, from the records of his own company. The stock of General Motors participated in the toboggan slide of the fall of 1929; and, after a partial recovery, sank so low that if Mr. Sloan had looked over the side of his craft, he could have seen the bottom of financial things.

At one time in 1932 General Motors common stock was quoted at 7⅝; which means that it was selling at $7.62 a share.

That, remember, was under the Old Deal. Now consider what has happened to General Motors under the New Deal. Its net sales in 1935 were $1,155,641,511, a gain of 34 per cent from the year before. Its net profits in that year were $167,226,510. Its common stock is now selling at from $65.87 to $68.12 a share. The last figure is almost nine times the price which it brought at a time in 1932.

Under the New Deal dispensation, Mr. Sloan's company has gained from $58 to $60 in the price of its stock, and cleared net profits in a single year of more than $167,000,000. With those figures staring him in the face, what right has Mr. Alfred P. Sloan to complain of the New Deal?

The New Deal has faults. It allowed the banks to go back to the financiers who had ruined them, instead of keeping them under absolute government control—if not government ownership. It has been altogether too tender of the incomes of multi-millionaires; and it should, in its first month, have levied on the heaped up surpluses of corporations like General Motors a tax that would have made much of government borrowing unnecessary.

These are faults to which labor has a right to point. But it is bad taste, worse manners and the worst possible sportsmanship for Mr. Alfred P. Sloan to criticise the New Deal.

Setting a Good Example

New Jersey municipalities are setting a good example to public and private employment by restoring pay cuts imposed on city employes during the depression.

Newark and Jersey City are leading in the movement for pay restoration, recognizing that their action is increasing purchasing power and giving impetus to business recovery.

Citizens of communities throughout the nation would do well to insist that their local governments do as Newark and Jersey City have done.

ALUMINUM COMPANY ACCUSED OF VIOLATING THE WAGNER ACT

Atlant, Ga.—Charges of unfair practices under the Wagner Act have been filed with the National Labor Relations Board against the Aluminum Company of America.

Local Union No. 19104 of the Aluminum Workers' Union, an affiliate of the American Federation of Labor, charges the giant Mellon-owned company with discharging workers because of union affiliation. The union also charges that the company refused to promote workers to better jobs unless they resigned from the union and threatened to demote workers who refused to quit the organization.

The Wagner Act violations are said to have occurred at the company's plant at Alcoa, Tenn.

TEACHER TALK

LOCAL 246, A. F. of T.

GENERAL MEETING APRIL 18

The fourth and final general meeting of the 1935-36 fiscal year will be held at the university Saturday morning, April 18, at 10 o'clock. The following are on the agenda:

(1) Election:
(a) Officers.
(b) Delegates to Central Labor union.
(c) Delegates to A. F. of T. convention.
(d) Delegates to Tennessee Federation of Labor convention.
(2) Constitutional amendments, Local 246.
(3) New by-laws, Local 246.
(4) Constitutional amendment, A. F. of T.

It is very important that every federation member be present.

Copies of the proposed amendments will be sent out in a bulletin next week instead of being published in Teacher Talk.

BANQUET SLATED ON MAY 9

The annual banquet of the federation will be held on May 9. This is expected to excel all previous banquets in attendance, program and hilarity. Federation members feel that they have a past of which to be proud and that a real celebration is in order.

No effort is being spared to get the best available in a speaker for the occasion. America's foremost historian, Prof. Charles Beard, has been invited. Should he be unable to accept, an attempt will be made to get John Dewey, George S. Counts or Jess H. Newlon, of Columbia Teachers' college.

DON'T FAIL TO:

(1) Pay your poll tax before June 1.

(2) Thoroughly fill out the questionnaire sent out by the legislative committee.

MARION COUNTY LOCAL INSTALLED

Charter was installed for the new teachers' local in Marion county Wednesday night. Brothers Stanton E. Smith and T. R. Cuthbert represented Local 246 and the Central Labor union at the proceedings. Officers were elected.

ORGANIZING COMMITTEE TO T. E. A.

The organizing committee will hop to Nashville this week-end in order to conduct a booth at the Tennessee Education association meeting there on April 9-11.

MASS PICKETS ARRESTED.

New York, N. Y.—If any one has the idea that picketing in New York City is legal, the frequent arrests of persons using this traditional persuasive method of bringing anti-union employers to their senses should change that impression.

A recent event along this line was the attack by the police on about seventy pickets in front of the Hotel Taft, against the management of which the Building Service union had a strike. Fifteen of the pickets, selected as the leaders, were arrested and charged with "disorderly conduct." The management of the hotel was elated at the action of the police.

Unionists Victimized By Baltimore Concern

Maryland Labor Commissioner Says Foster Brothers Also Cut Wages and Lengthened Hours

Baltimore, Md.—Foster Brothers Manufacturing company, Inc., manufacturers of bedding here, have discriminated against employes because of their union affiliation, according to a report on the strike of the company's employes made by Charles S. Warner, Maryland Commissioner of Labor Statistics. The strike has been in effect since January 16.

After an investigation of the controversy, Commissioner Warner said that approximately 90 employes struck following the lay-off or dismissal "without adequate reason" of a number of workers who were officers in the newly organized Mattress Makers' Union No. 20137, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

In view of the fact that the dismissed employes had been employed by the company for periods ranging from two to 17 years, Commissioner Warner said "it would appear that such a lay-off or dismissals could be attributed to the fact that these employes were dismissed due to their activities in a union organization."

Other elements in addition to discrimination against union members which precipitated the strike, the Commissioner said, was an increase of the work week from 40 to 45 hours, which meant a wage cut of approximately 10 per cent for time workers, and the lack of sanitary facilities and safety provisions in the factory.

The Commissioner pointed out that the National Labor Relations Board had found the company guilty of violating the Wagner-Connery Act which guarantees workers the right to organize and bargain collectively and had persistently refused to arbitrate the controversy, adding:

"The firm has repeatedly refused to rehire a number of these striking employes who voluntarily reapplied for their jobs in an effort to relive the acute sufferings of their families, some having been evicted from their homes, the most frugal having had but small savings put aside. The firm has been responsible, by their arbitrary actions in putting upon relief a number of persons who have tried by the only recourse known to them to make an adequate salary in order that they would not have to become public charges."

From the facts revealed by his investigation Commissioner Warner said "the firm is to be blamed for this condition continuing to exist and in contributing nothing toward making satisfactory adjustments which might have the effect of producing mutual agreement between employes and employers."

LABOR QUERIES

Q. What is the Boncel ordinance in Milwaukee?

A. An ordinance giving the mayor power to close a strike-bound plant when the employer refuses to deal with representatives of striking workers. The mayor appoints a committee of nine to confer with him on the advisability of closing a plant, but the final authority rests in the hands of the mayor or chief of police, either of whom can order a plant to close if the management will not confer with the strikers' representatives. The ordinance, introduced by Alderman Boncel, Socialist, was passed last October. It had united labor support.

Q. Will the convention of the American Federation of Labor in Tampa this year be the first Federation convention held there?

A. It will be the first in Tampa and the first in Florida.

Q. Who said: "We want neither dictatorship from the bottom nor from the top"?

A. Samuel Gompers.

SEAMEN'S UNION SUES GOTHAN SHIP STRIKERS

New York City.—Andrew Furuseth, president of the International Seamen's Union of America, has begun legal action against Joseph Curran, chairman of the strikers' committee of the Panama Pacific line California, charging misrepresentation on the part of the strikers in their efforts to effect sympathy strikes on other Atlantic ships.

President Furuseth's complaint charged that the committee claimed to represent the union and to have the support of the American Federation of Labor in its activities, which include the picketing of shipline offices and of waterfront piers with placards warning passengers against traveling on ships manned by "scab" crews.

In a bill of particulars Furuseth said the union had signed a new wage agreement with thirty-six ship lines for 1936 and that the strikers' committee had attempted to disrupt the union by having he agreement repudiated.

The committee has described itself as a "rank and file committee of the union," whereas union officials do not support or recognize the committee, Furuseth said.

JOE G. DOBBS

A meeting such as is held only once in a blue moon was that staged by Central Body Monday night when the annual large election night attendance of delegates witnessed the retirement of T. R. Cuthbert as secretary, a post he has held for five years, and the election of Erskine Mabee of the painters to succeed him. Mr. Mabee had no opposition.

Joe G. Dobbs, filling out the unexpired term of A. C. Kamin, who had been forced to resign his duties because of his physician's orders, was named to succeed himself for the next year. The posts of vice-president, recording secretary and sergeant-at-arms were filled by J. L. Carpenter, Miss Virginia Munsey and E. E. Crosby, respectively, all of whom succeeded themselves.

Voting for the three trustees and the two directors to The Labor World board was fast and furious in a large field of candidates. After the smoke had partially cleared away, it was found that A. C. Kamin, S. E. Smith and W. T. McKenna were the three trustees, and that V. W. Hallmark and J. L. Gardner were the two directors. Old Reliable C. F. Weidner will keep stand at the door for another term.

When the race for three delegates to the Tennessee Federation of Labor convention, which will be in Chattanooga May 4, 5 and 6, was reached, the excitement rose again.

Starting off with a very large field of aspirants, all but four nominees withdrew their names before voting started. The final vote showed that the three unionists to represent Central Body will be Joe Dobbs, A. C. Kamin and W. T. McKenna.

The elections were held in the best of spirits and accord. From the looks of things last Monday night, the incoming officers will be given the greatest of cooperation, and prospects for the local labor movement have never been brighter.

The company was ordered to reinstate "without prejudice" 31 employes who allegedly were discharged because of their union affiliation, and to reimburse them for any loss of pay.

BARBERS' PREXY STRICKEN DOWN BY DEATH ANGEL

Was Well Known and Respected by Local Unionists For Services Rendered.

President of Barbers' International Since 1922—A. F. of L. Suffers Loss in Passing.

Dies

J. C. SHANESSY
Veteran of International Barbers' Union of America

Information that J. C. Shanessy, veteran member of the Journeymen Barbers' International Union of America, had been called by the Grim Reaper on April 4 came as a distinct shock to thousands of Chattanooga trades unionists this week. Mr. Shanessy had visited this city frequently in line of duty, and his personality has been indelibly impressed on all with whom he had contact. The American labor movement has suffered a loss that can never be forgotten. His memory will forever be a monument to his name.

Indianapolis, Ind.—James Colmer Shanessy, general president of the Journeymen Barbers' International Union of America since 1922, died here on April 4.

Mr. Shanessy was a prominent official of the American labor movement. He was born in New York on July 1, 1870. His father was a switchman. He was self-educated, with short terms in primary day and night schools. He went to work at the early age of eight years.

Mr. Shanessy was employed as a barber from 1894 to 1902; he became business agent of Barbers' Local Union 102, St. Louis, Mo., in 1902 and held that position until 1909, when he was chosen general organizer of the international union. In 1922 he was elected general president, which office he held until his death.

He was instrumental in bringing about Sunday closing of barber shops in several states and wrote a number of pamphlets dealing with barbers.

President Green of the American Federation of Labor requested Frank Duffy, secretary of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, to attend the funeral here as his personal representative and the representative of the American Federation of Labor.

In a telegram to W. C. Birthright, secretary-treasurer of the Barbers' Union, President Green said:

"President Shanessy has been an outstanding figure in the American Federation of Labor and in its deliberations at conventions covering a large number of years. He was held in high esteem and high regard by the officers and members of the American Federation of Labor. Both the Barbers' international Union and the American Federation of Labor have sustained great loss as a result of his death."

200 Firms Supply Spies to Anti-Union Labor Employers

Labor Board Investigator Declares System Is Widespread in American Industry.

Washington, D. C.—Heber Blankenhorn, an investigator for the National Labor Relations Board, told the Board at a hearing on labor relations in the iron and steel industry that the use of labor spies by officials of American industries is widespread.

The hearing was held to consider complaints filed by the Amelgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers that its members had been discriminated against because of their union affiliation by the Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation, the Wheeling Steel Corporation and the Crucible Steel Corporation. Such discrimination is in violation of the Wagner-Connery Labor Disputes Act.

Blankenhorn testified that more than 200 firms are engaged in the business of mobilizing spies and strikebreakers for manufacturers. Among the best known concerns reaping large profits from this notorious practice he included the Pinkerton and Burns Detective Agencies, the International Auxiliary, the Corporations Auxiliary, and the Railway Audit and Inspection company of Pittsburgh.

He said that detective agencies had resorted to various methods to persuade J. T. Harris, secretary of a local union at the Portsmouth, Ohio, plant of the Wheeling Steel Corporation, one of the concerns against which the Amalgamated Association filed complaints, to leave town.

A man who identified himself as J. C. Boyer, a representative of New York bankers, first approached Harris with the offer of a job that would have taken him out of Portsmouth, according to Blankenhorn's testimony. Boyer also approached Harris a year later.

Following Boyer's unsuccessful efforts to get Harris out of town, Blankenhorn said that a man who identified himself as P. W. Wilson, representing a "Washington newspaper system," offered Harris a newspaper job in Washington.

Since these offers were made, Blankenhorn added, Boyer has been identified as an employe of the Railway Audit and Inspection company of Pittburgh, "a professional espionage and strikebreaking service."

Strike Facts

The NLRB hearings on the steel industry thus far have established:

That the biggest single cause of strikes is the refusal of management to admit the workers' right to organize.

That federal intervention is very old, and has come in many cases which did not directly involve interstate commerce.

That every public body that has investigated strikes has laid the major blame on the company.

That all economists believe collective bargaining an absolute necessity.

That where collective bargaining is carried out in good faith by employers, the number of strikes drops very low.

Witnesses Tell Strike Facts At NLRB Inquiry

History of Labor Disputes Cited to Prove Effort to Bar Organizing Leads Inevitably to Strife.

Washington, D. C.—Testifying at the hearing of the National Labor Relations Board on labor conditions in the steel industry, William M. Leiserson, chairman of the National Mediation Board, summed up an industrial philosophy in a single sentence:

"Freedom is the great peacemaker."

Dr. Leiserson had been tracing the growth of collective bargaining between the railroads and the train service brotherhoods. These brotherhoods have won almost complete industrial liberty, protected by Congress and the courts; and while there were still disputes between management and men, those disputes were settled peaceably.

Leiserson showed scant respect for the recent dictum of a majority of the Supreme Court that manufacturing is not commerce.

"Manufacturing Is Commerce"

"The International Harvester company has its main offices in Chicago, and a twine plant in New Orleans. Wages and employment, conditions of work—the whole labor policy—is fixed in Chicago, and put in effect in New Orleans. If that isn't interstate commerce, what is it?

"I was mediator once in a labor dispute at Hammond, Ind. But I didn't go to Hammond first. I went to New York, where the Hammond plant is owned and managed.

"The employe is always a human being," Leiserson said. "The employer, in these days is seldom a human being. The employer is a corporation; and may have a plant in Illinois, a charter from another state and offices in New York."

ROCKWOOD SCABS PROTECTED BY TEAR GAS AND BLACKJACKS AS STRIKERS ARE SLUGGED

Mill Owners Cry for Militia to Bayonet Unionists—"Pounding Party" Arranged by Knoxville Central Labor Union.

Demonstrating that southern mill owners are prepared to maintain "peace" in their plants when they decide to further reduce wages and stretch out their employes, tear gas bombs were brought into play at Rockwood, Tenn., this week when pickets were harassed and beaten. Although the employes of the Rockwood hosiery plant were not organized at the time the new wage schedule was announced, all but about fifty walked out of the mill and shut it down temporarily.

Representatives of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers were requested to proceed to Rockwood to form an organization, which was done. The federal government has sent a conciliator to endeavor to adjust the dispute, but it is thought by many that management will not care to have the government "interferring" with their business and as usual will ignore all efforts to secure peace just so long as the tear gas and the strong right arms of their deputies hold out.

Chief of Police J. L. Sartin, for 16 years a Rockwood officer, deputized 50 citizens, who were armed with blackjacks and stationed here and there through the crowd of strikers and sympathizers during the afternoon gathering.

Sheriff Elmer Goodwin and his approximately thirty deputies, including about four with "cannon"-appearing tear gas projectors, and others carrying the grenade type of tear gas bombs, were stationed at strategic points in the intersections and at the besieged mill's gates.

In addition, Chief Benton McMillin, of the state highway patrol, was on duty with six officers to keep traffic moving.

But when the workers started coming out, the officers and policemen were surprised to note that there was no hostile move from the more than 500 persons scattered on the streets

Thank You All

Last Monday evening, for the first time in five years, the writer was not voted upon in the annual election of Central Body for secretary-treasurer. Since assuming the duties as editor of your paper I believed it best that the two positions of editor and secretary should not rest in the same person.

During my tenure of office about everything that could have happened has happened. New organization activities due to NRA, strikes, lockouts, injunctions and lawsuits have fallen like snowflakes. Truly, this period in my life has been most hectic. Through it all it has been a pleasure to have observed the complete cooperation which every local union has shown to the labor movement. I did my best to follow the principles and instructions laid down by Chattanooga Central Labor Union at all times, and the friendships gained and help make me a rich man.

Mr. Erskine Mabee, who is to be the new secretary-treasurer, deserves the same unfailing cooperation from the labor movement which was accorded me. He is thoroughly competent and his succeeding terms in office will see the movement grow and prosper as it has never done before.

Birthright Is Named Barbers' Acting Head

Union's Secretary-Treasurer Takes Place of President James C. Shanessy, Labor Veteran, Dead at 65.

Indianapolis, Ind.—The general executive board of the Journeymen Barbers' International Union of America, meeting here, designated William C. Birthright, general secretary-treasurer, as acting president, due to the death on April 4 of President James C. Shanessy.

Mr. Birthright has been secretary-treasurer of the barbers' union since 1930. He has filled many important positions in the labor movement. Born in Helena, Ark., his parents moved to Memphis, Tenn., and later settled at Nashville, Tenn., where he attended school and learned the barber's trade. He joined Local 35, Barbers' union, in 1908, and was soon elected delegate to the Nashville Trades and Labor council. A few years later he was elected secretary-treasurer of his local union and re-elected every year until he resigned to take up his duties as general secretary-treasurer of the international union. He was elected vice-president of the international union in 1924. He served on the joint legislative committee of the State Federation and the Railroad Brotherhood for many years and has taken a leading part in promoting trade unionism in the south.

In the death of James C. Shanessy, labor lost a veteran fighter for the workers' cause. He had been president of the Journeymen Barbers' union since 1922.

Mr. Shanessy was born July 1, 1870, in New York. He went to work at the age of 8 and was a barber from 1884 to 1902. He was business agent of the Barbers' Local 102 of St. Louis, Mo., 1902-9 and general organizer of the international union, 1909-22. He was instrumental in bringing about Sunday closing for barber shops in several states and in bringing other improvements in the conditions of workers in the trade. He was the author of several pamphlets, including "The Barber Who Carried a Lantern" and "A Close Shave."

No Privacy For Corporations

The Allied Chemical and Dye Corporation has filed suit in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals to have the Securities and Exchange Act of 1934 declared unconstitutional. Of the five "reasons" which the company gives for this action, only two are worth considering. Allied Chemical alleges that the Constitution of the United States gives Congress no power to regulate the exchange of securities. But above all and beyond all, Allied Chemical cries aloud that the SEC is trying to pry into the corporation's secrets, and would publish its private affairs to the world.

It is about time for Congress to declare that a corporation has no secrets or private affairs; and to make that declaration good. A corporation is an agency created by public fiat. Without the favoring will of public authority, no corporation could exist. The people have a right to insist that the books and records of their creature shall be wide open to inspection by public authorities.

It is time, too, to remind the business world that when public authority creates a corporation, it does so in the expectation of public benefits. These often do not materialize; more often still they are charged for at extortionate rates. The least that a sensible public can demand of a corporation is assurance that the public will not be gyped in the future as it has been gyped in the past; and that requires pitiless publicity for all corporation affairs.

As for the quibble that the Constitution does not give Congress authority to regulate securities exchanges when every such such exchange lives on interstate patronage, one need only say that another amendment to the Constitution would seem to be very much in order. The pretension of federal courts to set aside acts demanded by the people, passed by Congress and signed by the President, never rested on any basis but usurpation, which is fast becoming intolerable.

RFC Should Fight Pay Cutting

Some employers are stampeding workers into accepting wage cuts by asserting they must cut costs in order to obtain loans from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to stay in business, John W. Edelman recently charged in a letter to Jesse Jones, chairman of the RFC.

Edelman, research director of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers, told Jones that minor RFC officials were fully informed as to the facts in at least one such case involving a hosiery manufacturer.

The RFC should at once make a statement of policy to the effect that it opposes wage cutting as a means of "fixing up" balance sheets to get loans, Edelman further told Chairman Jones. He added that the present epidemic of wage slashing in industry is making business conditions more difficult and the RFC must not permit itself to be used as a bludgeon to tear down wage and hour standards.

Every citizen can endorse Mr. Edelman's demand that the RFC throw its influence against wage cutting. The RFC was formed to deal with the evil effects of "deflation" policies, of which wage cutting was the most vicious. For it to do anything now that tends to encourage pay cutters and bring on the old disastrous "downward spiral" of workers' purchasing power would be the heighth of folly.

Take It or Leave It!

CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

Political big guns are blazing away and a good many of them turn out to be loaded with blank cartridges and wet powder. Some fizz and splutter. Some go pf-tt-tt and thus go out. Some are filled with shooting stars and colored lights that look grand for a couple of minutes. Then the sky goes black again and by morning nobody remembers anything more than that there was a show.

Political big guns and popguns are put-putting away and the populace—as the rest of us are known—is expected to rise up, cheer, line up and one up and get all set to vote up.

Now why shouldn't every voter in America follow affairs closely enough so that he could and would make up his own mind on the record as known to him? Why the necessity for ballyhoo?

But of course too many people don't follow events and there are a lot of events that are very difficult to follow and anyway we do have the ballyhoo and the devil of it is that a lot of people like it. They like to be told to vote, it seems. The people cheer what they like to hear. They think they are cheering their own thoughts. That's really the secret of it all. And the clever politician makes people think they are merely cheering their own thoughts. If he is a clever politician he is telling them all the time how to vote. And up to this year 1936 a lot of them do just what they are told. As a people we are simple minded a lot of the time—and we don't even know it.

And so-o-o, with election just a few pages further along on the calendar we are having our ear drums banged at and made to transmit everything from dulcet wacky woo pleading to thunderous r a u c o u s hippodroming. Sticky goo, dapper deception, the imperative command.

Oh, hooey, what an institution thou art! However, let us take pause. It's our fault. We don't read; we don't watch; we let things go on and go by and then when campaign time comes we have to be informed by others. We have to be.

Maybe some time all of us will be alert enough every day to make unnecessary all this tripe called a campaign. But that time hasn't come—and so we have campaigns. Let's hope this one is a good one.

But why does a campaign have to be so much like a big murder trial, in which the foxiest lawyer wins out? Why can't we demand that we have a scholarly review of the facts and then why can't we pass a dignified judgment? Well, part of the answer is that we still love the circus. We like a good show. We like to see the animals jump through hoops of fire and we like to hear the old calliope go whistling down the street like a steamed up madhouse.

So, ladies and genmun, we are about to have a campaign. And you can't take it or leave it. There will be no place to leave it. It seems to be a part of the burden of citizenship. Well, since it is so, keep your eyes and ears open and don't be fooled.

What Next!

Automobile manufacturers are reported to be working on plans to put ordinary automobile engines into "flivver" airplanes to be sold at low cost. The significance of the studies by motor companies, according to the aviation experts, lies in the ability of big automobile concerns to swing into mass production of small, cheap planes whenever their experiments make such action feasible. Some experts say that such a plane on the market could be sold so cheaply that the number of aircraft in the United States probably would be quadrupled within a short time.

THERE'S a couple we know who are school teachers. They moved to a new apartment recently and the maintenance man came up to paint a breakfast table and chairs for them. This young couple asked him to show his union card and he couldn't. So they sent him away and called for a union painter. The first fellow would not have cost these teahers any money because the apartment house paid his wages, but these two young people paid the money out of their own pockets ,and you know just how little money teachers here can have in their pockets). That's real loyalty for you!

Lake Charles, La.—A majority of the master plumbers have agreed to sign with the journeymen plumbers for a new wage scale of $1.25 an hour. The old scale was $1.00 an hour. The new agreement ends a strike called on April 1.

This means that without increasing your bill you can use one-third more electricity for lighting than you have been using . . . or you can change some of your light bulbs to larger sizes. You'll find the 75-watt size gives a more satisfactory light for reading or sewing, while smaller bulbs in many cases cause eye-strain and headaches.

Or you can, if you wish, add a percolator, toaster or some other small appliance. The average toaster used fifteen minutes each morning will use only about 4 kilowatt-hours a month.

FEDERAL LEGISLATION OF INTEREST TO LABOR

Some of the more important bills on issues of interest to labor which are now being considered by congress are as follows:

H. T. Res., Connery, "To prohibit the use of supplies and equipment furnished by the U. S. to the national guard while on service in connection with any labor dispute without the express approval of the secretary of war."

S. 87, Black, "To prevent shipment in interstate commerce of articles in connection with which persons are employed more than five days per week of six hours per day."

S. 3363, O'Mahoney, "To insure domestic tranquillity and to promote the general welfare by regulating and promoting commerce with foreign countries and among the states."

MORE ABOUT NLRB INQUIRY

"Labor Disputes and the President of the United States"; and then he was given a three-hour quiz on industrial history. He told the story of the Pullman strike in 1894, of the Couer d' Alene mining strike in 1899, the anthracite strike in 1902, the Colorado coal strike in 1913-14, the steel strike of 1919, and a little about the railroad shipmen's strike in 1922.

Invariably, he said, the Federal Government was drawn in if the strike was big enough, whether interstate commerce was directly involved or not. In ten cases, federal officials had sought injunctions in the federal courts, eight of these were entirely directed against the strikers, and there were a small fraction of the total number of labor injunctions.

Hundreds of Strike Writs

E. E. Witte, of Wisconsin University, lists 508 injunctions in labor disputes up to May, 1931. Former Senator George Wharton Pepper said there were 300 such injunctions in the shopmen's strike alone. Dr. Berman thought that number too high, but was sure there were at least 100 such writs.

Going back to the Pullman strike, Berman said it was caused by the discharge of workers who protested against the cut in wages when the rents of company houses remained the same. The American Railway Union, then powerful, refused to haul Pullman cars. The railroad managers insured a complete tie-up by putting a Pullman in every passenger train.

U. S. Power Beat Walkout

President Cleveland sent in the federal troops. Judge Grosscup, of the federal court of that district, granted an injunction. He also secured a railroad attorney as assistant to the U. S. district attorney, in charge of the case. More than 5,000 federal marshals were appointed, mainly picked from the slums of Chicago; and the mayors of Chicago and Detroit protested in vain.

In the Couer d'Alene strike, Berman said that the mining companies absolutely controlled the local governments, and had a permit system which made it impossible for a man to live there without getting the companies' permission.

The anthracite strike was entirely within the state limits of Pennsylvania, but President Theodore Roosevelt intervened and practically forced the coal companies to arbitrate. The miners won part of what they had asked, but they lost $25,000,000 in wages and spent $1,800,000 in strike relief.

"May I say," he said, "that every commission appointed to investigate strikes has reported in favor of the strikers."

Hugh Kerwin told of the work of the Labor Department conciliation service, which has dealt with disputes involving 16,000,000 workers. Miss Charlotte Carr, formerly Secretary of Labor and Industry in Pennsylvania, told how company police invaded the workers' homes and rifled their trunks.

ST. LOUIS MOVIE OPERATORS ASK PROTECTIVE ORDINANCE

St. Louis, Mo.—The St. Louis local of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes and Motion Picture Operators is urging the Board of Aldermen to pass an ordinance requiring the employment of an experienced motion picture operator for every projection machine used in the city. To meet objections raised by churches, schools and similar non-profit institutions there is a provision that nothing in the ordinance "shall be construed to apply to motion picture machines used for educational or non-commercial purposes, wherein films of a non-inflammable material are used."

BIG BANKS ATTACK NEW DEAL, BUT GO RIGHT ON INVESTING HEAVILY IN U. S. SECURITIES

New York City.—The 20 largest banks in the United States hold $5,970,913,000 of United States Government bonds. These bonds form 34 per cent of the total assets of the banks in question. In some cases, the proportion runs much higher. Of the total assets of J. P. Morgan & Co., 61 per cent are government bonds.

Students of finance and government consider this revelation peculiarly interesting, because it shows that the actions of the big bankers utterly contradict their words. Practically all the men prominent in these great financial institutions have denounced the administration at Washington, and declared that it was ruining the country by its enormous expenditures for relief, and its efforts to secure fair labor conditions in industry. Yet these same men are shown pinning their financial faith to the bonds of the government controlled by that same administration.

Quite as remarkable as the gigantic bond holding of the big banks is the fact that they are buying more and more of these securities. From December 1, 1935, to March 4, 1936, these banks increased their holdings by $255,323,000. In other words, while with the one hand the big bankers are writing denunciations of the government, with the other hand they are paying out an average of $5,000,000 a day to get that government's securities.

The total assets of the 20 biggest banks are classified as follows by the American Banker:

	Per Cent
Government securities	34
Other securities	8
Cash	27
Loans and discounts	27

According to this table, the 20 biggest financial concerns in the United States are using only a little over one-quarter of their heaped-up resources in active industry.

Labor Board Rules Richmond Clothing Concern Violated Wagner-Connery Act

Marks Company Official Alleged to Have Told Employe to "Wreck" Union Meeting — Rehiring of Discharged Workers Is Ordered.

Washington, D. C. — The ....ational Labor Relations Board decided that in two cases, involving complaints filed on behalf of 19 employes of the Friedman-Harry Marks Clothing Company of Richmond, Va., the employer had deliberately violated the provisions of the Wagner-Connery Act in discharging the employes for membership in the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America.

The Labor Board declared in its decision that Morton Marks, president of the company, had indicated hostility to the union when a local branch was formed in his plant in the summer of 1935. He stated to a group of female employes, according to the ruling, that "I will fire every damn one that attends union meetings."

During July, 1935, the board also found, Keeve Marks, secretary of the company, told an employe that "if we hear of your going to those damn meetings you are going to get fired." Then, it was charged, Keeve Marks suggested that the employe attend the meeting with other employes and "wreck the damn place."

"Bang on the seats, boo them, stamp upon the floor," the board quoted Marks as saying.

"Interference by employers in the men's clothing industry with the activities of employes in joining and assisting labor organizations, and their refusal to accept the procedure of collective bargaining has led, and tends to lead, to strikes and other labor disputes that burden and obstruct commerce and the free flow thereof," the board declared.

Plasterers Object To Cinder Blocks On PWA Schools

Say They Are Unsafe and Unsanitary—McMillan Criticized.

L. T. Adwell, delegate from the Plasterers' union, last Monday at Central Body meeting requested an investigation of the use of cinder blocks on PWA projects. Mr. Adwell said that these blocks did not meet building code requirements in that they were not strong enough, and that they had been condemned by seventeen other cities. Central Labor Union voted to instruct its executive committee to investigate, and if necessary to take the matter up before the city commissioners.

"Those blocks are unsanitary, they will not stand weather, they cannot hold up under crushing weight in a wall, they are brought from Knoxville because they are cheap, and their use affects 2,000 Chattanooga workmen," Adwell pointed out.

"Several weeks ago Building Inspector Billy Smith wrote to seventeen cities and to the University of Tennessee, and all wrote back that they condemned the blocks. The letters are on his desk now. I attempted to talk to Commissioner McMillan about them, and was received very coolly in his office. I did not get in to see him.

"Billy Smith said he could not approve the use of the blocks under the city's present building code. So Mayor Bass, I understand, suggested the code be changed. I don't know what he did about it, but this morning (Monday) workmen started laying the blocks. They are to be used in three schools and the observatory."

PUBLIC ASSISTANCE PLANS OF SIX STATES APPROVED

Washington.—The Social Security Board has approved public assistance plans of six more states: The Arkansas plan for aid to the needy aged, the blind and to dependent children; the Vermont plan, for aid to the blind and dependent children; the Washington plan for aid to the blind; the Ohio plan for aid to the needy aged, the Massachusetts plan for aid to the needy aged and the Oklahoma plans for aid to the needy aged and to dependent children.

These states will receive allotments of funds from the Federal government to match their own expenditures for assistance to the needy aged, dependent children, and the blind. The federal grant will be as much as the states themselves spend in the case of assistance to aged persons and aid to blind, up to a combined total of $30 a month per person, plus 5 per cent of the amount of the federal grant to help cover the states' administrative expenses. For aid to dependent children the federal grant to states with approved plans will be one dollar for every two dollars the state spends, up to a combined total of $18 per month for the first dependent child in any one family and $12 per month for each additional child.

States with approved public assistance plans now number 27 in the case of aid to the needy aged, 18 for aid to the blind and 17 for aid to dependent children. Almost 500,000 individuals are affected by these plans; 390,000 aged men and women; 86,187 dependent children and 17,543 neady blind.

Work for Jobless Stressed by Berry

Reappointed Industrial Coordinator by Roosevelt, He Says Ending Unemployment Is Big Problem for Industry — Condemns Cutthroat Competition —Industrial Progress Council Has Roosevelt's Approval.

Washington.—President Roosevelt's reappointment of Major George L. Berry as Co-ordinator for Industrial Cooperation emphasizes the broadguage recovery program recently adopted by the Council for Industrial Progress, of which Major Berry is the head.

The order defining Major Berry's duties read:

"To arrange and supervise, subject to the direction of the President, conferences of representatives of industry, investors, labor and consumers for consideration of means of supplementing the government's efforts by providing employment for the greatest number of employable persons and of improving and maintaining industrial, commercial and labor standards as they affect employment, and to submit reports and recommendations to the President with respect thereto."

Industrial Council's Work

The recent meeting held by the council, which is made up of over 100 representatives of labor and industry, adopted a number of reports urging legislation designed to reduce unemployment and improve industrial conditions, including federal regulation of maximum hours, minimum wages and child labor, outlawing of unfair trade practices, extension of government loans to small enterprises and the reduction of government competition with private industry.

Approved by Roosevelt.

In summing up the work of the council, Maj. Berry said President Roosevelt "enthusiastically received the reports of the committees and indicated his complete satisfaction with the results obtained. He also expressed the profound hope that this co-operation of management and labor through the industrial council might be made a permanent function in the life of the nation."

Unemployment Problem.

Turning to the question of the jobless army, now reliably estimated to number in excess of 12,500,000, Maj. Berry said he was convinced "that this is the time above all when men engaged in industry, regardless of their status, whether they be called employers or employes, might well take account of the physical ability as well as the responsibility of industry to meet the great problem of unemployment in the United States."

He added that, in his judgment, the Council for Industrial Progress "will contribute as much as any instrumentality conceived in the government today or in the government of the past in the furtherance of tranquility and harmony as between investors, labor and employer. There can be no question but the future security and the perpetuity of American life depends very largely, even entirely, upon the successful composing of dangerous differences between those who are engaged in industry."

Government in Business.

In an enumeration of the important questions which the industrial conference considered Maj. Berry mentioned amendments of the anti-trust laws in the interest of more elasticity for "the principle of free and untrammeled action as between representatives of industry," government participation in private business, and cut-throat competition.

Although the development of government enterprise seemed unavoidable during the business depression, when "the banks and industries and railroads and insurance companies have sought the aid of the strong arm of the government," Maj. Berry declared "that the government has no desire to compete with private industry in normal times goes without saying," adding: "I am positive that the president intends that the government shall withdraw from those fields when normal conditions approach and when the great mass of our unemployed citizens are again engaged in private business."

Attacks Cut-throat Competition.

In the field of "cut-throat competition," Maj. Berry included "competition that has to do with the exploitation of the child in the factory and in the mine, competition that has to do with the increase of the hours of labor, which accentuates unemployment and increases consumption."

"These are the things," Maj. Berry concluded, "that ought to be remedied if possible by co-operation and by education. There are those engaged in industry who decline to adjust themselves to the morals and the ethics of fair competition, to the detriment of the fair competitor, and in the interest of those who disregard it. Moreover, in the interest of the great purchasing power of the American people, as a last resort some law must be enacted in order that we might not return to that cut-throat competition which was so destructive to our economic policy and structure."

CITY-WIDE STRIKE CALLED BY N. Y. MARKET CLERKS

New York City.—A strike affecting between 4,000 and 5,000 clerks and delivery boys in retail fruit and vegetable stores in Manhattan, the Bronx and Brooklyn was voted by members of the Retail Grocery, Fruit and Vegetable Clerks' Union after unsuccessful conferences among union representatives and spokesmen for the Kings County Fruit Merchants' Association and the Fruit Merchants' Association of Manhattan and the Bronx.

Union spokesmen said the union had asked an opportunity to negotiate and present the grievances of the men who ask a 57-hour week in place of the present work week averaging more than 90 hours, increased wages of from 10 to 25 per cent for those paid less than $35 per week, recognition of the right of delivery boys to organize, and the designation of an arbitrator to settle differences that may arise in the future.

Countering this demand merchants in the Brooklyn organization locked out many clerks and the other employer groups threatened to take similar action.

Laxative combination folks know is trustworthy

The grown folks stick to the powdered Black-Draught; the youngsters probably will prefer it when they outgrow their childish love of sweets. Mrs. C. W. Adams, of Murray, Ky., writes: "I have used Thedford's Black-Draught (powder) about thirteen years, taking it for biliousness. Black-Draught acts well and I am always pleased with the results. I wanted a good, reliable laxative for my children. I have found Syrup of Black-Draught to be just that."

FURUSETH IS STRICKEN WITH DANGEROUS ILLNESS

Overwork Sends Veteran Seamen's President to Washington Hospital

Washington, D. C.—Andrew Furuseth, president of the International Seamen's Union of America, is seriously ill in Sibley Hospital here as the result of overwork in connection with legislation in the interest of seamen and other activities for the benefit of those who man the American merchant marine.

Mr. Furuseth is the oldest trade union executive in the United States. He celebrated his eighty-second birthday on March 12 by attending to his work as usual at his office in the American Federation of Labor Building. He was active at the recent convention of the Seamen's Union here which lasted for a month, and at its conclusion vigorously sought to expedite the King Bill for the deportation of certain alien seamen from the legislative jam which had blocked final legislative action on it for many months. His unceasing work in this connection was a contributing factor to his illness.

The countless friends of Mr. Furuseth in all walks of life, both within and without the labor movement, sincerely hope for his speedy recovery followed by many more years of effort in improving the economic conditions of the working people.

No Freedom For Mine Workers In Harlan, Senators Are Told

Kentucky County Under Despotic Employer Rule, Witnesses Swear

Deputy Sheriffs Paid by Coal Companies' Chief Agents of Tyranny, Union Attorney Declares—Arrested Workers Jammed in Cells Like Prisoners of Black Hole of Calcutta.

By GEORGE L. KNAPP

Washington.—Freedom for mine workers is totally absent from Harlan county, Kentucky; and the only thing to match the horrors to which some union men were subjected under arrest is the Black Hole of Calcutta.

T. C. Townsend, attorney for a district of United Mine Workers, told these things to the La Follette committee investigating "infringements" on civil liberties. He spoke with a slow, careful deliberation that made his words doubly impressive; and when he left the stand, the witnesses who followed confirmed Townsend throughout.

"Free speech, free assembly, free ballot, and the right of workers to organize for collective bargaining are things that don't exist in Harlan county," he said. "There aren't any such things in that county, at least for the miners."

"How long has that been the case?" asked Senator La Follette.

"Ever since Harlan county was developed as a coal mining center," replied Townsend. "That is at least 25 years. But I have been in close touch with that county only a little over two years, and I want to confine my remarks to that period."

Deputy Sheriffs Chief Villains.

The chief agency of oppression in Harlan county, Townsend said, is the system of privately paid deputy sheriffs. The coal companies pay part or all of the salaries of the deputy sheriffs. In one year, the coal companies raised $46,730 for this purpose, and the next year, $61,517. It is the system formerly in force on Logan county, West Virginia; and its purpose to keep all members of the United Mine Workers of America out of the county. Organizers who come in are seized and deported; if they are lucky. If not lucky, they are beaten or shot at; and several of them have been wounded.

Townsend read into the record Senator Kenyon's denunciation of the "vicious system" of privately paid men vested with the authority of officers of the law.

In 1835, the U. M. W. made a determined effort to unionize Harlan county. They planned a meeting in Cumberland, the one place in the county not absolutely under the thumb of the coal companies. They sent out men to spread the news of this meeting, and as an attraction, they sent out a colored quartet. All were promptly arrested.

Cells Barbarously Crowded.

"There are two cells in the jail, each 6 feet by 6½ by 6. There are four bunks in each cell, so that the floor space between the bunks is only two feet wide. Sheriff Middleton and his deputies paid by the companies jammed twenty-two prisoners into those two cells, eleven to the cell. The cells had no water, no toilet facilities and little ventilation. These men were kept there from the middle of the day till late at night when they were taken in autos to the county jail.

"The only thing that I can compare that horror to is the Black Hole of

Machinists Decreed Bargaining Agency

Chicago Boss Told by NLRB to Negotiate With Bona Fide Union.

Orders for the International Filter company, Chicago, to bargain collectively with District No. 8 of the International Association of Machinists, were issued this week by the national labor relations board.

The board's decision, reached after a hearing before a trial examiner at Chicago, declares that the union has been designated as the exclusive representative of the firm's machinist employes and that bargaining must be carried on with the object of reaching an agreement on wages, hours and other conditions of employment.

According to evidence presented at the hearing, the firm took the position that "we know of no problems which require any discussion" and refused to even meet representatives of the union.

Central Labor Union Meets Monday Night

Chattanooga Central Labor union will hold its regular meeting Monday evening, April 27, at the labor hall. Final preparations for the convention of the Tennessee Federation of Labor which will convene here May 4 will be discussed.

Meeting will start promptly at 7:30 p.m. All delegates are requested to be present.

Big Pageant in St. Louis To Show Union Growth

New York City.—Mark Starr, of the educational department of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union, announces that St. Louis, Mo., locals of the union will produce a pageant in the opera house of the municipal auditorium. This pageant, "Surging Forward," tells the story of the garment workers' struggle to gain justice and a decent living. In six dramatic episodes it portrays the beginning and growth of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union. It begins by showing the immigrants coming hopefully to this country eager for better opportunities, only to find themselves enslaved by the sweatshop system. It goes on to show the uprising of the dressmakers, the dawn and the success of the union, and the effect of the NRA, ending with the triumphant onward march of the ILGWU.

In between these episodes, there will be picturesque scenes with 200 dancers and a chorus of 50 voices.

Kidnaping Outrage Used Again By "Public Spirited Citizens" To Kill Southern Mill Strike

Hosiery Workers' Organizer Taken for Ride Out of Rockwood in Broad Daylight With Drawn Guns—Beaten and Then Told "Never to Come Back."

San Francisco Milliners Strike; Ask Union Shop

San Francisco, Cal.—The Bell Hat company here refused to enter into a collective bargaining agreement with Millinery Workers' Union No. 40. Result: Sixty employes walked out.

Through the Millinery Manufacturers' association the firm demanded an indemnity bond from both parties as a premise to further negotiations. The union flatly turned down this unheard of proposal. Later the association waived the indemnity bond provided the strikers would return to work and negotiate later. The association refused to specify in writing a definite time when negotiations would terminate. The union therefore voted against the proposal.

When the firm reopened its shop only ten non-union workers went back to their jobs.

HARRIMAN "SNATCH" LAST YEAR RECALLED—NOTHING DONE ABOUT IT

Matt Lynch Says He Can Identify Thugs If He Lives—Attorney H. G. B. King Expresses Determination to Dig to the Bottom of Boss Terrorism.

Once more reactionary mill owner elements served notice on organized labor that their mills must not be organized even if they have to resort to murder to prevent it.

Several days ago conditions became so intolerable in the Rockwood hosiery mill that the unorganized employes got "fed up" and walked out, at the same time making a request of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers headquarters that an organizer be sent there to give them a charter for a local union. Meetings were held and a charter was applied for.

In the meantime the usual menu of tear gas, bombs and blackjacks was served to the strikers. The sheriff and his deputies performed nobly for the mill. Many a stout arm grew weary with the up-and-down motion that goes with club-wielding and bomb-throwing. Strange to say, the workers still wanted a labor union. They continued to meet.

Matt Lynch, representing the hosiery international union, went into Rockwood to install the charter and hold an election of officers. Let's hear what Matt says concerning his affair with the grand old Anglo-Saxon method of industrialism:

"About noon Sunday I was passing the mill en route to a union meeting at Rockwood when about 100 yards beyond the main gate, two men in a black sedan stopped beside me.

"One ordered me into the car. I refused. The first one pulled a 'peashooter'—it looked like a .22-caliber pistol. I said 'it is not necessary to shoot,' and got in the car when the second man cocked a .38-caliber revolver.

"They carried me to a gasoline station and then I was taken out the Crossville road with another, tan or brown, car following. The car behind blew its horn and I looked back, getting a good look at the man in the back seat before he covered his face. I recognized him.

"The other car still followed us. We turned right off the concrete onto a dust road. All along I was cursed and kicked even after they blindfolded me with a green towel which I still have.

"We drove a good deal, but I don't believe we went very far from the main road. Finally they dumped me out and took me into a frame building. There I was kicked and abused again and kept until after dark. I lost track of time, being unable to see.

"Both cars went away. Two men remained with me. They told me to

LABOR PLEDGES SUPPORT TO WAGNER HOUSING BILL

Measure Meets Approval of Organized Workers, Chairman of A. F. of L. Housing Committee Tells Senate Committee—Senator Wagner and Secretary Ickes Also Heard.

Washington.—Active labor support of the Wagner housing bill was pledged by the American Federation of Labor housing committee at a hearing before the senate committee on education and labor.

Harry C. Bates, chairman of the housing committee and president of the Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers' International union, spoke for the committee. He outlined the serious situation of building workers because of the long-continued depression in the industry, explained labor's position on a public housing program and told by labor is backing the Wagner bill.

Bill "Heartily Indorsed."

"The housing committee of the American Federation of Labor," Bates said, "wishes to congratulate Senator Wagner on his crowning piece of liberal legislation which embodies so many features of our own housing program. In the name of organized labor throughout this country, we heartily indorse the United States housing bill and promise active nationwide support for its immediate passage for the following reasons:

"1. It recognizes housing as a national public responsibility, and establishes the fact that public assistance must be given where ordinary private enterprise cannot do the job.

"2. It sets up an independent, permanent United States housing authority, with the power to issue bonds. We do, however, ask that one member of the board of five shall represent labor.

Labor Standards Guaranteed.

"3. All moneys appropriated or borrowed under this bill will go directly into the construction of needed low-rent housing of high standard, and will draw additional private funds at low interest rates into this vast untouched field.

"4. Federal subsidies will bring rents down to about $15 to $30 a month, a field which has never been touched by speculative private enterprise, but which is nevertheless all the rent which the majority of American families can afford to pay.

"5. Labor standards are adequately guaranteed.

"6. There is no exclusive emphasis on 'slum clearance,' which is the most expensive and difficult branch of the housing problem.

"7. Local initiative is encouraged. We particularly commend the recognition of 'public housing societies,' or responsible groups of low-income families who may sponsor and lease projects constructed by the authority. This will provide a great opportunity for democratic, local initiative and will be a safeguard against bureaucratic or paternalistic management."

Subsidy Necessary, Wagner Says.

Urging enactment of his housing program, Senator Wagner told the committee there must be partial public financial support to "remedy a threatening social and economic evil."

"At the present time," he said, "about 18,000,000 families in America, or 60 per cent of the nation, have incomes of not more than $1,000 a year. This means they can spend only $200 or $250 a year for rent.

"But taking the country as a whole, at least $315 per year is necessary to provide a family of five with 3½ rooms of decent and sanitary quarters at an average rate of $7.50 per room per month."

Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes criticized the bill in some respects but gave his personal indorsement of the measure.

BRITISH LABORITE SCORES COMMUNISM

New York City.—Communism is a step in the direction of fascism, Herbert L. Morrison, British labor leader and chairman of the London County council, declared in an address here. Chaos would follow a violent overthrow such as the communists advocate, Morrison said, adding: "I believe the answer to such an overthrow might be, not democracy, but a fascist dictatorship."

J. B. Bynum, Active Meatcutter Member, Is Called by Death

Members of Meatcutters' Local 600 are mourning the death of J. C. Bynum on April 13, who was known as one of the staunchest and most sincere members they had. Brother Bynum had served on all of the important committees and in the activities with utmost diligence. He was employed by the M. A. Turner meat market.

Brother Bynum leaves a wife and four children.

The local union drew up the following resolutions as an expression of its feeling of loss:

"Whereas, Meatcutters' Local Union No. 600 has been blessed with many acitve and intelligent members who have at all times done yeoman service for their trade union; and,

"Whereas, of all those members, none have been more valuable or has endeared themselves more than has Brother J. C. Bynum; and,

"Whereas, Almighty God has seen fit to take Brother Bynum from us on April 13, 1936, causing us to feel a loss which cannot be replaced; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That we hereby express our grief over this valued brother's passing, but at the same time bow to Divine will; be it further

"Resolved, That we express our sympathy to Brother Bynum's widow and four children, asking to share their grief with them; and be it further

"Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be spread on our minutes, a copy be sent to the bereaved family, and a copy be published in The Labor World."

The Labor World joins with Local 600 and the bereaved family in its dark hour, and expresses its sympathy.

WIVES OF WORKERS MOBILIZING; WILL BUY TO HELP HUSBANDS

New Organization Pledged to Purchase Only Goods Made Under Union Conditions; Against Roads Maintaining "Company Unions;" Boost for "Labor."

An American Federation of Women's Auxiliaries of Labor, which will start out with more than 2,000,000 members, was formed last week in Washington.

It was formally created by representatives of the women's auxiliaries of various A. F. of L. international organizations and the four Railroad Transportation Brotherhoods.

The main purpose of the new federation will be to mobilize the purchasing power of American women as an effective weapon against products manufactured by low-wage and long-hour companies. Also, it was pointed out by a representative from one of the railroad union auxiliaries, steps should be taken to see that all articles are shipped over lines which have the standard labor organizations.

"Labor" in Every Home.

"And," she added, "one of the most valuable things that women can do is to see that labor is placed in every home in the land."

The conference was sponsored by the A. F. of L. Union Label Trades Department.

"It is clearly understood," said I M. Ornburn, secretary-treasurer of the department, "that the new federation is not a new women's organization, but a co-ordinating movement to unite the general activities of individual women's auxiliaries.

"The idea is the same philosophy on which the A. F. of L. is founded—that a union is much stronger than an individual member, a group of unions is proportionately stronger than the separate units, and a federation of all unions can speak and act more effectively for all wage-earners than can any isolated group."

Control Enormous Purse.

Delegates to the conference pointed out that women members of organized workers' families spend more than $6,000,000,000 a year, and this buying power, if systematically utilized, can be "a great weapon in the economic market place" and advance the cause of American labor "by several decades."

Decatur Molders Strike Against Discrimination

Decatur, Ill.—Eighty members of the new Molders' union employed by the Wagner Malleable Iron company here went on strike charging that five of their members were laid off because of union activities. Union officials claim the explanation by the management that the lay-off was caused by "lack of work" was merely a subterfuge to conceal a desire to cripple the union.

Carrying Docility Too Far

Southern mill bosses and manufacturers' associations have frequently painted alluring pictures to eastern operators to come to this land of bounteous and cheap labor, where there are no "furriners" and every worker is "Anglo-Saxon" and DOCILE no end.

The affairs at Harriman, Rossville, Rockwood and numerous other industrial centers seem to bear out these claims of docility. Else how could tear gas, thuggery, espionage and kidnapings be practiced without virtual civil war resulting? Well might such employers earnestly hope that their boasts of docility are founded in fact!

Whoever is responsible for the Matt Lynch kidnaping should wisely take counsel among themselves and remember that, although their southern employes have been docile as claimed, they really are "Anglo-Saxon." Let them read their history and see what has happened when docility was imposed upon "Anglo-Saxon" to the breaking point.

History has recited that when such a point is reached the consequences were terrible to behold. Let no one imply that this advice is a threat of what might happen—it is only a reminder of what has happened.

What Next!

A new form of bicycle resembling the "scooter" used by children shoots along as the body is swung back and forth. There are no pedals. The secret is in the rear wheel, which the rider's activity forces past dead center, giving a brief coasting ride before another jerk is needed. The rider stands between the two wheels, as on the "scooter."

Wisdom

Democracy is the flower of human aspiration, but labor is the root. So it is incumbent upon labor to promote its own dignity, to lift its ideals, to cultivate itself in skill and wisdom, to the end that justice, mercy and peace may bless and glorify our land forever.—Meredith Nicholson.

Tobacco Giants Still Swing Their Big Club

There has been no yielding to the spirit of unionism on the part of the Big Four tobacco companies.

Out of a past reeking with every known brand of hostility to labor, these companies continue to pile up profits in enormous quantity at the expense of exploited labor.

You will not find a union label on any package of cigarettes turned out by the whirring machines of the Big Four.

There they stand, huge empires of power across the South. These and the cotton mills so much alike in their policies, but these with a more canny leadership and a consequently greater and surer profit.

These great corporations fought NRA, because they hated the idea of having to deal with workers, they hated the idea of fair working hours and fair wages. While the leader of their forces sat at the high council tables under NRA, the mills stood like so many brainless entities in sullen, implacable hostility.

Companies Cling to Old Practices.

In a nation rapidly moving toward intelligence in labor relations, the giants of tobacco cling to the practices of a half century ago. They have not yielded a single inch under the National Labor Relations Act.

The answer of union workers can be but one thing. That answer must be given by smoking cigarettes that ARE union made and by using other tobacco products that are union made.

There is not a tobacco product, be it cigarette, pipe tobacco, plug, cigar or snuff, that cannot be had in the highest quality, WITH THE UNION LABEL.

Union Men Can Help.

Long ago the Tobacco Workers' International Union appealed for help in fighting the battle for the use of union-made cigarettes and tobacco products.

And yet there are union men who smoke the brands of the labor-hating Big Four, strange as it may be.

Under the remarkable guidance of Secretary-Treasurer I. M. Ornburn, the Union Label Trades Department of the A. F. of L. is building up the patronage of union-label goods, the union shop card and the union button by leaps and bounds.

Go Union—Now!

Nothing is in more common usage than cigarettes. The smoker reaches for one from a dozen to fifty times a day. It is about the last word in strange doings to bring forth a non-union cigarette on a job where the worker cannot remain without his own paid-up union card.

If the labor movement can stand true to the products of its own members it will bring into action the most powerful weapon ever devised against the tyranny of industrial autocracy.

Are YOU smoking a union-hating cigarette while you draw the wages of unionism, in protection against autocracy in your own occupation?

GO UNION TODAY.

Almost all tobacco stores now sell UNION-MADE BRANDS.

Items of More or Less Interest Picked Up From Various Sources

CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

New York City has in Langdon W. Post a tenement house commissioner who believes in telling the truth about housing, and telling it so it can be understood. He told the young women's organization of the Women's National Republican club that six square miles of Manhattan island are covered with slums or old law tenements.

By "old law tenements," Mr. Post means those built before the year 1900, when light and air were considered luxuries, and hundreds of acres were covered with tenements which present laws would not allow to be built. But, being built, they stand. Continuing his bent for plain speaking, Mr. Post said that 78 per cent of the tenements constructed before 1900 are still standing, and still housing people who cannot afford anything better.

Figures from another source emphasize the seriousness of our city slum problem—and perhaps that of our rural slums as well. No achievement of human society in recent years has been more worthy or more remarkable than its baby saving work. It has gone on over a large part of the world. Before the World war, about 100 infants out of every 1,000 born in the states which kept track of such things died before the end of their first year. That was already much lower than it had been before; but in 1932, it was down to 57.6 out of every 1,000. In statistical phrase, the infant mortality of the registration area of the United States was 57.6.

Then it began to rise. In 1933, it was 58.1; in 1934, it was 60.1. That is the last certain figure we have. In other countries, infant mortality continued to drop. The rate in Switzerland was 51 in 1932, and 45.7 in 1934. That of England dropped in the same time from 65 to 58.6; that of Australia from 41.3 to 39.5; that of Scotland from 86.2 to 77.7.

The depression is getting in its work in what scientists call a delayed reaction. Science, public aid, philanthropy and the devotion of social workers shielded the babies from the depression for a time; but the effects of needless poverty are beginning to be seen.

Rudyard Kipling was a citizen of the British Empire to the last. His will shows that. He provides for his wife and his relatives; but if his daughter dies without children, the Kipling estate goes to the Canadian and Australian branches of the Fairbridge Farm schools, to which Kipling contributed generously during his life.

The fortune thus disposed of is no vast one; about $700,000 in American money; more than enough for comfort and security, with luxury and travel beside. By comparison with some fortunes England and many in America, it is a pittance. But it serves to show once more how loose is the relation between service and reward.

Kipling gave pleasure to more people than any other writer of his time. More than 3,500,000 copies of his books had been sold in the United States down to the end of 1934; and his royalties from this country alone are estimated to be double the total of his estate. His works are constant sellers; there are tales in the Mowgli books and the "Just So" stories that never can grow old; and "My Lord, the Elephant," remains one of the best comic short story in the language. He was a lucky writer as well as a great one.

Yet his whole estate is dwarfed by the personal yearly income of any one of more than 500 American Croesuses, none of whom ever wrote anything notable except checks.

Union-mined coal, Union label shirts, hats, shoes, tobacco, cigarettes, printing and other goods are easily obtained simply because the demand for them has been so great dealers have realized the wisdom of handling them.

The average merchant has slight regard for sentiment in business. He wants to handle goods that move. Move the first consignment of union-made products for him and he will order the second at once.

Royal China Company Adopts Union Label

Ohio Concern Is First in United States Who Decorate Tableware With Trade Union Insignia.

Sebring, O.—An event which will long be considered as a memorable one in the history of the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters occurred here when the union label was placed on a dinner set manufactured by the Royal China Incorporated, of Sebring. It was the first time that the brotherhood label was affixed to tableware in the United States, with the approval of the American Federation of Labor.

This achievement has long been sought by national officials of the Potters' Brotherhood and was realized through their efforts in combination with the work of Local Unions 44, 59 and 121 in conjunction with Royal China executives.

The event was celebrated here by a notable gathering of representatives of the Operative Potters and the Royal China company when the label was affixed to the dinner set. Those present included: James M. Duffy, president of the Potters' Brotherhood, and Mrs. Duffy; John D. McGillivray, secretary-treasurer of the Potters' Brotherhood, and Mrs. McGillivray; H. E. McGunn, representing Local Union No. 59; Arthur E. Speakman, president of Local Union No. 21, and the following officials of the Royal China Incorporated: William H. Hebenstreit, president; John B. Briggs, secretary, and Miss Beatrice Miller, treasurer.

Now that the precedent of the union label on pottery products has been established, President Duffy and Secretary-Treasurer McGillivray said that in their opinion it would not be long before all manufacturers will follow the lead of Royal China Incorporated.

RADIO UNION AFFILIATES WITH ELECTRICAL WORKERS

New York.—The Radio Factory Workers' union here was officially installed as Local 1010-B of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers at the brotherhood's Lexington avenue hall. William Beetle, president of the Radio Workers' local, said the setting up of an industrial union within a craft international union was a forward step in bringing about co-operation between craft and industrial unions on a practical basis and maintaining the unity of the labor movement.

William Collins, general organizer of the American Federation of Labor, was present to withdraw the old charter of the local, which was a federal union directly affiliated iwth the American Federation of Labor. The new charter was presented by E. B. Birietz, special assistant to President Daniel Tracy, of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

The set-up was made possible by a recent referendum vote of the Brotherhood which ratified the creation of a new class of "B membership," with special low rates to meet the needs of the radio workers who have a lower wage scale than the electrical workers.

Oglesby Bus Drivers Win $20 Per Week Wage Award

Oglesby, Ill.—Bus Drivers' Local Union No. 90 here won a striking victory for the locked-out drivers of the Oglesby Motor Transportation company in the award of the Illinois commerce commission at Sprinfigeld of a $20 a week wage retroactive to Jan. 20, with the stipulation that the pay is to be automatically increased to $25 per week on Sept. 1.

The agreement also provides that the men shall put in their eight hours of work within a 12-hour period instead of having to spread it over day and night as they were required to do in the past.

The management of the company imposed the lockout a number of weeks ago rather than grant the wage demands of the union and stopped operation of the buses. But the award of the commerce commission was accepted and operation resumed under the new wage rates.

The union label gives you the highest standard of merchandise for your money.

Supreme Court Bars SEC Quiz As "Arbitrary"

Holds Commission Can't Question Broker on Truth of Claims—Minority Sees Decision Protection for Wrong.

Washington.—The supreme court has rendered another split decision on a new deal development; but this time it does not declare a new deal act unconstitutional. This time, the court merely says, by a vote of 6 to 3, that brokers need not appear before the securities and exchange commission to be examined as to the truth of their claims, if they withdraw their application to that body before making sales.

J. Edward Jones, a New York broker with a record of promotions which did not promote the financial welfare of buyers, applied to the SEC for permission to float another issue of securities. The commission looked into the matter, and summoned Jones to appear before them and answer questions as to the truth of the statements in his application. Jones, instead of obeying, withdrew his application. The SEC ruled that he must still come in for examination. The circuit court of appeals of the Second district upheld the commission; but the supreme court reversed that verdict.

Opinions Plain Spoken.

Both the opinion of the court and the dissenting opinion of three juestices are remarkable for extremely plain and forceful speaking.

"The action of the commission finds no support in right, principle, or in law," declared Justice Sutherland, giving the opinion of the court. "It is wholly unreasonable and arbitrary. To borrow the words of Mr. Justice Day, 'There is no place in our constitutional system for the exercise of arbitrary power.'"

Justice Cordozo, speaking for Justices Brandeis and Stone as well as for himself, was equally emphatic.

"The opinion of the court reminds us," says Cordozo, "of the dangers that wait upon the abuse of power by officialdom unchaned. The warning is so fraught with truth that it can never be untimely.

"Dangers in Untruths."

"But timely, too, is the reminder, as a host of impoverished investors will be ready to attest, that there are dangers in untruths and half truths when certificates masquerading as securities pass current in the market. There are dangers in spreading a belief that untruths and half truths, designed to be passed on for the guidance of confiding buyers, are to be ranked as pecadillos, or even perhaps as part of the amenities of business.

"When wrongs such as these have been committed or attempted, they should be dragged out into the light and pilloried."

CHILD LABOR IN SOUTH IS FOUND STEADILY INCREASING MENACE TO HIGHER WAGE NORTHERN INDUSTR

New York City.—The national child labor committee has issued a scathing report on sweatshops and child labor in the south, written by James E. Sidel, of the committee's staff, after an extended tour of investigation through that region.

The serious competition which southern industries are making with industrial states in the north, says Mr. Sidel, "would not be possible except for low labor standards in which cheap child labor is the most powerful factor."

Noting that factories in numbers have moved south to take advantage of low wages, Mr. Sidel says:

"A listing of new industries brought to one southern state because of such inducement showed the average pay per worker to have been $500 per year. It would not have been possible (to get such low rates) without the competition of underpaid child labor.

"With $500 the average pay, some of the workers must receive wages so low as hardly enough to pro even for food, with nothing left clothing, rent or other necessities

Max Meyer, member of the York Industrial council, comme on the report as follows:

"With the passing of the NRA, sweatshops for the textile indust have come into being. The runa shop from New York is not a ra today.

"The state of Mississippi and o backward states in the Union, thro live chamber of commerce secreta have successfully offered inducem to the textile and needle trade ind tries, such as cotton garment hosiery, to remove their plants f New York, and with sweatshop la which includes the labor of child have created a state of competit which is reflected in balance she as well as in tax rolls in the vari communities of New York state."

NIGHTS AND SUNDAYS

Are BARGAIN TIMES on "LONG DISTANCE" CALLS

Now the low rates in operation for long distance telephoning after 7 P. M. apply all day Sunday. This extension of night rates to all day Sunday includes both Station-to-Station and Person-to-Person calls to most points.

And now, too, new low rates apply on Person-to-Person calls every night of the week after seven o'clock to those points where the day Person-to-Person rate is more than 50 cents.

When you telephone out of town and will talk to anyone at the number called—that is a Station-to-Station call. But if you must talk to only one particular person, whose name you give to the operator—that is a Person-to-Person call. Full information on these classes of service, and rates to many cities, will be found in the front pages of your directory.

Remember, Nights and Sundays are bargain times for your long distance calls.

LABEL LEADERS

By BROWNIE HOPPER

"Spring is here,

Tra la, tra la——"

Yep, the family has a bad case of that good old laziness called "spring fever." It all started when I brought home some new curtain material called "fish net," which brought out the fact that fishing time is near. And that called for fishing worms. At this point the oldest little boy springs the question, "Can a worm swim? If it can't, what does it do 'when it rains?" I'm still wondering!

* * *

IT'S VERY CONTAGIOUS, too—this spring fever. It's the time when everybody starts that wonderful spring garden which never amounts to much after the real hot weather takes all the pep out of a fellow. It's time, too, for the boys' new spring overalls, and work clothes. Miller Bros. has boys' and men's overalls and coveralls with the label.

* * *

In answer to a query—

Yes, M. B., Liberty magazine is union.

HOUSECLEANING is in order, too. If you plan to do any "freshening up," don't forget to have union-labeled wallpaper. There are many good wallpapers that have the label printed on the edge of the roll—the label doesn't show after the paper has been hung (some of our good union friends insist that it should show right up on the wall). One good brand of wallpaper is the Imperial. Sherwin-Williams carries it in lovely patterns—the sun will not fade it, and it is washable.

MY HAT'S OFF—after a visit to the federal court this week, where the Signal Mill case is going on. And, if you think that these textile workers haven't plenty of nerve, you should have seen one of them on the witness stand practically all day. She didn't get flustered for a minute—not even when the company attorney asked her if she knew what an "agent provocateur" was. (Answer in next week's column—mebbe.)

TWENTY-YEAR STRIKE WON BY MACHINISTS

Kansas City Employer Yields to Union Shop and $1 Minimum Wage.

Kansas City.—What is believed to be a national record for settlement of a long-standing strike was made here when the Mathews Machine works, one of the largest in Kansas City, signed an agreement with the Machinists' union.

The strike was called in 1915 and the organization never allowed it to lapse. Now, after twenty years, the firm has signed an agreement, negotiated by Business Agent John Campbell, of the Machinists.

The pact provides for a union shop and minimum wages of $1 an hour.

A similar agreement was also negotiated with the Elsworth Machine company.

MORE ABOUT CONVENTION

Monday afternoon the delegates and visitors will be taken to Lookout mountain in cabs driven by members of Taxi Drivers' Local union, where they will be shown the beauties of that nationally known landmark.

Tuesday evening will feature the banquet. A fine menu has been prepared and an excellent floor show and music will make the occasion one for pleasant memories.

At all times a committee will be active to see that no visitor to this beautiful city will have a moment's idle time on his or her hands.

Of course there will be politics. R. S. McCann, incumbent president, and C. C. Arthur, the present secretary, have thrown their hats into the ring for re-election. It is reported that W. E. Cheek, of Nashville, will make the race to regain his former position of secretary which was taken away in Knoxville by C. C. Arthur. It is also rumored that a candidate for the legislative chairmanship will be entered from Nashville.

All visitors are urgently requested to remember that the Read House is "Unfair," and that they should not register there if the Patten happens to be unable to care for all delegates. Mr. John Lovell, genial manager for the Patten, says that he believes his hostelry will be able to comfortably care for all.

It is believed that the Memphis political situation will occupy a prominent part on the floor, occasioned by repeated attacks by Shelby political bosses on organized labor for failure to obey orders. Most recent of these attacks is the ukase given out that no teacher in Memphis can belong to the teachers' union and hold his job next year.

All in all, the Chattanooga rally, the 39th convention to be held in the state, promises to be the most interesting, most progressive and more fireworks than has been held in a long time.

BILLS SETTING FAIR WAGES OFFERED IN NEW BRUNSWICK

St. John, N. B.—A bill providing for the appointment of a fair wage officer and machinery to investigate wages, hours and conditions of work in industries and trades, has been introduced in the New Brunswick legislature, almost simultaneously with another bill to authorize the provincial board of public utilities to establish fair rates of wages. The appointment of a fair wage officer has been advocated for the last six years by the New Brunswick Federation of Labor, and at the recent convention of this organization, representative of A. F. of L. unions in the province, the advocacy was reiterated. Under the bill, the new officer would be attached to the department of health and labor.

MOVE TO SPEED UP SALARY SUITS

Federation attorneys have prepared motions to move the salary suit to the Middle Tennessee session of the supreme court. Should the move be successful constitutionality of the salary law will be decided upon this spring instead of next fall.

BANQUET PLANS

Negotiations are under way to get an outstanding speaker for the federation banquet to be held at the Hotel Patten, May 9. Latest advices from the arrangements committee indicate that the speaker will likely be either Herbert Agar, famous newspaper man, or Prof. Charles Pipkin, of Louisiana State university.

VOTE BY MAIL

Regardless of the fact that he will be out of town on election day, every teacher should pay his poll tax by June 1 and arrange to vote by mail if necessary.

LABEL LEAGUE MEETS

The regular fortnightly meeting of the Chattanooga Label league is scheduled for Friday night, 7:30, at labor hall. More teachers should attend in order to help and be helped by the labor movement as a whole. At present two teachers, Virginia Munsey and Mrs. Ruth McCafferty, are putting heart and soul into the work. As a result they are winning respect and friendship for the teachers from other unions.

LATEST RED HERRING

William Randolph Hearst's latest red-baiting blast is aimed at America's foremost historian, Prof. Charles Beard. In the Sunday American, Atlanta dateline, Hearst screams in a front page block "Beard's Red Acts Face House Hearing," implying that congress had launched an investigation into the historian's affairs. It was, of course, merely wish thinking on the part of the yellow journalist.

Beard's red activity consists of the most striking characterization of America's yellowest yellow journalist, when he told last year's N. E. A. department of superintendence that "no decent man would touch Hearst with a ten-foot pole."

Because of the refreshing relief it has brought them, thousands of men and women, who could afford much more expensive laxatives, use Black-Draught when needed. Calcutta. I am going to read you Macaulay's description of what happened there."

He read, in Macaulay's ringing prose, the story of the 146 prisoners who were herded in a room 20 feet square, in the heat of a Bengal summer. They were kept there all night, and only 23 were alive in the morning. The Nabob praised the soldiers who did this brutal work, and treated the surviving prisoners cruelly.

Sheriff Compared to Nabob.

"Sheriff Middleton and his deputies are the nabobs of Harlan county," said Townsend, in a voice barely audible. "The men in the Black Hole had more room than those in these cells. It is my firm belief that none of them would have survived the night."

He told incidents showing how homes were invaded, how the county never polled more than 655 votes at a primary until there seemed a chance of the nomination of Thomas Ray, who openly sympathized with the coal miners. Then Harlan county rolled up 9,629 votes in the democratic primary; practically all for Chandler, who is now governor. Ray, 3; Chandler, 550 was the record from one precinct; and the rest were about as bad.

"There is no freedom in Harlan county," said Townsend in closing, "and there never can be industrial peace in that county until this condition is changed. Harlan county is the rotten apple in the barrel."

Union Head Confirms Testimony.

William Turnblazer, president of District 19 of the U. M. W., was the next witness. He has known Harlan county from the inside for fourteen years, and he added to what Townsend had told.

"There were at one time 282 deputy sheriffs in Harlan county, partly paid by the coal companies. All of them carried guns. Four of the sheriff's staff have been indicted for murder; but Sheriff Middleton is still ahead of them—he has been indicted both for murder and for bigamy."

Turnblazer quoted the report of the committee appointed by Gov. Ruby Laffoon. Prominent clergymen of Kentucky were on this committee, but they were unanimous in condemning the coal companies of Harlan county, who were leagued, the committee said, with a group of public officials.

"In Harlan county," the report says, "we found a monster-like engine of oppression, reaching even into the Church of God." For the committee had found unchallenged evidence that the clergyman in that county who criticized the coal companies was hounded out.

Witnesses from Pennsylvania testified that the captive mines, that is, mines owned by industrial concerns which use all the product, are "honeycombed with spies." The U. S. Steel corporation, chief owner of these captive mines, relies chiefly on spies. These report a union, and he is discharged at once on some pretext.

One thing struck the present writer more forcibly than anything else at these hearings. Every witness from the coal camps spoke of NRA and the recovery act as almost sacred things, which for a time had brought peace where there had been no peace before or since.

MORE ABOUT KIDNAPPING

behave or I'd be tied up. I promised to keep quiet.

"One car came back with three men in it. I was put in the back, down in the bottom. I heard the rattle of chains and handcuffs.

"Then they drove me around. One said: 'You ought to let me kill this ——— ———. The dirty rat! Stirring up people!'

"I told them that if they'd release me, I'd go back to Chattanooga. They were all drinking.

"Another one said: 'Oh, don't shoot him. Let me just cut him and he won't come back.' Some one suggested that the party 'just hang him, like we started to.'

"Finally, after I promised not to come back to Rockwood, they let me out of the car. While the car was being turned around, I was kept down on the road with a pistol to my head. Then the gun holder jumped in the car and they were gone.

"I got up, walked up the road to a sign that read Melvine. From there I called up a taxicab in Crossville and rode to the Taylor hotel, where I spent the night.

"I was afraid to call any one at night."

Unharmed save for some bruises and lack of sleep, but apparently frightened of remaining longer in the Rockwood territory without "complete protection," Lynch hurried to Chattanooga and a conference with H. G. B. King, labor union attorney.

Names Four as Abductors.

Definitely naming four men as his abductors and describing himself as positively able to identify three of them "anywhere," young Lynch wanted warrants taken out immediately for the men he accused. This step was blocked here and the plan to take action only after a careful aid groundwork had been prepared was adopted.

Although King said he could not lay all his cards on the table, he insisted that he had "received by telegraph and telephone definite pledges of support from the American Federation of Labor and the American Federation of Hosiery Workers, from Washington and Philadelphia, respectively.

"Organized labor is in this fight to a finish now. We are not going to see this case die. We will win this fight where we lost the Harriman struggle," King said. "They thought kidnaping Lynch would break the strike. Instead, I am sure it has made it."

The strike is still on in Rockwood. Latest reports indicate that the labor movement is still alive, despite this latest fascist outrage.

STORE BLAMED FOR WALKOUT

Mayor La Guardia's Strike Investigating Committee Asks Brooklyn Shoppers to Boycott May's.

New York City.—Mayor La Guardia's committee appointed to investigate the strike in May's department store has made a report blistering the managers of the store and the magistrates to whom those managers appealed for help to break the strike. The committee recommended:

"That shoppers of Brooklyn make their purchases where a sense of justice controls employment policies."

The committee finds that the strike was caused by the discharge of two store employes, who were members of Local 1250 of the Department Store Workers' Union. Wages at May's, the committee states, ran at least 30 per cent below the city-wide average for department store and retail trade workers. Weekly pay at May's averaged $11.21 last February.

Other Abuses Cited

Part-time employment was the rule; only half of the employes worked full time in December. Overtime is not paid for, according to the committee, and deductions from pay are made for an alleged benevolent association. Unsanitary working conditions complete the picture.

The committee also charges that after the strike began, magistrates set excessive bail for pickets, and imposed unduly severe sentences in disorderly conduct cases. It further charges that the district attorney's office in Brooklyn helped to obtain an unwarranted charge of conspiracy against the strikers.

Store Denial Answered

Store has entered a general denial of the charges, and claims that they are due to the prejudices of a member of the committee named Maslow. To this, Rev. John H. Melish, chairman of the committee, makes answer that the entire committee agreed on the report, and gives details of the store's misdeeds and underpayments.

Communist Delegate Barred By Edmonton Central Body

Edmonton, Can.—The Edmonton Labor and Trades council definitely refused to accept the credentials of Jan Lakeman, a prominent Edmonton communist. The council sustained the ruling of President Carl E. Berg at two previous meetings that the constitution of the council prevented admittance of a member of the communist party.

Johnson City Notes

The Johnson City Central Labor union will be represented at the meeting of the Tennessee Federation of Labor at Chattanooga, the first week in May, by D. C. Long, president; W. G. Hart, secretary-treasurer, and W. H. Lacey, recorder of the council.

These delegates have an excellent report to make at the convention of the progress that has been made in East Tennessee during the past year.

* * *

The organizing committee of the Johnson City Central Labor union last Thursday night visited the meeting of the National Brotherhood of Operative Potteries, Local No. 103, at Erwin, Tenn. It is always a pleasure to visit with this large group of unionists and the CLU is greatly pleased to have this enthusiastic group affiliated with them in the labor movement in East Tennessee.

* * *

Among the number of new local organizations under way in the metropolis of East Tennessee are School Teachers, Truck Drivers and Garage Workers, and the formation of the Union Label league, which will more than likely be completed very shortly. Other crafts will follow after the completion of the above.

* * *

At the annual election of officers for the year at the Johnson City Central Labor union meeting on the 10th of this month, D. C. Long, of Barbers' Local No. 491, was re-elected to the presidency for his fourth year in tht position. G. G. Graham, president of Typographical Union No. 763, was nominated for the presidency but withdrew.

Other officers for the year are: C. J. White, of Pressmen's Local No. 253, was elected to the vice-presidency; W. H. Lacey, of Plasters' Local No. 763, recorder; W. G. Hart, of Typographical Union No. 763, secretary-treasurer, and John Laws, of Carpenters' Local No. 1517, sergeant-at arms.

The past year has been one of the most active and more progress has been made during this time than any previous year. Many new locals have been formed and others are in the making, the organizing committee has been active and shows results for the year's work.

All members of the CLU, as President Long says, "has a task to perform in this year's work and he is expecting every man to carry his burden of the work, and it is too much to expect that other members can hope to push the work off on a few members of the council."

Committee assignments will be given members of the CLU at the meeting Friday, April 24.

EVANSVILLE OPERATORS CLOSE TWO COAL MINES

Evansville, Ind.—Officials of local unions of the United Mine Workers of America announced that the Sunnyside and Crescent coal mines in Evansville have been shut down by the operators. Union representatives claim the management preferred to cease operation rather than meet the terms of the Terre Haute agreement, under which all mines in this region are supposed to operate from April 1.

Mines in the counties of Vanderburgh and Warrick have been operating under a special temporary agreement which established a differential lower than the Terre Haute agreement in order to meet Kentucky competition. This temporary differential expired April 1 and the miners now want a higher wage.

The Terre Haute agreement calls for a wage scale of 87 cents per ton and $5.07½ per day for day workers. The temporary differential provides for a tonnage scale of 69 cents and $4.50 per day for day work. This is 18 cents less per ton than the Terre Haute agreement and 57½ cents per day less than the day rate.

The union label leagues have started a boycott against unfair and foreign products.

You can tell a union worker by the number of union labels he wears.

The only way in which organized labor can buy its own products is to demand the union label.

HARRISBURG TYPOS WIN STRIKE FOR UNION SHOP

Telegraph Press, With State Printing Contract, Signs Two-Year Agreement

Harrisburg, Pa.—About 100 striking union printers and pressmen went back to their jobs on the Telegraph Press here when the management returned to the union shop under a two-year agreement negotiated by Secretary of Property and Supplies Arthur E. Colegrove, acting on orders from Governor Earle.

The management decided to try the "open shop" game on March 9 by locking out its union employes and cutting the wage scale for both printers and pressmen from 95 cents to 85 cents an hour. The state was directly interested because the company does the bulk of the commonwealth's printing.

The two unions called a strike after the lockout. They charged that Brigadier General E. J. Stockpole, Jr., president of the company and commanding officer of the 52nd Cavalry Brigade, Pennsylvania National Guard, with failing to live up to the terms of the old contract which provided automatic extension for a period not to exceed 30 days for negotiation of a new agreement.

It required two weeks' negotiations by Mr. Colegrove to turn the state-contract printing plant back to the union fold.
